That moreover the ſaid Gregory Lord Dacre, and Anne his Wife, might make Statutes and Laws for the Government of the ſaid Hoſpital, with the Conſent of the Dean of Weſtminſter, or Biſhop of London. Four Acres of Land, beſides Gardens and Orchards, allowed to be laid to the ſaid Hoſpital; and the Value of five hundred Marks in Manours, Meſſuages, Lands, Tenements, Rectories, Tithes, or other Hereditaments, for the ſuſtaining and Maintenance of it. This Hoſpital was founded in Totehill Fields, where it ſtill is: But the preſent Uſe of it different from the Contents of theſe Letters Patents, as will be ſeen afterwards.

Liberties of Weſtminſter. J. S.

There belonged to the Inhabitants of Weſtminſter divers peculiar Privileges and Liberties. Which one Thomas Bland, an Under-Sheriff, in the latter End of Queen Elizabeth's Reign invading, viz. 1593, Complaint was made thereof to the Lord Burghley, the High Steward. What thoſe Liberties were, and what the Wrongs done thereunto were, the two or three following Papers will ſhew.

Articles objected againſt Thomas Bland, Under-Sherife of Middleſex, for Wronges done againſte the Libertie of Weſtminſter, 22 May, 1593.

‘ 1. Item, That the ſaid Underſherife refuſeth to make Warrants upon Writts unto him directed, being thereunto required: Whereby the Baliffe is damnified, and the Plaintiff hindered.

‘ 2. Item, That he reſteth by himſelfe and his Officers, in both Pallaces at Weſtminſter.

‘ 3. Item, That he chardgeth Priſoners in the Gatehouſe with Writts, the Priſon being within the Libertie of Weſtminſter, and wholly to the Uſe of the Officers there.

‘ 4. Item, That he removeth out of the ſame Priſon by Writ of Habeas Corpus, Priſoners committed by the Baliffe.

‘ 5. Item, That upon a Capias ut lagat. he arreſteth within the Libertie by ſpecial Baliffes, notwithſtanding that the Graunt made and confirmed by her Majeſtie, to the Dean and Chapter of Weſtminſter; wherein Authoritie is geven to the Baliffe, to execute and retorne all Bills, Warrants, Precepts, and Writts, although they concerne any Way the King's Perſon; and that it ſhall not be lawfull for any Steward, Marſhall, or Sheriffe, to enter, for any Cauſe, without Licence of the Officers for the Time being, as more at large appeareth in the Graunt.

And theſe are the Cauſes that he mainteyneth, and partly to be anſwered in the Common Place.

To the Right Honourable the Lord Burghley, Lord High Treaſurer of England.

MAIE it pleaſe your good Lordſhip, to be informed, that Thomas Bland, now Deputie Sheriffe of the Countie of Middleſex, hath, within three Daies paſte, called in Queſtion, before the Judges of the Common Pleas, your Lordſhip's Authoritie within the Libertie of Weſtminſter; and ſummoned me, as Deputie to your Lordſhip's Baliffe there, to hear and anſwer his Objections; which I cannot do, without your Lordſhip's Pleaſure therein knowne And foraſmuche as the like Enterpriſe hath not been done by any Underſheriffe that I can learne of, ſince her Majeſtie came to the Crowne; nor at any Time before, for the Space of one hundreth Yeres. It maie therefore pleaſe your Lordſhip, in reſpect that that the Baliffe of Weſtminſter hath the executing and retorning of all the Kinges Writts by ſpeciall Wordes, to direct your honourable Letters to the ſaid Underſheriffe; that he may ſurceaſe his Suite at his Perill, untill further Councell maie be taken of the Cauſe. Or els ſuch further Order as unto your Lordſhip's Wiſdome ſhall be thoughte meete.

Your Lordſhip's moſte bounden,

RAPHE DOBBINSON.

Upon which Petition, the Lord Burghley made this Order: 'To repaire to Mr. Sergeant Owen, whom I pray to report to me his Opinion touching this Cauſe.

W. BURGHLEY.

Laſtly, let me ſubjoin the Act or Acts of Parliament for the ſtanding Government of this City.

Act of Parliament 27. Eliz. for the Government of Weſtminſter.

In the 27 Eliz. was an Act of Parliament made for the good Government of the City and Burrough of Weſtminſter. This was but temporary; but it continued from one Parliament to another, until the 17. Car. I. then to continue 'till ſome other Act of Parliament ſhould be made touching the Continuance or Diſcontinuance of this and other Acts and Statutes made in the 3d of the ſaid King. The Act 27. Eliz. was printed Anno 1678. The Contents whereof are, 'That this City and Burrough and Liberties thereof, be forever hereafter ſevered and divided, as it hath been accuſtomed, into twelve Wards. That the Dean of Weſtminſter, or High Steward, or his Deputy, yearly, on Thurſday in Eaſter Week, for ever, do nominate or elect twelve ſufficient Perſons to be Burgeſſes; and they to be Merchants, Artificers, or others uſing any Trade within the City or Burrough, or other Perſons as are willing thereunto. The Dean and High Steward, or his Deputy, to appoint the Government of a Ward to every one of the ſaid Burgeſſes. They to continue for one Year: And ſo from Year to Year, during their natural Lives; except for ſome Offence or Miſmanagement: Then to be diſplaced by the Dean or High Steward. Any Perſon reſiant, refuſing to accept the ſaid Room, to forfeit 10*l.* to the Uſe of the Poor, to be levied by the Bailiff of the Liberties of the Dean and Chapter, by Way of Diſtreſs. The Burgeſſes to take the Oath of Supremacy, and a Corporal Oath, to do and execute all Things to them appointed and authorized by this Act. The Dean, High Steward, or Deputy, with the Burgeſſes, or the better Part of them, within ten Days after the Election of the ſaid Burgeſſes, to nominate twelve other able Perſons within the ſame Burrough, Merchants, Artificers, &c. to be Aſſiſtents to the twelve Burgeſſes. They to accept the ſame Charge, upon Forfeiture of 5*l.* to be employed as before; and to take the like Oaths as beforeſaid. Unto every of the twelve Wards, one of theſe Aſſiſtents to be appointed. The ſaid twelve Burgeſſes and twelve Aſſiſtents, and every two of them, within the ſeveral Wards to them appointed, to deal in everything as Aldermens Deputies in London do, or may do. Theſe Aſſiſtents to continue in their Places one whole Year. If any of the Burgeſſes or Aſſiſtents die, or otherwiſe upon reaſonable Cauſe be removed, then the Dean, High-Steward, or his Deputy, from Time to Time to nominate and appoint other meet and able Perſons of like State, Faculty, and Quality, as aforeſaid, to ſupply the Place, to continue in the ſame until Thurſday in Eaſter Week. On that Day, the Dean, High Steward, or his lawful Deputy, to appoint two Perſons out of the ſaid Burgeſſes, to be called or known by the Name of the two Chief Burgeſſes, to continue one Year. And this upon Pain of 10*l.* to be paid as aforeſaid. The Dean, High Steward, or Deputy, the two Chief Burgeſſes, the ten Burgeſſes, or any three of them, whereof the Dean, High Steward, or Deputy, to be one, and one of the Chief Burgeſſes to be another) may hear, examine, determine, and puniſh, according to the Law of the Realm, or laudable and lawful Cuſtoms of the City of London, all Matters of Incontinency, common Scolds, and of Inmates, common Annoyances, &c. And to have Authority to commit to Priſon ſuch Perſons as within the ſaid City offend againſt the Peace, and within 24 Hours to give Notice of it to ſome Juſtice of Peace of the County. All good Orders, and Ordinances, made by the Dean and High Steward, with the Aſſiſtance of the Burgeſſes, concerning the Government of the ſaid Inhabitants, not repugnant to the Queen's Prerogative, nor the Laws of the Land, ſhall ſtand in full Force and Strength. Nothing in this Act to be prejudicial to the Steward, Marſhal, or Coroner of the Queen's Houſhold, nor to the Authority of Juſtices of Peace, nor to the Dean and Chapter of Weſtminſter, nor to the High Steward there, or his Deputy; nor to the Maior, Society, and Clerk of the Staple, High Conſtable, Bailiff of the Liberty, Town-Clerk, or Clerk of the Market: Nor any Search to be made by any other Officer in the City of Weſtminſter.

'If the Dean of Weſtminſter, and the High Steward, or his Deputy, be remiſs and negligent in chuſing and nominating the Burgeſſes at the Time limited, then it ſhall be lawful for two Juſtices of the Peace of Middleſex to nominate and chuſe the ſaid Burgeſſes: Who being ſo choſen, ſhall occupy and enjoy the ſaid Rooms upon Pains aforeſaid. Theſe Burgeſſes not compellible by this Act to remain in their Place above one Year next after ſuch Choice. And ſuch Perſons as have paid any Sums of Money for Refuſal, ſhall not be nominated again to any the ſaid Place, within the Space of five Years next following. The Chancellor or Steward of the Dutchy of Lancaſter to have Power as the Dean of Weſtminſter, &c. within that Dutchy Liberty. This Act not to extend to the College or Cloſe of Weſtminſter, for any Offence within the Circuit thereof. The Burgeſſes not to hear or determine anything without the Conſent of the ſaid Dean, or High Steward, or Deputy. The Searchers of the Sanctuary of Weſtminſter ſhall have, within the ſaid Sanctuary, the Execution and ſerving of all Proceſſes, Commandments, and Warrants, and the Attachment and Apprehenſion of all Manner of Offenders within the Sanctuary, and within the Scite, Circuit, and Precinct thereof.]

The preſent State of this City. The Government of it. St. Margaret's Pariſh: With the Streets and Places therein. New Chapel. St. Martin's in the Fields.

Weſtminſter in its modern State.

J. S.

BUT now we are to ſhew the modern and preſent State of this City, which is grown vaſtly populous and improved within leſs than this hundred Years. For whereas anciently it was about a Mile from London, Fields lying between, except Houſes thinly built in the Road from one City to the other, now all is built contiguouſly, in Length and Breadth containing a great Compaſs; and that with very noble and magnificent Structures. This City is of great Renown for containing two Royal Palaces, namely, Whitehall, and St. James's, the ordinary Places of Reſidence for the Kings and Queens of England; likewiſe many other noble Palaces for the Habitation of the Peers, and Perſons of the higheſt Rank in the Kingdom: Famous alſo for the Tribunals, and publick Courts of Juſtice; where the Lord Chancellor, the Lords Chief Juſtices, and the reſt of the King's Judges ſit, to hear and determine the Cauſes of the People of the Land, according to Equity and Truth, and the Laws, Statutes, and original Cuſtoms: And laſtly, a City of peculiar and extraordinary Honour for the Parliament Houſes of Lords and Commons ſituate here; whereby is occaſioned a frequent Reſort hither of all the great Eſtates of the Kingdom.

Two Royal Palaces here.

Something ſhall be here ſaid, firſt, of the preſent Government of it: And then, to deſcribe particularly and diſtinctly the ſeveral Parts, Pariſhes, and Places of it, as they now are.

The Governours.

High Steward

The Manner of the Government hath been ſpoken of before; and it is now as in former Times. Its Chief Officer is the High Steward, and he uſually a Perſonage of the higheſt Rank of Nobility. He is choſen by the Dean and Chapter of Weſtminſter, being an Officer belonging to that Church, and holds his Office for Life. The Nature of this Office is not much unlike the Chancellorſhip of an Univerſity. The preſent High Steward of Weſtminſter is his Grace the Earl of Arran.

Angl. Notitia.

Under Steward.

The High Steward hath his Under Steward: Who is likewiſe an Officer of conſiderable Reputation, and is inſtead of a Sheriff. He alſo holds his Place for Life. Charles Bonython, Eſq; Serjeant at Law, now doth, or lately did, enjoy this Place.

High Bailiff.

There is alſo an High Bailiff, named by the Dean; and holds his Place for Life. It is an Office of Honour as well as Profit. The preſent, or late, High Bailiff is Thomas Knipe, Eſq;

Twelve Burgeſſes.

Two Chief.

The City hath alſo twelve Burgeſſes, which govern and overſee the twelve Wards. Out of which are yearly choſen two Chief or Head-Burgeſſes: Which have the chief Authority in the two Precincts, which this City contains.

Dean and Chapter.

The Dean and Chapter of Weſtminſter alſo have both an Eccleſiaſtical and Civil Juriſdiction; and not only within the City, but within the Precincts of St. Martin's le Grand in London: And ſome other Places. For Eccleſiaſtical Cauſes, and Probate of Wills, here is a Royal Juriſdiction. Dr. Ediſbury is Commiſſary; from whom there is no Appeal to the Queen, but in her High Court of Chancery.

Seven Pariſhes in Weſtminſter.

But now to deſcend to a particular Deſcription of the ſeveral Parts and Places of this City, according to the preſent Condition of it. Here are now ſeven Pariſhes, St. Margaret's, St. Martin's in the Fields, St. James's, St. Anne's, St. Paul Covent Garden, St. Clement's Danes, and St. Mary Savoy, beſides the Chapel beyond Tuthil-ſtreet. Of which ſeven, that of St. Paul Covent-Garden a good while ago, St. James and St. Anne of later Times, have been, by Acts of Parliament, taken out of St. Martin's Pariſh, having been too large and populous for one Pariſh.] But firſt, of the Pariſh of St. MARGARET's.

The Bounds.

R. B.

This Pariſh is of large Extent, and bounded moſtly with the Pariſh of St. Martins in the Fields, except on that Side which is waſhed with the River of Thames. But within its Bounds it takes in the Privy Garden of Whitehall; and croſſeth St. James's Park, down by Roſamond's Pond. Thence through Tart-hall and the Garden into the Fields: And ſo by the Neat Houſes, taking in all Tuthil Fields. And thence to the Thames beyond Peterborough Houſe, at the upper End of the Mill Bank: And down along by the Thames unto Whitehall. And from Tuthil-Fields it runs croſs the Fields, and takes in Knightſbridge, and the Chapel of Eaſe, lately new built.

The Streets, Lanes, &c. of it.

And now from the Bounds we lead the Paſſenger into the Streets, Lanes, Alleys, and Courts of this Pariſh.

New Palace Yard.

King-ſtreet beginneth at the Confines of the Palace of Whitehall, and leadeth from thence to Weſtminſter Abbey: And by a turning Paſſage Eaſtward through the Gatehouſe, leadeth into the New Palace Yard. Which is a ſpacious Place, convenient for the Reception and Standing of Coaches in the Term Time, and Seſſions of Parliament; and is graced with good Buildings well inhabited. Here is the common Entrance into Weſtminſter Hall, where the Judges ſit: And here is Weſtminſter Bridge, for taking Boat, for ſuch as are minded to go to London or elſewhere by Water. On the South is a narrow Paſſage into Chanel [or Chanon] Row. Out of this New Palace Yard is a Paſſage on the Weſt through St. Margaret's Lane, North into the Old Palace Yard, a ſpacious Place alſo well built. [Here, toward the Eaſt, the Lords of Parliament, brought in their Coaches or Chairs, go up to their Houſe, as do the Kings and Queens, when they go to Parliament. More on the left Hand is a narrow and darkiſh Paſſage, in which is Cotton Houſe, wherein is kept that invaluable Collection of Manuſcripts, known by the Name of the Cotton Library. A little farther in this Paſſage on the Left, is a Pair of Stone Stairs leading up to St. Stephen's Chapel, now the Houſe of Commons. By the ſame Paſſage we are led into Weſtminſter Hall, entering Northward. In this Old Palace Yard, in the North-Weſt Corner, is an Houſe, where the Originals of the Rolls of Parliament are repoſited. Weſtward from this Palace Yard is a Paſſage along by King Henry the Seventh's Chapel into Weſtminſter Abbey, by the little Eaſt Door.]

King-ſtreet. R. B. King's-ſtreet is better inhabited than built, the Houſes being generally built after the old Way, with Timber and Plaiſter, and the Street ſomewhat narrow, which cauſeth Stoppage ſometimes, by Reaſon of Multitude of Coaches paſſing backwards and forwards; for it is a very great Thorough-fare, being the common Paſſage to Weſtminſter Hall, and the Parliament Houſe: And for the Accommodation of ſuch as come to Town in the Terms, here are in this Street ſome good Inns for their Reception, and not a few Taverns for Entertainment, as is not unuſual in Places of great Confluence.

On both Sides of this Street are ſeveral Allies, Courts, &c. I ſhall begin with thoſe on the Eaſt Side, next unto the Gate houſe.

Gatehouſe. The ſaid Gate-houſe is a Priſon for the Liberty of Weſtminſter; the Priſon being ſome Years ſince removed from the old Gatehouſe by Tutbil-ſtreet, this being more convenient. The Market. The Market, called King's ſtreet or Weſtminſter Market; a good large open Place, with a Market-houſe in the midſt, with Stalls and Shops round about, made Uſe of by Butchers, Poulterers, and others, for Sale of Proviſions, the Market being well ſerved and reſorted unto. Whitehorſe Yard. Whitehouſe Yard hath a Paſſage into Channel-Row; but ſince the laſt Fire that happened there, moſt of the Houſes ſtill lye in their Rubbiſh. Ladyes Alley. Ladyes Alley, very ſmall and inconſiderable. Stephen's Alley. Stephen's Alley, a pretty handſome Street, it being the Paſſage for Coaches, &c. into Chanel-Row. Rheniſh-wine Yard. The Rheniſhwine Yard, an ordinary Place, ſo called from the Rheniſhwine-Houſe at the upper End, ſeated in Chanel-Row. Brewer's Yard. Brewer's Yard, a Paſſage for Carts to the Wood-wharfe by the Thames, towards the upper End, where it hath a Paſſage into Chanel-Row, indifferent good. Penſioners Alley. Penſioner's Alley, a very narrow Paſſage out of King-ſtreet, but the upper End, where it falls into Brewer's Yard, is indifferent broad: Out of this Place there is a Door into the Privy Garden of White-hall, generally kept open during the Seſſions of Parliament, and in Term-times, by Favour; which much facilitates the Paſſage to Weſtminſter-hall from Whitehall.

Channel Row. Channel, or Chanon-Row, running from South to North, formerly called St. Stephen's Alley, as belonging to the Dean and Canons of St. Stephen's Chapel, who were there lodged; but afterwards became inhabited by divers of the Nobility and Gentry, having then good Houſes, with Gardens towards the Thames. Amongſt which was one belonging to the Earls of Derby, which was made uſe of, in the Reign of K. Charles the Second, for the Admiralty Office, now the greateſt Part being converted into Dwelling-houſes, which are well inhabited, and bears the Name of Derby Court, Derby Court. which goeth as far as the Thames, having a good Freeſtone Pavement, always cleanly kept, and lying ſomething higher than Channel-Row. The Part not pulled down, is a large Dwelling-houſe with a Garden behind it to the Thames, called Derby-houſe. Overagainſt this Houſe was another fair Houſe belonging to Henry Clinton, Earl of Lincoln; alſo another large Houſe belonging to the Mountagues, lately built into a very fine Court, which hath a handſome Free-ſtone Pavement, and good Houſes well inhabited, and bears the Name of Mancheſter Court, Mancheſter Court. very pleaſant towards the Thames. Dorſet Court. Dorſet Court, built on the Place where Dorſet Houſe ſtood: It is a very handſome open Place, containing but ſix Houſes, which are large and well built, fit for Gentry to dwell in; of which thoſe towards the Thames have Gardens towards the Water Side very pleaſant: In one of theſe Houſes dwells Mr. ——— Emmet, the Son of Mr. Maurice Emmet the Builder of them, where he dyed. Woolſtaple. The Woolſtaple, a very ordinary Place or Lane, but lying on the Back-ſide of the new Palace Yard, unto which it hath a Paſſage out of Channel Row, and another into the Market, as alſo into King's-ſtreet by the Gate houſe: This Place was of greater Note when the Woolſtaple was here kept than now it is, only now retaining its old Name. At the upper End of this Place, near the Thames, are the King's Alms Houſes for eight Men, each having two Rooms, which they let out to Profit, beſides about 5 l. per Ann. Bennet's Court. Bennet's Court, a very handſome Place, with good built Houſes, well inhabited, with pretty Gardens before them, and hath a handſome Free-ſtone Pavement to the Thames Side; but the Entrance into this Court is narrow and not ornamental, as thoſe of Derby or Mancheſter Courts. The other Side of this Channel Row is but ordinary, the chief Houſe being the Rheniſh-wine Houſe, of good Reſort.

Weſt Side of King's-ſtreet. I ſhall next ſpeak of the Places on the Weſt Side of King'sſtreet, beginning with thoſe next White-hall; and the firſt that offers itſelf is,

Downing-ſtreet. Downing-ſtreet, a pretty open Place, eſpecially at the upper End, where are 4 or 5 very large and well built Houſes, fit for Perſons of Honour and Quality; each Houſe having a pleaſant Proſpect into St. James's Park, with a Tarras Walk. Duffin's Alley. Duffin's Alley, which at preſent hath but a few Houſes; but thoſe are well built, and in Time, the whole Alley (without Doubt) will be built. Ax Yard. Ax Yard, a Place of no great Beauty for Buildings, having a very narrow and ill Entrance, but the Part towards St. James's Park is the beſt, as enjoying ſomething of a Proſpect into the Park: The Houſes are here much uſed by Lodgers. Sea Alley. Sea Alley, of mean Account in all Reſpects. Bell Court. Bell Court, a pretty large Place, with good Buildings; at the upper End, aſcending by Stone-ſteps, is Roſe and Crown Court. Roſe and Crown Court, a fine, large, and well built Place, the Houſes fit for Gentry, with a good Free-ſtone Pavement. The upper End of this Court cometh into Duke-ſtreet, and hath a Paſſage into Charles's-ſtreet. Gardiner's Lane. Gardiner's Lane, of a great Length, running down into Duke-ſtreet; a Place not over well built or inhabited: Duke-ſtreet. On the North Side is Poultrey Yard, Poultrey Yard. very inconſiderable; and on the South Side is Bowman's Court, Bowman's Court. a pretty handſome, ſquare, and well built Place; and on the ſame Side is Cherry Court, Cherry Court. an indifferent good Place. Antelope Alley. Antelope Alley, indifferent good. Blew Bore Inn. Blewbore Inn, a Place of good Cuſtome, the Yard being large, with ſome Houſes in it. George Yard. George Yard and Inn, alſo a conſiderable large Place for Stablings, &c. and hath a Paſſage, as hath the Blew Bore Inn, into De la Hay Street, adjoining to Duke-ſtreet. Bell Alley. Bell Alley but ſmall and ordinary, the greateſt Part at preſent not built. Fountain Court. Fountain Court, very inconſiderable. Thieving Lane. Thieving Lane, ſo called, for that Thieves were led that Way to the Gate-houſe by Tutbil-ſtreet, whilſt the Sanctuary continued in Force: This Place, by ſome, is called Bow Lane, from its turning Paſſage into Broken Croſs or Long Ditch, like a bent Bow. The Houſes are not over well built, and divers of its Inhabitants drive a Trade in ſecond-hand Goods: In this Lane are theſe Alleys, viz. Eagle Alley, Eagle Alley. Star Alley. Scot's Alley. Froget's Alley. alſo Star Alley, or Court, with a Paſſage into Scot's Alley; Froget's Alley; all ſmall Places of little Account. Round Court. Round Court, a pretty handſome new built Place, which hath a Paſſage into Thieving Lane, and another into Angel Court.

Behind this North Side of King's-ſtreet, is Charles's-ſtreet. Charles's-ſtreet, a fine large Street, not many Years built, with good Houſes well inhabited: Duke-ſtreet. And Duke-ſtreet, new built, with good Houſes and well inhabited, eſpecially that Side towards St. James's Park, the back Windows having a pleaſant Proſpect thereon, and many of the Inhabitants have the Favour of a Door out of their Garden into the Park, which is no ſmall Benefit, nefit, by Reaſon of the Enjoyment of ſuch good Walks.

The Admiralty Office.

At the South End of this Street is ſeated a large Houſe, made Uſe of for the Admiralty Office, until it was thence removed to Wallingford Houſe againſt White-hall, as more convenient, and built at King William's Charge. This Houſe was firſt built for the late Lord Jeffreys, Lord Chancellor to King James the Second, and for his Accommodation the ſaid King permitted a fair Pair of Freeſtone Stairs to be made into the Park. Then paſſing by this Houſe on the ſame Side, beginneth a ſhort Street called De la Hay Street, which falleth into Long Ditch, ſo called from the Ditch which almoſt encompaſſed this Part of Weſtminſter, now all dryed up, and converted into Streets and Houſes; a Place of no great Account for Houſes or Inhabitants.

De la Hay Street.
Long Ditch.

Prince's Court.
Angel Court.
Maiden Lane.
Park Proſpect.
White's Alley.
Golden Lion Court.
Ogilby's Alley.
Red Croſs Alley.

In this Street are theſe Courts and Alleys; Prince's Court, aſcended to by Stone Steps, a very handſome open Place, with a Freeſtone Pavement, and having well built and inhabited Houſes, eſpecially on that Side that fronteth St. James's Park. For the Security of the Inhabitants, there is a Gate with Iron Bars to ſhut up a Nights. Angel Court, a very handſome new built Place, with a Paſſage into Round Court, and thence into Thieving Lane. Maiden Lane, ſomewhat large, but not well built; at the upper End is a Paſſage up Freeſtone Steps into a pretty handſome Place, with good Buildings, called Park Proſpect, as having a Proſpect on the Park, and hath its Paſſage into it out of Dartmouth Street. White's Alley, a long but inconſiderable Place. Golden Lion Court, alſo very ordinary. Ogilbye's Alley, and Red Croſs Alley, both very ſmall Places.

Broad Sanctuary.
Love Lane.
Green's Alley.
The Church.

The Broad Sanctuary, formerly of more Note than at preſent, when it enjoyed the Privilege of a Sanctuary. It is a very handſome broad and open Place, adjoining to St. Margaret's Church-yard, from whence it is ſevered by a Wall, and hath the Proſpect of the Abbey: At the Weſt End is a Place called Love Lane, being againſt the old Gate-houſe. About the Middle of this Place is a handſome Court called Green's Alley, which hath a Paſſage into Thieving Lane; and more Eaſtwards is the Little Sanctuary, which cometh into King-ſtreet, near St. Margaret's Church, an indifferently large Place, with well built Houſes: Then is St. Margaret's Church, a very decent large Church, being the Pariſh-Church for the Uſe of the Inhabitants.

Gatehouſe.

The Gatehouſe, Weſt of St. Peter's, which gives Entrance into Tuthil-ſtreet, is a Place ſo called, of two Gates; the one out of the College Court, or Great Dean's Yard: On the Eaſt Side whereof was the Biſhop of London's Priſon for Clerks Convict; and the other Gate adjoining to the firſt, but towards the Weſt of the Priſon, for Offenders, thither committed for the Liberty or City of Weſtminſter; which ſaid Priſon was of late Years removed to King-ſtreet by the new Palace Yard.

K. Henry the Seventh's Alms Houſes.

On the South Side of this Gatehouſe K. Henry the Seventh founded an Almes Houſe for 13 poor aged Men that were ſingle, and one of them to be a Prieſt, and a good Grammarian; and this Prieſt was to receive of the Prior or Abbot, every Sunday, 4 d. a Day for himſelf, and 2 d. ob. by the Day for every one of the 12 Men, for their Maintenance for ever; likewiſe every one to have yearly a Gown and a Hood: Beſides, there was allowed to the 13 Men 80 Quarters of Coals, and 1000 Faggots for their Fewel: To theſe 13 Men, there were 3 Women allowed to dreſs their Meat, and to attend them, and each to have, every Saturday, 16 d. beſides a Gown every Year; and in the Hall and Kitchin, there was appointed a diſcreet Monk to be their Overſeer, for which he was to have 40 s. a Year. Theſe Almes Houſes are now called the King's Alms Houſes, and are for 12 Men and their Wives, each Man and his Wife having the Allowance of 6 l. 6 s. 8 d. per Ann. beſides Coals, &c. Theſe Alms Houſes are now very much decayed, and out of Repair.

St. Ann's Chapel.
Lady Margaret's Alms Houſe.
Firſt Printing Preſs.
The New Way.
Paved Alley.

Near unto this Houſe, Weſtward, was an old Chapel of St. Ann, overagainſt which the Lady Margaret, Mother to K. Henry the Seventh, built an Alms Houſe for .... poor Women. Which was afterwards converted into Lodgings for the Singing Men of the College, now called the Choiriſters Rents; which are ſo ruinous, that they are not inhabited. This Place wherein this Chapel and Alms Houſe ſtood, was called the Eleemoſynary, now called the great Almnery. For that the Alms of the Abbey were there given to the Poor. And here Iſlip, the Abbot of Weſtminſter, in the Year 1471, ſet up the firſt Printing-Preſs that ever was in England; and after that, the like was done in the Abbeys of St. Auguſtine at Canterbury, alſo at St. Albans, and other Monaſteries. This is a handſome open Place, with good Buildings, and hath a Paſſage into the New Way which leadeth into Orchard-ſtreet, another into the little Almnery, which is an indifferent good Court, and another into Tuthil-ſtreet, through a ſmall Alley called the Paved Alley.

Great Dean's Yard.
Little Dean's Yard.
Stable Yards.
College Court.

Great Dean's Yard, a fine open Square, encloſed with Rails and Elm-Trees; the Eaſt Side is taken up with the Dean's Houſe, the School, and other Buildings; and the South and Weſt Sides alſo with good Buildings: On the Eaſt Side is the Little Dean's Yard, which hath a Paſſage into the Cloyſters that belongs to the Abbey, a very handſome open Place, with good Buildings, inhabited by Gentry and Perſons of Quality. And on the North Side is a Place called the Stable Yards, at the Entrance into which are good Houſes, but that Part leading to Orchard-ſtreet, is taken for Stabling and Coach-houſes, but near the Entrance is a new built Court called College Court, with very handſome gentile Houſes, with a Freeſtone Pavement, which hath a Thorough-fare Paſſage; and Weſtward this Dean's-Yard openeth itſelf into the Bowling Alley by the dead Wall, now called Dean's-ſtreet.

Twiford Alley.

More Weſtward in Tuthil-ſtreet is Park-ſtreet, the upper End of which is a handſome open Square, with very good Houſes, well inhabited, eſpecially that Side that fronts St. James's Park, having a delightful Proſpect therein, with the Conveniency of Doors out of their Gardens into the ſame; and here is a very fine Cock-Pit, called the King's Cock-Pit, well reſorted unto. George and Plough Yard, an ordinary built Place. Pipe Alley, a narrow Place, with ordinary Buildings. White Hart Yard, a good handſome Court. Nigh unto which is White Hart Lane, an ordinary Place. Green Dragon Court, but mean and narrow. Twiford Alley, very ordinary.

Petty

etty France. Cornelius van Dun's Alms Houſes. Kidder's Yard. Codpiece Court. Gardiner's Lane. Ship Yard. Scotford's Alley. Cabbage Lane, Green's Brewhouſe. Powder-beef Alley. Muſtard Alley. James-ſtreet.

Petty France, a good handſome Street, which cometh out of Tutbil-ſtreet, and runneth into James's-ſtreet; and here, upon St. Hermit's Hill, Cornelius van Dun, a Brabanter, one of the Yeomen of the Guards to K. Henry the Eighth, Edward the Sixth, Q. Mary, and Q. Elizabeth, built Alms Houſes for 20 poor Women, each to have 7 Groats a Week: And adjoining hereunto was a Chapel of St. Mary Magdalen, long ſince converted to other Uſes. Kidder's Yard, an ordinary Place. Codpiece Court, but indifferent. Gardiner's Lane, a pretty handſome Thorough-fare into Tutbil Fields, againſt more Alms Houſes. Ship Yard, a pretty handſome Court. Scotford's Alley; hath a narrow Paſſage into Tutbil Fields.

Cabbage Lane, very long, but ordinary; at the upper End of which is Green's Brewhouſe, being a very low Place, with a handſome new Brick Houſe, pleaſantly ſeated in an open Air: In this Lane is Powder-beef Alley, and Muſtard Alley, both very ordinary.

At the upper End of Petty France is James-ſtreet, which runneth beyond Tart-hall (belonging to the Lord Stafford's) unto Arlington Houſe, pleaſantly ſeated by St. James's Park. One Side of this Street hath good built Houſes, well inhabited, and the other Side the Wall of St. James's Park; and at Stafford Houſe the Bounds of this Pariſh ends; one Part being in this, and the other Part in the Pariſh of St. Martins in the Fields.

Chapel-ſtreet.

Chapel-ſtreet, ſo called from the new Chapel there ſeated.

New Chapel. J. S.

This Chapel belongs to the Pariſh of St. Margaret's. There is a South Window given by Sir William Wheeler, having this Inſcription; Deo & huic Sacello Gulielmus Wheler, Mil. & Baronettus hanc feneſtram conſecravit. The Veſtry raiſeth the Miniſter's Salary by taxing the Pews: So much upon thoſe that ſit in them. The laſt Friday every Month is a Preparation Sermon for the Sacrament here preached.

Tormen's hill and Rents. Hill's Alms Houſes.

This Chapel ſtreet is a handſome broad Place with good Buildings, which falleth into Stretton Ground. Out of this Place is Tormen's Hill, which leads to Tormen's Rents, where there are ſome Alms Houſes, and other ordinary Buildings, with Stable Yards and a Brewhouſe. It falleth into Tutbil-fields; and there are Alms Houſes for 28 poor old Women; the Gift of one Mr. Hill; but the Overſeers of the Poor of this Pariſh, being left Truſtees, they are called, The Pariſh Alms Houſes.

Tutbil-ſide. Butler's Alms Houſes. Wicher's Alms Houſes.

Paſſing out of Chapel-ſtreet, more towards the Chapel, is a Place called Tutbil-ſide, which falls into Tutbil-fields. In this Place there are theſe Alms Houſes, viz. Butler's Alms Houſe, for four Men and their Wives, which have the Allowance of 10*s.* a Month. And if either the Man or the Wife die, then the Survivor to continue in the ſame Room, with the Allowance of 5*s. per* Month: Theſe Alms Rooms are very neat built, with a pretty Garden-plot to each behind, and a handſome Walk before, in common to them, with a Row of Trees. Adjoining to this Alms Houſe, are Mr. Wicher's Alms Houſes, very handſomely built, with a Chapel in the midſt, for reading of Prayers, and a Garden-plot behind to each, with a handſome Freeſtone paved Walk, and a Row of Trees, as was to Mr. Butler's: It is for ſix ancient Men, and to each the Allowance of 10*s.* a Month, beſides Coals, and a blue Gown every two Year.

Palmer's Alms Houſes.

On the Back of theſe Alms Houſes, are thoſe of Mr. Palmer, built, in his Life, for ſix Men, and as many Women, all ſingle Perſons. And each to have the Allowance of 7*s.* a Month, beſides half a Chaldron of Coals, and a black Gown, with a Badge on it, every two Years: There is alſo allowed a Reader for Prayers to the Alms People twice a Day. Who hath a handſome Apartment for himſelf and Wife, if any, together with a yearly Allowance in Money; and beſides his reading of Prayers, he is to teach about twenty Boys gratis. But what more he teacheth, he is paid for; and theſe Boys have black Gowns and Caps which they are to wear when they are to attend at the Funerals of any of the Governours of this Hoſpital, to whom the Care of the Management is committed, according to the Donor's Will. And theſe Houſes have Backſides or Gardens, with a handſome Walk, and a Row of Trees before them; the Chapel and School is in the Midſt.

Lady Dacre's Alms Houſes.

Alſo in Tutbil Fields, more towards Cabbage Lane, are Alms Houſes for twenty poor People, all ſingle, that is for ten Men and ten Women, each the Allowance of 10 l. a Year. And to each there are two pretty Gardens, beſides a large one let out to a Gardiner by Leaſe, for which each Perſon's Share is 3 s. 9 d. every Quarter. Theſe Alms Houſes were the Charity of Anne Lady Dacres, the Wife of Gregory Lord Dacres, of the South. Who ſettled Lands, in her Life, to the Value of 100 l. per Ann. for their Maintenance. In the Midſt is a Chapel for the reading of Prayers twice a Day: Of theſe twenty Alms People the Pariſh of Chelſey hath the putting in of two, the Pariſh of Hayes as many, and this Pariſh of St. Margaret's the remaining ſixteen. The Management of this Hoſpital is committed to the Care of the Lord Maior and Aldermen of London.

Green Coats Hoſpital.

In theſe Fields there is another Hoſpital called the Green Coats Hoſpital, erected by King Charles the Firſt, but endowed by King Charles the Second, for twenty-five Boys and ſix Girls, with a Schoolmaſter to teach them.

Bridewel.

Adjoining to this Hoſpital is Bridewel; a Place for the Correction of ſuch idle and looſe Livers, as are taken up within this Liberty of Weſtminſter, and thither ſent by the Juſtices of the Peace for Correction; which is whipping, and beating of Hemp, (a Puniſhment very well ſuited to Idleneſs;) and are thence diſcharged by Order of the Juſtices, as they in their Wiſdom find Occaſion. The Keeper of this Bridewel is Mr. Reading.

The Peſthouſes.

In Tutbil Fields, which is a large ſpacious Place, there are certain Peſthouſes; now made Uſe of by twelve poor Men and their Wives, as long as it ſhall pleaſe God to keep us from the Plague. Theſe Peſthouſes are built near the Meads, as remote from People.

StrettonGround

Stretton Grounds, a good, handſome, long, well built, and inhabited Street, which runneth up to Tutbil Fields, almoſt againſt the New Workhouſe, for employing poor People; and hath on the Weſt a Paſſage into the new Artillery Ground, a pretty large Encloſure, made Uſe of by thoſe that delight in Military Exerciſes.

the Time of Parliament, and hath very good Houſes round about, except that Part taken up by King Henry the Seventh his Chapel: Here is a Paſſage, by the Eaſt End of the ſaid Chapel, into St. Margaret's Church Yard; which ſerveth at ſuch Times, when the Abbey is ſhut up.

For the adjacent or Out-Parts of this Pariſh.

Neat Houſes. The Neat Houſes are a Parcel of Houſes, moſt ſeated on the Banks of the River Thames, and inhabited by Gardiners; for which it is of Note, for the ſupplying London and Weſtminſter Markets with Aſparagus, Artichoaks, Cauliflowers, Muſmelons, and the like uſeful Things that the Earth produceth; which, by Reaſon of their keeping the Ground ſo rich by dunging it, (and through the Nearneſs to London, they have the Soil cheap) doth make their Crops very forward, to their great Profit in coming to ſuch good Markets.

Knightsbridge. Knightſbridge, ſo called from the Bridge, ſeated on the high Weſtern Road; a Place of no great Account for Inns or publick Houſes: Neither can it boaſt of any good Houſes for the Habitation of Gentry, having not above one or two which are anything good: One a pretty good Box, ſeated as it were within the Bounds of the Hide Park. The Chapel is now lately new built, made larger, and very commodious for Pews and Galleries. But the Part of Knightſbridge beyond the Bridge Weſtward, (which is the greateſt) is in St. Martin's Pariſh.

St. MARTIN's in the Fields.

Although ſuch large Portions of the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields have been, by Acts of Parliament, taken away from it, and proportioned out into three diſtinct Pariſhes; as, St. Paul Covent Garden long ſince, St. James and St. Anne's more lately; yet it remaineth a very great Pariſh, and too populous for one Church to receive the Inhabitans.

Its Bounds. Cecil-ſtreet. To give the Bounds, or Girt Line, of this Pariſh, I ſhall begin at Cecill-ſtreet, being a new Street, now a building, where Great Saliſbury Houſe ſtood; taking in the Weſt Side; (the other Side being in St. Clement's Pariſh) ſo down to the Thames Side, and all along the River Side to Whitehall Privy-Garden; taking in all Whitehall, (which, although in this Pariſh, as is the Palace of St. James, yet, as I am informed, is exempt from Parochial Duties, as being one of itſelf) and ſo croſſing into St. James's Park, runs along by the Side of the Canal to Roſamond's Pond, and thence croſſeth St. James's-ſtreet againſt Tart Hall, being the Seat of the Right Honourable the Earl of Stafford, which it paſſeth through, as alſo the Garden, one Part of which being in this Pariſh, and the other in that of St. Margaret's, Weſtminſter; and on the Garden Wall, at the Proceſſioning, there is a Boy whipt, (a Cuſtom uſed to remember the Pariſh Bounds) for which he hath ſome ſmall Matter, as about 2 d. given him: The like Cuſtom is obſerved at or by Tiburn Gallows. Then from Tart-Hall it runs along the Road to Bloody Bridge near Chelſea College: And from thence croſſeth the Fields unto Knightſbridge, by the Eaſt Side of the Bridge: And from thence croſs Hide Park unto Tiburn Road to the Gallows: And from the Gallows it runs Eaſtward towards St. Giles's: And at the Lane leading to Marybone, it croſſeth over the Fields unto the New Chapel at the upper End of Albemarle Buildings, and ſo down into Pickadilly, on the Backſide of Bond-ſtreet: And from thence down St. James's-ſtreet, taking in the Weſt Side: And then croſſing by St. James's Houſe, at the Yard called the Priory Yard, unto the Garden Wall in St. James's Park, or Garden. By which it runs along to the Stonecutter's Yard: And thence down Warwick-ſtreet, taking in both Sides, and at the End, over-againſt Suffolk-ſtreet, it croſſeth the Street, and runneth up the Hay-market, and ſo turns by Coventry-ſtreet: And at the Corner by the Watch-houſe, runs down Whitcomb-ſtreet, and at Panten-ſtreet End runs into Leiceſter-fields; and croſſing the Square, taking in the South and Eaſt Sides, runs through Bear-ſtreet, thence through Caſtle-ſtreet, and into Newport ſtreet, taking in the South Side; and at St. Martin's-lane againſt Long-Acre, it runs Northwards into another Street called Caſtle-ſtreet, which lyeth on the Backſide of Long Acre, which it runs down, taking in the South Side, the North Side being in the Pariſh of St. Giles's in the Fields; and over againſt Dirty-lane or Charles-ſtreet, by the Backſide of the Red Lyon Inn in Brownlow-ſtreet, it croſſeth the Houſes into Drury-lane, where the Pariſh Stone Mark is ſet up. From thence it runs Southward all along Drury-lane, as far as White Hart Yard, which is over againſt Blackamore-ſtreet; and thence down the ſame into Eagle Court, as far as Little Bridges-ſtreet; which it paſſeth through, taking in the North Side, and falls into Great Bridges-ſtreet; which it croſſeth, and runs down Exeter-ſtreet, taking in the South Row of Houſes, the North being in Covent Garden Pariſh. And thence down by the Weſt Side of Burleigh-ſtreet, into the Strand, as far as Bedford Houſe, where it croſſeth the Strand unto the New ſtreet where I began. Alſo as it takes in all the Weſt Side of Burleigh-ſtreet, ſo it paſſeth Exeter-ſtreet, and beyond Denmark Court, up to Bedford back Wall, and ſo over the Houſes down into the Strand on the Weſt Side of Curle Court, which is in this Pariſh.

Its inward Bounds, ſevering it from Covent Garden Pariſh. And whereas Covent Garden Pariſh lyeth within this Pariſh, therefore it will be neceſſary to give its inward Bounds. I ſhall begin on the Weſt Side of the Duke of Bedford's Houſe next the Strand, where it croſſeth into Maiden-lane, and runneth on the Backſide of the Houſes into Halfmoon-ſtreet, taking in both Sides of this Lane: And from the Halfmoon-ſtreet it alſo runneth on the Backſide of Shandois-ſtreet, on the South Side unto the Tallow-chandler's, which is a little beyond Round Court, where it croſſeth the Street, as alſo the Houſes betwixt Bedford Bury and Bedford Court, and ſo into New-ſtreet, which it croſſeth, and runs down the Backſide of White Roſe ſtreet, next to James's-ſtreet, and falleth into Red Roſe-ſtreet, where it croſſeth the Houſes, and falleth into Hart-ſtreet, on the Backſide of the Buildings next Long-Acre, taking in Part of James's-ſtreet, by the Nagg's Head Inn; and ſo along the Backſide of Hart-ſtreet, unto the Corner of Bow-ſtreet: And there it croſſeth into Red Lion Court, taking in all the Houſes except two or three next Bow-ſtreet; and ſo along the Backſide of Bow-ſtreet into Ruſſel-ſtreet, two Doors from the Roſe Tavern; and thence croſſeth the Houſes on the Eaſt Side of Bridges-ſtreet, and falls into the Weſt End of White Hart Yard, where it croſſeth into Exeter-ſtreet, and runneth along unto Bedford back Wall, taking in the South Side as aforeſaid; and at the Wall runs down the Weſt Side of Curle Court into the Strand, and ſo to the Duke of Bedford's Houſe, where I began the inward Bounds. All which inward and outward Bounds, do appear by the prick'd Lines in the Map, which is the Girt Line of the Pariſh; except that Part on the Weſt of St. James's-ſtreet, and Albemarle Buildings, and ſo towards Hide Park; which being ſeparate from the Weſt Part of the Pariſh, by that of St. James's, will be engraven to that Map. But I ſhall give the Deſcription thereof in this; for the Scale of this Map is ſo ſmall, that ſhould that Part be joined to this Map, in its due Diſtance from the Hay Market, between which and St. James's ſtreet the Pariſh of St. James's lyeth; it would then be far ſmaller, and even uſeleſs, without it were done in a two Sheet Map, which would not be ſo convenient.

Of the ſeveral Parts.

As to the Deſcription of the Streets, &c. in this Pariſh, I ſhall begin with the Hay Market, Suffolk Buildings, Coventry-ſtreet, Hedge lane, Leiceſter Fields, and the Parts adjacent: Then ſhall follow, St. Martin's-lane, Bedford-Bury, Long Acre, Caſtle-ſtreet, &c. Then Drury-lane, White Hart Yard, &c. Then Exeter-ſtreet, the Strand on both Sides, Charing Croſs, Whitehall, St. James's, St. James's-ſtreet, Albemarle Buildings, Arlington ſtreet, with the Buildings leading to Hide Park, together with the outward Parts of Knightſbridge, the Neat Houſes, &c. of which in Order.

Hay Market. — The Market there. — Little Suffolk-ſtreet. — King's Head Inn. — Coventry Court.

The Hay Market, a large ſpacious Street, with well built Houſes, eſpecially the Eaſt Side, which is in this Pariſh. It is a great Through-fare into Pickadilly, and ſo to the Weſtern Road, and much reſorted unto, by Reaſon of the Market there kept every Tueſday, Thurſday, and Saturday, for Hay and Straw there ſold. This Side of the Street receiveth Little Suffolk-ſtreet, which croſſeth Great Suffolk-ſtreet, and falleth into Hedge lane. Then the King's Head Inn, a large Place for Stabling and Coaches. Nigh unto which, and at the Corner of James's ſtreet, is Paulet's Ordinary, or Eating Houſe, much reſorted unto by the Nobility and Gentry. And at the upper End of this Street is Coventry Court, a very handſome broad Court, with good built Houſes, well inhabited, and a Free-ſtone Pavement, which hath another Paſſage into Coventry-ſtreet.

Suffolk-ſtreet.

Suffolk-ſtreet, ſo called, as being built on the Ground where ſtood a large Houſe belonging to the Earls of Suffolk. It is a very good Street, with handſome Houſes, well inhabited, and reſorted unto by Lodgers.

James's-ſtreet.

James's-ſtreet comes out of the Hay Market, and falleth into Hedge-lane, of chief Note for its Tenis Courts, which takes up the South Side of the Street; the North Side being but ordinarily inhabited.

Panton-ſtreet.

Panton ſtreet fronts the Hay Market on the one End, and Leiceſter Fields on the other. It is a good open Street, well built, and inhabited by Tradeſmen.

Coventry-ſtreet.

Coventry-ſtreet falls into Pickadilly at the upper End of the Hay Market, being a great Through-fare for Coaches and Horſes. The North Side of this Street is in the Pariſh of St. James's.

Oxenden-ſtreet. — Edwards Court. — Whitcomb's Court.

Oxenden-ſtreet, a good, open, well built, and inhabited Street; on the Weſt Side is a Chapel of Eaſe, called, The Tabernacle; and on the Eaſt Side is Edwards Court, which is but ſmall; and on the ſame Side, but more towards Panton ſtreet, is Whitcomb's Court, ſo called from Whitcomb-ſtreet, into which it falleth, and is but indifferently built and inhabited.

Whitcomb-ſtreet.

Whitcomb-ſtreet, of no great Account, the Eaſt Side being taken up with Stablings and Coach-Houſes, belonging to the Houſes on the Weſt Side of Leiceſter Fields; and the other Side, which is in this Pariſh, is but ordinarily built and inhabited.

Hedge-lane. — George Yard. — Princes Court. — Mewſe-ſtreet. — Monmouth Court.

Hedge-lane lyeth on the Backſide of Suffolk-ſtreet, into which it hath a Paſſage; a Place of no great Account for Buildings or Inhabitants: But the new Buildings adjoining to it, hath ſomething improved it. On the Eaſt Side is Blue Croſs-ſtreet; then George Yard, or Inn, a large Place for Coaches and Stabling; over againſt which is Princes Court, a pretty large Place, but not well built or inhabited. More towards Charing Croſs is the Mewſe-ſtreet, a pretty handſome new built Place: Not far from which is Monmouth Court, a very handſome, open Place, with new built Houſes, and a handſome Free-ſtone Pavement.

Blue Croſs-ſtreet.

Blue Croſs-ſtreet, new built with Houſes fit for good Inhabitants: It cometh out of Hedge-lane, croſſeth St. Martin's-ſtreet, and falleth into Orange-ſtreet.

St. Martin's-ſtreet. — Chapel Court.

St. Martin's-ſtreet fronts upon Leiceſter Fields, and falleth into Hedge lane, a handſome open Place, with very good Buildings for the Generality, and well inhabited. At the upper End is Chapel Court; which hath a ſmall Paſſage through an Entry into Green-ſtreet, againſt Leiceſter Fields. This Court hath a good Row of new Buildings, the other Side being a dead Wall.

Leiceſter Fields.

Leiceſter Fields, a very handſome large Square, encloſed with Rails, and graced on all Sides with good built Houſes, well inhabited, and reſorted unto by Gentry, eſpecially the Side towards the North, where the Houſes are larger; amongſt which is Leiceſter Houſe, the Seat of the Earl of Leiceſter, and the Houſe adjoining to it, inhabited by the Earl of Ayleſbury. Of this Square, the South and Eaſt Rows of Buildings are in this Pariſh, the other two being in St. Anne's Pariſh, the Boundary Line running croſs the Fields or Square, as ſet down in the Map.

Bear-ſtreet.

Bear-ſtreet, a great Paſſage for Horſes and Coaches into Long Acre, through Caſtle ſtreet. It is a Place of no great Note for Inhabitants, or Building: The South Side of which is in this Pariſh: and here is a Paſſage into Cranborn-ſtreet.

Caſtle-ſtreet. — Duke's Court.

Caſtle ſtreet lyeth on the Backſide of Leiceſter Fields and St. Martin's Lane, and runneth down unto the Back Gate of the Mewſe; near unto which is Duke's Court, which leadeth into St. Martin's Lane, againſt the Church; a large well built Court, with a Free-ſtone Pavement, inhabited by ſeveral French Families.

A Work-houſe and Library, built by Dr. Teniſon. — Orange-ſtreet. — Orange Court. — Orange Paſſage. — Green-ſtreet. — Hunt's Court.

Near this Court and on the ſame Side, is a large Houſe, built on Part of the Church Yard by Dr. Teniſon, ſome Time Incumbent of this Pariſh, late the Moſt Reverend the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, with two very large Rooms, that above Stairs for a Library, and that underneath for a Work Room, for employing poor People in Spinning, &c. But this did not take the Effect as propoſed. Oppoſite to this Houſe was the Duke of Monmouth's Stables, very commodious for that Purpoſe, with good Rooms for Habitation; now converted into Buildings, making one fair Street, with good built Houſes, called Orange ſtreet; which falleth into Blue Croſs-ſtreet, and ſo into Hedge Lane; and on the Backſide of the ſaid Street is Orange Court, alſo well built, having an Entrance into Orange ſtreet, by a Place called Orange Paſſage, of leſs Account. Then farther Northwards is Green ſtreet, indifferent good, which leadeth into Leiceſter Fields: And farther is Hunt's Court, betwixt Green ſtreet and Bear ſtreet, not large, but well built and inhabited, with a Free-ſtone Pavement; nigh to which is a large Yard for Stabling and Coach-houſes, called, The Coach and Horſes Inn.

Newport-ſtreet.

Newport ſtreet, a very good Place, with well built Houſes on the North Side, which is in St. Anne's Pariſh; the other Side being but ordinary, and inhabited by Tradeſmen, ſeveral of which are French: It butts upon Long Acre, from which it is parted by St. Martin's Lane.

St. Martin's Lane.

St. Martin's Lane, a very long Street, which butteth on Northumberland Houſe in the Strand, and runneth Northwards beyond Long Acre, unto the new Buildings in Cock and Pye Fields. This Street is a very great Through-fare both for Foot and Horſe, and is well inhabited, having good built Houſes, eſpecially the Weſtern Side, from Hemming's Row unto Newport ſtreet; and ſince the pulling down of the Brick Wall before the Houſes, and the Courts laid open, with a fine Freeſtone Pavement, ſecured from Carts and Coaches by handſome Poſts ſet up, it hath much added to the Beauty of the Street, and the Conveniency of the Inhabitants. In this Street are a great many Courts and Alleys, for the deſcribing of which I ſhall begin at the End next to Newport-Street, and ſo run down to the Strand. And there begin with thoſe on the Eaſt Side.

St. Martin's Court.
Cecil Court.
Peters Court.
Heming's Rents.
Duke's Court.
Ellis Court.
Grant's Court.
Red Lyon Court.

Firſt St. Martin's Court, a large handſome Court, with good new built Houſes, and a Free-ſtone Pavement, having a Paſſage into Caſtle-ſtreet; and in the Midſt it hath an open Square, at the End of which there is another Paſſage into Caſtle-ſtreet. Cecil Court, alſo a new built Court, with very good Houſes, fit for good Inhabitants, and hath a large Paſſage, with a Freeſtone Pavement, into Caſtle-ſtreet, and out of this Court is a Paſſage into St. Martin's Court. Peters Court, a very handſome and gentile Place, with good Houſes, well contrived, with little Gardens to them. Heming's Rents, oppoſite to Shandois-ſtreet, hath a great Paſſage into Leiceſter Fields, both for Foot and Horſe: Its Buildings are on the North Side, the other Side having the Wall of St. Martin's Church Yard; and the Trouble that the Carts and Coaches make in their frequent Paſſage occaſions it not to be over well inhabited. Duke's Court, already treated of, between which and this Heming's Rents are three ſmall and ordinary Courts, viz. Ellis Court, Grant's Court, and Red Lyon Court. Then near unto the Strand is the Checker Inn, or Court, having a Paſſage into the Strand; in which Part there are ſome Houſes, the beſt of which is a Tavern.

Hunt's Court.
St. Martin's Church.

Now for the Eaſt Side towards the Strand, and ſo up unto Long Acre, the firſt is Hunt's Court, a pretty handſome ſquare Court, with five or ſix good built and inhabited Houſes, having a good Air from a Garden on the Eaſt Side, and hath a Free-ſtone Pavement, with a Door at the Entrance, to ſhut up a-Nights, for the Security of its Inhabitants. Next to this Court is St. MARTIN's Church and Church-Yard.

Which lyeth open for Paſſengers to the Street, from which it is ſevered by Freeſtones, ſet in the Ground Breaſt high, and handſomely ſharpned Taper wiſe. The Church is but low and ordinary, much wanting new building, and to be enlarged, as being too little by far to contain the Inhabitants. But its Steeple is well enough; on which, as being the Pariſh where the King's Palace of Whitehall is, there is always ſet up a Standard Flag upon Days of Triumph or Joy.

one Will they did retaine.

On the North Side of the Chancel is this Inſcription.

Honoratiſſimo patri Dauncio [Amicio] Pouleto Equiti aurato, inſulæ Jerſeæ Præfecto, apud Chriſtianiſſimum regem quondam Legato, nobiliſſimi ordinis Garterii, Cancellario, & Sereniſſimæ principis Elizabethæ Conſiliario, Antonius Pouletus Filius, hoc pietatis Monumentum Mærens poſuit.

Gardez la foy.

Quod verbo ſervare fidem (Poulete) ſolebas,
Quam bene conveniunt hæc tria verba tibi :
Quod gladio ſervare fidem, Poulete, ſolebas,
Quam bene conveniunt hæc tria ſigna tibi.
Patria te ſenſit, ſenſit Regina fidelem,
Sic fidus Civis, ſicque Senator eras.
Te fidum Chriſtus, te fidum Eccleſia ſenſit,
Sic ſervas inter multa pericla fidem,
Ergo quod ſervo princeps, Eccleſia nato,
Patria quod fido cive ſit orba, dolet,
Interea Chriſtus defuncti facta coronat,
A quo ſervatam viderat eſſe fidem.

Margareta Poulet hoc Epitaphium mœroris ſimul & amoris ſui perpetuum teſtem amico conjugi ſuo chariſſimo clariſſimoque dicavit.

Conjugis eſt (teſtante Deo) pars altera conjux,
Vir caput eſt, unum corpus uterque refert,
Una caro, mens una, thoro ſociata jugali,
Solamen vitæ præſidiumque ſuæ :
Ergo meo luctus quis par queat eſſe dolori
Cui vitæ pars eſt altera dempta meæ.
Sed quid flere juvat, non ſic revocabere conjux,
Namque tibi pietas ſtravit ad aſtra viam :
Hæc ſpes ſola juvat : qui nos conjunxit in unum,
Hunc ſibi poſtremo jungere velle die.

A very fair Table faſtened to a Pillar near the Pulpit ; in which is curiouſly drawn the Figure of an Angel holding the Coat of Arms of the living Huſband and dead Wife, for whom it was there ſet up : Alſo of a Death's Head, with an Hour-glaſs upon it : The Border of the Table filled (excellent in Proportion and Colours) with Deaths Heads, Branches of Palm, and other freſh and beautiful Flowers.

Quid Cranii ſibi forma novi vult iſta ? Quid Hora ?
Quidque ſuper Cranio, lumen nova nata, ſegeſque ?
Nempe dies mortis, vitæ fit origo perennis ;
Quæ moritur mundo, naſcitur illa Deo.

What doth this Scull ? What doth this Houre-glaſſe ſhow ?
The Corne and Palme, that on the Scull doth grow ?
It meaneth this, that Death the End of Strife,
Is the Beginning to Eternal Life :
Death is the Doore to Immortality,
She's borne to God, that to the World doth dye.
The burning Taper to his End doth waſte,
Whilſt Life and Death to meet each other haſte ;
Then happy ſhe, that did her Life apply,
Here and above to live eternally.

To the permanent Honour and Remembrance of the Pious and All-vertuous Gentlewoman, Miſtreſſe Suſan Price, Daughter to the Honourable Baronet, Sir Paul Tracy, of Stanway in Gloceſter; and the late dearly beloved Wife of the religious, learned, and truly vertuous Gentleman, William Price, of Wincheſter, Eſquire, one of his Majeſties moſt honourable Privy Chamber. She died the 13. of March, 1632.

Ye holy Angels, and ye Powers of Light,
The glad injoyers of God's glorious Sight;
You that in faithful Abraham's Boſome reſt,
You have receiv'd your ſanctified Gueſt.
Faire Suſan Price hath bleſſed Heaven obtain'd,
And for her well run Race, God's Glory gain'd,
Shining in Robes of Immortality,
Contemnes the Earth and Worldly Vanity.
True Chriſtian Faith indued her conſtant Minde,
And unto her the Promiſe was aſſign'd.
Moſt honour'd be her Memory, outwaſting
All Genealogies, and everlaſting.
Whilſt there be Elements, Stars, Orbes, or Spheares,
Day's Sunne, or Night's Moone, to direct the Yeeres,
The Heavens poſſeſſe her Soule, the World her Fame,
And faire Example, her Vertues, Worth, and Name:
What Nature, Goodneſs, Inſtitution, Fact,
Could heape to a Perfection, was her Act.
The Angels ſing her Glory, who did call
Her ſweet Soul home to its Original,
And now ſhees gone hence for to paſs the Time
She ought her Huſband, in a better Clime.
There ſhall her Harveſt and her Summer be,
Where ſhe ſhall never any Winter ſee.
Then, Price, grieve you no more, ſhe lives in Joy,
Wipe you your Teares, her Teares are wip'd away.

Over the Figure of Death:

Ibimus omnes.

Ladies, when you your pureſt Beauties ſee,
Think them but Tenants to Mortalitie:
There's no Content on Earth, Joyes ſoon are fled,
Healthful to Day we live, to Morrow dead:
I was as you are now, young, faire, and cleere,
And you ſhall once be as you ſee me heere.

Miſtreſſe Suſanna Price, the Wife of William Price, Eſquire, one of the Groomes of his Majeſties Moſt Honourable Privy Chamber, Daughter of Sir Paul Tracy, Baronet, departed this Life the 13. of March, 1622, before ſhee had beene married full 14. Weekes

She was ſo full of Vertue and of Goodneſs, few might compare with her, none could excell her.

A fair Tomb-ſtone in the Chancel, with this Inſcription.

Here lieth buried the Body of Miſtreſſe Dorothy Hervy; that honourable matchleſſe Virgin the Daughter of the Right Honourable, William Lord Harvey, Baron of Kidbrooke, and of the religious Lady his Wife, the Lady Cordelia Hervy, Daughter and Heire to Maſter Brian Anſley, Eſquire, of Lee in Kent. Who departed this tranſitory Life the 19. of February, Anno 1632.

Lord Hervie's Daughter, and fair Vertues Prize.
Modell of Honour, Graces Paragon,
In whoſe great Loſſe her Parents Joyes are gone.
Her Life was ſuch as well may be deny'd,
That ſhe did ever ill, but when ſhe dy'd:
Pity ſo ſoone ſo rare a Virgin muſt,
Stoop to Corruption, and be cloath'd in Duſt.
Heaven and the World being Sutors who ſhould have her,
To end the Strife, ſhe went to him that gave her.

Benefactors.

Some Perſons have Monuments in this Church, that were good Benefactors to the Pariſh, viz.

Thomas Fowler, Eſq; charitable to the Poor in his Life-time; and at his Death, gave by Will, out of his Dwelling-houſe, a perpetual Annuity of 40*s.* to be given to xx poor Houſholders of this Pariſh, at Chriſtmas, for ever.

John Worſley, Gent. he gave to be paid yearly upon each Chriſtmas-day, during the Space of 21 Years, as well 15*s.* to the Poor of St. Martin's Pariſh, as alſo 10*s.* to the Pariſh of Whitchurch in Salop.

Thomas Evans, Gent. gave, by his laſt Will, divers charitable Legacies, viz. 50*l.* to be for a Stock for ever, the yearly Profits to be raiſed thence, for the Repair of the Church, where his Body ſhould be interred.

50*l.* to be a Stock, to be in like Manner employed for the Repair of Chelſey Church.

And other 50*l.* to be employed for the Relief of the Poor within the ſaid Pariſh of Chelſey.

Alſo 50*l.* for the like Relief of the Poor within the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields

And one 100*l.* toward the Building of Houſes on the new Church-yard in the ſaid Pariſh of St. Martin's; to be for the Benefit of the Poor of this ſaid Pariſh.

He alſo gave divers good Legacies to ſundry of his Kindred and Friends.

Henry Lidgould left 5*l.* a Year, for ever, to be diſtributed to the Poor on Maunday Thurſday, which is mentioned before.]

A new Chancel to this Church.
R.

An Enlargement of this Church of St. Martin's was begun in the Year 1607, being the fifth Year of the Reign of K. James the Firſt, and was finiſhed in the Year 1608. This Enlargement was a beautiful Chancel, erected upon a Piece of Ground on the Eaſt of the Church, taken out of the Church-yard for that Purpoſe. K James, and his moſt noble Son Prince Henry, were Benefactors to this Work. The reſt of the Charges were born by the Inhabitants of the Pariſh. Randal Hopkins and Andrew Hacket, being Churchwardens at the Beginning of this Work; Andrew Hacket and Richard Stile, Churchwardens the next Year, at the carrying on and finiſhing it.]

Prayers twice a Day at St. Martin's.
The Rector's Houſe.
J. S.

At this Church are Prayers daily ſaid at ſix a Clock in the Morning, and five in the Evening. It is furniſhed with an Organ. The Rector's Houſe is on the North Side of the Church, being an handſome large Building.

There be two Free-Schools kept in this Pariſh, (beſides the Schools of the Societies) one adjoining to the Church on the South-Weſt; where Children of the Pariſh are taught freely by the Clerk, who receiveth 28*l. per Ann.* for his Salary. There is alſo a little Diſtance off, another School, with a Library, erected by Dr. Thomas Teniſon, when Rector of this Pariſh, (late the moſt Reverend the Archbiſhop of Canterbury) at his own Coſt and Charges, which Library he alſo ſtored with Books.

Dr. Teniſon's School.

This School hath two Maſters to govern it, an Upper and a Lower; the former hath 30*l.* a Year Salary for teaching the Scholars; the latter hath alſo 30*l.* a Year Salary; and for teaching to Write hath 10*l.* a Year more, as it is ſaid. There is only a certain Number of Boys taught freely, the reſt that come pay for their Schooling, as at other Schools.

The Library.

Above the School-Room is the Library, fair and ſpacious. The Books, with the Backs gilt, are ſet on Shelves. There be divers Tables ſet in convenient Places, for the Uſe of ſuch as read or tranſcribe. The Librarian is the Upper Maſter of the School, who hath for keeping the Library 10*l* a Year, beſides his Salary aforeſaid. His Name is Mr. Richardſon. He reads likewiſe the Six a Clock Prayers at St. Martin's Church, founded by Dr. Willis, the learned Phyſician late deceaſed, for which he hath 20*l. per Annum*.

The Populouſneſs of this Pariſh.

This Pariſh was exceeding populous, by Reaſon of the vaſt new Buildings of many fair Streets, Squares, and Lanes: Inſomuch that two Pariſhes, St. James's and St. Anne's, have been taken out of it; and they have fair Churches built for the religious Uſes of the Pariſhioners: And beſides thoſe Churches, certain Chapels alſo are erected; as Oxenden Chapel, Trinity Chapel, for the Convenience of neighbouring Inhabitants, ſince St. Martin's, the Mother Church, is too little to contain them.

The Poors Rate cometh to about 6000*l. per Ann.* And there dye here, one Year with another, about 16000 Perſons every Year. Dr. Lamplugh, ſometime Incumbent here, afterwards Archbiſhop of York, would ſay, that in this Pariſh were as many Souls as in all his Metropolis the City of York, with the Suburbs.]

Church Lane.
R. B.

Paſſing by the Parſonage-Houſe, you are led into Church Lane.

Moor's Yard.

A little beyond the Church is Moor's Yard, a large Place for Stablings, with ſeveral ordinary Houſes, and hath a Paſſage into Church Lane, and another into Thackham's Court, and ſo into Shandois Street; (of which more anon) and beyond this Street are ſeveral Allies and Places, moſt of which have a Paſſage into Bedfordbury, but are very narrow, ill built, and as ill inhabited, viz.

Dawſon's Alley.

Dawſon's Alley, near unto which is a new erected Water-houſe, deſigned to ſerve this End of the Town with Water, to be wrought by an Overſhot Mill, &c For the carrying on of which there are ſeveral Adventurers and Sharers; but how it will take, Time muſt produce.

Bedford Alley.
Feather Alley.
Keniſon's Alley.

Bedford Alley, Feather Alley, and Keniſon's Alley; all three with Paſſages into Bedfordbury, Hop Yard.

King's Arms Inn.
Goodwin's Court.

but very ordinary. The Hop Yard indifferent good for Stabling, and hath an open Paſſage into Bedfordbury. King's Arms Inn, or Yard, a Place for Stablings. Goodwin's Court, but ſmall, having about two or three Houſes.

Caſtle Court.
Croſs Keys Inn.

Then beyond New-ſtreet, near the Turning into Long Acre, is Caſtle Court, which is but ſmall and ordinary; and near unto this is the Croſs Keys Inn, which is large, and of a good Reſort.

Bedfordbury.
White Horſe Yard.
Bell Yard.
Goat Yard.
Pipemakers Alley.

Bedfordbury, on the Backſide of St. Martin's Lane, of no great Account either for Buildings or Inhabitants; in which are theſe Yards and Places, viz. White Horſe Yard, but ordinary; Bell Yard, only for ſome Stables. Goat Yard, alſo for Stablings. Key Yard, now converted into a Brewhouſe; and Pipemaker's Alley, (ſo called from a Pipemaker there dwelling) a very ordinary Place.

Shandois-ſtreet.

Shandois Street, reacheth from Bedford-ſtreet unto St. Martin's Lane; but that Part in this Pariſh begins by Round Court, and ſo to St. Martin's Lane, where it is narroweſt and the moſt ordinary: On the Backſide is a Place called the Back of Round Court, but ordinary.

New-ſtreet.

New-ſtreet comes out of St. Martin's Lane, and falls into King ſtreet Covent-Garden; a pretty good Street.

Long Acre.

Long Acre, a very handſome broad Street, with good Buildings, well inhabited both by Tradeſmen and others, eſpecially of the firſt; it comes out of Drury Lane, and runneth down to St. Martin's Lane.

Angel Alley.
White Roſe and Red Roſe-ſtreets

For the Deſcription of the Alleys and Courts in this Street, I ſhall begin on the South Side, next to St. Martin's Lane; and the firſt is Angel Alley, which, with a long and narrow Paſſage, leadeth into Roſe-ſtreet, a Place of an ordinary Building, and as ill inhabited. Roſe-ſtreet; of which there are three, and all indifferent well built and inhabited; but the beſt is that next to King-ſtreet, called White Roſe ſtreet, which is in Covent Garden Pariſh, with ſome Part of Red Roſe-ſtreet; where the Pariſh Stone is fixed on the Houſes; that Part towards Long Acre being alſo White Roſe-ſtreet.

Conduit Court.
Red Lyon Inn.
The Bagnio.

Conduit Court, indifferent broad, with a Freeſtone Pavement and Paſſage into Hart ſtreet; a Court indifferently well built and inhabited, having on the Weſt Side an open Place like unto a Court. Red Lyon Inn, a large Yard for Coaches and Stables, which hath a Paſſage into Hart-ſtreet, Nigh to this Place is the Bagnio, a well contrived Houſe for Sweating, and much reſorted unto, there being Days for Men, and others for Women.

Leg Alley.
James-ſtreet.
White Hart Inn.
Phenix Alley.
Prince's Court.
Red Lyon Court.
Dirty Lane.
George Inn.
Hill's Alley.
Knuckle's Alley.
Croſs Lane.
Mace Alley.
Terret's Court.
The Wood Yard.
Langley-ſtreet.
Mercer's-ſtreet.
Aſcue Alley.
Coxe's Court.
Crown Court.

Leg Alley, (by ſome called Elmes-ſtreet) a Place of no great Account for Building or Inhabitants; and it hath a Paſſage into Hart-ſtreet. James-ſtreet; but the greateſt Part of it being in Covent Garden Pariſh, I ſhall ſpeak of it there; for there is no more of this Street in this Pariſh than to the Nagg's Head Inn. White Hart Inn hath a Paſſage into Hart-ſtreet, and is of no great Account. Phenix Alley, a pretty open Alley, but ill inhabited, and naſtily kept; hath alſo a Paſſage into Hart-ſtreet. Prince's Court, very inconſiderable. Red Lyon Court, very large, with a Freeſtone Pavement, better built than inhabited; it is a good Through-fare, having a Paſſage into Bow ſtreet, another into Earl's Court, and a third into Drury Lane. And thus much for the South Side: Now for the Alleys, &c. on the North Side of Long Acre. I ſhall begin next to Drury Lane, and then the firſt Place, Dirty Lane, (by ſome called Charles-ſtreet) an open broad Place, but not over well inhabited; it falls into Caſtle-ſtreet, and on the Weſt Side is Bell Inn, a large Yard for Stablings. George Inn, a Place well accommodated for Stables and Coach-houſes. Hill's Alley, a narrow Paſſage, with a Freeſtone Pavement into Caſtle ſtreet. Knuckle's Alley, pretty large, and leads into Caſtle-ſtreet. Croſs Lane, a pretty open Street, fronting King-ſtreet, and is of ſome Trade: On the Eaſt Side are two ſmall and ordinary Places, called Mace Alley, and Terret's Court. The Wood Yard, almoſt oppoſite to James's Street, a large but ordinary Place, having towards the lower End a large Stable-yard, and farther downwards, a large Brewhouſe. Langley ſtreet, a handſome open Place, with indifferent Buildings, and falls into Caſtle-ſtreet. Mercer's-ſtreet, of no great Account for Building, or Inhabitants, who are a great Part French; it falls into Caſtle-ſtreet, againſt the Dial in the new Buildings in Cock and Pye Fields; betwixt this Street and that of Langley, there are three ordinary Places, viz. Aſcue Alley, very narrow, and falls into Coxe's Court, and that into Crown Court.

Caſtle-ſtreet.
Pluncket's Court.
Bacchus Court.

Caſtle-ſtreet, ſituate on the Backſide of Long Acre; the South Side being in this Pariſh, the other in St. Giles's in the Fields; a Street very ordinary both for Buildings or Inhabitants. Beſides the ſeveral Alleys that come out of Long Acre, already named, there two very ordinary Places ſcarce worth the mentioning, viz. Pluncket's Court, and Bacchus Court.

Drury Lane.
Turnſtile Alley.
Middleſex Court.
Cradle Alley.
Earle's Court.
Martlet's Court.
Windſor Court.
Angel Court.

Drury Lane, a very long Street, coming out of St. Giles's, and running down into the Strand, and is a Place of great Reſort, repleniſhed with good Houſes that are well inhabited by Tradeſmen, as being ſo great a Through-fare both for Man and Horſe: This Street, as before noted, is Part in the Pariſh of St. Clement's, Part in that of the Savoy, and Part in that of St. Giles's in the Fields; and the Part that belongs to this Pariſh, is only the Weſt Side, from the Corner of Brownlow-ſtreet in the North, where the Pariſh-ſtone Mark is ſet upon the Houſe-Wall, unto the Corner of White Hart Yard; and in this Part of the Lane, or Street, there are theſe Courts and Out-letts, viz. Turnſtile Alley, a Place of an indifferent Trade for old Houſhold Goods that are very ordinary: It hath a Paſſage into Caſtle ſtreet, by the Back-gate of the Red Lyon Inn in Brownlow-ſtreet. Middleſex Court, but ordinarily inhabited, hath an open Paſſage by a Freeſtone Pavement into Dirty Lane. Cradle Alley, but narrow and ordinary. Red Lyon Court, already treated of. Earl's Court, a very handſome broad Court, with a Freeſtone Pavement cleanly kept, having very good new built Houſes well inhabited. This Court hath a Paſſage into Bow-ſtreet, and another into Red Lyon Court, already named. Martlet's Court, a very handſome open Place, with a good Freeſtone Pavement cleanly kept, having good Houſes well inhabited on the North Side; the other Side lieth open into Gardens; the chief Entrance is out of Bow-ſtreet, but hath a Paſſage into Drury Lane, through the Dog Tavern. Windſor Court, indifferent good, with a Freeſtone Pavement, having a Paſſage, down Steps, through a Houſe called the Half-way Houſe, into Crown Court, which leadeth into Ruſſel Street. Angel Court, a very handſome, well built and inhabited Court, with a good Freeſtone Pavement cleanly kept.

Ruſſel-ſtreet.
Crown Court.
King's Court.

Ruſſel-ſtreet, a great Through-fare from Lincoln's Inn Fields into Covent Garden, and thoſe Parts; a Street well inhabited by good Tradeſmen: It is all in this Pariſh on both Sides, except two or three Doors on this Side the Roſe Tavern, and on the other Side, as far as Jackſon's Alley: On the North Side is Crown Court, a pretty broad Place, with indifferent good Houſes. Farther Weſtward is King's Court, with a Freeſtone Pavement, and a new Row of pretty good Houſes on the Weſt Side, which hath the Proſpect into the Garden belonging to the Woollen-draper at the Wool Pack in Ruſſel-ſtreet. This Court, at the upper End, hath a turning Paſſage into Bow-ſtreet.

Then

Play-houſe Yard.
Vinegar Yard.
Foſſell's Court.
Ruſſell Court.
Red Lion Alley.
Megg's Alley.
Nelſon's Court.
White Hart Yard.
Little Katherine-ſtreet.
Pump Court.

Then paſſing by Ruſſel-ſtreet, is the Playhouſe Yard, or Paſſage into the Houſe; next Vinegar Yard, indifferent broad, but ordinarily built and inhabited: It falleth into Little Bridges-ſtreet, and that into Great Bridges-ſtreet, in Covent Garden Pariſh. Out of Vinegar Yard is an open Freeſtone Paſſage into Ruſſel Court; and almoſt againſt the ſaid Paſſage are two ordinary and ſmall Courts, the one called Foſſell's Court, and the other Guye's Court. Ruſſell Court, a very handſome large Place, with good Buildings well inhabited; hath a Freeſtone Paſſage into Bridges-ſtreet, and another Paſſage againſt Mr. Burgeſs's Meeting-houſe, into White Hart Yard, through Red Lion Alley, which is but ordinary; and on the Eaſt Side of the ſaid Meeting-houſe is Megg's Alley, which, with a turning Paſſage alſo falleth into Bridges-ſtreet, a Place of no great Account for Buildings or Inhabitants. Nelſon's Court, almoſt overagainſt Blackamore-ſtreet, a Court of no great Account, being long and narrow. White Hart Yard comes out of Drury-lane, and falls into Bridges-ſtreet againſt Exeter-ſtreet, a Place of ſome Trade, eſpecially for Upholſters for ſecond hand Goods, and ſome new. The South Side of this Street is in the Savoy Pariſh, as far as Eagle Court, where the Girt Line of this Pariſh croſſeth into the ſaid Court; and thence falls into Little Katherine-ſtreet, or rather Alley; being but narrow, with a Freeſtone Pavement, and cannot much boaſt of its Houſes or Inhabitants. On the North Side of this White Hart Yard is Pump Court, but indifferent; as alſo Red Lion-Alley, already mention'd.

Exeter-ſtreet.
Denmark Court

Exeter-ſtreet, a good Street, with handſome built Houſes, well inhabited; eſpecially the North Side, which is in Covent Garden Pariſh. It cometh out of Katherine-ſtreet, and runneth up as far as the Back Wall of Bedford Yard, or Garden: And out of this Place there is a Paſſage into the Strand through Denmark Court, a very handſome, well built, and inhabited Place; which beginneth at the End of Exeter-ſtreet, and runneth to Bedford Back Wall, and alſo turneth down into the Strand: And in that Part of the Court it hath but one Row of Houſes on the Weſt Side, which hath a Proſpect into a handſome Garden, belonging to Mr. Philips, a Diſtiller in the Strand, noted for his excellent Waters.

Burleigh-ſtreet.
Bull-head Court.

Burleigh-ſtreet butts againſt Exeter-ſtreet, and falls into the Strand againſt the Savoy; an indifferent good Street, the Weſt Side of which is only in this Pariſh; and on this Side is Bull-head Court, which is but ſmall and ordinary.

The Strand.

I ſhall next walk into the Strand, and view the Alleys and Courts therein: And firſt begin with thoſe on the North Side, and next paſs to Burleigh-ſtreet, as far as St. Martin's Lane; then to thoſe on the South Side, beginning at Saliſbury Buildings. And according to this Method, the firſt is,

Marygold Alley
Bennet's Court.
Curle Court.
Oliver's Alley.
Lumley Court.
Globe Alley.
Bull Inn Court.
Blue Ball Court
Baylies Alley.
Heathcock Court.
Thatch'd Alley.
Exchange Court.

Marygold Alley, a pretty large Place, but indifferent as to Buildings and Inhabitants. It hath a Paſſage up Steps into another Place of an ordinary Building, alſo ſo called; and thence it hath a Paſſage into Bennet's Court, which hath but a narrow Entry into the Strand; but after a little Way up Steps it hath pretty good Buildings. Denmark Court already ſpoken of. Curle Court hath a pretty good Row of Building on the Eaſt Side, which hath the Proſpect of Bedford Houſe and Yard, and at the upper End is a good Houſe, much better than the reſt. Then beyond Bedford Houſe, unto Half Moon-ſtreet, are theſe Places; Oliver's Alley, which is but ſmall and ordinary; Lumley Court, indifferent good; Globe Alley, but ordinary Buildings; Bull Inn Court, a good large Place, better built than inhabited, hath a Paſſage with a Freeſtone Pavement into Maiden Lane. Blue Ball Court, of no great Account. Baylies Alley, very narrow, with a Paſſage into Maiden Lane. Heathcock Court hath pretty handſome Buildings. The Thatch'd Alley, but narrow, and not over good, hath a Paſſage into Maiden Lane. Exchange Court hath indifferent good Buildings, with a Free-ſtone Pavement.

Half Moon Street.
Harvey Court.
Long Court.
Round Court.
New Round Court.
Robin Hood Court.
Church Lane.
Thackham's Court.
Hewit's Court.
King's Head Inn.
Star Inn.
Woodſtock Court.

Half Moon Street, againſt the New Exchange, runneth up into Bedford-Street in Covent Garden; and here the Paſſage is but narrow, and very troubleſome for Coaches to paſs. All this Street, except ſome few Houſes near Shandois-ſtreet and Maiden Lane, is in this Pariſh; and the Street is well inhabited by Tradeſmen, except in the narrow Paſſage next the Strand. Then beyond this Street, unto St Martin's Lane, are theſe Places: Harvey Court, a pretty handſom open Place, with good Buildings. Long Court or Alley hath a narrow Paſſage through Entries into Shandois-ſtreet. Round Court, after a narrow Paſſage through an Entry out of the Strand, openeth into a pretty ſquare Court; and from that into another Place, which leadeth into another Entry, and ſo into Shandois-ſtreet. This Place is of conſiderable Note, and much reſorted unto, as being inhabited by Silk-men, Mercers, and Lace-men, who drive a conſiderable Trade, occaſioned from the Opinion that the Females have, that they there buy better Pennyworths than elſewhere. Out of this Court there is lately made a Paſſage into New Round Court, deſigned for Shop-keepers as the other; but whether it will take, Time muſt ſhew: This Court is more open, and the Buildings far better than the other, and hath a better Paſſage into it out of the Strand, and therefore the more Probability of its taking. Robin Hood Court, very ordinary, and ill built. Church Lane, very ordinary, which runneth up into Thackham's Court, a pretty handſome ſquare Place, with a Freeſtone Pavement; which Court hath two Paſſages into a Street called, The Backſide of Round Court, which falleth into Shandois-ſtreet, near St. Martin's Lane. This Place hath a Paſſage into Moors Yard, which leadeth into St Martin's Lane; alſo another Paſſage into New Round Court, and another turning Paſſage to St. Martin's Church, all but indifferently built or inhabited. Hewit's Court, a pretty good Court, with a Freeſtone Pavement into Church Lane. St. Martin's Court, a new built Court, with good Houſes, and a Freeſtone Pavement, into Church Lane, near the Church. King's Head Inn, and Star Inn, both Places well reſorted unto. Then a little beyond St. Martin's Lane, is the Checker Inn and Court, already ſpoken of; and almoſt againſt the Statue of the King on Horſeback in Charing-Croſs, is a pretty Court called Woodſtock Court.

Cecil-ſtreet.
Salisbury-ſtreet
Ivy Bridge.
Durham Yard.

Thus having ſpoken of the North Side of the Strand, next the South Side is to be perambulated, beginning at Saliſbury Buildings. And then the firſt is called Cecil-ſtreet, built on the Ground where Great Saliſbury Houſe ſtood; a very handſome new built Street, which leadeth down to the Thames, the Eaſt Side being in St Clement's Pariſh. Saliſbury-ſtreet, better built than inhabited, by Reaſon of its Narrowneſs, and ſteep Deſcent towards the Water Side, where there is a Pair of Stairs to take Water at. Ivy Bridge, now very bad, and ſcarce fit for Uſe, by Reaſon of the Unpaſſableneſs of the Way. It hath an Inlet into Durham Yard. Durham Yard, anciently Dureſme Houſe, as being the Reſidence of the Biſhops of Durham.

New Exchange.

In the Place where certain old Stables ſtood, belonging to this Houſe is the New Exchange, being furniſhed with Shops on both Sides the Walks, both below and above Stairs, for Milleners, Sempſtreſſes, and other Trades that furniſh Dreſſes; and is a Place of great Reſort and Trade for the Nobility and Gentry, and ſuch as have Occaſion for ſuch Commodities.

Biſhop's Court.

Of later Times this Durham Yard came to Philip Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, in Conſideration (ſay ſome) to pay to the See of Durham 200*l.* ℘ Ann. which Grant was confirmed by Act of Parliament, dated the 16th of Charles the Firſt. And it was by his Son built into Tenements or Houſes, as now they are ſtanding, being a handſome Street deſcending down out of the Strand, which falls into another much better inhabited, eſpecially on the South Side, where there are Gardens fronting the Thames, very pleaſant, with two Woodmongers Wharfs for the Sale of Fuel. Beſides, where the Dary Houſe ſtood, now taken down, is a more open Paſſage to another Row of Houſes, fronting the Backſide of the New Exchange. And on the North Side of the Street, near Ivy Bridge, is a pretty handſome Court, with a Free-Stone Pavement, called Biſhop's Court. Theſe ſaid Buildings of Durham Yard, are now the Inheritance of Sir Thomas Mompeſſon of Bathampton in the County of Wilts, Knight.

York Houſe.
York Buildings.
George-ſtreet.
George Alley.
Off Alley, or Change Alley.
Buckingham-ſtreet.
Sam. Pepys, Eſq;
Duke-ſtreet.
Villiers-ſtreet.

Farther Weſt was York Houſe; which, in Time, came into the Poſſeſſion of George Villiers Duke of Buckingham; who added much to the old Building, and would have had it called by his Title, yet it retained its Name of York Houſe; and ſo it continued until the late Duke of Buckingham diſpoſed of it, and then it was built into fair Streets, as now it is, and called York Buildings. In which are theſe Streets and Alleys. Next unto the New Exchange is a narrow Paſſage down Steps into George-ſtreet, which runneth to the Thames, a handſome Street, with good Houſes well inhabited; at the upper End of which, next the Strand, is George Alley, which leadeth into Buckingham-ſtreet; and from thence into Off Alley or Change Alley, which falleth into Villiers-ſtreet; both which Alleys are but narrow and indifferently built, but have a Freeſtone Pavement. Buckingham-ſtreet comes out of the Strand, and runs down to the River Thames, where there is a ſtately Portico and Stairs of Freeſtone, for the Conveniency of the Water, and Watermen always plying there. This Street is very ſpacious, with very good Houſes, well inhabited by Gentry, eſpecially thoſe on each Side fronting the Thames: That on the Weſt Side next the Thames being the Seat of the Honourable Samuel Pepys, Eſq; deceaſed; ſome Time Secretary of the Admiralty to King Charles the Second and King James the Second. This Street is croſſed by Duke-ſtreet, a pretty good Street, which butts upon George-ſtreet, and Villiers-ſtreet, which alſo comes out of the Strand, and runneth down to the Thames; being a very handſome Street, with good Houſes, well inhabited; at the lower End of which is a Water-houſe, very conſiderable, ſerving abundance of Families at this End of the Town. Next the Thames there is a handſome Tarraſe Walk, which reacheth almoſt the Breadth of York Buildings, which gives a fine Proſpect to the Houſes, as lying open to the Thames.

Charles Court.

Charles Court, a very handſome new built Court, with Houſes fit for good Inhabitants; having a Stone Pavement down to the Thames, where there is a Pair of Stairs for the Conveniency of the Water. Out of this Court there is a Paſſage into Villiers-ſtreet, and another into Hungerford Market.

Hungerford Market.
French Church.
Heley Alley.
Brewer's Yard.

Hungerford Market, built on the Ground where ſtood a large but old Houſe, with a Garden, the Seat of Sir Edward Hungerford, which he converted into Buildings, as it is, having a handſome Street out of the Strand, and leading into the Market; where there is a good Market-houſe, and over it is a French Church. This Market at firſt was, in all Probability, to have taken well, eſpecially for Fruit and Herbs, as lying ſo convenient for the Gardiners to land their Goods at the Stairs, without the Charge and Trouble of Porters to carry them farther by Land, as now to Covent Garden Market: But being baulk'd at firſt, it turns to little Account, and that of Covent Garden hath got the Start; which is much reſorted unto, and well ſerved with all Fruits and Herbs, good in their Kind. By the One Tun Tavern, there is a Paſſage into Heley Alley, which falleth into Hungerford Market. Brewer's Yard, a very ordinary Place, both for Houſes and Inhabitants, and chiefly reſorted unto by Carmen for the bringing up Goods and Coals from the Wharfs by the Thames Side, and the frequent paſſing of the Carts with heavy Loading, breaks up the Paſſage, and cauſeth it to be bad and dirty.

Spur Alley.
Croſs Lane.
Baker's Alley.

Spur Alley, hath a very narrow and ill Paſſage out of the Strand; but after a little Way, groweth wider, and better inhabited, eſpecially towards the Thames: Out of this Alley is Croſs Lane, a Place of ſmall Account, which leadeth into Harts-horn Lane; and here is a ſmall and ordinary Alley, called Baker's Alley, which hath a Paſſage into Brewer's Yard, and another into Harts-horn Lane.

Harts horn Lane.
Plough Court.
Lime Wharf.

Harts-horn Lane, alſo a Place much clogged and peſtered with Carts repairing to the Wharfs; and therefore not well inhabited. On the Eaſt Side is Plough Court, which is but ſmall; and lower down is a Place called the Limewharf, a Place indifferent well built and inhabited.

Somerſet Court.

Somerſet Court, a handſome new built Court, with Houſes fit for good Inhabitants, eſpecially being near the Court. It hath a good Freeſtone Pavement.

Northumberland Houſe.

Northumberland Houſe, a noble and ſpacious Building; having a large ſquare Court at the Entrance, with Buildings round it; at the upper End of which Court, is a Piazzo, with Buildings over it, ſuſtained by Stone Pillars, and behind the Buildings there is a curious Garden, which runneth down to the Thames; all which makes it a ſtately Habitation, fit to receive ſuch a Perſon of Quality as is Owner thereof, viz. Charles Duke of Somerſet, by Marriage of the Lady Elizabeth, Heireſs of Joſcelin late Earl of Northumberland.

Angel Court.
Hermitage Alley.
Craggs Court.

A little beyond this Houſe, more towards Whitehall, is Angel Court, indifferent large, but ordinary built or inhabited. Next to it is another ſmall Alley called Hermitage Alley. Then Craggs Court, a very handſome large Court, with new Buildings fit for Gentry of Repute; eſpecially thoſe on the Side fronting the Thames, or Northumberland Garden. This Court is very near to Scotland Yard.

Whitehall.

Then is Whitehall, the Royal Palace, and Reſidence of the Kings and Queens of England, no leſs pleaſantly than commodiouſly ſeated on the Banks of the Thames on the South, and having on the North the delectable Park of St. James's.

King Henry the Eighth, who was the firſt Royal Poſſeſſor of it, built a ſumptuous Gallery, with a beautiful Gatehouſe thwart the Street into St. James's Park.

Banqueting Houſe.

Since the Days of King Henry the Eighth, it hath been much enlarged and beautified in its Buildings by the ſucceeding Kings and Queens; and eſpecially by King Charles the Firſt and Second, King James the Second, and King William the Third, who added a noble Terrace Walk by the Thames, under the King and Queen's Lodgings, which have not been long built, and were very ſtately and convenient: But the ſtatelieſt Room is the Banqueting Houſe facing the Street, for the Reception of Embaſſadors, of the Members of Parliament, and other publick Uſes; which for its Spaciouſneſs, exact Proportion, and beautiful Painting, done by the Hand of the famous Sir Peter-Paul Reuben, hath not its Parallel in all Europe. This Palace is extream large; and although it is not in all Reſpects ſo ſtately to behold as Verſailles in France; yet that is made Amends by the Commodiouſneſs thereof, for the Reception of Courtiers, and Offices there kept belonging to his Majeſty and his Houſhold. Amongſt which are, the Council Chambers, the Treaſury Office, the Secretary of State's Office, the Lord Privy Seal's and Signet Office, the Lord Chamberlain's Office, the Green Cloth, Jewel Office, Wardrobe, &c. To this Palace there is a curious Garden called the Privy Garden, adorned with Stone Statues, and hath the Proſpect of the Thames. This Garden is parted from the Street on the North with an ancient high Stone Wall. At the End of which is another Gatehouſe over the Street of curious Work, with Buildings over it, which lead into others, now (or late) the Lodgings of the Earl of Rocheſter: And between theſe two Gates, on the North Side, is a Tenis Court, for the Entertainment of the Nobility and Gentry in that Exerciſe; adjoining to which is a large Apartment, generally taken up by ſome Great Court Officer. And behind that, where the Cockpit was, are large buildings, formerly the Lodgings of her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Anne of Denmark, Daughter to King James the Second, late our Sovereign Lady and Queen. In this Palace of Whitehall there were four large Courts, one within another: In the innermoſt or principal Court is a curious Statue, in Braſs, of King James the Second, placed on a Pedeſtal, in a Roman Habit. Beſides theſe Courts, there is adjoining to it Scotland Yard.

Privy Garden.

Admiralty Office.

Buckingham Court.

White Horſe Court.

Warwick-ſtreet.

Overagainſt Scotland Yard, on the other Side of the Way, is the new erected Admiralty Office, a curious Pile of Building, made very convenient for that Uſe, mention'd before. Behind which Houſe is a handſome Garden Plot, taken out of that Part of Spring Garden next the Park. Adjoining to this Office is Buckingham Court, ſo called as built on Buckingham Garden: It hath a Free-ſtone Pavement, and a Paſſage into Spring Garden, and the Houſes are better built than inhabited; as being for the Generality all Coffee Houſes, and for other ſuch publick Uſes. Nigh unto this Court is Locket's Ordinary, a Houſe of Entertainment, much frequented by Gentry. Stanhope Court, a good handſome Place, with a Freeſtone Pavement, and well built Houſes, eſpecially thoſe which front Spring Garden. Pump Court, but ſmall, and ordinary built and inhabited, with a narrow Paſſage, up Steps, into Spring Garden. Mermaid Court, overagainſt the Mewſe, with a Paſſage alſo into Spring Garden, a Place of ſmall Account. Red Lion Inn, hath an open Paſſage for Coaches into Spring Garden; a Place for Stablings for Horſes. White Horſe Court, adjoining to Warwick-ſtreet; of no great Account. Warwick-ſtreet, the greateſt and beſt Part of which is in the Pariſh of St. James's, to wit, Warwick-Houſe, at the upper End of the ſaid Street, a good handſome and large Houſe, with a Court Yard before, and a Garden behind it, fit for the Reception of a Perſon of Quality.

Spring Garden.

Spring Garden, a very large open Place, with good built Houſes, well inhabited; ſome of which are large, with good Gardens, as Sir Edward Hungerford's, where the Spaniſh Embaſſador lately reſided: And Sir Robert Southwell's, where the Duke of Northumberland dwells: Then the Houſe of Sir John Nicholas, &c.

Charing Croſs.

Statue of K. Charles I.

The Croſs.

Charing Croſs, a large open Place, fronting the Strand, the Hay Market, and Whitehall, in a triangular Manner: In the Midſt of this Place is a curious Statue of King Charles the Firſt on Horſeback, bigger than the Life, done in Braſs, ſtanding on a high Pedeſtal of white Marble, curiouſly adorned with warlike Trophies, all encircled with Iron Bars, or Rails: Which ſaid Statue was made by that famous Statuary Laſeur, who made that curious Braſs Monument of the Duke of Buckingham in the Chapel of Henry the Seventh, at Weſtminſter. And in the Place where this Statue ſtands, there was formerly a ſtately Croſs of Marble, adorned with divers Figures about it, and called Charing Croſs; which was erected by K. Edward the Firſt, in Honour of his Queen Eleanor; which ſaid Croſs, as likewiſe that in Cheapſide, by the ſaid King erected for that Purpoſe, was pulled down and deſtroyed by the Zealots of the long Parliament, Anno 1643. This Statue of King Charles the Firſt, was made for the Earl of Arundell; and to prevent demoliſhing, was purchaſed, and concealed by one Mr. John Revet, in Holborn, a Brazier. Who, upon the Reſtauration of King Charles the Second, preſented it to his Majeſty, who cauſed it to be erected at Charing Croſs, upon an oval Pedeſtal of Freeſtone, as aforeſaid.

The Mewſe.

Here at Charing Croſs is the Mewſe, uſed for the King's Horſes to ſtable in; having Rows of Buildings for Stables, Coach-houſes, &c.

St. James's.

St. James's Fair.

Alſo Weſt of Charing Croſs ſtands St. James's: Once a religious Houſe, now a Royal Palace, built by King Henry the Eighth. King Edward the Firſt granted a Fair to be kept here, which held a Fortnight, and was called St. James's Fair; which of late Years was kept in the Road leading to Tyburn; but ſuch great Debauchery and Lewdneſs was practiſed here, that it was ſuppreſſed by King Charles the Second.

St. James's Palace.

St. James's is made by ſucceſſive Kings and Queens far better and larger than it was at firſt; and hath been lately beautified and enlarged for the Reception of their Royal Highneſſes Prince George and the Princeſs Anne of Denmark, our late moſt Noble Queen.

St. James's Park.

The Pall Mall.

The Canal.

The Garden.

Arlington Houſe.

To this Palace belongs a very pleaſant Park; which hath been much enlarged and improved by King Charles the Second, having purchaſed ſeveral Fields, which ran up to the Road, and as far as Hide Park, now encloſed with a Brick Wall: and made the Pall Mall half a Mile long, with curious Rows of Lime Trees round about, ſet in uniform Ranks: He made likewiſe the ſtately Canal 100 Foot broad, and 2800 Foot long, with a Decoy, and other Ponds, for Ducks and Water Fowl. At the Bottom of which Canal, fronting Whitehall, is a moſt excellent Figure in Braſs of a Gladiator ſtanding on a Pedeſtal. There is alſo a Garden with curious Walks, and excellent Fruits in it, much improved ſince Mr. George London, the late King William's principal Gardiner, had the Care and Management thereof; where he hath a very good Houſe to dwell in. At the upper End of the Park Weſtward is Arlington Houſe; ſo called from the Earl of Arlington, the Owner thereof. At whoſe Death it fell to his Daughter the Dutcheſs of Grafton, and the young Duke her Son. It is a moſt neat Box, and ſweetly ſeated amongſt Gardens, beſides the Proſpect of the Park, and the adjoining Fields. At preſent the Duke of Devonſhire reſideth here, as Tenant to the Dutcheſs of Grafton.

I now come to a Deſcription of that Part of this Pariſh, ſeparate from the other by the Pariſh of St. James's. In the Map the moſt conſiderable Parts are laid down, to wit, the Buildings on the Weſt Side of St. James's-ſtreet, to the Park Wall, Albemarle Buildings, and ſo to Stretton-ſtreet, on the Backſide of Berkley Houſe. The reſt as far as Knightſbridge, with the Neat Houſes, could not be taken into the ſaid Map, as being of too large an Extent for either of the Maps. So that the Reader muſt be ſatisfied with the Deſcription only.

St. James's-ſtreet.

St. James's-ſtreet beginneth at the Palace of St. James's, and runs up to the Road againſt Albemarle Buildings, being a ſpacious Street, with very good Houſes well inhabited by Gentry: At the upper End of which towards the Road are the beſt, having before them a Terrace Walk aſcended by Steps, with a Freeſtone Pavement. Out of this Street, on the Weſt Side, it hath a Paſſage into theſe Places, fronting the Pall Mall. A Paſſage to Cleaveland Court, formerly one large Houſe, and called Berkſhire Houſe; which being purchaſed by the Dutcheſs of Cleveland, took her Name; now ſevered into ſeveral Houſes, the chief of which is now inhabited by the Earl of Nottingham; and here are two other ſmall Courts againſt the Earl of Bath's. Then in the ſaid Street is a large Yard for Stablings, with ſome Houſes, which run down to St. James's Park Walls. St. James's Place, a good Street; which towards the upper End, openeth wide, and receiveth a freſh Air out of the Park: The Houſes are well built, and inhabited by Gentry, eſpecially the upper Part, where the Houſes are larger and better built and inhabited.

Park Place, a handſome, open, broad Street, with good Buildings, fit for Gentry.

Benet-ſtreet. Arlington-ſtreet.

Benet-ſtreet, broad, but ſhort, falleth into Arlington-ſtreet, which is a very good Place, with well built Houſes, much inhabited by the Nobility and Gentry, eſpecially the Weſt Side, which affords larger Houſes, having Gardens behind, as far as the Park Wall: And the Enjoyment of ſo good a Proſpect and free Air, makes them to be taken up by Perſons of Quality. This Street falleth Northwards into the Road to Hide Park.

Albemarle Buildings.

Albemarle Buildings, ſo called, as being the Seat of the Duke of Albemarle, who bought it of the Earl of Clarendon, and before called by his Name: Which ſaid Houſe and Gardens being ſold by the ſaid Duke, was, by the Undertakers, laid out into Streets, who not being in a Condition to finiſh ſo great a Work, made Mortgages, and ſo intangled the Title, that it is not to this Day finiſhed, and God knows when it will. So that it lyeth like the Ruins of Troy, ſome having only the Foundations begun, others carry'd up to the Roofs, and others covered, but none of the Inſide Work done: Yet thoſe Houſes that are finiſhed, which are towards Pickadilly, meet with Tenants. In this Building, which takes the general Name of Albemarle Buildings, are theſe Streets, viz. Bond-ſtreet; at the upper End of which, in the Fields, is a curious, neat, but ſmall Chapel, ſerving as a Chapel of Eaſe for the Inhabitants of theſe Parts: Which ſaid Chapel was built by King James the Second, at Hounſlow Heath, for his Uſe, when he had his Camp there, and was by the late King William given to the Inhabitants, who here erected it. Albemarle-ſtreet, in the Midſt, which fronts St. James's-ſtreet. Dover-ſtreet, the beſt of all for large Buildings, and hath the moſt finiſhed and inhabited Houſes for Gentry, eſpecially the Weſt Side. Stafford-ſtreet, which butts againſt Bond-ſtreet and Dover-ſtreet, and croſſeth Albemarle-ſtreet.

Stafford-ſtreet.

Berkeley Houſe and Street.

Berkeley Houſe, built by the Lord Berkeley, a curious large Building, with a ſpacious Court before it, and ſtately Gardens behind. Some Part of this Ground was taken away, and laid into a Street, called Berkeley-ſtreet, which hath but one Row of Buildings, and thoſe front the Garden; which renders them very pleaſant and airy, and occaſions the Street to be better inhabited.

Stretton-ſtreet.

Stretton-ſtreet hath alſo but one Row of Buildings, and that fronts Berkeley Houſe and Garden; which are very gentilely built, and well inhabited, having ſmall Gardens behind them.

Beyond this Street there is a continued Row of Buildings, which runs Weſtward almoſt to Hide Park on the North Side, the South having the Park Wall. Theſe Houſes, for the generality, are Inns or publick Houſes of Entertainment, except ſome few by the Bridge, where there is a Paſſage or Street called   which leadeth to Tiburn Lane, by Hide Park, a Place but of ordinary Buildings. Then overagainſt Hide Park are ſeveral Houſes new built, which in a ſhort Time are likely to run to Knightſbridge, ſeveral of them being pretty Houſes, with ſmall Gardens behind them, and of a pleaſant Situation.

This Pariſh ends its Bounds by the Bridge, ſome Diſtance from Knightſbridge, where there is a ſmall Chapel of Eaſe built on the Side of Hide Park.

St. James's Field.

Record. Turr.
J. S.

In this Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields, was a Field, called St. James's Field, and a Hill, called Mellehille, and a Place called The Doune. As I find in Record, ſix Acres of Land in St. James's Field, and Mellehille, three Roods of Land, and one Acre apud Le Doune in S. Martin. in campis, granted to Stephen Chiſe, 9. Rich. 2. This Downe was a large Place, and Part thereof was in St. Giles's Pariſh. For I find alſo five Acres of Land, Sur Le Doune in St. Giles's, were granted to John de Bellomonte, Kt. 20. Rich. 2. with one Toft and one Croft, near Charing Croſs, and eight Acres of Land near the Mewſe, and three Acres near the Hoſpital of St. James, in the Pariſh of St. Margaret Weſtminſter, and three Acres in the Pariſh of Tyburn, granted to the ſame Perſon.

Lammas Grounds in this Pariſh and St. Margaret's, encloſed.

Within this Pariſh of St. Martin's, and that of St. Margaret's Weſtminſter, formerly was large Commoning for the Benefit of thoſe Pariſhes, of Lands laid open, according to ancient Cuſtom, from Lammas-day; which were, in Q. Elizabeth's Reign, encloſed with Gates and Hedges, ſo that the Inhabitants were deprived of that Benefit, which occaſioned their Complaint, in the Year 1592, to the L. Burghley, High Steward of Weſtminſter, and a Petition to him in that Behalf. Whereupon he gave Order to Mr. Tenche, his Under-ſteward, to impanel an Inqueſt for Enquiry into this Matter, which ſeemed to favour them: And the Pariſhioners, having, as they ſuppoſed, that Lord's Countenance, ſent divers Perſons on the 1. of Auguſt, being Lammas day, who, with Pickaxes, and ſuch like Inſtruments, pulled down the Fences, and brake the Gates, having with them the Bailiffs and Conſtables, to keep the Peace.

Of this there was preſently a grievous Complaint made to the Lord Burghley, by ſuch, eſpecially, as held thoſe Lands of the Queen, claimed by the Inhabitants to lye open for Common: Particularly theſe,

The ſaid Lord, upon this Report brought him, immediately ſent Orders to the Under-ſteward, to enquire diligently into this Matter; who, Auguſt the 3d, gave his Lordſhip this Anſwer: Which will ſhew us the State of the Cauſe;

Account of the breaking down thoſe Encloſures. MSS. pen. me.

‘That whereas upon Petition of the Inhabitants of St. Martin's in the Fields, concerning their ancient Commons, called Lammas-Grounds, complained to be encloſed, that it pleaſed his Lordſhip to direct his Letters to him, [his Under-ſteward] for the impanelling of an Inqueſt, queſt, and for other lawful Proceedings in that Behalf; that it had Yeſterday happened, that certain of the Pariſhioners of St. Martin's and St. Margaret's, about the Number of Forty, being ignorant of the Contents of his Lordſhip's Letter, and of his [the Under-ſteward's] Direction, aſſembled together, and made an Entry into ſuch Commons as they found encloſed, by digging down, with Spades and Pickaxes, ſome ſmall Breach in every Encloſure. And among the reſt, they opened a Piece belonging to the City of London, where their Conduit-Heads are. Which being known to the Lord Maior, he ſent Mr. Tonge, Juſtice of the Peace, among them, who ſaw what was done by them, and was preſent with Mr. Den and himſelf at the Examination of the Cauſe. And that upon Examination they found that they did this only, preſuming upon an ancient Cuſtom by them, they ſaid, yearly obſerved, as that Day to lay open their Commons.

He added, ‘That ſome of them thus aſſembled, were of the beſt and ancienteſt of the Pariſhes; that they carryed with them no Weapon, and had only four or five Shovels and Pickaxes; and had divers Conſtables with them to keep her Majeſty's Peace. And having thus laid open ſuch Grounds, as they challenged to be their Commons, they quietly returned to their Houſes, without any farther Hurt doing.

‘And that becauſe his Honour might happen to be informed herein againſt them from the Lord Maior, or ſome others, otherwiſe than the Caſe did require, he had thought good to certify his Lordſhip of the very Truth of their whole Proceeding; and had taken Order, that no ſuch Courſe ſhould hereafter be attempted by them.” This was dated at Weſtminſter, Aug. the 3d, 1592; and ſubſcribed, His Lordſhip's moſt bounden Under-ſteward of Weſtminſter,

RICHARD TENCHE.

With this Letter came alſo certain Confeſſions of this Matter: One of Peter Dod and Anthony Matthew.

Information brought in about it.

Peter Dod, Citizen and Grocer of London, aged 65 Years, or thereabouts, ſaith, That upon Lammas-day laſt, being Aug. 1. he being near unto the City's Conduit-Heads in Middleſex, about half a Mile Weſtward from St. Giles's in the Fields, attending upon certain of the City's Works, touching conveying of Water from thence to London, ſaw, betwixt 5 and 6 of the Clock in the Afternoon the ſame Day, the Number of 40 Perſons, at the leaſt, (howmany more he knoweth not) in a Cloſe there, through which the City Pipes are laid to convey Water to London: And they divided themſelves: And ſome of them, with Pickaxes and Shovels, brake down the Fence of the ſame Cloſe; and other ſome of them paſs'd to the next Cloſe Weſtward, and brake open the Fence of that Cloſe: And that he, with ſome of the Citizens Workmen, went unto them, ſeeing ſome of them to be Men that carryed a Shew of ſome Countenance, and talked with them, demanding of them whence they were; and one of them anſwered, That they were of St. Martin's Pariſh, and St. Margaret's at Weſtminſter. And he, the ſaid Dod, ſaid unto them, Why do ye this? It was anſwered, ‘It was Lammas-tide; and we throw it down for Common. And if we take here any Cattel of any other Mens than theirs of the Pariſhes of St. Martin's or St. Margaret's, after this Day, we will carry them to the Pound.” I never ſaw the like of this, ſaid Dod. If you may do this by Authority, it is well, otherwiſe it is not well. It was anſwered, ‘We have here the Bailiff of Weſtminſter, and the Officers of St. Martin's; and we have our Authority from the Queen's Majeſty and the Council, granted by K. Henry, confirmed by her Majeſty, and named the Lord Treaſurer to be one, from whom they had their Authority.” And it was alſo added, That the next Day there would be two hundred there, and that they muſt break open, up to Knight's-Bridge and Chelſey

And Dod ſaid farther, That that Evening they threw down one Gate, in one Cloſe, which the City holdeth, and abated the Banks: And in another Cloſe, threw open another Gate, and pulled down a Rail, and brake open the Fences in three other Places beſide. And the next in the Morning, their Herdmen brought in about thirty Beaſts into one of the Cloſes, and kept them there feeding in one of the Cloſes which the City holdeth. This was ſigned by Dod, and Matthew, and others.

The ſaid Dod and Matthew ſay farther, That the next Day in the Morning Dod went to the Herdman, as he was keeping the Cattel in the Cloſe, and aſked him, Who willed him to put the Cattle in there. He anſwered, That did Mr. Hen. Wells, Bailiff of Weſtminſter; Mr. Coles, Burgeſs; Mr. Peach, and Mr. Racie, Bailiffs; and they will, ſaid he, bear me out in it. And the ſaid Examinates ſay, That they ſaw them the next Day paſſing along Weſtward, breaking ſundry Fences, being about the Number of ſixty Perſons, ſometimes together, and ſometimes divided in Parts.

Another teſtified, viz. one Ra. Wood of St. Giles's in the Fields, Yeoman and Conſtable, That the 2d of Auguſt, he going to look to his Fields, and ſave his Gates from breaking, found a Number of them near unto a Place called Aubery Farm, towards Chelſey, to the Number of 105, as he told them, where they were breaking open Fences. And ſo they croſſed from thence unto a Field called Crow Field, at the upper End of Hyde Park, where they found the Gate opened before they came; and yet they would not be ſatisfied, but brake up the Fence beſide the Gate, and from thence they paſſed to the Highway to High hill, where they broke open the Fences into four Fields, [of divers Perſons that held Land there.] Many of them ſaid, that they had no Authority to do ſo; but their Purpoſe was to lay all Common. But they generally ſaid, We have my Lord Treaſurer's Warrant, and we have my Lord Treaſurer's Bailiff, that keepeth Tibbalds. And one Jones, his Lordſhip's Man, being then preſent, ſaid, He would drive the Commons within this Sevennight, as ſoon as they had charged a Jury And many of them ſaid, they had the Councils Letter. There were preſent Mr. Cole, Weſtminſter High Conſtable the laſt Year, and divers others, named. And ſaid farther, That Cole led them the Way from Field to Field, with a written Roll in his Hand.

The Farmers complain to the L. Treaſurer for the Breach of their Encloſures.

The Farmers of the Grounds belonging to the Queen's Manour of St. James's, and the reſt poſſeſſed of and in Lands and Cloſes belonging to the ſaid Manour, ſoon put up their Petition to the Lord Treaſurer; ſhewing how they had enjoyed them Time out of Mind, and at all Times of the Year, till the 1ſt Day of Auguſt. At what Time certain Perſons of the City of Weſtminſter, and Liberty of the ſame, to the Number of 60 Perſons, or more, in forcible Manner arrayed, brake down all the Hedges of the ſaid Grounds, &c. giving out that they had his Honour's Conſent and Warrant. That if it were ſo, all her Majeſty's poor Tenants and Fermours were utterly undone. That it might ſtand with his Honour's good Liking to commit the Riot to the Star Chamber. And in the mean Time, being about, by a Jury to be choſen among them, to procure a Verdict to warrant their Doings, to ſtay their Proceedings, and to grant, that the Title being her Majeſty's, may be heard and determined before his Honour and the Barons in the Chequer Chamber.

The Plea, on the other Hand, of the Inhabitants of Weſtminſter and St. Martin's, was to this Import;

The Plea of thoſe that did it.

Ebery Farm.

That Ebery Farm, containing 430 Acres, Meadow and Paſture, which was holden of her Majeſty by Leaſe, was granted to one Whaſhe, who paid 21 l. per Ann. And the ſame was let to divers Perſons, who, for their private Commodity, did encloſe the ſame, and had made Paſtures of Errable Land; thereby not only annoying her Majeſty in her Walks and Paſſages, but to the Hindrance of her Game, and great Injury to the Common, which at Lammas was wont to be laid open, for the moſt Part; as by ancient Precedents thereof made, do more particularly appear, both in the Time of Henry the Eighth, Edward the Sixth, and Q. Mary: And by the Grant made from her Majeſty to the new Tenants, it appeareth, that they are to enjoy the ſame Lands in ſuch Sort as their Predeceſſors did, which was then always Lammas Ground, and now encloſed about 20 Years paſt.

St. James's Farm.

St. James's Ferm, containing about an 100 Acres, is holden of her Majeſty, renting per Ann. 7 l 16 s. The Ground is held by Poltney, encloſed after Lammas; whereas, in the Time of his Predeceſſor, that, and divers other Parts were laid open; as Sandpit Cloſe, and Penileſs Bench. And now he threatneth Death to any that ſhall preſume to open the ſame; altho' it pleaſeth her Majeſty to grant the ſame to him none otherwiſe than they have been granted before; that is, Lammas Ground.

The Neat.

There is belonging to the Neat the Quantity of 108 Acres, or thereabouts, which is her Majeſty's, and is now in Leaſe to one Linde and Turner, who keep the ſame incloſed, converting the ſame to Paſture, with Diviſions and new Hedges; whereas the moſt Part thereof ought to be Common, and hath been uſually Common at Lammas, until within theſe 19 Years.

There are certain Parcels of Land, by Eſtimation 50 Acres, holden of her Majeſty by Leaſe, ſometime of the Poſſeſſion of Burton St. John Laſurus of Jeruſalem, which in Time paſt hath been Lammas, and Errable; now divided, hedged, and ditched for Meadow and Paſture, and ought to be common at Lammas: And now in the Te-Tenure of John Dawnſon, and by him withholden, contrary to her Majeſty's Grant, and contrary to this Liberty.

There be alſo divers other Parcels of Land, ſome the Inheritance of Wilſon, a Brewer, &c. And others, whereof ſome are laid open at Lammas, according to Cuſtom, and ſome ought to be, which are now kept incloſed.

And of theſe Encloſures, it may pleaſe your good Lordſhip (as the Plea proceeded) to be informed, that at her Majeſty's laſt being at St. James's, ſhe greatly miſliked, and ſaid, ſhe had for them but 8 d. an Acre, and that the Inhabitants abuſed her greatly therein. Whereupon ſhe commanded ſome of the Tenants to be by the Lord Chamberlain committed to the Marſhalſea: Which was done. And yet notwithſtanding, they have proceeded to a farther Encloſure. Theſe Paſſages above-written, I have taken out of the Original Papers, belonging to the before ſaid Lord Treaſurer Burleigh.]

CHAP. VI.

The Boundaries, Streets, Lanes, Paſſages, and new Buildings, of St. James's, St. Anne's, and St. Paul's Covent Garden Church; With the Monuments of the Dead, and Inſcriptions thereon, in each Pariſh.

St. JAMES's

THIS Pariſh was formerly Part of St. Martin's in the Fields: being from thence not long ſince ſeparated by Act of Parliament. Which was occaſioned by the large Encreaſe of Buildings, eſpecially in theſe Parts; ſo that the Pariſh Church of St. Martin's was not ſufficient to receive ſo great an Auditory, beſides other Inconveniencies the Inhabitants of theſe Parts were ſubject unto.

Its Bounds.

This Pariſh hath, for its Northern Bounds, the high Road leading to Uxbridge, and ſo Weſtwards: For its Eaſtern Bounds, the Eaſt Side of Wardour Street, and Whitcombe Street, which belongs to St. Ann's Pariſh. Then the South Side of Coventry Street to the Haymarket, and then againſt the Eaſt Side of the Haymarket, where at the Entrance of the Pall Mall it croſſes the Houſes, and Warwick Street, unto the Wall of the King's Garden in St. James's Park, running along by the ſaid Wall, unto the Limits of St. James's Houſe; which are its Southern Bounds, and there it croſſes into St. James's Street, and runs up into Pickadilly, taking in the Eaſt Side; and ſo on the Back Side of Bond Street, it runs up into the Fields on the Backſide of Swallow-ſtreet unto the ſaid high Road, which are its Weſtward Bounds; ſo it is encompaſſed on the Eaſt, South, and Weſt, by the Pariſh of St. Martin's, except ſome Part of St. Ann's, as aforeſaid: And theſe Bounds do farther appear by the Girt or Prick-line in the Map, ſo that all the Buildings within the ſame are in this Pariſh.

But for as much as the Weſtward Part of St. James's-ſtreet, with that of St. James's Place, Park Place, Arlington Buildings, with thoſe of Albemarle Buildings, and ſo Weſtward toward Hide Park, which are in the Pariſh of St. Martin's, but ſeparate by this Pariſh, and ſo not convenient to be joyned to the Map of the Pariſh, as making the Scale too ſmall, therefore it was thought fit to engrave the ſaid Buildings to the Map of this Pariſh, yet referring the Reader to the Pariſh of St. Martin's for the Deſcription thereof.

See in the Deſcription of the Pariſh of St. Martin's.

This Pariſh of St. James's is large, well repleniſhed with fine open Streets, which are graced ced with good Buildings, and generally well inhabited, eſpecially St. James's Square, and the Streets adjacent, as alſo Golden Square. And for the Deſcription of theſe Places, I ſhall begin with St. James's Square, and ſo proceed to the adjacent Streets. Then to Golden Square, and ſo ſhall take in all the Streets, as they lie in the Map, with the Courts and Alleys therein.

St. James's Square.

St. James's Square, a large handſome Place, encompaſſed with Rails, and graced on all Sides with large Buildings. Inhabited chiefly by the Nobility, except on the South, which is the Back Part of the North Row of Buildings in the Pail Mail.

Pail Mail.
Stone-cutters Alley.
Warwick-ſtreet.
Pail Mail Court.
Priory Court.

The Pail Mail, a fine long Street, which from the Hay Market runs in a ſtreight Line Weſtwards into St. James's-ſtreet. The Houſes on the South Side have a pleaſant Proſpect into the King's Garden; and beſides, they have ſmall Gardens behind them, which reach to the Wall, and to many of them there are raiſed Mounts, which give them the Proſpect of the ſaid Garden, and of the Park. On this Side, and overagainſt St. Alban's ſtreet, is Stone-cutter's Alley, paved with Freeſtone, which leads into Warwick-ſtreet, and likewiſe to the Back Gate of the King's Garden, for the Conveniency of Mr. George London, her late Majeſty's principal Gardiner, there inhabiting in a neat and pleaſant Houſe. Then about the Middle of this Street is Pail Mail Court, a very neat Place, with fine new built Houſes, fit for Gentlemen; the Back Windows pleaſantly opening into the King's Garden. This Court hath a handſome Freeſtone Pavement: And at the Entrance there are Iron Bars made open, with the Door of the ſame, to ſhut up a-Nights, for the Security of the Inhabitants. Farther Weſtward, and adjoining to St. James's Houſe, is an open Yard, which leads into the Chapel, and called the Priory Court.

Crown Court.

Then on the North Side of the Pail Mail, near St. James's-ſtreet, is Crown Court, a Place of ordinary Building, and as meanly inhabited. It is a good Through fare into King's-ſtreet; and likewiſe falleth into another Court, which bears the ſame Name, and openeth into St. James's-ſtreet.

Crown and Scepter Court.

Between Rider-ſtreet and Little Germaine-ſtreet is a ſmall Court called Crown and Scepter Court.

King's ſtreet.
Angel Court.

King's-ſtreet, a good handſome Street, which fronts St. James's Square Eaſtwards, and Weſtwards it hath a Paſſage through an open paved Alley, called Little King's ſtreet, into St. James's-ſtreet. On the South Side is Angel Court, not over well built or inhabited; and near unto this, is a long Yard for Coaches and Stablings, uſeful for the Gentry in theſe Parts.

Berry ſtreet.
Painters Court.
Guy of Warwick's Court.

Berry-ſtreet, a handſome open Street, which runs up into Germain-ſtreet; on the Weſt Side is Painter's Court; and on the other Side, almoſt oppoſite to it, is Guy of Warwick's Court; both very ſmall and inconſiderable.

Rider's-ſtreet.

Rider's-ſtreet comes out of St. James's ſtreet, and croſſing Berry-ſtreet, falls into Duke-ſtreet.

Duke-ſtreet.
Feather Court.
Graye's Court.
St. Alban's Mews.
Prince's Court.

Duke-ſtreet comes out of Pickadilly, croſſes Germain-ſtreet, and falls into King-ſtreet. Here are ſeveral well built Houſes, which ſeem to be better inhabited than Berry-ſtreet, or Rider-ſtreet. On the Weſt Side are two ſmall Courts; the one called Feather Court, and the other Graye's Court; oppoſite to this Court is a very large Yard for Coaches and Stabling, with ſome Houſes; of which one is very good, with a handſome Garden to it, in which lately dwelt the Duke of Shrewſbury. This Yard is called St. Alban's Mews, and hath two Paſſages into Duke-ſtreet; of which one is for Coaches and Carts, and hath another Paſſage into Blackmore-ſtreet. More towards King's-ſtreet is a pretty neat Court, called Prince's Court, with a Freeſtone Pavement neatly kept, and not meanly inhabited: It hath a Door with open Iron Bars half way, to ſhut up a-Nights for the Security of the Inhabitants.

Germain-ſtreet.

Germain-ſtreet, of a great Length, which coming out of St. James's-ſtreet, runneth Eaſtward in a ſtreight Line unto Market Lane, near the Market. About the Middle of this Street is ſeated

The Church.

St. JAMES's Church,

Well adorned within, with an excellent Pair of Organs, a curious Font, and the Galleries well ſet off with Tapſteries and Perſian Carpets, and the Steeple lately finiſhed with a fine Spire, which adds much Splendor to this End of the Town, and ſerves as a Land-mark.

The Act for St. James's.
J. S.
Conſecrated.
The Charge of building.

The Act of Parliament for making St. James's a Pariſh-Church, was made in the firſt Year of King James the Second, Ann. 1685, being intitled, An Act for erecting a new Pariſh, to be called, The Pariſh of St. James's within the Liberty of Weſtminſter. The Church ſtands in Jermin-ſtreet, and was Conſecrated by the Right Reverend Henry, the late Biſhop of London. It was built at the Charge and Credit of Henry late Earl of St. Albans, and the Inhabitants, Owners, and Occupiers of the Houſes in the Precinct after in the ſaid Act deſcribed. Seven thouſand Pounds had been expended about it.

Bounds.

In this Act, the Bounds and Limits of the Pariſh are ſet out.

Rector of St. James's Patronage.
Duties.
Glebe.

Dr. Teniſon, then the Vicar of St. Martin's, conſtituted the firſt Rector; and he and his Succeſſors, Rectors of the ſaid Pariſh, were incorporated, and to have a Capacity and Succeſſion, by the Name of The Rector and Pariſh of St. James's within the Liberty of Weſtminſter: And to have one Meſſuage or Tenement for his Habitation, to be erected on Part of the Church-yard, or near thereunto. The Patronage to belong to the Biſhop of London, and his Succeſſors, and Thomas Lord Jermin, and his Heirs for ever; that is, two Turns to the Biſhop of London and his Succeſſors, and one to the Lord Jermin and his Heirs alternately for ever. The Rector to take Duties as the Vicar of St. Martin's uſeth to do; and to be endowed of a certain Toft, as in his or their Demeſne, ſituate on the North and Eaſt Ends of the Church; containing in Front 33 Feet of Aſſize, little more or leſs; and in Depth, 32 Feet and ſix Inches: And of another Piece of Ground of 40 Feet, and in Depth 75; and of other Houſes and Lands mentioned in the Act.

His Aſſiſtant.
A Clerk in Prieſt's Orders.

The Rector, with the Conſent of the Veſtrymen and Churchwardens, to nominate a Preacher, to be Aſſiſtant to him, or any ſix or more of them: And likewiſe to nominate a Clerk of the ſaid Pariſh, to be in Prieſt's Orders; and one or more Sexton or Sextons. The Churchwardens to pay 30 l. yearly to the Clerk, to be appointed out of the Profits of the Pews, and other Duties and Profits to them accruing.

Finiſhing the Steeple.
The Aſſiſtant's Salary.

The Benefit of a Pariſh Church here.

Thus this Part of Weſtminſter was made a Pariſh, and had a Church erected for the People adjacent to reſort to, to be inſtructed in the true Worſhip of God; and that in a ſeaſonable Juncture, viz. in the ſaid Year 1685, when, for Want thereof, the Emiſſaries of Rome before had dangerouſly tampered with the numerous Inhabitants hereabouts. Which one of the late Incumbents, in his Farewel Sermon, gave them ſome Hints of. 'When ye firſt met as a Pariſh, 'to to worſhip God in this Place, other Doctrines, indeed, began to be taught pretty freely about you; and you could not but fear, as the whole Nation juſtly did, the ſuppreſſion of the Truth of the Goſpel, how well ſoever eſtabliſhed by the Laws of the Realm. But as it pleaſed God to ſupport and quicken the Vigilance and Care of that wiſe and good Paſtor, who then miniſtred to you, and in a little Time to diſperſe that Cloud which was juſt breaking upon you; ſo he hath, by his Providence, continued the Preaching of the ſame Form of ſound Words, through the Labours of thoſe that have ſince been employed in this Vinyard.

Dr. Trimnel, Bp. of Norwich, Jan. 30. 1708.

And how commendably this People had behaved themſelves with reſpect to Piety and good Order, by being conſtituted into a Pariſh, and having Chriſtian Offices regularly miniſtred among them, the ſaid Reverend Father took Notice of, in the ſame Diſcourſe to them, in theſe Words: 'The numerous and orderly Aſſemblies on the Returns of theſe Days, and thoſe Multitudes, that, without Superſtition or Tumult, every Month crowd up to the Altar; the good Congregations there are at all the four Courſes of the daily Prayers; the Encouragement that is given by thoſe who are advanced in Knowledge and Years, to the Catechizing of Children, by a greater Appearance than ordinary on the Days of that Exerciſe; the Calling for more Opportunities of Worſhip, which has added a Courſe to the daily Service in one Part of the Pariſh,* and occaſioned the opening of a new Chapel in another.† The kind Unanimity with which the Parochial Buſineſs hath been diſpatched, and the great Peace that is preſerved by that Means: In a Word, that Charity which hath influenced all, and particularly ſhewn it ſelf in ſo liberal a Diſtribution to the Neceſſities of the Saints, and the Care of their poor Children; as to encourage an Addition to the Number of thoſe that were formerly taught; are, to me, ſo many Marks of your profeſſed Subjection to the Goſpel of Chriſt.]

Church Lane.
Cock Court.
R. B.

This Church fronts St. James's Square on the South, and hath a Paſſage into Pickadilly through Church Lane, newly built, with a Freeſtone Pavement. There is a ſmall Place called Cock Court. To this Church there is a large Church-Yard, with a Pair of Gates into Pickadilly. This Street is repleniſhed with good Buildings, eſpecially betwixt the Church and St. James's-ſtreet; and is a Place well reſorted unto by Gentry.

Sir Joſ. Williamſon.
J. S.

In one of theſe Houſes lived Sir Joſeph Williamſon, [ſome Time Secretary of State, and much employed in Embaſſies by the Princes of this Land. And who, by his laſt Will, left liberal and noble Legacies to Queen's College, Oxon. And to the City of Rocheſter, where he founded a Free School for teaching Children Navigation, (the diligent Maſter thereof now is Mr. Colſon) and well endowed it.]

It hath a Paſſage into Pickadilly, through Duke-ſtreet, Eagle-ſtreet, and Fleece Yard; beſides another at Watt's Coffee-houſe againſt the Market.

York-ſtreet.

York-ſtreet comes out of St. James's Square, and runs up to the Church; a broad Street, but the greateſt Part is taken up by the Garden Walls of the late Duke of Ormond's Houſe, on the one Side, and on the other Side by the Houſe inhabited by the Lord Cornwallis. So that towards the Church there are not above two or three Houſes on each Side. On the Eaſt Side is Angier-ſtreet, and on the Weſt Blackamoor-ſtreet, both taken up for Coaches and Stables, and of no great Account, being Back Streets.

Angier-ſtreet.
Blackamore-ſtreet.

Charles-ſtreet.

Charles-ſtreet, being large and handſome, which comes out of St. James's Square on the Eaſt Side, and croſſeth St. Albon's-ſtreet.

St. Albon's-ſtreet.

St. Albon's-ſtreet, another handſome well built Street, which goeth out of the Pall Mall, and fronts the Market.

St. James's Market.

St. James's Market, a large Place, with a commodious Market-houſe in the Midſt, filled with Butchers Shambles; beſides the Stalls in the Market-Place, for Country Butchers, Higglers, and the like; being a Market now grown to great Account, and much reſorted unto, as being well ſerved with good Proviſions. On the South-weſt Corner is the Paved Alley, a good Through-fare into Charles-ſtreet, and ſo into St. James's Square, and thoſe Parts; but is of no great Account for Buildings or Inhabitants. On each Side, or Square, of this Market is a Row of Houſes, inhabited by ſuch as have a Dependance on the Market, kept twice a Week, but that on Saturdays is the moſt conſiderable.

Paved Alley.

Market-ſtreet.
Comb's Alley.

Market-ſtreet, ſo called from the Market which it fronts, againſt Germaine-ſtreet; a pretty good Street, and of ſome Trade. Here is a very ſmall Place called Comb's Alley.

Market Lane.
Six Bell Alley.
Salter's Court.
Parſon's Court.

Market Lane, which alſo takes its Name from the Market near adjoyning, and lyeth on the Backſide of the Hay market, into which it hath an ordinary and narrow Paſſage through Six Bell Alley, a Place for Stablings. In this Lane is Salter's Court, a ſmall ſquare Place, ill inhabited. Here is alſo another ſmall Place called Parſon's Court.

Norris-ſtreet.

Norris-ſtreet, but ſhort, which cometh out of the Hay Market, and fronts the Market; a Place of a pretty good Trade for Salesmen.

Hay Market.

The Hay Market, a ſpacious Street of great Reſort, full of Inns, and Houſes of Entertainment; eſpecially on the Weſt Side, which is in this Pariſh. The Market for Hay and Straw, here kept every Tueſday, Thurſday, and Saturday, makes it to be of good Account. The Inns, or Yards, on this Side, beginning next towards Pickadilly, are, Black Horſe Yard; David's Yard, both for Stablings. Nag's Head Inn, indifferent large. Cock Yard, for Stablings. White Horſe Inn, a Place of good Reſort. Phenix Yard, and Unicorn Yard, both for Stablings, and Coach-houſes, much reſorted unto.

Black Horſe Yard.
David's Yard.

Pickadilly.

Pickadilly, a large Street, and a great Through-fare, as ſeated in the Weſtern Road. Well inhabited, eſpecially that Part towards Albemarle Buildings. I ſhall begin with the South Side, next to St. James's-ſtreet; and then proceed to the North. And then the firſt is White Horſe Inn; then Elephant Inn; then next beyond Duke-ſtreet is the King's Arms Inn; all three Inns of an indifferent Trade. Then beyond Church Lane, already ſpoken of, is Eagle-ſtreet, which falleth into Germin ſtreet: Next unto it is Fleece Yard, near the Hay Market, which hath a Paſſage into Germin-ſtreet, very ordinary built and inhabited: And near unto this Yard is Sadler's Court, which is but ſmall and mean. Then on the North Side of Pickadilly, towards Albemarle Buildings, which is the beſt Part for Houſes and Inhabitants, is Burlington Houſe, the Seat of the Earl of Burlington; having a large Court Yard before, and a ſpacious Garden behind, which fronts the Fields; and from thence receives a freſh and wholeſome Air. Near to this Houſe are three or four more handſome Houſes, with pleaſant Gardens behind them; as, the Houſe of Sir Thomas Clarges, the Houſe where the Counteſs of Denbigh dwells, and the Houſe of the Lord Sherbourn: Adjoining to which Houſe is Sackvile-ſtreet, a pretty handſome open Place, as having a Proſpect into the Gardens: It hath a turning Paſſage into Swallow-ſtreet. Near unto this Street, and in Pickadilly, is Maggot's Court, a pretty handſome Place, with a Freeſtone Pavement; and hath a Paſſage into Little Swallow-ſtreet. Bear Alley, but ſmall, with a Paſſage ſage into Caſtle-ſtreet. Near unto the End of the Hay Market falls in Shug Lane, where is George Yard, a Place for Stabling; and againſt the Hay Market is Windmill-ſtreet; and here begins Coventry ſtreet, which falls into Whitcomb ſtreet, on the Backſide of Leiceſter Fields. Near unto the Corner of Windmill ſtreet is Crown Yard, a Place for Stabling: And a little farther is Panton Yard, a very large Place for Stabling and Coach-houſes, there being one large Yard within another. This Place is deſigned to be built into Streets, taking up a large Piece of Ground, and, according to Probability, will turn to better Advantage than at preſent.

Rupert-ſtreet. Edmund's Court.

Rupert ſtreet, a pretty handſome, well built Street, which cometh out of Coventry ſtreet, and runneth up a good Length, as far as Edmund's Court, which hath a pretty broad Paſſage, with a Freeſtone Pavement, into Whitcombe-ſtreet, overagainſt St. Anne's Church.

Richmond-ſtreet.

Richmond-ſtreet, a pretty handſome, but ſhort Street, which falleth into Rupert ſtreet.

Whitcombe-ſtreet. Cooper's Court. Nag's Head Inn. Plough Yard. Cock and Swan Alley.

Whitcombe-ſtreet, runneth Northwards, by St. Anne's Church, into Wardour-ſtreet; and beginning at the Corner of Coventry ſtreet, overagainſt Liſle-ſtreet, there is a very ſmall Court of about two or three Houſes, called Cooper's Court: A little farther is the Nag's Head Inn, with two more Inns, or Stable Yards, both having the Sign of the Plough. Then paſſing by Richmond-ſtreet, and Edmund's Court, already named, is Cock and Swan Alley, overagainſt Compton-ſtreet, a very narrow, dirty, ill built and inhabited Place.

Knaves Acre. Spur Alley. Prince's Court. Walker's Court. Cymball's Alley.

Knave's Acre, or Poultney ſtreet, falls into Brewers-ſtreet by Windmill-ſtreet End, and ſo runs Weſtward as far as Marybone-ſtreet, and Warwick-ſtreet End; and croſſing the ſame, and Swallow-ſtreet, falls into Glaſs-houſe-ſtreet; which leadeth into the Fields on the Backſide of Burlington Garden, and thence to Albemarle Buildings. This Knaves Acre is but narrow, and chiefly inhabited by thoſe that deal in old Goods, and Glaſs Bottles: On the South Side is a ſmall Place, called Spur Alley; and another, called Prince's Court. And on the North Side is Walker's Court, with a pretty Freeſtone Pavement, which falls into Peters-ſtreet: And a little beyond this Court is another ſmall Place, called Cymball's Alley, which alſo leads into Peter-ſtreet.

Wardour-ſtreet. Peter-ſtreet. Edward-ſtreet. Tweed-ſtreet.

Wardour-ſtreet hath only the Weſt Side (which is the beſt) in this Pariſh, and runneth Northwards into Tyburn Road; the Eaſt Side being in the Pariſh of St. Anne's. This Side hath all new Buildings, as the greateſt Part of the other Side hath, except towards the End next the Road, which Time will accompliſh. Out of this Street goeth Peter-ſtreet, which, croſſing Berwick-ſtreet, falleth into waſte, and unbuilt Ground; a Street not over well inhabited. Here is a ſmall Court, but the right Name is not yet given. Farther Northward is Edward-ſtreet; which alſo croſſeth Berwick-ſtreet, and falls into waſte and unbuilt Ground; nor is this Street over well inhabited: And ſo is another a little farther, begun to be built, called Tweed-ſtreet.

Berwick ſtreet. A French Church. Kemp's Court. Peſt-houſe.

Berwick-ſtreet, on the Weſt of Wardour-ſtreet. It begins at Peter-ſtreet, and runs Northwards as far as Tyburn Road; a pretty handſome ſtrait Street, with new well built Houſes, much inhabited by the French, where they have a Church; near unto which is a pretty handſome Court, with a Freeſtone Pavement, called Kemp's Court. About the Middle of this Street is a Place deſigned for a Hay Market, and a great Part of the low Ground raiſed, with ſome of the Houſes built Piazzo wiſe, and ſuſtained by Stone Pillars; but whether it will be finiſhed, Time will make appear. Weſtwards of this Street is a large Tract of waſte Ground, reaching to the Wall of the Peſt-houſe, built by the Earl of Craven; which runneth from the Backſide of Golden Square, to a Piece of Cloſe or Meadow Ground which reacheth to Tyburn Road.

Windmill ſtreet. Conde Court. Black Horſe Yard. Orchard-ſtreet. Feathers Alley. Salton's Court.

Windmill-ſtreet, indifferent good, and broad: It cometh out of Pickadilly againſt the Hay Market, and falls into Brewer's-ſtreet. On the Weſt Side is Conde Court, very inconſiderable for Building, or Inhabitants. Oppoſite to this is Black Horſe Yard, a Place of good Account for Stabling. Then farther Northwards is Windmill Yard, another ſuch like Place for Stablings. And oppoſite unto it is a ſhort Street, called Orchard-ſtreet, broad, but of no great Account; which runs up to the Backſide of Rupert-ſtreet; into which it hath a Paſſage through a narrow Entry or Alley. Then a little farther, on the ſame Side, is Feathers Alley, which hath a Paſſage into Knaves Acre; being but very ſmall and inconſiderable, as is Salton's Court, on the other Side of the Way.

Queen-ſtreet. Trumbal Yard.

Queen-ſtreet, a pretty neat, clean, and quiet Street, with good Houſes, well inhabited: It comes out of Windmill-ſtreet, and falls into Sherard-ſtreet. About the Middle of this Street is Trumball Yard, a pretty large Place for Coaches and Stablings.

Sherard-ſtreet.

Sherard-ſtreet, a handſome, broad, well built and inhabited Place; which takes its Beginning at Marybone-ſtreet, paſſeth by Queen-ſtreet, and runs up into Brewer's-ſtreet, againſt James's-ſtreet, that leadeth into Golden Square.

Marybone-ſtreet.

Marybone-ſtreet takes its Beginning at the End of Brewer's-ſtreet, againſt Warwick-ſtreet, and falleth into Shug Lane, and thence into Pickadilly by the May Market.

Shug Lane. Hunt's Court. Brown's Court. Gibſon's Court.

This Shug Lane is but meanly built, neither are its Inhabitants much to be boaſted of. On the North Side are two very ordinary Places, viz. Hunt's Court and Brown's Court: And on the South Side is Gibſon's Court, a pretty neat and new built Place, with a Freeſtone Paſſage into Caſtle-ſtreet.

Ayre ſtreet. Caſtle-ſtreet.

Ayre-ſtreet comes out of Pickadilly, and falls into Marybone-ſtreet. On the Eaſt Side is Caſtle-ſtreet, very ordinary built and inhabited; hath a ſmall Paſſage into Pickadilly.

Francis-ſtreet.

Francis-ſtreet, but ſhort, as appears by the Map, takes its Riſe from Marybone-ſtreet, and falls into Brewer's-ſtreet, againſt John's-ſtreet, which leadeth into Golden Square.

Vine-ſtreet. Little Swallow-ſtreet.

Vine-ſtreet, a Place of no great Account; the chiefeſt Part of which is taken up by a Brewhouſe on the one Side, and a Carpenter's Yard on the other. At the Bottom of this Street is Little Swallow-ſtreet, of ſmall Account, which falleth into Great Swallow-ſtreet.

Warwick-ſtreet.

Warwick-ſtreet, on the Backſide of Golden Square, a Place not over well built or inhabited towards the End next to Marybone-ſtreet; but at the upper End it hath ſome good Houſes on both Sides; the chief of which is that where Sir Henry Goodrick dwelleth.

Swallow-ſtreet. Haynes Court. Baxter's Yard. Glaſshouſe-ſtreet. Sadler's Yard.

Swallow ſtreet, very long, coming out of Pickadilly, and runneth Northwards to Tyburn Road, againſt Neb's Pound, but of no great Account for Buildings or Inhabitants. On the Eaſt Side is Little Swallow-ſtreet, as aforeſaid. More Northwards is a pretty ſmall Court, called Haynes Court; a little beyond which is a large Yard for Stabling and Coaches, called Baxter's Yard, as being made Uſe of by one Mr. Baxter, who there kept his Riding-houſe, for the inſtructing young Gentlemen to ride the managed Horſe. Oppoſite to this is a Paſſage into Sackvile-ſtreet, already ſpoken of. Then beyond is Glaſs-houſe-ſtreet, which Swallow-ſtreet croſſes: And at the upper End, next the Fields, is a fine Houſe and Ground, the Seat of the Lady Harvey. Here is a large Yard for Coaches and Stables, called Sadler's Yard. On the Eaſt Side is a little Square Court, called Harris ris Court. This Street is croſſed by Leiceſter-ſtreet, of no great Account, being ordinarily built and inhabited; except the Weſt End towards the Fields, where there is a very good Houſe and Garden, which fronts the Fields. In this Part of Swallow-ſtreet is Bell Yard, or Inn, for Stabling and Coaches: and farther up Swallow-Street is another very large and commodious Yard for Coach-houſes and Stabling. More Northwards is a pretty ſhort Street, which opens into the Fields, called Burlington-Street, in the Midſt of which is a Yard for Stabling: And a little farther towards the Road this Street endeth, and falleth into a Lane that leadeth to the high Road.

Beak-ſtreet.
Silver-ſtreet.
Pott's Yard.

Beak-ſtreet butts againſt Warwick-Street, cometh out of Swallow-Street, and falleth into Silver-Street, another ſmall Street, on the Backſide of Golden Square; and here is Pott's Yard, a pretty large Place for Stablings and Coaches.

Golden Square.
James-ſtreet.
John's ſtreet.

Golden Square, a very handſome open Place, railed round, and gravelled within; having very good Houſes, inhabited by Gentry on all Sides. The Row of Buildings on the Eaſt Side is called James Street; which Name it retaineth 'till it falls into Brewer's-ſtreet; and on the Weſt Side, from Brewer's-Street unto Silver-Street, is called John's ſtreet.

King ſtreet.
Hide's Court.
Croſs ſtreet.

King ſtreet cometh out of Beak-Street and Silver-ſtreet, and runneth Northwards to the Road: It is a pretty good Street, having divers very good Houſes fit for Gentry. On the Weſt Side is the Chapel of Eaſe, by ſome called, The Tabernacle; near unto which is Hide's Court, of ſmall Account. On the Eaſt Side is Croſs-ſtreet, ordinarily built and inhabited; which falls into Carnaby ſtreet. And farther Northwards is another Paſſage into the upper End of Carnaby-Street, and another into Swallow Street, by Mr. Medwell's, a fine, large, and well built Houſe, with a curious Garden before it. Then farther Northwards is a good Bowling Alley, well reſorted unto.

Carnaby-ſtreet.
Earl of Craven's Peſt-houſes.

Carnaby Street, an ordinary Street, which goes out of Silver-Street, and runs Northwards almoſt to the Bowling Ground. On the Eaſt Side of this Street are the Earl of Craven's Peſt-houſes, ſeated in a large Piece of Ground, encloſed with a Brick Wall, and handſomely ſet with Trees, in which are Buildings for the Entertainment of Perſons that ſhall have the Plague, when it ſhall pleaſe God that any Contagion ſhall happen.

And theſe are the Boundaries, Streets, Places, and Buildings in this new Pariſh of St. James's.]

St. ANNE's Pariſh.

St. Anne's Church.
J. S.
An Act for building of St. Anne's Church.

THIS Pariſh was alſo, by Act of Parliament of late Years, taken out of St. Martin's in the Fields.

In the firſt Year of King James the Second, there was an Act of Parliament, to enable the Inhabitants of the Pariſh of St. Anne's within the Liberties of Weſtminſter, to raiſe Money to build a Church, to be the Pariſh Church there. And it was built in a Parcel of Ground, called Kemp's Field, with the Church-yard. This Act was purſuant to a former Act 30. Car. II. entitled, An Act for making Part of the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields a new Pariſh, to be called, The Pariſh of St. ANNE within the Liberties of Weſtminſter. But wanting Money to finiſh the Church, (though the Building was finiſhed to a convenient Height before) they were forced to get a new Act of 1. Jac. 2. that they might legally make an equal Diſtribution among themſelves for the Performance thereof. By this Act thirty Perſons were to be appointed by the Biſhop of London, to be Superviſors and Commiſſioners for the Church. And after the Church is finiſhed, the ſame to be Veſtry-men for the ſaid Pariſh. The Rector of St. Anne's Church, and the Churchwardens, to be additional Superviſors and Commiſſioners. Theſe, or any Nine of them, to aſſeſs the Inhabitants, Owners, and Occupiers of Lands, &c. for the Charges in building and finiſhing the Church, not exceeding 5000 l.

It is a fair Church; and is furniſhed with a Pair of Organs, which were given by King William the Third to this Church, as the Queen had given a Pair to St. James's. And as there is a Chapel belonging to St. James's, ſo there is alſo a Chapel belonging to St. Anne's: Together with ſome other Chapels in theſe Parts, for the Uſe of the French Nation; where our Liturgy, turned into French, is uſed, French Miniſters, that are Refugees, Epiſcopally ordained, officiating: Several whereof are hereabouts ſeen walking in the Canonical Habit of the Engliſh Clergy. Abundance of French People, many whereof are voluntary Exiles for their Religion, live in theſe Streets and Lanes, following honeſt Trades; and ſome Gentry of the ſame Nation.

The MONUMENTS in St. Anne's Church, for Remembrance of the Dead here interred, are theſe:

In the Chancel.

Monuments.

Its Bounds or Girt Line. R. B.

Now for the Bounds, or Girt Line. I ſhall begin at the Black Lyon, at the South-weſt Corner of Leiceſter Fields, by Panton-Street; thence turning Northwards, it runs down Whitcombe-Street, from thence into Prince's-Street, and ſo into Wardour-Street, paſſing by St. Anne's Church-yard on the Eaſt Side. And at the upper End of Wardour-Street, it turns down Tyburn Road Eaſtwards unto St. Giles's Pound; and there it turns Southwards into Hog Lane, and ſo runs to the upper End of St. Martin's Lane againſt Long Acre, where it turns down Newport-Street, taking in the North Row of Buildings, and from thence into Caſtle Street, and ſo to Bear-Street, encloſing the North Side thereof; and ſo runs croſs Leiceſter Fields, to the Black Lyon, where I began; and all within the ſaid Girt Line is in this Pariſh, as appears by the Map of the Pariſh.

And now for the Deſcription of the Streets, Courts, &c. in this Pariſh, I ſhall begin at the South-eaſt Part, to wit, at Newport-Street; and ſo ſhew them in Order, as they lie Northwards.

Newport-ſtreet.

Newport-Street fronts Long Acre: The North Side, which is in this Pariſh, hath far the beſt Buildings, and is inhabited by Gentry; whereas, on the other Side dwell ordinary Tradeſpeople, of which ſeveral are of the French Nation.

Porter's-ſtreet.

Porter's-Street, at the North-weſt Corner of Newport-Street, runs up into Litchfield-Street. Out of this Street there is a Paſſage into Newport Market: 'Tis a Street well built and inhabited.

Litchfield-ſtreet

Litchfield-Street, a Place furniſhed with good Buildings, well inhabited. And here is an open Paſſage into Newport Market, almoſt againſt the Great Stonecutter's.

Newport Market.

Newport Market, made very commodious for that Uſe, having a good Market-houſe, with Shambels for Butchers in the Midſt, with Shops round about it: But at preſent is not ſo well ſerved with Proviſions as in Time it may be by the Reſort of Country People to it with their Neceſſaries, Clare Market much eclipſing it.

Newport Alley.

Newport Alley, a great Paſſage into So Ho, and thoſe new built Places. It is for the Generality inhabited by French; as indeed are moſt of theſe Streets and Alleys, which are ordinarily built, and the Rents cheap. It is a Place of a good Trade. Out of this Alley is a Paſſage into Newport Market.

Little Newport-ſtreet.

Little Newport Street, on the Back of this Alley, ordinarily built and inhabited; being much annoyed with Coaches and Carts into the So Ho, and thoſe Parts.

Cranborn-ſtreet

Cranborn-ſtreet, hath a very handſome Freeſtone Pavement, and an open Paſſage into Lieceſter Fields for Foot Paſſengers: Which great Throughfare makes it to be a Place of a very good Trade, both Sides being inhabited by Shopkeepers.

Cranborn Alley. Earl's Court. Rider's Court.

Out of the North Side is Cranborn Alley, a narrow Place moſt taken up by Shoomakers. Then about the Middle of this Street is Earl's Court, paved with Freeſtone, which hath a Paſſage into Little Newport-Street. Not far from this, and near Newport Houſe, is Rider's Court, a Court new built, and neat, with a Freeſtone Pavement, cleanly kept, and well inhabited. It hath a Paſſage at the upper End of Little Newport-Street to Newport Market, and Gerard-Street: And on the South Side there is a Paſſage into Bear-Street.

Leiceſter Fields. Leiceſter Houſe.

Leiceſter Fields, a very handſome open Square, railed about, and gravelled within. The Buildings are very good, and well inhabited, and frequented by the Gentry. The North and Weſt Rows of Buildings which are in this Pariſh are the beſt; and eſpecially the North, where is Leiceſter Houſe, the Seat of the Earl of Leiceſter: Being a large Building, with a fair Court before it, for the Reception of Coaches; and a fine Garden behind it. The South and Eaſt Sides being in the Pariſh of St. Martin's.

Next to this Houſe is another large one, inhabited late by the Earl of Ayleſbury, now by His Royal Highneſs George Prince of Wales.

Sidney Alley.

Sidney-Street, or rather Alley, being paved with Freeſtone, which gives a Paſſage out of Leiceſter Fields into Prince's-Street, and ſo to Pickadilly: A Place of no great Account.

Leiceſter ſtreet.

Leiceſter-ſtreet fronts Leiceſter Fields, and hath Liſle-ſtreet on the North.

Liſle-ſtreet.

Liſle-ſtreet comes out of Prince's-Street, and runs up to Leiceſter Garden Wall: Both theſe Streets are large, well built, and inhabited by Gentry.

Whitcombe-ſtreet.

Whitcombe Street, on the Back of Leiceſter Fields, very ordinary; the Side in this Pariſh being the Stables and Coach-houſes belonging to the Houſes in the Weſt Row of Leiceſter Fields; and the other Side of the Street, which is in the Pariſh of St. James's, is very ordinary, both for Houſes and Inhabitants.

Prince's-ſtreet.

Prince's-ſtreet, a broad Street, with good Houſes, and in its Paſſage into Wardour-ſtreet, receiveth Liſle-ſtreet, Gerard-ſtreet, King-ſtreet, Richmond ſtreet, and Compton ſtreet.

Gerard-ſtreet.

Gerard-ſtreet butteth againſt Newport Market, and runs Weſtward into Prince's ſtreet; being fronted with Maxfield (or Macclesfield) Street, which paſſing by St. Anne's Church, falls into Dean ſtreet. It is a very good Street, well built, and inhabited by Gentry, and ſome Noblemen, as the Earl of Mancheſter, and the Earl of Macclesfield.

King-ſtreet.

King-ſtreet, a pretty good Street, but not ſo broad as moſt in theſe Parts; yet well inhabited.

Church ſtreet. Moore-ſtreet.

Church-ſtreet, ſo called, as fronting St. Anne's Church; and paſſing by Moore ſtreet, which is but ſhort, narrow, and of no great Account; falls into Hog Lane, againſt Monmouth-ſtreet End.

Grafton-ſtreet.

Grafton-ſtreet, indifferent good, croſſeth Litchfield-ſtreet, and butteth againſt Gerrard-ſtreet.

Hayes-ſtreet.

Hayes-ſtreet, or rather Alley, being but ſmall and narrow, with a Freeſtone Pavement. In the Map it is marked with Number 16.

Compton-ſtreet.

Compton ſtreet, very long, which from Hog Lane runneth Weſtwards into Wardour-ſtreet. This This Street is broad, and the Houſes well built, but of no great Account for its Inhabitants, which are chiefly French.

Dean-ſtreet. St. Anne's Church. Milk Alley.

Dean ſtreet, a ſpacious Street, and of a great Length, taking its Riſe from St. Ann's Church, and runs Northward unto Tyburn Road: It is graced with good Buildings, well inhabited by Gentry, eſpecially the middle Part, but that towards the Road is but ordinary. The Church of St. Ann's is large, and handſomely finiſhed within, but the Want of a Steeple takes off from its outward Grace. Behind the Church is a ſpacious Church-yard. On the Weſt Side of this Street are ſeveral Out-lets and Courts, viz. Milk Alley, which runs into Wardour-ſtreet, but of no great Account.

Dean's Court. Cock-pit Court. St. Anne's Court. King's-Square Court.

Dean's Court, a pretty neat and cleanly Place, not large, but indifferent well inhabited. Cockpit Court, a ſmall Place, and of no Account, either for Inhabitants or Buildings; which Buildings are but of one Side. St. Ann's Court, pretty well built and inhabited, with a Freeſtone Pavement, and hath a Paſſage into Wardour-ſtreet. King's-Square Court, a handſome broad Court fronting King's-Square; 'tis a Place well built and inhabited, and hath one very large Houſe, which takes up all the Weſt End or Front; by which is a little Paſſage leading into to waſte Ground betwixt Wardour-ſtreet and the Backſide of Dean-ſtreet: Which Ground is deſigned to be built upon, there being a Street laid out, and ſome Houſes built. Out of which deſigned Street there is a Paſſage into Dean's-ſtreet, called Crown Court, at preſent of ſmall Account. Wardour-ſtreet hath only the Eaſt Side in this Pariſh, the Weſt being in the Pariſh of St. James's, which runs from Compton-ſtreet up into Tyburn Road. In the middle Part, the Buildings are good, but towards the Road, very ordinary and ill inhabited; but on the other Side the Buildings are better.

Queen-ſtreet.

Queen-ſtreet fronts Dean ſtreet on the Weſt, and Greek-ſtreet on the Eaſt, a Place not very conſiderable, having on the North Side dead Walls, which generally are dirty and ill kept.

Frith-ſtreet.

Frith-ſtreet, graced with good Buildings well inhabited, eſpecially towards Golden Square.

Greek-ſtreet.

Roſe-ſtreet.

Greek ſtreet takes its Riſe out of King's-ſtreet, and falleth into King's Square, and in its Paſſage receiveth the ſaid Streets, which are croſſed by Frith-ſtreet. It is well built and inhabited. Out of this Street there is an open Paſſage for Carts and Coaches into Roſe-ſtreet, which goeth into Hog Lane. This Street hath ſome indifferent good Houſes; but the greateſt Part is taken up for Coach-houſes and Stables.

King's Square.

King's Square, a very large and open Place, encloſed with a high Palliſado Pale, the Square within being neatly kept, with Walks and Graſs-plots, and in the Midſt is the Effigies of King Charles the Second, neatly cut in Stone, to the Life, ſtanding on a Pedeſtal. This Square hath very good Buildings on all Sides, eſpecially the Eaſt and South, which are well inhabited by Nobility and Gentry.

King's-Square Street.

Charles-ſtreet.

Sutton-ſtreet.

Faulconbergh Court.

Tucker's Court.

On the Weſt Side, this Square receiveth a ſhort Street, called King's-Square Street, of ſmall Account: On the North Side it hath a Paſſage into Tyburn Road, through Charles-ſtreet, a Place of no great Note for Inhabitants; and on the Eaſt Side it hath another Paſſage, for Coaches and Carts, into Hog Lane, and ſo into St. Giles's through Sutton-ſtreet, which is but ordinary. Out of this Street is Faulconbergh Court, which leadeth into Tucker's Court, which hath a Paſſage into Hog Lane.

Hog Lane.

A French Church.

An Almes Houſe.

Hog Lane, of which the Weſt Side is in this Pariſh, the other Side being in St. Giles's; a Place not over well built or inhabited. Here the French have a Church, which formerly was the Greek Church, and by many ſtill ſo called; adjoyning to which are eighteen Alms Houſes for ſo many poor People, belonging to the Pariſh of St. Martin's; of which, nine have the Allowance of 8 s. a Month, and the other nine have 7 s. a Month. From thence this Street runneth to the upper End of St. Martin's Lane, paſſing by Monmouth Street, and other Places, but hath nothing worthy of Note.

St. PAUL's COVENT-GARDEN.

The Beginning of this Pariſh.

At the Charge and Care of the Earl of Bedford.

Covent Garden Square.

THE Ground on which this Pariſh is built, was formerly Fields, with ſome thatched Houſes, Stables, and ſuch like, which lying in ſo good a Place, the Owner of the ſaid Ground, (the Earl of Bedford) did think good to make an Improvement thereof, and procuring an Act of Parliament for the making it into a Pariſh of itſelf, diſunited from St. Martin's in the Fields, did, about the Years 1534, and 1635, begin to pull down the ſaid old Buildings, and clear away the Rubbiſh, and laid it out into ſeveral fair Streets, ſtreight and uniform, which were built with good brick Buildings. About the Centre of the Ground, he cauſed to be ſet out a large Square, or rather oblong Piece of Ground, 500 Foot in Length, and 400 in Breadth; and into this Plot of Ground, four large Streets of about 50 or 60 Foot broad, have their Entrance, viz. Ruſſel-ſtreet on the Weſt, James ſtreet on the North, King's-ſtreet, and Henrietta-ſtreet on the Weſt, and the South Side is taken up by the Wall of Bedford Garden: On the North and Eaſt Sides are erected ſtately Buildings for the dwelling of Perſons of Repute and Quality, their Fronts ſtanding on Pillars and Arches of Brick and Stone Ruſtick Work, with Piazzas, or Walks, like thoſe in the Royal Exchange in London, and imitating the Rialto in Venice. Since the firſt Building, this Pariſh hath had great Improvements, as well by its Houſes as its Inhabitants.

And if we conſider this Pariſh, as to its fine, ſtreight, and broad Streets, repleniſhed with ſuch good Buildings, and ſo well inhabited by a Mixture of Nobility, Gentry, and wealthy Tradeſmen, here ſeated ſince the Fire of London 1666, ſcarce admitting of any Poor, not being peſtered with mean Courts and Alleys; likewiſe its open and large Piazza or Garden, ſo delightful to walk in: It may deſervedly be reckoned for one of the beſt Pariſhes in the Cities of London and Weſtminſter, or Parts adjacent. The Pariſh of St. Martin's (out of which this Pariſh was taken) begirteth it on all Parts.]

By an unknown Hand this Account is given of the building of this Church. J. S.

An Account of the Pariſh Church of St. Paul's Covent Garden, formerly a Part of the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields.

The Leaſe from the Earl of Bedford of the Grounds of Covent Garden, to Palmer, &c.

I Find by a Leaſe granted to the Right Honourable Francis Earl of Bedford, (dated, at his Manſion Houſe in the Strond, the 10th Day of March 1631, in the 7th Year of the Reign of King Charles the Firſt) to John Powel of Little Thorocke, in the County of Eſſex, Clerk; and to Edward Palmer of the Pariſh of St. Andrew's Holbourn in the County of Middleſex, Gent. Son of Ed. Palmer, late Citizen and Girdler of London, lately deceaſed; and John Barrodale of London, Gent. he having let unto the aforeſaid Ed. Palmer, the Father, all the Piece or Parcel of Ground of the ſaid Earl's Paſture, called Covent Garden and Long Acre; one of them lying on the South Side of a Parcel of Ground then laid forth for a new Church-yard, containeth in Length, from a Parcel of Ground then let to one William Newton, Gent. on the Weſt Side; another Parcel of Ground then preſerved for a Veſtry-Houſe; on the Eaſt, 180 Foot and 3 Inches of Aſſize, and in Breadth, from a Parcel of Grounds then laid forth for a Street, Way, or Paſſage of 50 Foot broad on the South Side of the ſaid Piece of Ground laid forth for the ſaid Church-yard, on the North, 33 Foot of Aſſize, and all other Conveniencies for Building, to hold for 34 Years to come, from the Date aforeſaid, at the yearly Rent of ſeventeen Pounds and ſix Pence, payable Quarterly, at or in the Dining-hall of the ſaid Earl's, commonly called Bedford Houſe in the Strand, in the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields.

1632, the Church built.

The abovesaid Edward Palmer the elder, did, at his own Charge, erect nine ſeveral Meſſuages or Tenements on the ſaid Ground. Likewiſe I find, by an Act for the preventing Multiplicity of Buildings in and about the Suburbs of London, and within ten Miles thereof, at the Parliament begun at Weſtminſter 17 of September, 1657.

'Provided always, and be it Enacted, That 'in Regard of the great Charges that Francis 'late Earl of Bedford hath been at in building 'a Church in Covent Garden, in the County of ‘ Middleſex, and in the Endowment of the ſame Church, and other publick Charges in and about the Pariſh of Covent Garden aforeſaid, there be abated unto William Earl of Bedford, John Ruſſel, and Edward Ruſſel, Eſquires, Sons of the ſaid Francis late Earl of Bedford, out of the Fines which ſhall be payable unto them by Force of this Act, in Receipt of the Building in the ſaid Pariſh of Covent Garden, the Sum of 7000 l. the ſame Abatement to be made unto them by the ſaid Commiſſioners proportionably, accordingly as they ſhall be ſeverally chargeable by this Act.

Juxon was then L. Bp. of London.

It was Conſecrated by the Reverend Father in God . . . . .

The Builder, Inigo Jones.

The Builder of this famous Church was that rare Architect Mr. Inigo Jones, one of the greateſt Reſtorers of the ancient Roman Way of Building, and this the firſt. How magnificent and great doth it preſent itſelf to the Beholder. The Portico is magnificent. The Upright, with the View of the Garden and the Piazzas, is done by the curious Mr. Holler. It is the only View, in Imitation of the Italians, we have in or about London; uſhered into Uſe by that great Encourager of Arts, the Earl of Arundel. The Cieling-piece in Proſpective is admired by all that ſee it. It was done by an Inhabitant of the Pariſh. His Name was . . . . . Pierce, a Painter. Of late Years it hath been adorned, in the Middle of the Square, with a Sun-dyal fixed on a Pillar of black Marble, after the Corinthian Order, aſcending with Steps to the Pedeſtal, whereon the weary Walker may reſt himſelf. This was done at the Charges of the Inhabitants, as appeareth by the Arms on the Capital.]

The Sun-dyal.

Covent Garden made a Pariſh, Anno 1645. J. S.

The 7th Day of January 1645, was an Ordinance of Lords and Commons aſſembled in Parliament, for making the Covent Garden Church Parochial, and for dividing the ſame from the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields, upon ſeveral Articles and Conditions: Alſo for giving Power to 34 Perſons, to aſſeſs and levy Monies for the Payment of two Miniſters, and other Parochial Uſes: And alſo for nominating Conſtables and all other Pariſh Officers.

Ann. 1660. 12 Car. 2.

12 Car. II. Ann. 1660. An Act of Parliament was made for making the Precinct of Covent Garden Parochial. In the Preamble it ſheweth, how Francis Earl of Bedford, deceaſed, erected the Fabrick of a Church for the Uſe of the Inhabitants of the Precinct of Covent Garden, and did intend to ſettle a yearly Stipend of an 100 l. and an Houſe, then in the Tenure of William Ruſſel, for the Maintenance, and for the Habitation of a Miniſter to officiate in the ſaid Church: And that it was found neceſſary that the ſame ſhould be made Parochial, and divided from the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields, and that a farther Encreaſe of Maintenance might be provided for an able Miniſter.

The Bounds of it.

By this Act the Bounds of this new Pariſh are ſet out: That is to ſay, beginning at the Strand, at the Eaſt End of the Meſſuage, called Bedford Houſe, and including the ſaid Houſe, with all the Out-houſes, Gardens, &c. belonging: And all thoſe Houſes within the narrow Bounds, that is to ſay, 40 Foot without the Brickwall, and all Houſes, Edifices, Buildings, and Lands within the ſaid Bounds, bounded by the Houſe of Humphrey Vaughan, in Ruſſel ſtreet Eaſt; by the Houſe of William Bard, in Shandois-ſtreet Weſt; by the Houſe of William Criſby in James-ſtreet North; and by the Houſe of Richard Tamton in Bedford-ſtreet South. The ſaid Precinct to be divided from St. Martin's Pariſh. The Right Honourable William Earl of Bedford, and his Heirs, to have the Patronage of the ſaid Church, and to nominate and appoint the Rector of the ſaid Church as oft as the ſame ſhall become void. That he, the ſaid Rector, ſhall have the Cure of Souls of the Inhabitants. That he ſhall have an 100 l. a Year, iſſuing out of ſeveral [viz. Three] Houſes, ſituate in Covent Garden, with Power to diſtrain for an 100 l. or a Part thereof, upon the ſaid Houſes, or any of them, charged with the ſame Rent.

The Patronage.

The Rector.

The Rector may, with the Conſent of the Patron, from Time to Time, nominate an able Miniſter, to be Curate Aſſiſtant to the ſaid Rector. And for the farther Maintenance of the Rector, and Proviſion of the Curate, and other Officers, every Thurſday in Eaſter-Week there ſhall be three Churchwardens named: One to be choſen by the Earl of Bedford, another by the Rector, and a third by the Inhabitants. And that the yearly Sum of 250 l. henceforth be charged upon the Houſes of the Inhabitants, except Bedford Houſe, to be aſſeſſed by the Churchwardens, or any two of them, by a Pound Rate, within 28 Days after Eaſter Thurſday; to be confirmed and allowed by the two next Juſtices dwelling within the City of Weſtminſter; to be collected by the Churchwardens, or ſuch as they ſhall appoint. And in Caſe the ſame be not paid, to be levied by Diſtreſs and Sale of Goods. Out of this Collection the Churchwardens to pay to the Rector the yearly Sum of 150 l. and to the Curate 50 l. by even and equal Portions each Quarter. The Reſidue of the Money collected, being 50 l. to be employed for the Wages and Salaries of a Clerk and two Sextons; which ſhall be diſtributed according to the Direction of the ſaid Earl and the Rector.

Churchwardens.

The Churchwardens, or any two of them, to make Rates and Aſſeſſments upon the Inhabitants, for raiſing Money for Payment of Scavengers for cleanſing of the Streets, and repairing and amending of the Church.

Provided, the Overſeers of the Poor, and Surveyors of the Highways of St. Martin's Pariſh, and the Churchwardens of the Pariſh of St. Paul's Covent Garden, may aſſeſs and collect of the Pariſh of St. Paul's Covent Garden, for the Relief of the Poor, and Reparation of the Highways, all ſuch Rates and Taxes as they might have done before the making of this Act.

Nor this Act to deſtroy any of the Rights or Powers belonging to the Biſhop of London; but that he may at all Times viſit, inſtitute, and exerciſe Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction in the ſaid Pariſh.]

The Garden belonging to the Convent. R. B.

It hath probably the Name of Covent Garden, becauſe it was the Garden and Fields to that large Covent, or Monaſtery, where Exeter Houſe formerly ſtood; theſe Grounds belonging unto it, being all encompaſſed with a Wall. And when this Ground, upon the Diſſolution of Religious Houſes, became the Eſtate of his Grace's Anceſtors, then Bedford Houſe was erected, where it now ſtands, or lately did: Whereas, before, their Houſe was on the other Side of the Strand, formerly called, The Biſhop of Carliſle's Inn.

Covent Garden, the Grant of it to John Earl of Bedford. J. S. MSS. penes me.

This Covent Garden, and the Lands belonging to it, was firſt granted by King Edward the Sixth to his Uncle the Duke of Somerſet: Which, upon his Attainder, came back to the Crown. And then, in the Month of May 1552, there was a Patent granted to John Earl of Bedford, and Lord Privy Seal, of Covent Garden, lying in the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields, next Charing Croſs, with ſeven Acres, called Long Acre, of the yearly Value of 6 l. 6 s. 8 d. Parcel of the Poſſeſſions of the late Duke of Somerſet. To have to him and his Heirs, to be held in Soccage, and not in Capite.]

Its Extent. R. B.

As to the Extent of this Pariſh, (which is but ſmall, in Compariſon to that of St. Martin's) it appears in the Map thereof, as doth its Bounds, where it is circumſcribed by the pricked Lines. And farther, in the Deſcription of St. Martin's Pariſh, there is given the inner Girt Line, which is the outward Girt Line to this Pariſh.

Now for the Deſcription of the Streets, Alleys, &c. I ſhall firſt begin with the moſt conſiderable, to wit, the Piazzo, or Garden.

Covent Garden.

Covent Garden, particularly ſo called, is a curious, large, and airy Square, encloſed by Rails, between which Rails and the Houſes runs a fair Street. The Square is always kept well gravelled for the Accommodation of the People to walk there, and ſo raiſed with an eaſy Aſcent to the Middle, that the Rain ſoon draineth off, and the gravelly Bottom becomes dry, fit to walk on.

The Sun-Dial.

In the Midſt of this Garden, within the Rails, is a Stone Pillar or Column raiſed on a Pedeſtal, aſcended by Steps, on which is placed a curious Sun-dial four Square; having above it a Mound gilt with Gold, all neatly wrought in Freeſtone. On the North and Eaſt Sides are Rows of very good and large Houſes, called the Piazzo's, ſuſtained by Stone Pillars, to ſupport the Buildings. Under which are Walks, broad and convenient, paved with Freeſtone. The South Side lieth open to Bedford Garden, where there is a ſmall Grotto of Trees, moſt pleaſant in the Summer Seaſon; and in this Side there is kept a Market for Fruits, Herbs, Roots, and Flowers, every Tueſday, Thurſday, and Saturday; which is grown to a conſiderable Account, and well ſerved with choice Goods, which makes it much reſorted unto. And on the Weſt Side is the Church of St. Paul's Covent Garden, which though ſpacious and broad, yet, by the Art of the Workmen it admits of not one Pillar to ſupport the lofty Roof, which was ſo well painted, that although a flat Ceiling, after the Italian Manner, yet it appears to be higher than it is; but this Painting is now much decayed. The Pews are well ordered, and the Galleries hung with Tapeſtry.

A Market.

St. Paul's Covent Garden Church.

The Portico.

At the Entrance into this Church out of the Garden, there is a curious Portico aſcended up by Steps, as well the Front Part, as both Sides: The Portico is ſuſtained by four large Stone Pillars; the two Middlemoſt being round, and the others ſquare, having a Door at each Side this Way, for Entrance; as alſo there be Doors on each Side of the Church, made uniform, for a Paſſage into the Church-yard. And coming out of Bedford ſtreet is a very handſome Walk, with a Freeſtone Pavement, and Palliſado Pales on each Side, leading into the Church, through the Midſt of the Church-yard. The like Walk is out of Henrietta-ſtreet, and King's-ſtreet, with Rows of Trees; which, when grown to Maturity, will be very ornamental. Likewiſe the coming into the Church on this Side, is aſcended up by Freeſtone Steps.

And 'tis great Pity that there is not an handſome ſpired Steeple for an outward Ornament to the ſaid Church. But however this Building deſerveth to be taken Notice of by the Eye as well as by the Ear, and therefore I have added the Proſpect of it.]

Epitaph.

Kind Reader turn thine Eyes away;
Look not on this beloved Clay.
Or if thou muſt, let fall a Tear
For her that was too fair, too dear
For our unworthy Earth. Whoſe Flight
Was only to eternal Light.
All but long Life to her was given:
She dyed on Earth, to live in Heaven.
Yet hadſt thou known her, Reader, thou would'ſt cry,
How long ſhe liv'd, how little thou and I?

M. S. Within this Vault lyes the Body of Rich. Petty of the County of Bedford, Eſq; He married Elizab. of Tho. Moody, Jun. By whom he had Iſſue 6 Sons and 5 Daughters. Eight he buried with her, &c. Dyed 29 Apr. MDCCXI. In the 67th Year of his Age.

There is a Table hanging up in the Veſtry of this Church of Covent Garden; Being Part of a Will of William Shelton of St. Giles's in the Fields. Dated 1. July, 1672.

Wherein he deviſed all his Houſes, Tenements, &c. in Parker's Lane in the County of Middleſex, to the Miniſter and Church-wardens of St. Giles, for the Time being; and to their Succeſſors, upon this Truſt, viz. Out of the Rents of the ſame to lay out 15 l. yearly, upon Michaelmas-day, for buying twenty Gowns, for twenty old Men and Women of the ſame Pariſh; 7 l. 10 s. for buying ten Gowns for ten poor Men and Women of St. Martins in the Fields: 3 l. 15 s. for buying five Gowns for five poor old Men and Women of St. Paul's Covent Garden. Alſo, for ever to hire and provide a fit Schoolmaſter to teach School in the School and Room he hath appointed, now uſed in Parker's Lane, fifty Children of the pooreſt Sort. Thirty five to be of the Pariſh of St. Giles's; ten of the Pariſh of St. Martin's; five of Covent Garden: And out of the ſaid Rent to pay and give to the ſaid Schoolmaſter yearly 20 l. And to buy him a Gown yearly at 20 s. Value, provided he wear the ſame. And alſo a Coat yearly, for every one of the ſaid fifty Scholars, of the Value of 6 s. And to provide yearly in the Summer, two Chaldron of Coals, for a Fire for the ſaid Children in Winter. All the foreſaid Coats and Gowns to be of a Green Colour, &c. The Surpluſage of all the ſaid Rents, to be employ'd to the binding forth of ſome of the ſaid Scholars Apprentices, &c. With Reſpect that if there ſhall chance to be any of my Kindred or Relation to me or my Wife, the ſame to be preferred.

Beſides all the former Interrments in this Pariſh of St. Paul's Covent Garden, I add one more of late, of great Remark, and a little Wonder. It was the Corps of Marmaduke Conwey, Eſq; buried here Dec. 23, 1717; who dyed at the Age of 108, and ſome Months. He had been ever in the Service of the Royal Family, from the three laſt Months of the Reign of King James the Firſt, to his dying Day. He attended at the Coronation of King Charles the Firſt, in a Military Employment, and bore Arms for the King during the whole Civil War. In which his Father and himſelf loſt an Eſtate of a Thouſand Pounds a Year. After the Reſtauration he had ſeveral good good Places under King Charles the Second, with whom he was very much in Favour, partly for his extraordinary Skill in Hawking. He never had a dangerous Sickneſs, nor loſt one Tooth in his whole Life. He uſed to ride on Horſeback, with a Hawk on his Fiſt; which he did but two Years before his Death. And in September laſt he rode eight Miles a Hawking. He was ſenſible to the laſt Moment, and diſcourſed very piouſly of his approaching End. In a Word, he dyed purely of old Age, without the leaſt Pain and Sickneſs. This is the Account that our News Papers gave of him.]

The Names of the Streets and Places follow.

King-ſtreet. R. B. Roſe ſtreet. King-ſtreet, a handſome large Street, with well built and inhabited Houſes, eſpecially on the North Side. At the upper End of this Street is White Roſe-ſtreet, which turns into Red Roſe-ſtreet, and that into another called White Roſe ſtreet, which hath an Entrance into Long Acre. Of theſe Roſe-ſtreets, the firſt is White Roſe ſtreet, which, with about half of Red Roſe-ſtreet, is in this Pariſh: The other Part is in St. Martin's Pariſh. This Street is indifferent well built and inhabited, eſpecially White Roſe ſtreet.

Bedford-ſtreet. Bedford-Court. Bedford-ſtreet, a handſome broad Street, with very good Houſes, which, ſince the Fire of London, are generally taken up by eminent Tradeſmen, as Mercers, Lacemen, Drapers, &c. as is King-ſtreet, and Henrietta-ſtreet. But the Weſt Side of this Street is the beſt. On the Weſt Side fronting Henrietta-ſtreet is Bedford Court, which hath a Paſſage into Shandois-ſtreet, a very handſome large Court, with an open Square in the Midſt: Its Houſes, which have not been very many Years built, are very good, and well inhabited; being a great Through-fare, and a Place of Trade.

Henrietta ſtreet Henrietta-ſtreet, alſo another very handſome and wide Street, with good Buildings on the South Side, which are well inhabited by Tradeſmen of Note.

Shandois-ſtreet. Shandois-ſtreet runneth up to St. Martin's Lane: But that Part which is in this Pariſh, reacheth a Door or two beyond Round Court; and here the Street is narrower, and is not ſo well built or inhabited as the Part in this Pariſh.

Maiden Lane. Maiden Lane, well built; but the Place is narrow, and of little Trade. On the South Side are ſeveral Alleys, which lead into the Strand, but are all in St. Martin's Pariſh, as Bull-head Court, Baylyes Alley, the Thatch'd Alley, &c. all which were there mentioned. The Weſt End falleth into Half-moon-ſtreet, a little Part of which is in this Pariſh.

Bedford Houſe. Bedford Houſe, the Seat of the Duke of Bedford, which is ſeated in the Strand, but runneth backwards; being a large but old built Houſe, having a great Yard before it, for the Reception of Coaches: With a ſpacious Garden, having a Terraſe Walk adjoining to the Brick Wall next the Garden; and from thence receives the Proſpect thereof. Behind this Garden are the Duke's Coach-houſes and Stables; And for the Conveniency thereof, there is a Paſſage into Charles-ſtreet, ſhut up by a large Gate.

This is now built into a Street.

Exeter-ſtreet. Exeter-ſtreet, which coming out of Katherine-ſtreet, runs up as far as Bedford Back Wall. There is but the North Side (which hath the beſt Buildings) in this Pariſh; and both Sides well inhabited. The other Side is in St. Martin's Pariſh.

Bridges-ſtreet. Bridges-ſtreet, of great Reſort for the King's Theatre there ſeated, but not in this Pariſh. It is a Place well built and inhabited; and receiveth Little Bridges-ſtreet, which runneth into Vinegar Yard; alſo Ruſſel Court and White Hart Yard, the Entrances into which Places are only in this Pariſh.

York-ſtreet. York-ſtreet, very ſhort, but well built and inhabited.

Charles-ſtreet. Charles-ſtreet, alſo very good, and well built; and here is a Hum-mum, or Sweating-houſe, much reſorted unto by the Gentry.

Ruſſel-ſtreet. Ruſſel-ſtreet, a fine broad Street, well inhabited by Tradeſmen; the Weſt End falleth into Covent Garden.

Bow-ſtreet. Jackſon's Alley. Bow-ſtreet, ſo called, as running in Shape of a bent Bow: The Street is open and large, with very good Houſes, well inhabited, and reſorted unto by Gentry for Lodgings, as are moſt of the other Streets in this Pariſh. Here is a very narrow Alley, called Jackſon's Alley, which hath a Paſſage into Ruſſel-ſtreet, the only ordinary Place in this Pariſh. It alſo gives Entrance into Marlet's Court, Earl's Court, and Red Lion Court; which being in St. Martin's Pariſh, except a little Part of each, next unto Bow-ſtreet, are there taken Notice of.

Hart-ſtreet. Phenix Alley. White Hart Inn. Leg Alley. Conduit Court. Hart-ſtreet, which, by the croſſing of St. James's-ſtreet, is ſevered into two Parts; a Street not over well built or inhabited; the South Side being for the greateſt Part taken up by Coach-houſes and Stables, belonging to the Houſes in Covent Garden. On the North Side is Phenix Alley, the White Hart Inn, Leg Alley, Red Lion Inn, and Conduit Court. All which have their Paſſage into Long Acre, and are in St. Martin's Pariſh; except ſome ſmall Part of each, next unto Hart-ſtreet: Which, by the prick'd Line marking the Bounds of the Pariſh, doth appear.

James-ſtreet. James-ſtreet, a very handſome Street, eſpecially that Part ſtanding in this Pariſh; and is well inhabited. But the Part beyond the Nag's Head Inn, where it falls into Long Acre, is much narrower, and not ſo well inhabited.

J. S.

NOW by Way of APPENDIX ſhall be added ſeveral notable Tracts, and other Diſcourſes, relating to this City; which will farther illuſtrate the State, Grandure, and general Benefit of it. The two firſt whereof, with ſome Part of the third, were collected by Stow himſelf, and added to his Work, when he firſt ſet it forth; the reſt are new.

The firſt was written by ſome learned and ingenious Citizen, (whoſe Name is loſt) and an Acquaintance of Stow's, about the Year 1578; when the City began greatly to encreaſe in People, and Buildings were multiplied in and about the City, for the Entertainment of them. A Thing diſliked by the Court and the Politicians, leaſt London might grow too great, and ſo become formidable; and the Country, with the reſt of the Towns and Cities of this Realm, left too empty, and deſtitute of Inhabitants neceſſary for them. And hereupon, in thoſe Times, ſeveral Orders were made and iſſued out, to ſtop any farther Progreſs in new Edifices, and ſeveral threatned to be pulled down. This Gentleman, in this Tract, ſhews his Opinion in this Matter; and his Judgment was for countenancing the Greatneſs of the City. He took Occaſion here to treat of the Government of it, the Condition of the Citizens, and of their Power and Opulency; and finally, of the great Benefit that redounded by it to both Prince and People. Before this Diſcourſe Stow ſet a Preface, omitted in the after Editions, which I have reſtored: And was this that follows.]

NOW ſince I have given you an outward View of this City, it ſhall not be impertinent to let you take an Inſight alſo of the ſame: Such as a Londoner born diſcourſed above twenty Years agone; for Anſwer, as it ſeemeth, to ſome Objections that then were made againſt the growing Greatneſs thereof. The Author gave it me; and therefore, howſoever I conceal his Name, (which itſelf pretendeth not) I think I may, without his Offence, impart it to others; that they may take Pleaſure in the Reading, as I doubt not but he did in the Writing. Long may they, that liſt, envy; and long may we and our Poſterity enjoy the good Eſtate of this City.

A DISCOURSE of the Names and firſt Cauſes of the Inſtitution of Cities and peopled Towns; and of the Commodities that do grow by the ſame; and namely, of the City of LONDON. Written by Way of an Apology (or Defence) againſt the Opinion of ſome Men, which think, that the Greatneſs of that City ſtandeth not with the Profit and Security of this Realm.

Cities, whence ſo called.

CITIES and well peopled Places, be called Oppida in Latin, either ab ope danda, i. e. from giving Help; or, ab opibus, i. e. from Riches; or, ab opponendo ſe hoſtibus, i. e. from ſetting themſelves againſt Enemies. They be named alſo, Civitates à coëundo, i. e. from coming together; and Urbes, either of the Word urbare, to encloſe; becauſe the firſt Encloſure of them was deſcribed with the Draught of a Plow, or elſe ab orbe, for the round Compaſs that they at the firſt had.

In the Greek, a City is termed ϖόλις; either of the Word ϖολὺς, multus, many; or of ϖολέω, id eſt, habitare, habitare, alere, gubernare, i. e. to inhabit, to nouriſh, to govern.

The Saxon Word Town, whence.

In the Saxon (or old Engliſh) it was called ſometimes Tun, which we now call Town; derived of the Word Tynan, to encloſe, or tyne, as ſome yet ſpeak. But foraſmuch as that Word was proper to every Village, and encloſed Dwelling; therefore our Anceſtors called their walled Towns Buꞃh, or Biꞃiᵹ; and we now, Bury and Borow, of the Greek Word πύργος, (as I think) which ſignifieth a Tower, or a high Building.

The Word Wall, whence.

The Walls of theſe Towns had their Name of Vallum, becauſe at the firſt they were but of that Earth which was caſt out of the Trench, or Ditch, wherewith they were environed.

1. Politic. 2.

De Invention. libr.* 1. in the Beginning.

Fol.* 125.

Fol.* 62, & 106.

But afterward, being made of Matter more fit for Defence, they were named Mœnia, Walls, à muniendo, from a Latin Word that ſignifies fortifying. By the Etymology of theſe Names it may appear, that Commonweals, Cities, and Towns, were at firſt invented, to the End that Men might lead a civil Life amongſt themſelves, and be ſaved harmleſs againſt their Enemies. Whereupon Plato ſaith, Civitates ab initio utilitatis cauſa conſtitutæ ſunt. Ariſtotle ſaith, Civitas à natura profecta eſt: Homo enim animal aptum eſt ad cœtus, & proinde civitatis origo ad vivendum, inſtitutio ad bene vivendum refertur. And Cicero ſaith, Fuit quoddam tempus cùm in agris homines paſſim beſtiarum more vagabantur, &c. quo quidem tempore, quidam (magnus, viz. vir & ſapiens) diſperſos homines in agris, & tectis ſylveſtribus abditos, ratione quadam compulit in unum locum, atq; eos in unamquamq; rem induxit utilem & honeſtam. Urbibus vero conſtitutis fidem colere, & juſtitiam retinere diſcebant, & aliis parere ſua voluntate conſueſcebant, &c. The ſame Man diſcourſeth notably to the ſame Effect, in his Oration Pro Seſtio, a little after the Midſt thereof: Shewing, that in the Life of Men diſperſed, Vis, Force, beareth all the Sway: But in the Civil Life and Society, Jus, Right, is better maintained, &c. This Thing well ſaw King William the Conqueror, who, in his Laws, ſaith, Burgi & Civitates fundata & edificata ſunt, ad tuitionem gentium & populorum Regni, & id circo obſervari debent cum omni libertate, integritate & ratione. And his Predeceſſors, King Ethelſtane, and King Canutus, in their Laws, had commanded thus; Oppida inſtaurantur, &c. Let Towns be built, &c.

The Benefit of living together in Cities. Officior. 2.

Seeing therefore, that, as Cicero ſaith, Proxime & ſecundum Deos, homines hominibus maxime utiles eſſe poſſunt. And that Men are congregated into Cities and Commonwealths, for Honeſty and Utility's Sake. Theſe ſhortly be the Commodities that do come by Cities, Communalties, and Corporations: Firſt, Men, by this Nearneſs of Converſation, are withdrawn from barbarous Ferity and Force, to a certain Mildneſs of Manners, and to Humanity and Juſtice: Whereby they are contented to give and take Right, to and from their Equals and Inferiors; and to hear and obey their Heads and Superiors. Alſo, the Doctrine of God is more fitly delivered, and the Diſcipline thereof more aptly to be executed in peopled Towns than abroad, by Reaſon of the Facility of common and often aſſembling. And conſequently, ſuch Inhabitants be better managed in Order, and better inſtructed in Wiſdom: Whereof it came to paſs that at the firſt, they that excelled others this Way, were called Aſtuti, of the Greek Word ἄστυ, which ſignifieth a City, although the Term be now declined to the worſt Part, and doth betoken evil; even as Tyrannus, Sophiſta, and ſome ſuch other originally good Words are fallen: And hereof alſo good Behaviour is yet called Urbanitas, becauſe it is rather found in Cities than elſewhere. In ſome, by often hearing, Men be better perſuaded in Religion. And for that they live in the Eye of others, they be, by Example, the more eaſily trained to Juſtice, and by Shamefaſtneſs reſtrained from Injury.

And whereas Commonwealths and Kingdoms cannot have, next after God, any ſurer Foundation than the Love and Good Will of one Man towards another, that alſo is cloſely bred and maintained in Cities, where Men by mutual Society and companying together, do grow to Alliances, Communalties, and Corporations.

Liberal Sciences.

The Liberal Sciences and Learnings of all Sorts, which be lumina reipublicæ, i. e. The Lights of the Commonwealth, do flouriſh only in peopled Towns; without the which a Realm is in no better Caſe than a Man that lacketh both his Eyes.

Manual Arts.

Merchandize.

Manual Arts, or handy Crafts, as they have, for the moſt Part, been invented in Towns and Cities, ſo they cannot any where elſe be either maintained or amended. The like is to be ſaid of Merchandize; under which Name I comprehend all Manner of Buying, Selling, Bartering, exchanging, communicating of Things that Men need, to and fro. Wealth and Riches, which are truly called Subſidia belli, & ornamenta pacis, are increaſed chiefly in Towns and Cities, both to the Prince and People.

The Neceſſity of the Poor and Needy, is, in ſuch Places, both ſooner to be eſpied, and hath Means to be more charitably relieved.

The Places themſelves be ſurer Refuges, in all Extremities of foreign Invaſion; and the Inhabitants be a ready Hand, and Strength of Men, with Munition to ſuppreſs inteſtine Sedition.

Moreover, foraſmuch as the Force of the Wars of our Time, conſiſteth chiefly in Shot; all other Soldiers being either Horſemen or Footmen, armed on Land, or Mariners at the Sea: It ſeemeth to me, that Citizens and Townſmen be as fit to be employed in any of theſe Services, that on Horſeback only excepted, as the Inhabitants that be drawn out of the Country.

Farthermore, even as theſe Societies and Aſſemblies of Men in Cities and great Towns, are a continual Bridle againſt Tyranny, which was the Cauſe that Tarquin, Nero, Dionyſius, and ſuch others, have always ſought to weaken them: So, being well tempered, they are a ſtrong Fort and Bulwark, not only in the Ariſtocritie, but alſo in the lawful Kingdom, or juſt Royalty.

At once, Propagation of the Religion, the Execution of good Policy, the Exerciſe of Charity, and the Defence of the Country, is beſt performed by Towns and Cities. And this Civil Life approacheth neareſt to the Shape of that myſtical Body whereof Chriſt is the Head, and Men be the Members. Whereupon, both, at the firſt, that Man of God Moſes, in the Commonwealth of the Iſraelites, and the Governors of all Countries, in all Ages ſithence, have continually maintained the ſame. And to change it, were nothing elſe but to metamorphoſe the World, and to make wild Beaſts of reaſonable Men. To ſtand longer upon this, it were in re non dubia uti oratione non neceſſaria: And therefore I will come to London.

The Singularities of the City of LONDON.

Advantages relating to the City of London.

WHatſoever is ſaid of Cities generally, maketh alſo for London ſpecially: Howbeit theſe Things are particularly for our Purpoſe to be conſidered in it. The Situation; the former Eſtimation that it had; the Service that it hath done; the preſent Eſtate and Government of it, and ſuch Benefits as do grow to the Realm by the Maintenance thereof.

This

The Situation of London.

Thames.

This Realm hath only three principal Rivers, whereon a Royal City may well be ſituated: Trent in the North, Severn in the South-Weſt, and Thames in the South-Eaſt: Of the which, Thames, both for the ſtrait Courſe in Length, reacheth fartheſt into the Belly of the Land; and for the Breadth and Stillneſs of the Water, is moſt navigable up and down the Stream; by Reaſon whereof, London ſtanding almoſt in the Middle of that Courſe, is more commodiouſly ſerved with Proviſion of Neceſſaries, than any Town ſtanding upon any of the other two Rivers can, and doth alſo more eaſily communicate to the reſt of the Realm, the Commodities of her own Entercourſe and Traffick.

This River openeth indifferently upon France and Flanders; our mightieſt Neighbours. To whoſe Doings we ought to have a bent Eye and ſpecial Regard: And this City ſtandeth thereon in ſuch convenient Diſtance from the Sea, as it is not only near enough for Intelligence of the Affairs of thoſe Princes, and for the Reſiſtance of their Attempts; but alſo ſufficiently removed from the Fear of any ſudden Dangers that may be offered by them: Whereas for the Prince of this Realm to dwell upon Trent, were to turn his Back, or blind Side, to his moſt dangerous Borderers: And for him to reſt and dwell upon Severn, were to be ſhut up in a cumberſome Corner, which openeth but upon Ireland only, a Place of much leſs Importance.

Neither could London be pitched ſo commodiouſly upon any other Part of the ſame River of Thames, as where it now ſtandeth. For if it were removed more to the Weſt, it ſhould loſe the Benefit of the ebbing and flowing: And if it were ſeated more towards the Eaſt, it ſhould be nearer to Danger of the Enemy, and farther both from the good Air, and from doing Good to the inner Parts of the Realm: Neither may I omit, that none other Place is ſo plentifully watered with Springs, as London is.

Springs in London.

And whereas amongſt other Things, Corn and Cattel, Hay and Fuel, be of great Neceſſity: Of the which, Cattel may be driven from afar, and Corn may eaſily be tranſported. But Hay and Fuel, being of greater Bulk and Burden, muſt be had at Hand: Only London, by the Benefit of this Situation and River, may be ſufficiently ſerved therewith. In which Reſpect, an Alderman of London reaſonably (as me thought) affirmed, That although London received great Nouriſhment by the Reſidence of the Prince, the Repair of the Parliament and Courts of Juſtice, yet it ſtood principally by the Advantage of the Situation upon the River: For when as on a Time it was told him by a Courtier, that Queen Mary, in her Diſpleaſure againſt London, had appointed to remove, with the Parliament and Term, to Oxford; this plain Man demanded, Whether ſhe meant alſo to divert the River of Thames from London, or no? And when the Gentleman had anſwered, No; Then, quoth the Alderman, by God's Grace we ſhall do well enough at London, whatſoever become of the Term and Parliament. I myſelf being then a young Scholar at Oxford, did ſee great Preparation made towards that Term and Parliament, and do well remember that the common Opinion and Voice was, that they were not holden there, becauſe Proviſion of Hay could not be made in all the Country to ſerve for ten whole Days together; and yet is that Quarter plentifully ſtored with Hay for the Proportion of the Shire itſelf.

An Alderman's Queſtion to a Courtier.

The ancient Eſtimation of London.

For Proof of the ancient Eſtimation of London, I will not uſe the Authority of the Britiſh Hiſtory, nor of ſuch as follow it, (although ſome hold it credible enough that London was firſt Tinobantum Civitas, or Troia nova, that famous City in our Hiſtories, and then Lud's Town, and ſo by Corruption London, as they report) becauſe they be not of ſufficient Force to draw the Gainſayers. Neither will I ſtand much upon that honourable Teſtimony which Gervaſius Tilberienſis giveth to London in his Book De otiis Imperialibus, ſaying thus, concerning the Bleſſing of God towards it.

Invida fatorum ſeries ſummiſque negatum
Stare diu:

Nam ea Annis 354 ante Romam condita, nunquam amiſit principatum, nec bello conſumpta eſt.

But I will rather uſe the Credit of one or two ancient foreign Writers, and then deſcend to later Hiſtories. Cornel. Tacitus ſaith, Londinum copia negotiatorum, & commeatu maximè celebris, i. e. London famous for its Plenty of Traffickers and Proviſion. And Herodian, in the Life of Severus the Emperor, ſaith, Londinum Urbs magna & opulenta; i. e. London a City great and rich. Beda ſheweth that Pope Gregory appointed two Archbiſhops Sees in England; the one at London, the other at York. King Ethelſtane, in his Laws, appointing how may Mint-Maſters ſhould be in each City, allotteth eight to London, and not ſo many to any other City. The Penner of thoſe Laws that are ſaid to be made by Edward the Confeſſor, and confirmed by William the Conqueror, ſaith, London eſt caput Regni & Legum, i. e. London is the Head of the Kingdom, and of the Laws. King Henry the Firſt, in the third Chapter of his Laws, commandeth that no Citizen of London ſhould be amerced above an hundred Shillings for any pecuniary Pain. The great Charter of England, that Helena, for which there was ſo long and ſo great War and Contention, in the ninth Chapter, ſaith, Civitas London habeat omnes ſuas Libertates antiquas, &c. i. e. Let the City of London have all its ancient Liberties. About the Time of King John, London was reputed, Regni firmata Columna, i. e. The firm Pillar of the Kingdom, as Alexander Necham writeth: And in the Beginning of the Reign of King Richard the Second, it was called Camera Regis, i. e. The King's Chamber, as Thomas Walſingham reporteth. I paſs over the Recital of the Saxon Charter of King William the Conqueror; the Latin Charters of Henry the Firſt and Second; of Richard the Firſt; of John, and of Edward the Firſt; all which gave unto the Citizens of London great Privileges; and of Edward the Third, who reciting all the Grants of his Predeceſſors, not only confirmed, but alſo increaſed the ſame. And of the latter Kings, who have likewiſe added many Things thereunto. Only I wiſh to be noted by them, that during all this Time, all thoſe wiſe and politick Princes have thought it fit, not only to maintain London in ſuch Plight as they found it, but alſo to adorn, increaſe, and amplify it with ſingular Tokens of their liberal Favour and good Liking. And whether there be not now the ſame, or greater Cauſes to draw the like, or better Eſtimation and Cheriſhing, let any Man be Judge, that will take the Pains to compare the preſent Eſtate of London, yet ſtill growing to better, with the former Condition of the ſame.

Princes Favours to the City.

Martial Services of the City.

It were too much to recite particularly the Martial Services that this City hath done from Time to Time: Neither do I think that they be all committed to Writing; only for a Taſte, as it were, I will note theſe few following.

Almoſt threeſcore Years before the Conqueſt, a huge Army of the Danes (whereof King Sweyne was the Leader) beſieged King Etheldred in London (then the which, as the Story ſaith, then he had none other Refuge) but they were manfully repulſed, and a great Number of them ſlain

After the Death of this Sweyne, his Son Canutus (afterward King of England) beſieged London, both by Land and by Water: But after much Labour, finding it impregnable, he departed: And in the ſame Year repairing his Forces, he girded it with a new Siege, in the which the Citizens ſo defended themſelves, and offended him, that in the End he went away with Shame.

In the Diſſenſion that aroſe between King Edward the Confeſſor, and his Father in Law Earl Goodwin (which was the mightieſt Subject within this Land that ever I read of): The Earl, with a great Army came to London, and was, for all that, by the Countenance of the Citizens reſiſted, till ſuch Time as the Nobility made Reconciliation between them. About ſeventy Years after the Conqueſt, Maud, the Empreſs, made War upon King Stephen for the Right of the Crown, and had taken his Perſon Priſoner, but by the Strength and Aſſiſtance of the Londoners and Kentiſhmen, Maude was put to flight at Wincheſter, and her Brother Robert, then Earl of Glouceſter, was taken, in Exchange for whom King Stephen was delivered: I diſpute not whoſe Right was better, but I avouch the Service, ſeeing Stephen was in Poſſeſſion.

The Hiſtory of William Walworth the Maior of London, is well known. By whoſe Manhood and Policy, the Perſon of Richard the Second was reſcued, the City ſaved, Wat Tyler killed, and all his Stragglers diſcomfited. In Memory and Reward of which Service, the City had a Dagger added to their Shield of Armes; and the Maiors have been moſt commonly ſithence knighted.

After the common Opinion of Men of late Times. This was Stow's Note, that was of another Opinion.

Jack Cade alſo having diſcomfited the King's Army, that was ſent againſt him, came to London, and was there manfully and with long Fight reſiſted, until that, by the good Policy of the Citizens, his Company was diſperſed.

Finally, in the tenth Year of the Reign of King Edward the Fourth, and not many Days before the Death of Henry the Sixth, Tho. Nevill, commonly called The Baſtard of Fauconbridge, armed a great Company againſt the King, and being denied Paſſage through London, he aſſaulted it on divers Parts: But he was repulſed by the Citizens, and chaſed as far as Stratford, with the Loſs of a great many.

Aids granted by London.

Thus much of certain their principal and perſonal Services, in War only; for it were infinite to repeat the particular Aids of Men and Money which London hath miniſtred: And I had rather to leave it to be conjectured at, by Compariſon to be made between it and other Cities, whereof I will give you this one Note for Example. In the twelfth Year of the Reign of King Edward the Second, it was ordered by Parliament, that every City of the Realm ſhould make out Souldiers againſt the Scots: At which Time London was appointed to ſend two hundred Men, and Canterbury being then one of our beſt Cities, forty, and no more. And this Proportion of five to one is now in our Age encreaſed, at the leaſt five to one, both in Soldiers and Subſidy. As for the other Services that London hath done in Times of Peace, they are to be meaſured by Conſideration of the Commodities, whereof I will ſpeak anon. In the mean Seaſon, let the Eſtate and Government of this City be conſidered, to the End that it may appear that it ſtandeth well with the Policy of the Realm.

The Government of the City.

Cæſar in his Commentaries is Witneſs, that in his Time the Cities of Britain had large Territories annexed unto them, and were ſeveral Eſtates of themſelves, governed by particular Kings or Potentates, as in Italy and Germany yet be; and that Mandubratius was King of the Trinobants, whoſe chief City London is taken to have been. And I find not that this Government was altered, either by Cæſar, or his Succeſſors, notwithſtanding that the Country became to be tributary unto them: But that it continued, until at length the Britains themſelves reduced all their Peoples into one Monarchy: Howbeit that laſted not any long Seaſon; for upon Vortiger their King, came the Saxons our Anceſtors, and they drave the Britains into Wales, Cornwall, and Britain in France; and in Proceſs of War divided the Country amongſt themſelves into an Heptarchy, or ſeven Kingdoms, of the which one was called the Kingdom of the Eaſt Saxons; which having, in Manner, the ſame Limits that the Biſhoprick of London now enjoyeth, contained Eſſex, Middleſex, and a Part of Hertfordſhire, and ſo included London. Again, it appeareth, that in Courſe of Time, and about 800 Years after Chriſt, Egbert, (then King of the Weſt Saxons) Ut piſces ſæpe minutos magnus comeſt, i. e. As the great often eateth up the little Fiſh, overcame the reſt of the Kings, and once more erected a Monarchy, the which, till the coming in of the Normanes, and from thence even hitherto, hath continued.

Now I doubt not (whatſoever London was in the Time of Cæſar) but that under the Heptarchy and Monarchy it hath been a Subject, and no free City, though happily endowed with ſome large Privileges. For King William the Conqueror found a Portreve there, whoſe Name was Godfrey, (by which Name he greeteth him in his Saxon Charter) and his Office was none other than the Charge of a Bailiff, or Reeve, as by the ſelf-ſame Name continuing yet in Graveſend, and certain other Places, may well appear. But the Frenchmen uſing their own Language, called him ſometime a Provoſt, and ſometime a Bailiff; whatſoever his Name and Office were, he was Perpetuus Magiſtratus, i. e. a perpetual Magiſtrate, given by the Prince, and not choſen by the Citizens, as it ſeemeth. For what Time King Richard the Firſt needed Money towards his Expedition in the Holy Land, they firſt purchaſed of him the Liberty to chooſe yearly from amongſt themſelves two Bailiffs: And King John, his Succeſſor, at their like Suit, changed their Bailiffs into a Maior, and two Sheriffs. To theſe Henry the Third added Aldermen; at the firſt eligible yearly, but afterward by King Edward the Third made perpetual Magiſtrates, and Juſtices of the Peace within their Wards, in which Plight of Government it preſently ſtandeth. This ſhortly as I could, is the hiſtorical and outward Eſtate of London: Now come I to the inward Pith and Subſtance.

A Portreve in London in K. William the Conqueror's Days.

The chief Magiſtrate called afterward Provoſt.

Two Bailiffs.

Then a Maior. Sheriffs. Aldermen.

The State of the City.

The Eſtate of this City is to be examined by the Quantity, and by the Quality.

The Number of Citizens.

The Quantity therefore conſiſteth in the Number of the Citizens, which is very great, and far exceedeth the Proportion of Hippodamus, which appointed 10000; and of others which have ſet down other Numbers, as mete Stints, in their Opinions, to be well governed. But yet ſeeing both Reaſon and Experience have freed us from the Law of any definite Number, ſo that other Things be obſerved, let that be admitted. Neither is London, I fear me, ſo great as populous; for well ſaith one, Non idem eſt magna Civitas & frequens. Magna eſt enim quæ multos habet qui arma ferre poſſunt; i. e. A great and populous City is not all one; for that is great which hath many to bear Arms. Whatſoever the Number be, it breedeth no Fear of Sedition; for as much as the ſame conſiſteth not in the Extremes, but in a very Mediocrity of Wealth and Riches, as it ſhall better appear anon. And if the Cauſes of Engliſh Rebellions be ſearched out, they ſhall be found, in Effect, to be theſe twain, Ambition and Covetouſneſs. Of which, the firſt reigneth in the Minds of high and noble Perſonages, or of ſuch others, as ſeek to be gracious and popular, and have robbed the Hearts of the Multitude. Whereas in London, if any where in the World, Honos verè onus eſt, i. e. Honour is truly a Burden; and every Man rather ſhunneth than ſeeketh the Maioralty, which is the beſt Mark amongſt them: Neither hath there been any ſtrong Faction, nor any Man more popular than the reſt; for as much as the Government is by a Pattern, as it were, and always the ſame, how often ſoever they change their Magiſtrate. Covetouſneſs, that other Syre of Sedition, poſſeſſeth the miſerable and needy Sort, and ſuch as be Naughtipacks, Unthrifts; which although it cannot be choſen, but that in a frequent City as London is, there ſhall be found many, yet bear they not any great Sway, ſeeing the Multitude and moſt Part there is of a competent Wealth, and earneſtly bent to honeſt Labour. I confeſs that London is a mighty Arm and Inſtrument to bring any great Deſire to Effect, if it may be won to a Man's Devotion: Whereof alſo there want not Examples in the Engliſh Hiſtory. But for as much as the ſame is by the like Reaſon ſerviceable and meet to impeach any diſloyal Attempt, let it rather be well governed than evil liked therefore; for it ſhall appear anon, that as London hath adhered to ſome Rebellions, ſo hath it reſiſted many, and was never the Author of any one.

London never the Author of a Rebellion.

The Quality of this City conſiſteth either in the Law and Government thereof, or in the Degrees and Condition of the Citizens, or in their Strength and Riches.

The Subjection of the City.

It is beſides the Purpoſe to diſpute, whether the Eſtate of the Government here be a Democraty or Ariſtocraty. For whatſoever it be, being conſidered in itſelf, certain it is, that in Reſpect of the whole Realm, London is but a Citizen, and no City; a Subject, and no free Eſtate; an Obedienciary, and no Place endowed with any diſtinct or abſolute Power: For it is governed by the ſame Law that the reſt of the Realm is, both in Cauſes, Criminal and Civil, a few Cuſtoms only excepted, which alſo are to be adjudged, or forejudged by the Common Law. And in the Aſſembly of the Eſtates of our Realm (which we call Parliament) they are but a Member of the Communalty, and ſend two Burgeſſes for their City, as every poor Borough doth, and two Knights for their County, as every other Shire doth; and are as ſtraightly bound by ſuch Laws, as any Part of the Realm is: For if Contribution in Subſidy of Money to the Prince be decreed, the Londoners have none Exemption, no not ſo much as to aſſeſs themſelves; for the Prince doth appoint the Commiſſioners.

If Souldiers muſt be muſtered, Londoners have no Law to keep themſelves at Home: If Proviſion for the Prince's Houſhold be to be made, their Goods are not priviledged. In Sum therefore, the Government of London differeth not in Subſtance, but in Ceremony from the reſt of the Realm, as namely, in the Names and Choice of their Officers, and in their Guildes and Fraternities, eſtabliſhed for the Maintenance of Handicrafts and Labourers, and for Equity and good Order, to be kept in buying and ſelling. And yet in theſe alſo are they to be controuled by the general Law: For by the Statutes of 28 Edward the Third, Chap. 10. And of the 1ſt of Henry the Fourth, Chap. 15, the Points of their Miſgovernment are inquirable by the Inhabitants of the foreign Shires adjoyning, and puniſhable by ſuch Juſticiars as the Prince ſhall thereunto depute: To conclude therefore, the Eſtate of London for Government is ſo agreeable a Symphony with the reſt, that there is no Fear of dangerous Diſcord to enſue thereby.

The Multitude (or whole Body) of this populous City is two Ways to be conſidered, generally and ſpecially: Generally, they be natural Subjects, a Part of the Commons of this Realm, and are by Birth for the moſt Part a Mixture of all Countries of the ſame; by Blood Gentlemen, Yeomen, and of the baſeſt Sort without Diſtinction; and by Profeſſion buſy Bees, and Travellers for their Living in the Hive of this Common-wealth: But eſpecially conſidered, they conſiſt of theſe three Parts, Merchants, Handicraftſmen, and Labourers. Merchantdiſe is alſo divided into three Sorts; Navigation, by the which Merchandiſes are brought, and carried in and out over the Seas: Invection, [or Importation] by the which Commodities are gathered into the City, and diſperſed from thence into the Country by Land: And Negotiation, which I may call the keeping of a retailing or ſtanding Shop. In common Speech, they of the firſt Sort be called Merchants, and both the other Retailers. Handicraftſmen be thoſe which do exerciſe ſuch Arts as require both Labour and Cunning, as Goldſmiths, Taylors, and Haberdaſhers, Skinners, &c. Labourers and Hirelings, I call thoſe Quorum operæ non artes emuntur, i. e. Whoſe Labour, not Skill, is bought, as Tully ſaith, of which Sort be Porters, Carmen, Watermen, &c. Again, theſe three Sorts may be conſidered, either in Reſpect of their Wealth, or Number: In Wealth, Merchants, and ſome of the chief Retailers, have the firſt Place, and moſt Part of Retailers, and all Artificers, the ſecond or mean Place; and Hirelings, the loweſt Room: But in Number, they of the middle Place be firſt, and do far exceed both the reſt: Hirelings be next, and Merchants be laſt.

The City buſy Bees in the Hive of the Common-wealth.

Handicrafts-men.

Labourers.

Three Sorts of Citizens.

Now out of this, that the Eſtate of London, in the Perſons of the Citizens, is ſo friendly interlaced, and knit in League with the reſt of the Realm, not only at their Beginning by Birth and Blood, (as I have ſhewed) but alſo very commonly at their Ending by Life and Converſation. For that Merchants and rich Men, (being ſatisfied with Gain) do, for the moſt Part marry their Children into the Country, and convey themſelves after Cicero's Counſel, Veluti ex portu in agros & poſſeſſiones, i. e. as it were out of the Havens into Fields and Poſſeſſions. I do infer, that there is not only no Danger towards the common Quiet thereby, but alſo great Occaſion and Cauſe of good Love and Amity. Out of this, that they be generally bent to travel, and do fly Poverty, Per Mare, per Saxa, per Ignes, i. e. By Sea, by Rocks, by Fires, (as the Poet ſaith): I draw Hope, that they ſhall eſcape the Note of many Vices, which idle People do fall into. And out of this, that they be a great Multitude, and that yet the greateſt Part of them be neither too rich nor too poor, but do live in the Mediocrity; I conclude with Ariſtotle, that the Prince needeth not to fear Sedition by them, for thus ſaith he, Magnæ Urbes, magis ſunt à ſeditione liberæ, quod in eis dominetur mediocritas; nam in parvis nihil medium eſt, ſunt enim omnes vel pauperes vel opulenti.

The Strength of this City.

I am now to come to the Strength and Power of this City, which conſiſteth partly in the Number of the Citizens themſelves, whereof I have ſpoken before, partly in their Riches, and in their warlike Furniture: For as touching the Strength of the Place itſelf, that is apparent to the Eye, and therefore is not to be treated of.

The publick Wealth of the City.

The Wealth and warlike Furniture of London, is either publick or private, and no Doubt the common Treaſure cannot be much there, ſeeing that the Revenue which they have, hardly ſufficeth to maintain their Bridge, and Conduits, and to pay their Officers and Servants. Their Toll doth not any more than pay their Fee-Farm that they pay to the Prince. Their Iſſues for Default of Appearances be never levied, and the Profits of their Courts of Juſtice do go to particular Mens Hands. Arguments hereof be theſe two; one, that they can do nothing of extraordinary Charge, without a general Contribution: Another, that they have ſuffered ſuch as have born the chief Office amongſt them, and were become Bankrupt, to depart the City without Relief; which I think they neither would nor could have done, if the common Treaſure had ſufficed to cover their Shame; hereof therefore we need not be afraid. The publick Armour and Munition of this City remaineth in the Halls of the Companies, as it doth throughout the whole Realm, for a great Part, in the Pariſh Churches; neither is that kept together, but only for Obedience to the Law, which commandeth it; and therefore if that threaten Danger to the State, it may, by another Law, be taken from them, and committed to a more ſafe Armory.

The private Wealth.

The private Riches of London, reſteth chiefly in the Hands of the Merchants and Retailers; for Artificers have not much to ſpare; and Labourers had Need that it were given unto them.

The Benefit of Merchandize.

Now how neceſſary and ſerviceable the Eſtate of Merchandize is to this Realm, it may partly appear by the Practice of that peaceable, politick, and rich Prince, King Henry the Seventh, of whom Polydore (writing his Life) ſaith thus, Mercatores ille ſæpenumero pecunia multa data gratuite juvabat, ut mercatura ars una omnium cunctis æquè mortalibus tum commoda, tum neceſſaria, in ſuo Regno copioſior eſſet; i. e. He often freely helped the Merchants, by giving them much Money, that the Trade of Merchandize, ſo equally both profitable and neceſſary to all, without Exception, might encreaſe in his Realm: But chiefly by the ineſtimable Commodities that grow thereby. For who knoweth not that we have extream Need of many Things, whereof foreign Countries have great Store, and that we may ſpare many Things whereof they have Need? Or who is ignorant of this, that we have no Mines of Silver or Gold within our Realm, ſo that the Increaſe of our Coin and Bulloin cometh from elſewhere; and yet nevertheleſs, we be both fed, clad, and otherwiſe ſerved with foreign Commodities and Delights, as plentiful as with our domeſtical? Which thing cometh to paſs by the Means of Merchandize only, which importeth Neceſſaries from other Countries, and exporteth the Superfluities of our own. For ſeeing we have no Way to increaſe our Treaſure, by Mines of Gold or Silver at Home, and can have nothing without Money or Ware from other Countries abroad, it followeth neceſſarily, that if we follow the Counſel of that good old Huſband Marcus Cato, ſaying, Oportet patremfamilias vendacem eſſe, non emacem; i. e. It behoves the Maſter of a Family to be a Seller, not a Buyer. And do carry more Commodities in Value over the Seas, than we bring hither from thence; that then the Realm ſhall receive that Overplus in Money: But if we bring from beyond the Seas Merchandize of more Value than that which we do ſend over may countervail; then the Realm payeth for that Overplus in ready Money, and conſequently is a Loſer by that ill Huſbandry. And therefore in this Part great and heedful Regard muſt be had, that Symmetria and due Proportion be kept; leaſt otherwiſe either the Realm be defrauded of her Treaſure, or the Subjects corrupted in Vanity, by exceſſive Importation of ſuperfluous and needleſs Merchandize; or elſe that we feel Penury, even in our greateſt Plenty and Store, by immoderate Exportation of our own needful Commodities. Other the Benefits that Merchandize bringeth, ſhall hereafter appear in the general Recital of the Commodities that come by London.

Retailers; the Benefit of them.

And therefore it reſteth that I ſpeak a Word of Retailers, and finally ſhew, that much Good groweth by them both. The chief Part of Retailing is but a Hand-maid to Merchandizing, diſperſing by Piecemeal that which the Merchant bringeth in Growth: Of which Trade be Mercers, Grocers, Vintners, Haberdaſhers, Ironmongers, Millaners, and all ſuch as ſell Wares, growing or made beyond the Seas. And therefore ſo long as Merchandize itſelf ſhall be profitable, and ſuch Proportion kept, as neither we loſe our Treaſure thereby, nor be cloyed with unneceſſary foreign Ware, this Kind of Retailing is to be retained alſo.

Now, that Merchants and Retailers of London be very rich and great, it is ſo far from any Harm, that it is a Thing both praiſe-worthy and profitable: For Mercatura (ſaith Cicero) ſi tenuis eſt, ſordida putanda eſt; ſin magna eſt & copioſa, non eſt vituperanda; i. e. If Traffick be ſmall, it is to be reckoned baſe; if it be great and plentiful, it is a Matter to be praiſed. And truly Merchants and Retailers do not altogether intus canere, and profit themſelves only: For the Prince and Realm both are inriched by their Riches; the Realm winneth Treaſure, if their Trade be ſo moderated by Authority, that it break not Proportion: And they beſide bear a good Fleece, which the Prince may ſhare, when he ſeeth good.

An Objection againſt the Wealth of London.

But here, before I conclude this Part, I have ſhortly to anſwer the Accuſation of thoſe Men, which charge London with the Loſs and Decay of many (or moſt) of the ancient Cities, corporate Towns and Markets within this Realm, by drawing from them to herſelf alone, ſay they, both all Trade of Traffick by Sea, and the retailing of Wares, and Exerciſe of manual Arts alſo.

Anſwered. The true Reaſon of the Decay of Towns and Corporations in the Country.

Touching Navigation, which I muſt confeſs, is apparently decayed in many Port Towns, and flouriſheth only or chiefly at London, I impute that partly to the Fall of the Staple, the which being long ſince a great Trade, and beſtowed ſometimes at one Town, and ſometimes at another within the Realm, did much enrich the Place where it was, and being now not only diminiſhed in Force, but alſo tranſlated over the Seas, cannot but bring ſome Decay with it; Partly, to the imparing of Havens, which in many Places have impoveriſhed thoſe Towns, whoſe Eſtate doth ebb and flow with them; and partly to the Diſſolution of religious Houſes, by whoſe Wealth and Haunt, many of thoſe Places were chiefly fed and nouriſhed. I mean not to rehearſe particular Examples of every Sort: For the Thing itſelf ſpeaketh, and I haſte to an End.

The Reaſon of the great Reſort to London.

As for Retailers thereof, and Handicrafts-men, it is no Marvel if they abandon Country Towns, and reſort to London: For not only the Court, which is now a-Days much greater, and more gallant than in former Times, and which was wont to be contented to remain with a ſmall Company, ſometimes at an Abby or Priory, ſometimes at a Biſhop's Houſe, and ſometimes at ſome mean Manour of the King's own, is now for the moſt Part either abiding at London, or elſe ſo near unto it, that the Proviſion of Things moſt fit for it, may eaſily be fetched from thence; but alſo by Occaſion thereof, the Gentlemen of all Shires do fly and flock to this City; the younger Sort of them to ſee and ſhew Vanity, and the elder to ſave the Coſt and Charge of Hoſpitality and Houſe-keeping. For herebyit cometh to paſs, that the Gentlemen being either for a good Portion of the Year out of the Country, or playing the Farmers, Graſiers, Brewers, or ſuch like, more than Gentlemen were wont to do within the Country, Retailers, and Artificers, at the leaſt of ſuch Things as pertain to the Back or Belly, do leave the Country Towns, where there is no Vent, and do flie to London, where they be ſure to find ready and quick Market. And yet I wiſh, that even as many Towns in the Low Countries of King Philip do ſtand, ſome by one handy Art, and ſome by another; ſo alſo, that it might be provided here, that the making of ſome Things, might (by diſcreet Diſpenſation) be allotted to ſome ſpecial Towns; to the End, that although the Daintineſs of Men cannot be reſtrained, which will needs ſeek thoſe Things at London, yet other Places alſo might be relieved, at the leaſt, by the Workmanſhip of them.

A Specification of the Benefit to the Publick accruing by the City.

Thus much then of the Eſtate of London, in the Government thereof, in the Condition of the Citizens, and in their Power and Riches. Now follow the Enumeration of ſuch Benefits as redound to the Prince and this Realm by this City: In which doing, I profeſs not to rehearſe all, but only to recite and run over the chief and principal of them.

Beſides the Commodities of the Furtherance of Religion and Juſtice, the Propagation of Learning, the Maintenance of Arts, the Increaſe of Riches, and the Defence of Countries, (all which are before ſhewed to grow generally by Cities, and be common to London with them.) London bringeth ſingularly theſe good Things following.

By Advantage of the Situation, it diſperſeth foreign Wares, (as the Stomach doth Meat,) to all the Members moſt commodiouſly.

By the Benefit of the River of Thames, and great Trade of Merchandize, it is the chief Maker of Mariners, and Nurſe of our Navy and Ships, which (as Men know) be the wooden Walls for Defence of our Realm.

The flouriſhing State of the adjacent Counties.

* Philip King of Spain.

It maintaineth in flouriſhing Eſtate, the Countries of Norfolk, Suffolk, Eſſex, Kent, and Suſſex; which, as they lie in the Face of our moſt puiſſant Neighbour,* ſo ought they, above others, to be conſerved in the greateſt Strength and Riches: And theſe, as it is well known, ſtand not ſo much by the Benefit of their own Soil, as by the Neighbourhood and Nearneſs they have to London.

It relieveth plentifully, and with good Policy, not only her own poor People, (a Thing which ſcarcely any other Town or Shire doth) but alſo the Poor that from each Quarter of the Realm do flock unto it; and it imparteth liberally to the Neceſſity of the Univerſities beſides. It is an Ornament to the Realm by the Beauty thereof, and a Terror to other Countries by Reaſon of the great Wealth and Frequency. It ſpreadeth the Honour of our Country far abroad by her long Navigations; and maketh our Power feared, even of barbarous Princes. It only is ſtored with rich Merchants, which Sort only is tolerable; for beggarly Merchants do bite too near, and will do more Harm than Good to the Realm.

It only, of any Place in this Realm, is able to furniſh the ſudden Neceſſity with a ſtrong Army. It availeth the Prince in Tronage, Poundage, and other his Cuſtoms, much more than all the reſt of the Realm.

It yieldeth a greater Subſidy than any one Part of the Realm; I mean, not for the Proportion of the Value of the Goods only, but alſo for the faithful Service there uſed, in making the Aſſeſs. For no where elſe be Men taxed ſo near to their juſt Value as in London; yea, many are found there, that for their Countenance and Credit Sake, refuſe not to be rated above their Ability; which Thing never happeneth abroad in the Country. I omit that in ancient Time, the Inhabitants of London and other Cities, were accuſtomably taxed after the Tenth of their Goods, when the Country was aſſeſſed at the Fifteenth; and rated at the Eighth, when the Country was ſet at the Twelfth; for that were to awake the ſleeping Dog, and I ſhould be thought dicenda, tacenda locutus, as the Poet ſaid, i. e. To talk of Things not to be ſpoken, as well as of them that were.

It only doth, and is able to make the Prince a ready Preſt, or Loan of Money.

It only is found fit and able to entertain Strangers honourably, and to receive the Prince of the Realm worthily.

Almighty God (qui niſi cuſtodiat Civitatem, fruſtrà vigilat cuſtos, i. e. Who, unleſs he keep the City, the Watchman waketh but in vain) grant, that her Majeſty evermore rightly eſteem and rule this City; and He give Grace, that the Citizens may anſwer Duty, as well towards God and her Majeſty, as towards this whole Realm and Country, Amen.

An APPENDIX to the former Diſcourſe, containing an Examination of ſuch Cauſes as have heretofore moved Princes either to fine and ranſom the Citizens of London, or to ſeize the Liberties of the City itſelf.

THESE all may be reduced to theſe few Heads: For either the Citizens have adhered in Aid or Arms to ſuch as have warred upon the Prince, or they have made Tumult, and broken the common Peace at Home; or they have miſbehaved themſelves in Point of Government and Juſtice; or, finally, and to ſpeak the plain Truth, the Princes have taken hold of ſmall Matters, and coyned good Sums of Money out of them.

The City conſidered taking Part ſometimes againſt the King.

To the firſt Head I will refer whatſoever they have done, either in thoſe Wars that happened between King Stephen and Maud the Empreſs, being Competitors of the Crown; or between King John and his Nobles aſſiſting Lewis the French King's Son, when he invaded the Realm: For it is apparent, by all Hiſtories, that the Londoners were not the Movers of theſe Wars, but were only uſed as Inſtruments to maintain them. The like is to be ſaid of all the Offences that King Henry the Third, whoſe whole Reign was a continual Warfare, conceived againſt this City, concerning the bearing of Armour againſt him: For the firſt Part of his Reign was ſpent in the Continuation of thoſe Wars that his Father had begun with Lewis; and the reſt of his Life he beſtowed in that Contention which was commonly called The Barons Wars. In which Tragedy, London, as it could not be otherwiſe, had now and then a Part, and had many a Snub at the King's Hand for it. But in the End, when he had triumphed over Simon Mountford at Eveſham, London felt it moſt tragical; for then he both ſeized their Liberties, and ſucked them dry; and yet Edictum Kenelworth, made ſhortly after, hath an honourable Teſtimony for London, ſaying, Te, London, laudamus, &c. i. e. We commend thee, London, &c. As for the other Offences that he took againſt the Londoners, they pertain to the other Parts of my Diviſion.

Next after this, againſt whom the Londoners did put on Arms, followeth King Edward the Second, who, in the End, was deprived of his Kingdom; not by their Means, but by a general Defection, both of his own Wife and Son, and almoſt of the whole Nobility and Realm beſides. In which Trouble, that furious Aſſault and Slaughter, committed by them upon the Biſhop of Exceſter, ceſter, then Treaſurer of the Realm, is to be imputed, partly to the Sway of the Time wherewith they were carried, and partly to a private Diſpleaſure which they had to the Biſhop.

London never led the Dance.

Finally, cometh to Hand King Richard the Second, (for theſe three only, in all the Catalogue of our Kings, have been heavy Lords to London) who alſo had much Contention with his Nobility, and was in the End depoſed. But whatſoever Countenance and, Aid the City of London brought to the Wars and Uproars of that Time, it is notoriouſly true, that London never led the Dance, but ever followed the Pipe of the Nobility. To cloſe up this firſt Part, therefore, I affirm, that in all the troubleſome Actions during the Reign of theſe three Kings, as alſo, in all that heaving in, and hurling out, that afterward happened between King Henry the Sixth and King Edward the Fourth, the City of London was many Times a Friend and Fautor, but never the firſt Motive, or Author of any inteſtine War or Sedition.

Tumults in London.

In the ſecond Room I place a Couple of tumultuous Affairs, that chanced in the Days of King Richard the Firſt: The one upon the Day of his Coronation, againſt the Jews, which, contrary to the King's own Proclamation, would needs enter the Church to ſee him ſacred, and were therefore cruelly handled by the common People. The other was cauſed by William with the long Beard; who, after that he had inflamed the poor People againſt the richer Sort, and was called to anſwer for his Fault, took Bow Church for Sanctuary; and kept it Caſtle-like, 'till he was fired out.

Here is a Place alſo for the ſtoning to Death of a Gentleman, Servant to the Half Brother of King Henry the Third; which had before provoked the Citizens to Fury, by wounding divers of them without any Cauſe 1257: For the riotous Fray between the Servants of the Goldſmiths and the Taylors 1268: For the Hurly-burly and Blood-ſhed between the Londoners and the Men of Weſtminſter, moved by the young Men, upon an Occaſion of a Wreſtling on St. James's Day 1221; and made worſe by one Conſtantine, an ancient Citizen: For the Brawl and Buſineſs that aroſe about a Baker's Loaf at Saliſbury Place 1391: For the which, and ſome other Miſdemeanors, King Richard the Second was ſo incenſed by evil Counſel againſt the Londoners, that he determined to deſtroy them, and raze their City: And for the Fight that was between the Citizens and the Sanctuary Men of St. Martins 1454, under King Henry the Sixth. And finally, for the Miſrule on evil May Day 1519: And for ſuch other like, if there have been any.

Seizure of the Liberties.

To the third Head may be referred the Seizure of their Liberties, for a falſe Judgment given againſt a poor Widow, called Margaret Viel, 1246. The two ſeveral Seizures in one Year, 1258, for falſe Packing, in Collections of Money, and other Enormities. And finally, the Seizure made by King Edward the Firſt, for taking of Bribes of the Bakers, 1285. But all this Security in ſeizing and reſuming of the Liberties, which was in old Time the only ordinary Puniſhment, was at length mitigated by King Edward the Third and King Henry the Fourth, in their Statutes before remembered.

Rigour of ſome Kings towards the City.

In the laſt Place, ſtand thoſe Offences, which I repute rather taken than given, and do fall within the Meaſure of the Adage, Ut canem cædas cito invenias baculum; i. e. You may ſoon find a Staff to beat a Dog. For King John, in the Tenth of his Reign, depoſed the Bailiffs of London, becauſe they had bought up the Wheat in the Market, ſo that there was not to ſerve his Purveyors. King Henry the Third, his Son, compelled the Londoners to pay him 5000 Pounds, becauſe they had lent to Lewis the French, the like Sum, of a good Mind to diſpatch him out of their City, and the Realm, at ſuch Time as the Protector and the whole Nobility fell to Compoſition with him for his Departure. And the ſame King fined them at three thouſand Marks, for the Eſcape of a Priſoner out of Newgate, of whom they took no Charge. For he was a Clark, Priſoner to the Biſhop of London, under the Cuſtody of his own Servants: And as for the Place, it was only borrowed of the Londoners, to ſerve that Turn. Hitherto of theſe Things, to this End, that whatſoever Miſdemeanor ſhall be objected out of Hiſtory againſt London, the ſame may herein appear, both in his true Place, and proper Colour.

CHAP. II.

The ancient Tract of Fitz-Stephen, an Author in the Reign of King Henry the Second: Containing a Deſcription of London in his Time. With Stow's Preface to the Reader. A Writing of the Privileges of the City, by Charters and Acts of Parliament, by Occaſion of the Quo Warranto.

To the READER.

Becauſe amongſt other mine Authors I have oftentimes alledged Fitz-Stephens, as one more choice than other, namely, for the ancient Eſtate of this City, more than four hundred Years ſince: And alſo the ſaid Author being rare, I have in this Place thought good by Impreſſion to impart the ſame to my loving Friends, the learned Antiquaries, as the Author wrote it in the Latin Tongue. And firſt, to note in Effect what Maſter Bale, in Commendation of the ſaid Author, writeth.

William Stephanides, or Fitz-Stephen, a Monk of Canterbury, born of worſhipful Parents in the City of London, well brought up at the firſt under good Maſters, did more and more increaſe in honeſt Conditions and Learning: For ever in his young Years there appeared in him a certain Light of a Gentleman-like Diſpoſition, which promiſed many good Things, afterward by him performed. Such Time as others ſpent in Brawls and idle Talk, he employed in wholeſome Exerciſes, for the Honour of his Country, following therein the Example of Plato; and was very ſtudious both in Humanity and Divinity.

The City of London, his Birth-place, the moſt Noble of all other Cities of this Land, and the Prince's Seat, ſituated in the South Part of this Iland, he loved above all other: So that at length he wrote moſt elegantly in Latin, of the Site and Rites of the ſame. Leland, in divers of his Books commendeth him for an excellent Writer. He lived in the Reign of King Stephen; wrote in the Reign of Henry the Second, and deceaſed in the Year of Chriſt 1191, in the Reign of Richard the Firſt.

De Ludentibus ſuper Glaciem.

Cùm eſt congelata palus illa magna quæ mœnia urbis aquilonalia alluit, exeunt luſum ſuper Glaciem denſæ juvenum turmæ: Hii ex curſu motu captato citatiore, diſtantia pedum poſita, magnum ſpatium latere altero prætenſo perlabuntur. Alii quaſi magnos lapides molares de glacie ſedes ſibi faciunt: Seſſorem unum trahunt plurimi præcurrentes, manibus ſe tenentes; in tanta citatione motus aliqui pedibus lapſi cadunt omnes proni. Sunt alii ſuper glaciem ludere doctiores, ſinguli pedibus ſuis aptantes, & ſub talaribus ſuis alligantes oſſa, tibias ſcilicet animalium, & palos ferro acuto ſuppoſito tenentes in manibus, quos aliquando glaciei illidunt; tanta rapacitate feruntur, quanta avis volans, vel pilum baliſtæ. Interdum autem magna procul diſtantia ex condicto, duo aliqui ita ab oppoſitis veniunt, curritur; palos erigunt, ſe invicem percutiunt: vel alter, vel ambo cadunt, non ſine læſione corporali, cùm poſt caſum etiam vi motus feruntur ab invicem procul: & qua parte glacies caput tangit, totum radit, totum decorticat. Plerumque tibia cadentis, vel brachium, ſi ſuper illud ceciderit, confringitur. Sed ætas avida gloriæ, juventus cupida victoriæ, ut in veris præliis fortius ſe habeat, ita in ſimulatis exercetur.

De hiis qui delectantur in Avibus.

Plurimi civium delectantur ludentes in avibus cœli, Niſis, accipitribus, & hujuſmodi, & in canibus militantibus in ſilvis. Habentque cives ſuum jus venandi in Middleſexia, Hertfordſcira, & tota Chiltra, & in Cantia, uſque ad aquam Craiæ.

A
DESCRIPTION
Of the Moſt Honourable
City of LONDON.

The Situation thereof.

AMongſt the noble Cities of the World, honoured by Fame, the City of LONDON is the one principal Seat of the Kingdom of ENGLAND, whoſe Renown is ſpread abroad very far; but ſhe tranſporteth her Wares and Commodities much farther, and advanceth her Head ſo much the higher. Happy ſhe is in the Wholeſomeneſs of the Air, in the Chriſtian Religion, her Munition alſo and Strength, the Nature of her Situation, the Honour of her Citizens, the Chaſtity of her Matrons. Very pleaſant alſo in her Sports and Paſtimes, and repleniſhed with Honourable Perſonages. All which I think meet ſeverally to conſider.

The Temperateneſs of the Air.

In this Place, the Calmneſs of the Air doth mollify Mens Minds, not corrupting them with Venereal Luſts, but preſerving them from ſavage and rude Behaviour, and ſeaſoning their Inclinations with a more kind and free Temper.

Of Chriſtian Religion there.

There is in the Church of Saint Paul a Biſhop's See: It was formerly a Metropolitane, and as it is thought, ſhall recover the ſaid Dignity again, if the Citizens ſhall return back into the Iſland; except, perhaps, the Archiepiſcopal Title of St. Thomas the Martyr, and his bodily Preſence, do perpetuate this Honour to Canterbury, where now his Reliques are. But ſeeing Saint Thomas hath graced both theſe Cities, namely, London with his Birth, and Canterbury with his Death; one Place may alledge more againſt the other, in Reſpect of the Sight of that Saint, with the Acceſſion of Holineſs. Now, concerning the Worſhip of God in the Chriſtian Faith: There are in London and in the Suburbs 13 greater Conventual Churches, beſides 126 leſſer Pariſh Churches: [139 Churches in all.]

Of the Strength and Scite of the City.

It hath on the Eaſt Part a Tower Palatine, very large and very ſtrong; whoſe Court and Walls riſe up from a deep Foundation: The Morter is tempered with the Blood of Beaſts. On the Weſt are two Caſtles well fenced. The Wall of the City is high and great, continued with ſeven Gates, which are made double, and on the North diſtinguiſhed with Turrets by Spaces. Likewiſe on the South London hath been incloſed with Walls and Towers, but the large River of Thames, well ſtored with Fiſh, and in which the Tide ebbs and flows, by Continuance of Time, hath waſhed, worn away, and caſt down thoſe Walls. Farther, above in the Weſt Part, the King's Palace is eminently ſeated upon the ſame River; an incomparable Building, having a Wall before it, and ſome Bulwarks: It is two Miles from the City, continued with a Suburb full of People.

Of the Gardens planted.

Every where without the Houſes of the Suburbs, the Citizens have Gardens and Orchards planted with Trees, large, beautiful, and one joying to another.

Of their Paſtures.

On the North Side are Fields for Paſture, and open Meadows, very pleaſant; among which the River Waters do flow, and the Wheels of the Mills are turned about with a delightful Noiſe. Very near lieth a large Foreſt, in which are woody Groves of wild Beaſts. In the Coverts whereof do lurk Bucks and Does, wild Boars and Bulls.

Of the Fields.

The arable Lands are no hungry Pieces of Gravel Ground; but like the rich Fields of Aſia, which bring plentiful Corn, and fill the Barns of thoſe that till them with a dainty Crop of the Fruits of Ceres.

Of their Wells.

There are alſo about London, on the North of the Suburbs, choice Fountains of Water, ſweet, wholeſome, and clear, ſtreaming forth among the gliſtening Pebble Stones: In this Number, Holywell, Clerken-well, and Saint Clement's-well, are of moſt Note, and frequented above the reſt, when Scholars, and the Youth of the City take the Air abroad in the Summer Evenings.

A good City, when it hath a good Lord.

Of the Citizens Honour.

This City is honoured with her Men, graced with her Arms, and peopled with a Multitude of Inhabitants. In the fatal Wars under King Stephen, there went out to a Muſter, Men fit for War, eſteemed to the Number of 20000 Horſemen armed, and 60000 Footmen. The Citizens of London are known in all Places, and reſpected above all other Citizens, for their civil

* Or, for their Table Talk.

Of their Chaſtity, and the Matrons.

The Matrons of the City may be parallell'd with the Sabine Women.

Of their Schools.

In London three famous Schools are kept at three principal Churches, St. Paul's, the Holy Trinity, and St. Martin's; which they retain by Privilege and ancient Dignity: Yet, for the moſt part, by Favour of ſome Perſons, or ſome Teachers, who are known and famed for their Philoſophy, there are other Schools there upon Good Will and Sufferance. Upon the Holidays, the Maſters with their Scholars celebrate Aſſemblies at the feſtival Churches. The Scholars diſpute there, for Exerciſe Sake: Some uſe Demonſtrations, others topical and probable Arguments; ſome practiſe Enthimems, others do better uſe perfect Sylogiſms; ſome exerciſe themſelves in Diſpute for Oſtentation, which is practiſed among ſuch as ſtrive together for Victory; others diſpute for Truth, which is the Grace of Perfection. The Sophiſters, which are Diſſemblers, turn Verbaliſts, and are magnified when they overflow in Speech and abundance of Words; ſome alſo are entrapped with deceitful Arguments. Sometime certain Orators, with rhetorical Orations, ſpeak handſomely to perſuade, being careful to obſerve the Precepts of Art, who omit no Matter contingent. The Boys of divers Schools wrangle together in verſifying, or canvaſe the Principles of Grammar, or diſpute the Rules of the preterperfect and future Tenſes. Some there are that in Epigrams, Rhimes, and Verſes, uſe that trivial Way of Abuſe. Theſe do freely quip their Fellows, ſuppreſſing their Names, with a Feſcennine and railing Liberty: Theſe caſt out moſt abuſive Jeſts; and with Socratical witty Expreſſions, they touch the Vices of their Fellows, or perhaps of their Superiors, or fall upon them with a ſatyrical Bitterneſs, and with bolder Reproaches than is fit. The Hearers prepared for Laughter, make themſelves merry in the mean Time.

How the Affairs of the City are diſpoſed.

The ſeveral Craftſmen, the ſeveral Sellers of Wares, and Workmen for Hire, all are diſtinguiſhed every Morning by themſelves, in their Places as well as Trades. Beſides, there is in London upon the River's Bank a publick Place of Cookery, among the Wines to be ſold in the Ships, and in the Wine Cellars. There every Day ye may call for any Diſh of Meat, roaſt, fryed, or ſodden; Fiſh both ſmall and great; ordinary Fleſh for the poorer Sort, and more dainty for the Rich, as Veniſon and Fowl. If Friends come upon a ſudden, wearied with Travel, to a Citizen's Houſe, and they be loth to wait for curious Preparations and Dreſſings of freſh Meat; let the Servants give them Water to waſh, and Bread to ſtay their Stomach, and in the mean Time, they run to the Water Side, where all Things that can be deſired are at Hand. Whatſoever Multitude of Soldiers, or other Strangers, enter into the City at any Hour of the Day or Night, or elſe are about to depart; they may turn in, bate here, and refreſh themſelves to their Content, and ſo avoid long faſting, and not go away without their Dinner. If any deſire to fit their dainty Tooth, they take a Gooſe; they need not to long for the Fowl of Africa, no, nor the rare Godwit of Iönia. This is the publick Cookery, and very convenient for the State of a City, and belongs to it. Hence it is, we read in Plato's Gorgias, that next to the Phyſician's Art is the Trade of Cooks, the Image and Flattery of the fourth Part of a City.

Of Smethfield.

Smethfield, as it were Smoothfield.

Without one of the Gates is a certain Field, plain [or ſmooth] both in Name and Situation. Every Friday, except ſome greater Feſtival come in the Way, there is a brave Sight of gallant Horſes to be ſold: Many come out of the City to buy or look on, to wit, Earls, Barons, Knights, Citizens, all reſorting thither. It is a pleaſant Sight there to behold the Nags, well fleſhed, ſliek and ſhining, delightfully walking, and their Feet on either Side up and down together by turns; or elſe trotting Horſes, which are more convenient for Men that bear Arms; theſe, although they ſet a little harder, go away readily, and lift up and ſet down together the contrary Feet on either Side. Here are alſo young Colts of a good Breed, that have not been well accuſtomed to the Bridle; theſe fling about, and by mounting bravely, ſhew their Mettle. Here are principal Horſes, ſtrong and well limbed. Here alſo are Breſt Horſes,* [fit to be joined by Couples,] very fair and handſome, and ſleek about the Ears, carrying their Necks aloft, being well fleſh'd, and round about the Buttocks.

* Perhaps Race Horſes.

The Buyers at firſt look at their ſoft and ſlow Pace, and after cauſe them to put on with more Speed, and behold them in their Gallop. When theſe Courſers are ready to run their Race, and perhaps ſome others, which in their Kind are both good for Carriage, and ſtrong for Travel*: The People give a Shout, and the common Hackneys are commanded to go aſide. They that ride are Boys; three together, and ſometimes two, make Matches among themſelves, being expert in governing their Horſes, which they rule with Curb Bridles, labouring by all Means that one get not the Race from the other. And the very Beaſts, in like Manner, after their Faſhion, are eager for the Race, while their Joints tremble, and impatient of Delay, endure not ſtanding ſtill in a Place. When the Token is given, they ſtretch out their Limbs, and run with all Activity and Speed; the Riders ſpurring them on, for the Love of Praiſe, or Hope of Victory; and exciting them with Whips and Cries. You would think every thing were in Motion with Heraclitus; and Zeno's Opinion to be falſe, ſaying, that nothing moves from Place to Place. In another Part ſtand the Country People with Cattle, and Commodities of the Field, large Swine, and Kine with their Udders ſtrutting out, fair Bodied Oxen, and the woolly Flock. There are alſo Cart Horſes, fit for the Dray, or the Plough, or the Chariot: And ſome Mares big with Foal; together with others that have their wanton Colts following them cloſe at their Side.

* Running.

Concerning Shipping and Merchandize.

To this City Merchants bring in Wares by Ships from every Nation under Heaven. The Arabian ſends his Gold, the Sabean his Frankincenſe and Spices, the Scythian Arms; Oyl of Palms from the plentiful Wood: Babylon her fat Soil, and Nylus his precious Stones: The Seres ſend Purple Garments; they of Norway and Ruſſia, Trouts, Furs, and Sables; and the French their Wines.

Its Antiquity and Government.

According to the Report of Chronicles, it is more ancient than the City of Rome: For both being deſcended from the ſame Trojan Stock, Brute builded this, before Remus and Romulus did the other. Whence ſtill it uſeth the ſame ancient Laws, and common Inſtitutions. For this our City, like to that, is diſtinguiſhed by Wards and ſeveral Limits; it hath Sheriffs every Year, anſwerable to their Conſuls; it hath Aldermen, enjoying the Dignity of Senators, beſides inferior Magiſtrates; it hath alſo Common Sewers, and Conveyances for Water in the Streets. Concerning Cauſes in Queſtion, there are ſeveral Places and Courts for Cauſes deliberative, demonſtrative, and judicial: Upon their ſet Days alſo they have their Common Council and great Aſſemblies.

Of the Cuſtoms of the Churches.

I think there is no City that hath more approved Cuſtoms, for frequenting the Churches, for honouring God's Ordinances, obſerving of Holidays, giving Alms, entertaining Strangers, Confirmation of Contracts, making up and celebrating of Marriages, ſetting out of Feaſts, welcoming the Gueſts; and moreover, in Funeral Rites, and burying of the Dead.

The Peſts of London.

The only Plagues of London are immoderate Drinking of idle Fellows, and often Fires.

Frequented by Nobles.

Moreover, almoſt all Biſhops, Abbots, and Noblemen of England, are, as it were, Citizens and Freemen of London. There they have fair Dwellings, and thither they do often reſort, and lay out a great deal of Money; and are called into the City to Conſultations and ſolemn Meetings, either by the King, or their Metropolitane, or drawn by their own Buſineſs.

Of Sports and Paſtimes.

Let us alſo come at laſt to their Sports and Exerciſes: For it is expedient that a City be not only commodious for Gain, and ſerious in Buſineſs, but alſo pleaſant and delightful. Therefore, to the Time of Pope Leo, the Popes gave in their Seals, on one Side of their Bull, St. Peter like a Fiſherman, and over him a Key reached forth to him, as it were from Heaven, by the Hand of God, and this Verſe about it:

For me thy Ship thou didſt forſake,
Therefore the Key of Heaven take.

On the other Part was ſtamped a City, with this Inſcription, Golden Rome. Alſo, this was written to the Praiſe of Cæſar Auguſtus and Rome:

All Night the Sky diſtils down watry Showers,
The Morning clears again to ſhew the Play:
Great Jove and Cæſar have their ſeveral Hours,
And in this Univerſe by Turns bear Sway.

Repreſentation of Miracles.

London, inſtead of common Interludes belonging to the Theatre, hath Plays of a more holy Subject; Repreſentations of thoſe Miracles which the holy Confeſſors wrought, or of the Sufferings, wherein the glorious Conſtancy of Martyrs did appear.

Of Cock fighting and Ball.

Moreover, that we may begin with the Schools of Youth, ſeeing once we were all Children: Yearly at Shrovetide, the Boys of every School bring Fighting Cocks to their Maſters, and all the Forenoon is ſpent at School, to ſee theſe Cocks fight together. After Dinner, all the Youth of the City goeth to play at the Ball in the Fields; the Scholars of every Study have their Balls. The Practiſers alſo of all the Trades have every one their Ball in their Hands. The ancienter Sort, the Fathers, and the wealthy Citizens, come on Horſeback to ſee theſe Youngſters contending at their Sport, with whom, in a Manner, they participate by Motion; ſtirring their own natural Heat in the View of the active Youth, with whoſe Mirth and Liberty they ſeem to communicate.

Sports in Lent.

Every Sunday in Lent, after Dinner, a Company of young Men ride out into the Fields on Horſes which are fit for War, and principal Runners: Every one among them is taught to run the Rounds with his Horſe.

The Citizens Sons iſſue out through the Gates by Troops, furniſhed with Lances and warlike Shields: The younger Sort have their Pikes not headed with Iron, where they make a Repreſentation of Battle, and exerciſe a Skirmiſh. There reſort to this Exerciſe many Courtiers, when the King lies near Hand, and young Striplings out of the Families of Barons and great Perſons, which have not yet attained to the warlike Girdle, to train and ſkirmiſh. Hope of Victory inflames every one: The neighing and fierce Horſes beſtir their Joints, and chew their Bridles, and cannot endure to ſtand ſtill: At laſt they begin their Race, and then the young Men divide their Troops; ſome labour to outſtrip their Leaders, and cannot reach them; others fling down their Fellows, and get beyond them.

Sea Fights.

In Eaſter Holidays they conterfeit a Sea Fight: A pole is ſet up in the Middle of the River, with a Target well faſtned thereon, and a young Man ſtands in a Boat which is rowed with Oars, and driven on with the Tide, who with his Spear hits the Target in his Paſſage; with which Blow, if he break the Spear and ſtand upright, ſo that he hold Footing, he hath his Deſire; but if his Spear continue unbroken by the Blow, he is tumbled into the Water, and his Boat paſſeth clear away: But on either Side this Target two Ships ſtand in Ward, with many young Men ready to take him up after he is ſunk; as ſoon as he appeareth again on the Top of the Water: The Spectators ſtand upon the Bridge, and in Solars upon the River, to behold theſe Things, being prepared for Laughter.

Summer Sports.

Upon the Holidays all Summer, the Youth is exerciſed in Leaping, Shooting, Wreſtling, caſting of Stones, and throwing of Javelins fitted with Loops for the Purpoſe, which they ſtrive to fling beyond the Mark; they alſo uſe Bucklers, like fighting Men. As for the Maidens, they have their Exerciſe of dancing and tripping 'till Moon-light.

Fighting of Boars, Bulls, and Bears.

In Winter, almoſt every Holiday before Dinner, the foaming Boars fight for their Heads, and prepare with deadly Tuſhes to be made Bacon; or elſe ſome luſty Bulls, or huge Bears, are baited with Dogs.

Sport upon the Ice.

When that great Moor, which waſheth Moorfields, at the North Wall of the City, is frozen over, great Companies of young Men go to ſport upon the Ice; then fetching a Run, and ſetting their Feet at a Diſtance, and placing their Bodies ſidewiſe, they ſlide a great Way. Others take Heaps of Ice, as if it were great Mil ſtones, and make Seats: Many going before, draw him that ſits thereon, holding one another by the Hand; in going ſo faſt, ſome ſlipping with their Feet all fall down together: Some are better practiſed to the Ice, and bind to their Shooes, Bones, as the Legs of ſome Beaſts, and hold Stakes in their Hands, headed with ſharp Iron, which ſometimes they ſtrike againſt the Ice; and theſe Men go on with Speed, as doth a Bird in the Air, or Darts ſhot from ſome warlike Engine: Sometime two Men ſet themſelves at a Diſtance, and run one againſt another, as it were at Tilt, with theſe Stakes, wherewith one or both Parties are thrown down, not without ſome Hurt to their Bodies; and after their Fall, by Reaſon of the violent Motion, are carried a good Diſtance one from another; and whereſoever the Ice doth touch their Head, it rubs off all the Skin and lays it bare; and if one fall upon his Leg or Arm, it is uſually broken: But young Men being greedy of Honour, and deſirous of Victory, do thus exerciſe themſelves in counterfeit Battels, that they may bear the Brunt more ſtrongly when they come to it in good Earneſt.

Sport with Birds and Dogs.

Many Citizens take Delight in Birds, as Sparhawks, Goſs-Hawks, and ſuch like, and in Dogs to hunt in the wooddy Ground. The Citizens have Authority to hunt in Middleſex, Hertfordſhire, all the Chilterns, and in Kent, as far as Gray-Water.

The Valour of Londoners.

The Londoners, once called Trinovants, repulſed C. Julius Cæſar, who commonly paved his Way with Blood: Whereupon Lucan;

He was afraid, and foil'd by Briton's Hand,
That firſt preſumed to invade their Land.

Natives of London.

The City of London hath brought forth ſome who have ſubdued many Kingdoms, and the Empire of Rome to themſelves; and many others who being Lords of this World, were deified in another; as Apollo's Oracle did promiſe Brute:

Brute, thou ſhalt find an Iland in the Weſt,
Beyond the Gaules, environ'd with the Main;
Direct thy Journey thither for thy Reſt,
And there a ſecond Troy ſhall riſe again.
Kings from thy Heirs, and Conquerors ſhall ſpring,
Who will the World into Subjection bring.

And in the Times of Chriſtianity, it brought forth the noble Emperor Conſtantine, who gave the City of Rome and all the Imperial Arms to God, and to St. Peter, and Silveſter the Pope, whoſe Stirrop he refuſed not to hold, and pleaſed rather to be called, Defender of the holy Roman Church, than Emperor any more. And leſt the Peace of our Lord the Pope ſhould ſuffer any Diſturbance, by the Noiſe of ſecular Affairs, he left the City, and beſtowed it on the Pope, and founded the City of Conſtantinople for his own Habitation. London alſo in theſe latter Times hath brought forth famous and magnificent Princes: Maud the Empreſs, King Henry the Third, and Thomas the Archbiſhop, a glorious Martyr of Chriſt, than whom no Man was more innocent, or more devoted to the general Good of the Latin World.

That no modern Ears may be offended with this Language, remember by whom it was writ; a Monk, the Pope's ſworn Creature, and when; namely, about 500 Years ago, in the very Depth of Popery.] J. S.

Both in the Latin Tract of this Fitz-Stephen, as well as in the Engliſh Tranſlation of it, in the former Editions of Stow, I have made innumerable Corrections, Emendations and Additions, by the Help of an authentic MS and by diligently comparing the Print with it. It is, or was, kept in the Chamber of London. Mr. Petyt, the late Keeper of the Tower Records, and a moſt elaborate and exact Antiquarian, had told me that he had ſeen that MS. there, going up Stairs to the Repertory, as well as another old Book, called Britannia, and ſo marked on the Back. And, knowing that I had Acceſs thither, by the Favour of the Court of Aldermen, deſired me earneſtly to enquire for it, and prayed me to get it tranſcribed for him. And withal told me, there was more in it than in the printed Book; and particularly, what a great Force of Men the Londoners ſent out againſt the Empreſs Maud. This I thought fit to inſert in Vindication of the Alterations and Inſertions I have made, as may be ſeen by comparing this with the former Editions.]

Alderſgate let. The Gate of Alderſgate let for the Term of twenty Years. Henry Darcy Maior, the Aldermen and Commons demiſed, and to farm let, to Richard de Felſted, Carpenter, the Gate of Alderſgate, London, with the Houſes built upon it.

This Chapter endeth thus. It were endleſs to deſcend lower, ſo various and different are the ſeveral Phraſes, by which Records expreſs and denote the Corporation of the City in the Reigns of Richard the Second, Henry the Fourth, Henry the Fifth, Henry the Sixth. But as to the Stile and Title now uſed, and which is one of the Points in the Quo Warranto, viz. Maior & Communitas, ac Cives Civitatis London; I find it warranted by ſeveral Charters and other Records of the City, as high as Edward the Fourth Many of which Mr. Town Clerk hath taken Notice of, in his Collection out of the Charters of thoſe Times; and therefore I have here omitted them.

II. Lord

II. Lord Maior.

The Antiquity, Grants, and Confirmations touching the Lord Maior.

The firſt Maior; how ancient. It muſt be admitted, that the general printed Hiſtorians do all agree, that the firſt Maior of London was in the firſt Year of Richard the Firſt, and ſo within Time of Preſcription; and that his Name was Henry Fitz Alwyn, Draper. And the Reaſon and Authority they went upon was, becauſe they found no Maior to be named before that Time. But that this is a Miſtake, will appear, Firſt, from the Quo Warranto Role, the 28. H. 3. and ſubſequent Authorities. Secondly, from the Claim made by the City of London at the Coronation of our Kings; that the Maior is then to aſſiſt in Officio Pincernarum, in auxilium Capitalis Pincernæ, tam ad menſam in Aula ad Prandium, quàm poſt Prandium in Camera, &c. Thirdly, from the general Preſcription in all Returns of Writs and Pleadings.

Maiors before Fitz Alwyn, 1. Ric. I.

Ex Libr. Alb. fo. 28. a. Anno Reg. Hen. Son of King John, 28. Pleas concerning the City of London were held at the Tower, before William of York, Provoſt of Beverly, Jeremy of Caxton, and Henry of Bath, Itinerant Juſtices. Which Pleas had been diſcontinued for 18 Years before. The Juſtices produced ſeveral Queſtions, and demanded a Majore, Camerario, Vicecom. & aliis de majoribus Villæ, how the Juſtices ought to begin their Pleas. Who anſwered, that the Juſtices ought to deliver the Articles, upon which they were to anſwer concerning Pleas of the Crown.——— The next was, to whom ſuch Articles ought to be delivered: And if thoſe to whom they were to be delivered, ought to ſwear concerning ſpeaking Truth upon the Articles touching the Capitula, i. e. Chapters. To which it was anſwered by the Maior, Chamberlain, Sheriffs, and the reſt of the City, that thoſe Capitula liberari debent Majori, without any Oath.

From whence it is evident, that there was a Maior of the City, before the firſt of Ric. I. the Time of Preſcription—— That the Articles concerning the Pleas of the Crown were delivered to the Maior, as well in the Time of K. John and K. Richard the Firſt, as in the Times of K. Henry their Father, who was Henry the Second.

Maior of London, Butler at Coronations.

The Maior of the City of London, by Reaſon of his Office of Maioralty, Secundum Libertates & Conſuetudines Civitatis, prout Majores, Aldermanni, Vicecomites & Cives ejuſdem Civitatis facere conſueverunt de toto tempore; to ſerve the King in the Day of his Coronation, they claimed this Right, 1. Rich. 2. by Preſcription, and had it allowed at the Coronation: So it was done in all ſucceeding Ages. There is a large Entry made Libro K. fo. 17. a. 8. H. 6. of this Matter. And ſo Libro L. fo. 191. a. and b. which is thus tranſcribed:

'Coronatio Dni Richardi Tertii, & Dne Annæ Conſortis ſue, &c. To the Rt. High and Mighty Prince, the Duke of Norfolk, Seneſchal of England. Shewn unto your good and gracious Lordſhip the Mair and Citizeins of the Citee of London, that where after the Libertee and commendable Cuſtomes of the ſaid Citee of Time, that no Man's Mind to the contrary, uſed, enjoyed, and accuſtomed, the Mair of the ſame Citee for the Time being, by Reaſon of the Office of Mairaltie of the ſaid City, in his own Perſon, oweth of Right and Duty to ſerve the King, our Sovereign Lord, in the Day of his ful noble Coronation, in ſuch Place, as it ſhal pleaſe his Highnes to take his Spices; and the ſame Cup, with the Kevering belonging thereunto, and a Layer of Gold, the ſame Mair to have, and with him to bear away at the Time of his Departing, for ſome Fee and Reward.

'And alſo, that divers other Citezeins, that by the ſaid Mair and City ſhal there be named and choſen, owen of Right, by the ſame Cuſtome at the ſame Day to ſerve in the Office of Butlerſhip, in helping of the Chief Butler of England, to the Lords and Eſtates that ſhal be at the ſaid Coronation, as wel at the Table in the Hal at Meat, as at after Meat in the Chamber. Beſeeching your ſaid Lordſhip, that Edmund Shaa, now Mair, and other Citezeins of the City aforeſaid, to the ſaid Office and Service now choſen, (whoſe Names in a Scedule hereunto annexed, be ſpecified) may be admitted to do the ſaid Service, as their Predeceſſors, Mairs, and Citezeins of the ſaid Citee, in Caſe ſemblable have uſed in Dayes paſſed.

'Alſo, the ſaid Mair and Citezeins praien, that they may ſit in the Day of his ſaid Coronation at the Table next the Cupboard of the Lifte Syde of the Hal, like as of old Time it hath been uſed and accuſtomed; and that the ſaid Mair may have and enjoy the ſaid Fee and Reward, according to the Duty.

The like Bill was offered to the ſame Duke, for the Coronation of the Queen, mutatis mutandis.

The ſaid King and Queen were crowned at Weſtminſter the 6th of July. And in the Day of the Coronation, the ſaid King and Queen after the Feaſt was finiſhed; in which, as well Edmund Shaa Maior, as the Aldermen, and other Citizens elected by the Common Council to attend upon the chief Butler of England, according to Cuſtom, were kindly and honourably handled. And the ſame Maior, after Dinner ended, as before was ſaid, offered to the ſaid King the King's Wine in a golden Cup, cum fiola aurea, full of Water, ad attenuand. vinum. After that the Wine was taken by the Lord King, the Maior retained the ſaid Cup and Viol of Gold to his own proper Uſe. In like Manner, the Maior offered to the Queen, after Feaſt ended, Wine in a golden Cup, with a golden Viol full of Water. And after the Wine taken by the ſaid Queen, ſhe gave the Cup with the Viol to the Maior; according to the Privileges and Liberties of the City of London, in ſuch Caſes uſed.

The Names of the Citizens choſen by the Common Council to attend the Chief Butler of England, were theſe underwritten, viz. Henry Cole Goldſmith, John Tate Mercer, William Sandes Grocer, William Sparke Clothworker, John Swann Ciſſor, [i. e. Taylor] Thomas Oſtriche Haberdaſher, William Mariner Salter, Richard Knight Fiſhmonger, John Paſmer Pellipar, [i. e. Skinner] Thomas Bretayn Ironmonger, Roger Ford Vintonner. [All this was taken out of the Records of the Chamber.]

Lib. I. Fol. 120 b. Upon a Writ of Habeas Corpus, 14. H. 4. directed to the Maior and Sheriffs of London, to have the Body of John Hartwel, Citizen of London, in Chancery, together with the Cauſe of the taking and detaining of the ſaid John: William Waldron, Maior; William Sevenoke, and Rafe Lovanburn, Sheriffs, return; Quod a toto tempore, cujus contrarium memoria non exiſtit, the Cuſtody of all Orphans; together with all Lands, Tenements, Goods, and Chattels, deviſed to them, or by hereditary Right belonging to them; and being ing within the Liberty of the City, ipſius Civitatis Majori ac Aldermannis pro tempore exiſtentibus, ad uſum & proficuum eorundem Orphanorum cuſtodiend. quouſque ad eorum maturam ætatem per diſcretionem Majoris & Aldermannorum pro tempore exiſtentibus approband. pervenerint; vel per eoſdem maritati fuerint, pertinerent, & pertinere debent, juxta conſuetudinem Civitatis predict. hactenus obtent. & uſitat. And for that John Hartwel hath confeſſed before them, that he had taken and carried out of the Liberty of the City, Ellen, the Daughter of Thomas Diſter, late Citizen and Mercer of London, within the Age of ten Years, with divers Sums of Money, againſt the Will of the Maior and Aldermen of the ſame, and contrary to the aforeſaid Cuſtome, they had committed him the ſaid John Hartwel to the Priſon of our Lord the King.

Election of Lord Maior.

The firſt Charter now extant is the Charter of the 16. of K. John. Wherein ‘ Conceſſit & confirmavit Baronibus noſtris de Civitate noſtra Londoniarum, That they chuſe to themſelves a Maior of themſelves; who to us may be faithful and diſcreet, and fit for the Government of the City. So as when he ſhall be choſen, he ſhall be preſented to us, or our Juſtice, if we ſhall not be preſent. After which, it immediately follows: ‘ We have granted alſo to the ſame our Barons, and have confirmed by this our Charter, that they have well, and in Peace, freely, quietly, and entirely, all their Liberties, which hitherto they have uſed, as well in the City of London as without, as well in Waters as Lands, and in all other Places: Saving to us our Chamberlainſhip.

That this Charter of King John was not an Original Grant to elect a Maior, may be inferred, by comparing the Clauſe for the Election of the Maior, with that concerning the Liberty of the City in the ſame Charter, &c. The Words Conceſſimus & confirmavimus could not be taken or underſtood to be an Original Grant to the City of their Liberties.

III. Sheriffs of London and Middleſex.

In the great Caſe between the City of London and St. Martin's le Grand, in the Reign of Henry the Sixth, before ſeveral Commiſſioners appointed to hear the Cauſe, the Citizens pleaded, Quod Dns. Wilhelmus Conqueſtor ante Fundationem of the foreſaid Church, and diſpatch of his Charter, whereof there is mention above, by Authority of the Parliament, and by two Charters, which the ſaid Maior and Citizens ſhall produce; to wit, by one of them he deviſed then to the Citizens of London all the ſaid City and Sherifwick of London, with all Appendages, &c. And the Pleading inter alia concluded thus: ‘ All and ſingular which, the ſame Maior and Citizens are ready to make good, as well for the ſaid Lord the King, as for themſelves.

Memorandum, Hence it appeareth, that William the Conqueror, by two Charters, demiſed and granted to the City of London, the whole City, and Sheriffwick of London, with all the Appurtenances. And, Secondly, that theſe Charters of William the Conqueror were then in Being, in the Time of Henry the Sixth: For the Record ſaith, the Citizens did there produce them. And though they are unhappily loſt, as many more of the moſt ancient Books of this City are; yet there are uncontroulable Evidences ſtill remaining upon Record, that in the Time of Henry the Firſt, Son to William the Conqueror, there were Sheriffs of London. Two of which I ſhall here give:

Ancient Books of the City loſt.

Cart. Antiq. N. 1.

I. Henricus Rex Angliæ to Richard Bp of London, & Vic. ac Prepoſito, & omnibus Baronibus & fidelibus ſuis, Francis & Anglis de London & Middleſex, Salut.

II. Henricus Rex Angliæ, Vicecom. & Baronibus London.

Ex MSS. Biblioth. Cott.

Wilhelm. Stephanides, or Fitz-Stephen, a Monk of Canterbury, born in London, wrote in the Reign of Henry the Second, dyed 1191. Civitas London habet annuos pro Conſulibus Vicecomites.

Carta original. 1. Johan. Dat. ab bonam Vill. ſup Tokham. 5to Julii.

King John granted and confirmed to the Citizens of London, Vicecomit. London. & de Middleſex . . . . . Conceſſimus Civibus London. Quod ipſi de ſeipſis faciant Vicecomites quoſcunq; voluerint: Et amoveant, quando voluerint.

In the Information upon the Writ of Quo Warranto, brought againſt the City [under K. Charles the Second] they were to ſhew by what Warrant they nominate, elect, and conſtitute Sheriffs of London and Middleſex; and to execute and make Returns of all Writs, Bills, and Precepts, Dni. Regis infra Civit. London. & Middleſex. predict. pro adminiſtratione & executione Juſtitie ibidem exequend. & Retorna inde faciend. abſq; aliqua Commiſſione, ſive aliquibus Literis patentibus a Dno. Rege obtent.

There are not, indeed, any particular Clauſes in the Charters we have mentioned, as to theſe Articles: But that the Grant of the Comitatum implieth full theſe Powers, and Authorities, is not only Law, but was ſo even in the Time of King John And this appears from one great Inſtance; that is, of the Sheriffwick of Weſtmorland. King John, in the 4th Year of his Reign, granted to Robert Vipont the Caſtle of Appleby and Burch, with the whole Bailiffwick of Weſtmorland, to hold during Pleaſure. In the next Year it was granted to him and the Heirs of his Wife he then had, &c. By Vertue of King John's Grant, the noble Heirs of that Family have continued Sheriffs of Weſtmorland in Fee; and have executed and made Returns of all Writs and Proceſſes for the Adminiſtration and Execution of Juſtice 'till this Day, is beyond Denial.

Rot. pat. 4to Joh. m. 2.

From which it followeth, that the City of London having granted to them in Fee, Vicecomitat. London & de Middleſex, have by Law the like Power, Right, and Authority, as the Sheriff of Weſtmorland now hath.

IV. The Confirmation of the Liberties and Cuſtoms of the City of London, by Act of Parliament.

The firſt Act, beſides Magna Carta, is 1mo. *Edw.*3. which reciteth, that the King, for the bettering of the City of London, and for the good and laudable Service, which the Maior, Aldermen, and Commonalty of the City thentofore hath done to Edward the Third, and his Progenitors, he, De Aſſenſu Prelatorum, Comitum, Baronum, & totius Communitatis Regni ſui, &c. in the preſent Parliament, called together at Weſtminſter, did, by his Charter, grant and confirm, for him and his Heirs, to the Citizens of the City aforeſaid, the Liberties therein written; to have and to hold to them and their Heirs and Succeſſors for ever. . . . . . In which Charter it is farther ſaid, That for ſome Tranſgreſſion of a Perſon, or Perſonal Judgment of ſome Miniſter of the ſame City, the Liberty of that City ſhall not be taken into the King's Hands, or any of his Heirs. Nor a Cuſtos be deputed in that City, upon that Occaſion. But that ſuch a Miniſter be puniſhed according to the Quality of his Tranſgreſſion, &c.

Poulton's 9. H. 3. c. Fol. 3.

In the Parliament of the firſt of Richard the Second, the Commons in their Petition pray the King, that the City of London might entirely and peaceably enjoy all their Franchiſes and Uſages, &c. To which the King anſwered, That as to the City of London, the Citizens had delivered another Bill, containing this Article, and many other; the which the King had cauſed to be examined, and graciouſly to be anſwered.

Then follows the Subſtance of the Petition, ſet down from the Rolls of Parliament, 1. R. 2. n. 126.

In the Parliament the 7. R. 2. the Commons preſented another Petition to the King, in Behalf of the City of London; which paſſed into an Act. [Which was here ſet down in French.]

Upon the paſſing of this great Law, for the ratifying and confirming of the ancient Liberties and Cuſtoms of the City, a Proclamation was ſet forth and publiſhed by Nicolas Brembre, Kt. then Maior, as well on the Behalf of the King, as of himſelf. The Proclamation is very memorable: Firſt, becauſe it was publiſhed by Brembre, who, as Hiſtorians, and even the Parliament Rolls aſſure us, was highly devoted to the Intereſt of Richard the Second. Secondly, becauſe that Proclamation was a full and true Comment, Expoſition, or Declaration of the preſent Senſe and Underſtanding, not only of the King and Parliament, when they enacted this Law, 7. R. 2. but of the Generality of the City of London.

[The Proclamation is here at large tranſcribed out of the Records of the City, entered and enrolled Lib. H. fol. 169 a & b. It is in Latin.

From whence it followeth, that Richard the Second had confirmed and granted the Liberties and ancient Cuſtoms of the City, as well thoſe that had their Original Commencement by Vertue of any King's Charter, as thoſe that were preſcriptional without Charter.

Again, it is obſervable, that the King willed and aſſented, that though the Citizens, or their Predeceſſors, had not hitherto, on any Occaſion whatſoever, fully uſed all, or any of the Liberties, Acquittals, Grants, Ordinances, Articles, or free Cuſtoms, or any other Things contained in the ſaid Charter, or Letters: Or though, peradventure, they had abuſed any or all of the Acquittals, Grants, &c. Yet, notwithſtanding, they and their Heirs and Succeſſors, Citizens, for the Future, ſhould fully enjoy and uſe all and every the Liberties, Grants, &c. any Statutes or Ordinances made, or Judgments given, &c. to the contrary.

In the Reigns of ſucceeding Kings, though we find no particular Confirmation of the Liberties and Franchiſes of the City of London, by Name, in Parliament, yet after the great Convulſion that fell upon the City of London, 16. R. 2. which much alarm'd all the other Cities and Boroughs, (the like whereof never happened from that Time to this Day) yet we meet with ſeveral Confirmations by Act of Parliament, of the Liberties and Franchiſes of all Cities and Boroughs of the Realm; and that fixed and knit with the Liberties and Franchiſes of the holy Church, and the Liberties and Franchiſes of all the Lords, Spiritual and Temporal, and others the King's Liege People: As in 2. H. 4. and 4. H. 4. and 9 H. 4. &c.

And all theſe were only Confirmations of Magna Carta; which ſaith, That the City of London ſhall have all the old Liberties and Cuſtoms which it hath been uſed to have. 'Moreover, 'We will and grant, that all other Cities, Boroughs, Towns, and Barons of the Five Ports, 'and all other Ports, ſhall have all their Liberties and free Cuſtoms.

Poulton's Stat. 9. H. 3. cap. 9. Fol. 3.

Magna Carta.

And for the Honour of Magna Carta, I will conclude this Head with the Statute of 12. Ed. 4. touching the Penalty of them that do not perform the Award and Order of the Commiſſioners authorized to pull down Wears: That great and valiant Prince, after the Overthrow of his Enemies, and peaceful Poſſeſſion of the Crown, aſſiſted with all the Judges of England, by Aſſent of Parliament, declared and confirmed the ſame Dues of the great Charter of Liberties thus:

They call it the laudable Statute of Magna Carta: Which Statute was made for the great Wealth of this Land. Upon which Magna Carta the Great Sentence and Apoſtolic Curſe, by a great Number of Biſhops, was pronounced againſt the Breakers of the ſame. And the ſame Sentence is four Times in the Year openly declared, according to the Law of the Holy Church. And in Affirmance of the ſaid Statute of the ſaid Great Charter, divers Statutes have been made and ordained.

Poulton's Stat. 12. E. 4. cap. 7. Fol. 350.

V. Concerning Pleas of the Crown.

The fourth Point and Charge of Mr. Attorney's Quo Warranto.

The Maior and Aldermen of the City of London, claim to be Juſtices of the Peace within the ſaid City, and to hold the Seſſion of Peace, and Pleas of the Crown, within the ſaid City. For the Charter, as to that, runs thus, Quanquam ut accepimus talia in omnibus, &c. [It is long: The Subſtance of all this, as to the Point in Queſtion, amounteth to this, That Henry the Sixth, by his Charter, confirmed the Liberties of the City; and conſtituted the Maior, Recorder, and Aldermen of London, who had been, or ſhould be, Maiors thereof, (after their Maioralty expired) Juſtices of Peace within the City, for the Peace and good Government thereof: Like a City ſituated upon a Mountain of good Manners and Vertues; diſperſing the Rays of her vertuous Government far and near, to her and their perpetual Peace, &c.

6. Hen. 6. An. 23.

The Words are, Ut de cætero, quidam certus, verus, determinatus, & indubitatus modus in Civitate noſtra predict. de & ſuper Cuſtodia Pacis, ac Regimine & Gubernatione populi noſtri ejuſdem omnium locorum Regni noſtri predict. primo & precipue; ad quam indies confluit, quaſi ab omnib. mundi partibus populi multitudo continue habeatur; & ſit illa ſemper, & permaneat Civitas, Pacis & Quietis, Civitas ſuper montem, morum & virtutum, in repreſſionem & punitionem malefactorum, laudem vero ac nutrimentum bonorum, poſita & locata, radices ſui virtuoſi regiminis longe lateq; diffundens: ut de ea ſemper virtuoſa &glorioſa merito valeant enarrari]

Yet in this Charter of Henry the Sixth there is a ſpecial Proviſo inſerted, which is this, Proviſo ſemper, quod Cives Civitat. predict. habeant & teneant omnes & ſingulas Libertates & conſuetudines antiquas, integras, liberas, & illæſas, permiſſis in aliquo non obſtantib.

This Charter was alſo confirmed by Inſpeximus 2. E. 4. as appeareth by an Inſpeximus 1. R. 3. as Mr. Town Clerk ſaith; for I have not ſeen them yet. And the Charter of Henry the Sixth and Edward the Fourth were pleaded in the Exchequer ... H. 8. as I found in the Book of that King's Reign, marked with the Letter ... now in the Cuſtody of Mr. Town Clerk.

CHAP. IV.

Of the CHARITIES and charitable Foundations belonging to the City. Hoſpitals, for Perſons bereft of their Wits. Lepers, Blind, Poor People, and Children. Hoſpitals of later Erection. Lazar Houſes.

Charities of London. J. S.

THE Charities and charitable Foundations of and belonging to this City, ought to have ſome particular Notice taken of them, they have been ſo large, and ſo well ſuited to the various Conditions of diſtreſſed and needy People. I ſhall therefore firſt ſet down here what Mr. Stow hath long ſince collected of ſuch ancient Foundations, omitted in the after Editions; and then I ſhall add ſuch as have been more modern.]

The Hoſpitals in this City and Suburbs thereof, that have been of old Time, and now preſently are, I read of theſe as followeth.

An Hoſpital for frenzy People in Tower-ſtreet Ward.

The Hoſpital of St. Mary, in the Pariſh of Barking, that was provided for poor Prieſts, and others, Men and Women, in the City of London, that were fallen into Frenzy, or Loſs of their Memory; until ſuch Time as they ſhould recover; ſince ſuppreſſed, and given to the Hoſpital of St. Katherine by the Tower.

St. Anthony's in Brode-ſtreet Ward.

St. Anthony's, an Hoſpital of thirteen poor Men, and a College, with a Free-School, for poor Men's Children, founded by Citizens of London, lately by John Tate, firſt a Brewer, and then a Mercer, in the Ward of Brode-ſtreet: Suppreſſed in the Reign of Edward the Sixth, the School in ſome Sort remaining, but ſore decayed. [Now quite gone. It was near where the French Church now ſtands.]

St. Bartilmew in Smithfield.

St. Bartilmew in Smithfield, an Hoſpital of great Recept and Relief for the Poor; was ſuppreſſed by Henry the Eighth: And again by him given to the City; and is endowed by the Citizens Benevolence.

St. Giles in the Fields, for Lepers.

St. Giles's in the Fields, was an Hoſpital for Leprous People out of the City of London, and Shire of Middleſex: Founded by Matilde the Queen, Wife to Henry the Firſt; and ſuppreſſed by King Henry the Eighth.

St. John of Jeruſalem, for Defence of the Rhodes.

St. John of Jeruſalem, by Weſt Smithfield, an Hoſpital of the Knights of the Rhodes, for Maintenance of Soldiers againſt the Turks and Infidels: Was ſuppreſſed by King Henry the Eighth.

St. James in the Fields.

St. James in the Field, was an Hoſpital for Leprous Virgins of the City of London: Founded by Citizens for that Purpoſe. Suppreſſed by King Henry the Eighth.

St. John at Savoy.

St. John at Savoy, an Hoſpital for Relief of one hundred poor People; founded by King Henry the Seventh: Suppreſſed by King Edward the Sixth: Again new founded, endowed, and furniſhed by Queen Mary, and ſo remaineth.

St. Katherine by the Tower.

St. Katherine by the Tower of London, an Hoſpital with a Maſter, Brethren, and Siſters, and Alms-Women: Founded by Matilde, Wife to King Stephen: Not ſuppreſſed, but in Force as afore.

Elſing Hoſpital, or Spittle.

St. Mary within Crippleſgate, an Hoſpital found by William Elſing, for an hundred blind People of the City. Suppreſſed by King Henry the Eighth.

St. Mary Bethelem.

St. Mary Bethelem without Biſhopſgate, was an Hoſpital founded by Simon Fitz-Mary, a Citizen of London, to have been a Priory; and remaineth for Lunatick People; having been ſuppreſſed and given to Chriſt's Hoſpital.

St. Mary Spittle

St. Mary without Biſhopſgate, was an Hoſpital and Priory, called St. Mary Spittle: Founded by a Citizen of London, for Relief of the Poor, with Proviſion of 180 Beds there for the Poor. It was ſuppreſſed in the Reign of King Henry the Eighth.

St. Mary Rounceval.

St. Mary Rounceval by Charing Croſs, was an Hoſpital ſuppreſſed, with the Priories Aliens, in the Reign of King Henry the Fifth. Then it was made a Brotherhood in the 15th of Edward the Fourth: And again ſuppreſſed by King Edward the Sixth.

St. Thomas of Acon.

St. Thomas of Acres, or Acon, in Cheap, was an Hoſpital for a Maſter and Brethren (in the Record called Militia.) It was ſurrendered and ſold to the Mercers.

St. Thomas in Southwark.

St. Thomas in Southwark, being an Hoſpital of great Receipt for the Poor, was ſuppreſſed; but again newly founded, and endowed by the Benevolence and Charity of the Citizens of London.

Hoſpital without Alderſgate.

An Hoſpital there was without Alderſgate, a Cell to the Houſe of Clugny, ſuppreſſed by King Henry the Fifth.

Another without Crippleſgate.

An Hoſpital there was without Crippleſgate; alſo a like Cell to the ſaid Houſe of Clugny, ſuppreſſed by King Henry the Fifth.

Another in Oldborne.

A third Hoſpital there was in Oldborne, being alſo a Cell to the ſaid Houſe of Clugny; and was ſuppreſſed by King Henry the Fifth.

God's houſe at Whittington College.

The Hoſpital (or Almshouſe called God's houſe) for thirteen poor Men, with a College called Whittington College, founded by Richard Whittington, Mercer; and ſuppreſſed: But the Poor remain, and are paid their Allowance by the Mercers.

Chriſt's Hoſpital.

Chriſt's Hoſpital in Newgate Market, of a new Foundation, in the Grey Friars Church, by King Henry the Eighth. Poor fatherleſs Children be there brought up and nouriſhed at the Charges of the Citizens.

Bridewell.

Bridewell, now an Hoſpital (or Houſe of Correction) founded by King Edward the Sixth, to be a Workhouſe for the poor and idle Perſons of the City. Wherein a great Number of vagrant Perſons be now ſet at Work, and relieved at the Charge of the Citizens. Of all theſe Hoſpitals, being twenty in Number, you may read before; as alſo of good and charitable Proviſions made for the Poor by ſundry well diſpoſed Citizens.

Book I. & V.

Hoſpitals of later Erection. J. S.

Since theſe Times many other Hoſpitals and Houſes of Charity in and about London, have been founded and endowed, and ſome of them very nobly: And ſome alſo of thoſe abovementioned have of later Times been very amply encreaſed in their Revenues. Among the more modern erected Hoſpitals theſe are the Chief:

Sutton's Hoſpital.

Sutton's Hoſpital, commonly called Charterhouſe, near Weſt Smithfield, founded by one Sutton, for decayed Gentlemen.

Chelſea College.

Chelſea College, near the Town of Chelſea, upon the River of Thames, Weſt from London, a Royal Foundation, for the harbouring and Maintenance of ancient or maimed Soldiers, whether Officers or others.

Greenwich Hoſpital.

Greenwich Hoſpital, in Greenwich Town, another Royal Foundation, for the Relief of ſuch

Seamen

Dulwich College. Trinity Hoſpital. Morden College. Aſk's Hoſpital. Book I.

Seamen, and their Widows, as have ſerved in the Royal Navy; or other Merchant Ships.

Dulwich College, beyond Southwark; founded by one Allen.

Trinity Hoſpital, near Milend, for decayed Mariners, as have been either Maſters or Mates; founded by the Trinity Houſe.

Morden College, founded by Sir John Morden, Kt. Turky Merchant, for decayed Merchants.

Aſk's Hoſpital, founded by one Aſk, for decayed Haberdaſhers, and their Children. Of all which large Accounts have before been given.]

Now of Leprous People, and Lazar Houſes.

Lepers. Numb. 5. A Decree concerning them.

It is to be obſerved, that Leprous Perſons were always, for avoiding the Danger of Infection, to be ſeparated from the Sound; God himſelf commanding to put out of the Hoſt every Leper, &c. Whereupon I read, in a Provincial Synod holden at Weſtminſter by Hubert Archbiſhop of Canterbury, in the Year of Chriſt 1200, the 2d of King John, it was decreed, according to the Inſtitution of the Lateran Council, that when ſo many leprous People were aſſembled, that might be able to build a Church, with a Churchyard to themſelves, and to have one eſpecial Prieſt of their own, that they ſhould be permitted to have the ſame without Contradiction; ſo they be not injurious to the old Churches, by that which was granted to them for Pity's Sake. And farther, it was decreed, that they be not compelled to give any Tithes of their Gardens, or Increaſe of Cattle.

Leprous People to be voided the City.

I have moreover heard, that there is a Writ in our Law, de Leproſo amovendo, i. e. of removing away a Leper. And I have heard that King Edward the Third, in the 20th Year of his Reign, gave Commandment to the Maior and Sheriffs of London, to make Proclamation in every Ward of the City and Suburbs, ‘That all Leprous ‘Perſons inhabiting there, ſhould avoid within ‘fifteen Days next; and that no Man ſuffer any ‘ſuch Leprous Perſon to abide within his Houſe, ‘and to incurr the King's farther Diſpleaſure. ‘And that they ſhould cauſe the ſaid Lepers to ‘be removed into ſome Out-Places of the Fields, ‘from the Haunt or Company of ſound People.

Four Lazar Houſes.

Whereupon, certain Lazar Houſes (as may be ſuppoſed) were then builded without the City, ſome good Diſtance; to wit, the Lock without Southwark, in Kent-ſtreet: One other betwixt the Mileſend and Stratford Bow: One other at Kingſland, betwixt Shoreditch and Stoke Newington: And another at Knightſbridge, Weſt from Charing Croſs.

A Lazar Houſe at Highgate.

Theſe four I have noted to be erected for the Receipt of Leprous People, ſent out of the City at that Time: [To which may be added, the Hoſpitals of St. Giles and St. James beforementioned.] Finally, I read that one William Pole, Yeoman of the Crown, being ſtricken with a Leprouſy, was deſirous to build an Hoſpital, with a Chapel, to the Honour of St. Anthony, for the Relief and Harborow of ſuch Leprous Perſons, as were deſtitute in the Kingdom; to the End they ſhould not be offenſive to others in their paſſing to and fro. For the which Cauſe, Edward the Fourth did, by his Charter dated in the 12th of his Reign, give unto the ſaid William for ever, a certain Parcel of Land, lying in his Highway of Highgate and Holoway, within the County of Middleſex, containing 60 Foot in Length, and 34 in Breadth.

The Hoſpital for Lazars at Ilford. J. S.

A little farther from the City, on the other Hand, viz. at Great Ilford in Eſſex, was a more ancient (and that a Royal) Foundation, for ſuch diſeaſed People; built and endowed liberally by King Stephen, for a Maſter, who was to be a Prieſt, and 13 poor Brethren, who were called Fratres Leproſi, i. e. Leprous Brothers; and for certain poor Women to attend on them. Which Hoſpital is in ſome Part ſtill remaining, with the Chapel. But the moſt Part of the Revenue ſwallowed up, being gotten into the Hands of Laymen.

Lepers more frequent than in theſe Days. J. S. Laws for them. Ex Kalendar. Camer. Lond.

In former Times Lepers were in the City very frequent, and the Diſeaſe of the Leproſy ſo infectious, that as there were many ſeparate Houſes for theſe diſeaſed People to dwell in by themſelves, ſo they had their Overſeers and Keepers; and divers Laws and Orders were made by the City concerning them. As, that the Keepers of the Lepers ſhould be eaſed from Inqueſt: That the Overſeers of them be diſburdened from Aſſizes: That the Lepers walk not about the Streets, nor tarry there: That the Keepers of the Gates ſwear, that they will not permit Lepers to enter into the City. And there was ſome Time a Brief for removing them from the City and Suburbs. Another Time there was a Brief for levying an hundred Shillings out of a Tenement of the Lepers, and delivering it to their Officers for the ſuſtaining of them.]

CHAP. V.

Of divers Roman and other Antique Curioſities found in LONDON, before and ſince the great Fire.

Antiquities found in and about London. J. S.

THERE are preſerved, either in public Repoſitories, or in more private Cuſtody, many Antique Curioſities: Found chiefly in digging Foundations for the Building of London after the great Fire, and occaſionally at other Times.

In Greſham College.

In the Repoſitory of the Royal Society in Greſham College, there is a large Glaſs Urn, that holds about a Gallon; and hath a few Shivers of Bones in it: It was taken up ſince the Fire in Spittle-fields. The Glaſs is ſomewhat thick, bellying out, and contracting towards the Mouth with a Lip.

In Dr. Woodward's Cuſtody, of Greſham College. Great Varieties of them.

But the Collections made by Dr. John Woodward, Profeſſor of Phyſic in Greſham College, is by much the moſt conſiderable of any. For, beſides an ancient Marble Buſt of Jupiter, a Marble Head with a Phrygian Tiara, a Grecian Baſſo-Relievo, a Votive Shield, exhibiting the Sacking of Rome by the Gauls; the Emboſſment of which is allowed by the greateſt Judges to be the fineſt and moſt exquiſite that all Antiquity hath left us: Several Icunculi of the Deities, both Egyptian and Roman: A conſiderable Variety of Amulets, Periapta, Phalli, Bullæ, Scarabæi: Gems with hiſtorical Sculpture, Heads, &c. graven upon them:

Camei and Intaglia's of Egyptian, Grecian, and Roman Work: Many Roman, Greek, Syrian, and other Medals: Roman Weights: A Roman Semi-Congius: Urns, Lachrymatories, and other Things, procured from Alexandria, Conſtantinople, Rome, &c. And beſides, an antient Roman Altar from the Picts Wall in Northumberland, with a conſiderable Inſcription upon it: Several ancient Weapons of Braſs, Thuribula, Pateræ, Urns, &c. found in the remoter Parts of this Kingdom, Cumberland, the Iſle of Man, Yorkſhire, Wiltſhire, Glouceſterſhire, Northamptonſhire, Devonſhire, &c. He hath a vaſt Variety of ancient Inſtruments, Utenſils, Vaſa, and the like, that have been diſcovered in ſeveral Places in and about this City: In particular, ſeveral Veſſels of religious Uſe, and employed in the Sacrifices, as for Example, Præfericula, Simpula, Pateræ, Thuribula, Labra, digged up; together with Horns, Teeth, and other Parts of the Beaſts that were offered in Sacrifice; above twenty Sepulchral Urns, of various Forms and Sizes: Likewiſe, Lanxes, Amphoræ, Crateres, Scyphi, Gutti, Pocula, Ollæ nummariæ clauſæ; Parts of the Plaſmata fictilia, in which the emboſſed Vaſa were molded; and Lamps of various Sorts. The precedent Veſſels are of Pot or Earth; ſeveral of them extreamly fine, well baked, ſome curiouſly glazed, and the Colours very beautiful.

Their Forms,

As to their Forms, they are univerſally very elegant and handſome. And indeed, the Doctor, the Poſſeſſor of them, well obſerveth, that the Remains of theſe Works of the Romans ſhew them to have been a People of an exact Genius, good Fancy, and curious Contrivance.

Well and whole preſerved.

'Tis obſervable alſo in this Collection, that the Things are fair, well preſerved, and intire; which, conſidering the great Number and Diverſity of them; how brittle Pots and Glaſſes are, and how liable to be defaced, injured, and daſhed in Pieces, is the more extraordinary.

Ancient Coins, &c.

He hath likewiſe in his Cabinet of Antiquities, a Glaſs Urn, with a Cover; alſo a Scyphus; divers Ampullæ, Phialæ. and Lachrymatories of Glaſs, that are very fair and perfect. Then, there are ſeveral Pieces of Britiſh Money, coined both before and after the Deſcent of the Romans upon this Iſland. As alſo Roman Numiſmata, coined here: (Beſides Saxon, Daniſh, and Norman Coins, which, as well as others, are very fair, and happily preſerved.) Likewiſe, Styles of Ivory, Bone, and Steel: Several Fibulæ, Aciculi, Bullæ, Claves, Armillæ, Annuli, Beads of various Sorts; Aleæ, Teſſeræ, Pectines, Calcaria, Spicula, Jacula. Likewiſe Tiles, Pieces of Lithoſtrata, or teſſellated Pavements of Earth, Glaſs, Paſte, Enamel, and gilded.

So that Dr. Woodward's Muſæum is a Treaſury of all Sorts of Commodities and Utenſils, ſacred and profane, of ancient Heathen Rome: As Veſſels for Sacrifice, and for other ſubordinate Uſes in Sacris. Veſſels alſo for Uſes Domeſtic, Sepulchral, Military, Perſonal, for wearing and dreſſing: Alſo divers Pieces of Art relating to Building, or Sculpture, explanatory of ſome Parts of Roman Hiſtory.

Gothic Carvings.

Beſides theſe Remains of Roman Skill and Workmanſhip, here are alſo repoſited ſeveral Gothic Hiſtorical Carvings, in Copper, Ivory, and Wood; the Work of ſome of them very good: Impreſſes on Lead, and leaden Seals, that have been affixed anciently to Popes Bulls; with various other Things, all well choſen, of real Importance, and ſerviceable to ſome uſeful Deſign.

The Intent of the learned Collector.

One great Intention of this learned Gentleman (as he hath aſſured me) in amaſſing together ſo great a Number of theſe Things, and that with ſo great Diligence, Trouble and Expence, was in order to clear and give Light to thoſe ancient Writers who mention and treat of them, viz. the Greeks and Romans; which he hath read and ſtudied with great Exactneſs. Another of his Ends herein was, to illuſtrate the Hiſtory and Antiquities of this great and noble City; out of the Ruins of which theſe Things were retrieved, upon the Occaſion of that great digging, (greater indeed than ever happened from the Foundation of it before) and the Removal of Rubbiſh that was made in all Parts, after the late great Fire And, indeed, the Medals and Coins, the various Figures, Hiſtorical Emboſſments, and Inſcriptions upon the Vaſes, contribute very much to that End. And farther, from the various Places in which the Urns were found repoſited, (which, according to the Laws of the twelve Tables, were to be buried without the Walls) he is able to aſcertain the ancient Bounds of this City, whilſt Roman: From ſeveral Things diſcovered in laying the Foundation of St. Paul's Church, to ſhew, not only that there was anciently a Temple there; but alſo, by ſome Inſtances to prove that it was dedicated to DIANA, according to the ancient Tradition, notwithſtanding what a very learned Antiquary as well as Divine, has lately offered to the contrary.

Bp. Stillingf. Tract concerning the origin. Foundat. of St. Paul's. Lond.

Indeed, the far greater Part of theſe Things is ſo very conſiderable, that it would afford much Satiſfaction to inquiſitive People, to ſee Icons graved of them; and that the Poſſeſſor could have ſpared ſo much Time from his Buſineſs, and his other Studies, as to have writ his own Obſervations and Reflections upon them, that I might have entered them (as I requeſted of him) in this Work.

In Black Fryars Four Human Heads found in a Wall.

In Black Fryars, in clearing away the Rubbiſh, in order to building after the great Fire, they came to a thick Wall, very probably a Part of the Foundation Wall of the old Fryery. In which Wall was placed ſomewhat like a Cupboard, ſhut. Which being opened, in it were found four dead Men's Heads, repoſited in fine Pewter Caſes, made for them; round, only flat on one Side; and a thick Cover of Pewter, having a Ring faſtened on the Top, for the more convenient taking it off, or putting it on. Three of theſe Heads are now loſt; likely enough conveighed beyond Sea, where they may ſerve for Relicks. That which remained is, or was lately, in the Poſſeſſion of Mr. Preſbury, a Sopemaker in Eaſt Smithfield, who ſhewed it me Oct. 2, 1703. We took out the Head from the Caſe: It had been wrapt in black Silk, which was then grown rotten. The Skin was like a Piece of tanned Leather, or Bacon. The Hair of the Temples yellow, but upon the Head the Hair was red, ſhort, and thick, and would not be pulled off. There was a Tonſure, or round bare Place on the Crown of the Head, that beſpake him to have been in Holy Orders: The Noſe flat, as tho a Piece of it had been cut off: The Mouth gaping: The Teeth in the Head ſound, ten in Number; the reſt had been pulled out. The Feature ſtill diſcoverable. There remained a great deal of Duſt of a browniſh Colour in the Caſe. On the Side of the Cover was ſcratched this Name in a bad Character, I. Cornelius. There was one Corpſe found near it under Ground, without a Head. Theſe ſeem to have been Fryars of this religious Houſe, or ſome of their Benefactors, or their Saints or Martyrs. Whoſe Heads, perhaps, were taken out and ſhewn upon extraordinary Days and Occaſions: And upon the Diſſolution of the Houſe (it may be) here concealed.

Mr. Preſbury.

In Charing Croſs.

Near the Foundation of Charing Croſs, at a great Depth, were Stones found, which ſeemed to be a Sort of coarſe Marble, of a blackiſh Colour, and cut into ſeveral plain Sides, but irregular. From whence, ſaith Dr. Crew, they may be argued to be very ancient. Theſe were given by Sir Joſeph Williamſon to the Muſeum in Greſham College.

In Mark Lane A ſtrange Brick found. And burnt Corn. J. Bagford.

In Mark Lane a ſtrange Brick was found 40 Years before, or better, about 28 Foot deep in the Ground, by Mr. Stockley, while he was digging a Foundation and Cellars for an Houſe which he built for Mr. Woolly. On this Brick was formed Sampſon (as I had it from J. Bagford) with the Jaw Bone of an Aſs in his right Hand, and his left Hand lifted up; with two Foxes before him, running together, with Firebrands at their Tails; ſcaring them into high ſtanding Corn hard by. This, methinks, might have belonged to the Houſe of ſome Jew dwelling thereabouts; ſignifying his Malice to ſome neighbouring Chriſtian Merchant that dealt in Corn. For 'tis remarkable, that near this Place where this Brick was found, was alſo digged up burnt Wheat, to the Quantity of many Quarters; very black, but yet ſound: Probably it was ſome Granary conſumed by Fire.

But take what the ſaid Mr. Bagford hath ſince writ in his Letter to Mr. Hearn of Oxford: That this Brick was of a Roman Make, of a curious red Clay, and in Baſs relief; and was a Key Brick to the Arch: And the burnt Wheat was conjectured to have lain buried ever ſince the burning of the City 800 Years before. And that it is preſerved in the Muſeum belonging to the Royal Society in Fleet-ſtreet. And that Mr. Waller's Conjecture of it was, that it had been made and ſet there by ſome Jew, ſettling here, in the Arch of his own Granary.

In Holborn. A Piece of Moſaic Work.

A Piece of Moſaic Work found deep under Ground in Holborn, near St. Andrew's Church, inlaid with black, white, and Red Stones in Squares, and other regular Figures. In the abovesaid Muſeum.

In St. Paul's. Divers Sacrificing Veſſels.

In digging for the Foundations of St. Paul's Cathedral at the Weſt End ſince the Fire, was found Variety of Roman ſacrificing Veſſels, whereof a great Quantity of the Fragments were digged up. They were made of a curious red Earth; the Glazing of them ſtill remains, which is curious. They are of divers Shapes and Sizes, as Occaſion ſhould require them to be made Uſe of in their Sacrifices. And in many, the Potter's Name was ſtamped at the Bottom. Some of theſe Mr. Bagford, a Citizen of London, ſtudious of Antiquities, and eſpecially of ſuch as relate to the ſaid City, took up with his own Hands. Farther, on the South Side of the ſaid Weſt End was found a Potter's Kiln, the Shape of which was circular. In this the abovesaid ſacrificing Veſſels probably were made. It was near to the Temple where Diana was worſhipped, for the more Convenience of the People that came thither to ſacrifice; that they might be furniſhed with all Sorts of Veſſels they had Occaſion for, at the Time when they made their Sacrifices. And likewiſe thereabouts were found ſeveral Moulds of Earth, ſome exhibiting Figures of Men, of Lions, of Leaves of Trees, and other Things. Theſe were uſed to make Impreſſion of thoſe Things upon the Veſſels. Theſe Moulds are alſo among the forementioned curious Collections of Dr. Woodward. The Repreſentation of the foreſaid Pottery, drawn with a Pen, is in the Poſſeſſion of Sir Hans Sloan, Bart. M. D. of the Royal Society, with a Deſcription of it added.

J. Bagford.

Sir Hans Sloan, Bart.

Alſo, at the South Side of St. Paul's Church, at the Beginning to build it after the Fire, were found ſeveral Scalps of Oxen, and a large Quantity of Boars Tuſks, with divers earthen Veſſels, eſpecially Pateræ of different Shapes.

In Canning-ſtreet. A Roman Pavement.

In Canning-ſtreet, nigh Buſh Lane, was found pretty deep in the Earth, a large Pavement of Roman Moſaic Work. Dr. Hook gave a Piece of it to the Repoſitory in Greſham College.

In Goodman's Fields. A Roman Burying Place.

In Goodman's Fields, without Aldgate, was a Roman Burying Place. For, ſince the Buildings there, about 1678, have been found there (in digging for Foundations) vaſt Quantities of Urns, and other Roman Utenſils, as Knives, Combs, &c. which are likewiſe in the Poſſeſſion of Dr. Woodward. Some of theſe Urns had Aſhes of Bones of the Dead in them, and Braſs and Silver Money: And an unuſual Urn of Copper, curiouſly enamelled in Colours, Red, Blue, and Yellow.

In Kent-ſtreet. Roman Veſſels.

Janus Head.

In Kent-ſtreet, all along the Gardens on the right Hand Side of the Road going out of Town, have been digged up ſeveral Roman Veſſels, as Urns, Ampullæ, and other Things; and among the reſt, an Head of Janus, cut in Stone, that is ſtill preſerved, being placed over the Door at the Entry of one of thoſe Gardiners Houſes. Money was offered for this Janus Head, but it would not be taken; being kept ſuperſtitiouſly, as tho' it were found by Revelation in a Dream; a Woman, about the Time it was found, dreaming ſhe was brought to Bed of a Child with two Faces.

At Peckham. A Glaſs Urn.

At Peckham was a very large Urn of Glaſs digged up in the Highway, which is now in Greſham College. For theſe laſt Accounts I am beholden to my Friend, the abovesaid Mr. Bagford, late deceaſed in the Charter Houſe, having been a Brother there.

Roman Veſſels, &c. found at Biſhopſgate.

In April, in the Year 1707, divers Roman Antiquities were found in digging by the Wall near Biſhopſgate within. Mr. Joſeph Miller, an Apothecary, living very near the Place, while the Labourers were digging for Foundations and Cellars, for ſome new Houſes to be built in Camomile-ſtreet, did firſt diſcover ſeveral of theſe Antiquities; which he communicated to Dr. John Woodward of Greſham College aforeſaid: Who, according to his wonted Exactneſs, gave this Narration of them in a Letter to Sir Chriſtopher Wren, which he courteouſly let me peruſe. 'About four Foot under Ground was diſcovered a Pavement, conſiſting of diced Bricks, the moſt red, but ſome black, and others yellow; each ſomewhat above an Inch in Thickneſs. The Extent of the Pavement in Length was uncertain, it running from Biſhopſgate for ſixty Foot, quite under the Foundation of ſome Houſes not yet pulled down. Its Bredth was about ten Foot, terminating on that Side, at the Diſtance of three Foot and an Half from the Wall.

Dr. Woodward's Letter to Sir Chr. Wren.

'Sinking downwards under the Pavement, only Rubbiſh occurred for about two Foot, and then the Workmen came to a Stratum of Clay in its natural State. In which, at the Depth of three Foot more were found ſeveral Urns. Some of them were become ſo tender and rotten, that they eaſily crumbled and fell to Pieces. As for thoſe that had the Fortune better to eſcape the Injuries of Time, and the Strokes of the Workmen, they were of different Forms; but all of very handſome Make and Contrivance, as, indeed, moſt of the Roman Veſſels we find ever are. Which is but one of the many Inſtances that are at this Day extant of the Art of that People, of the great Exactneſs of their Genius, and Happineſs of their Fancy. Theſe Urns were of various Magnitudes; the largeſt capable of holding three full Gallons, the leaſt ſomewhat above a Quart. All theſe had in them Aſhes and Cinders of burnt Bones.

‘ Along with the Urns were found various ‘ other earthen Veſſels; as, a Simpulus, a Patera ‘ of a very fine red Earth, and a bluiſh Glaſs ‘ Viol of that Sort that is commonly called a ‘ Lachrymatory. On this there appeared ſome‘ thing like Gilding, very fine.

There were likewiſe found ſeveral Beads, one or two Copper Rings, a Fibula of the ſame Metal, but much impaired and decayed; as alſo a Coin of Antoninus Pius, exhibiting on one Side the Head of that Emperor, with a radiated Crown on, and this Inſcription, ANTONINUS AUG.....

At about the ſame Depth with the Things beforementioned, but nearer to the City Wall, and without the Verge of the Pavement, was digged up an human Skull, with ſeveral Bones that had not been burnt, as thoſe in the Urns had. But for a larger and more ſatisfactory Account of theſe Antiquities, I refer the Reader to the ſaid learned Doctor's Letter, now printed at large by Mr. Hearne, with Leland's Itinerary, in Octavo.

Mr. Hearne.

An Elephant's Body.

Bagford.

An Elephant's Body was found in a Field near to Sir John Oldcaſtle's not far from Battle Bridge, by Mr. John Coniers, an Apothecary, and a great Searcher after Antiquities, as he was digging there.

Some Years ago, on the South Side of Ludgate, was taken up out of the Rubbiſh a Roman Inſcription, taken Notice of by learned Men.

An Aqueduct.

Coming in at Ludgate, in the Reſidentiary's Yard of St. Paul's, was diſcovered ſome Years ago an Aqueduct, cloſe adjoining to the Wall of the City. And ſuch another was found after the Fire by Mr. Span in Holiday Yard in Creed Lane, in digging the Foundation for a new Building. And this was carried round a Bath, that was built in a Roman Form, with Nieches at an equal Diſtance for Seats.

Antiquities in St. Mary Woolnoth Church.

Anno 1716, in digging for the Foundation of a new Church, to be erected where the Church of St. Mary Woolnoth in Lombard-ſtreet ſtood, at the Depth of about 15 Foot, and ſo lower to 22 Foot were found Roman Veſſels, both for ſacred and domeſtic Uſes, of all Sorts, and in great Abundance, but all broken: And with all were taken up Tuſks and Bones of Boars and Goats. As alſo many Meddals, and Pieces of Metals; ſome teſſelated Works, a Piece of an Aqueduct; and at the very Bottom a Well filled up with Mire and Dirt; which being taken away, there aroſe a fine Spring of Water. Dr. Harwood, of the Commons, hath been very exact in taking Notice from Time to Time of theſe Antiquities; and hath ſorted and preſerved a great many of the moſt curious and remarkable of them; and ſuppoſeth, by probable Conjecture, that here was not only a Pottery, but alſo, that on this Place, or near it, ſtood the Temple of Concord; which our Roman Hiſtorians ſpeak of to have been in this City, when called Trinobantum. Theſe Sheards were in ſuch vaſt Quantities, that many Cart Loads were carried away with the Rubbiſh, and the Roads about St. George's Fields in Southwark mended with them.

Dr. Harwood, an exact Collector of them.

A Gold Ring enamelled, an Inch and a Quarter broad; found in an old Wall.

Anno 1718, in the Month of May, the Workmen pulling down a Wall at Bridewel Hoſpital, found a Gold Ring an Inch and Quarter broad, enamelled: Having the Reſemblance of Chriſt on the Croſs engraved on it, with a mourning Heart, and a Pillar with a Cock on the Top. The Inſcription was in Arabic; and ſome Antiquaries who ſaw it, reckoned it to be 1500 Years ſince it was made. This is related in the Weekly Journal, N°. 1047.

This is what I could, by diligent Enquiry of my Friends, collect, concerning Antiquities found in London.

The following Tract, being ſomewhat curious, concerning the ancient Priſon of Ludgate, with the State, Cuſtoms, Uſes, and Abuſes thereof; I have thought worthy the Preſerving, and to be ſubjoin'd to the reſt. Written in the Year 1659.

CHAP. VI.

LUDGATE, What it is; not what it was. Or, a full and clear Diſcovery and Deſcription of the Nature and Quality, Orders and Government, Duties of Officers, Benefits and Privileges, Fees and Charges, of that Priſon. Alſo an exact Catalogue of the Legacies now belonging to the ſaid Priſon; the Names of the ſeveral Donors, and the Perſons appointed to pay them. Very uſeful and profitable to all Sorts of Perſons, eſpecially in London, whether Creditors or Debtors. Alſo, an Epiſtle Dedicatory, and a Preface, wrote by the Author, then a Priſoner there.

To the Right Honourable THOMAS ALLEN, Lord Maior of this Honourable City of LONDON.

May it pleaſe your Lordſhip,

KING David (that Holy Man, Great Prophet, and Good Magiſtrate) longed for, and accepted of, a Bottle of Water, from his three Worthies, drawn out of the Well at the Gate of Bethlehem, which was then the Quarters of the Philiſtines, his Enemies; though he drank it not, but poured it forth before the Lord, as an Offering, to quench the Thirſt of his droughty Army: I hope, my Lord, his Example may, in ſome Part, be an Incentive to your Lordſhip to accept of this ſmall Tract preſented unto you by one unworthy, though you read it not, which was by him collected during his ſad Reſtraint and Captivity within the Stone Walls and Iron Grates of a Priſon, the pleaſant Territories of a Goaler, but the Charnel Houſe to hide Men ruinated by their diſlocated and broken Fortunes.

It would, my Lord, be an Act worthy your Honour's owning, to inſpect a little into the Premiſes hereafter mentioned: And I beſeech you, my Lord, diſdain them not for the Indigency of the Stile (for he that wrote them wants Learning) but mind them for the Truths therein contained.

If your Honour thinks that a living Dog is better than a dead Lion, then let Compaſſion move your Lordſhip (as God hath now planted you in Authority) to look upon the dying Condition of living Men in a Priſon.

Your Lordſhip, perhaps, may be informed by the Goaler, that Perſons under the Power of his Key want not for Subſiſtance: I do affirm, my Lord, that ſuch an Aſſertion is a notorious Falſhood; and that, if it lay in his Power, the Priſoners of Ludgate would be of all Priſoners the moſt miſerable.

My Lord, it would add Excellency to your Worth, and Eternity to your Memory, would you but, according to your Honour's Power and Wiſdom, endeavour the finding out where thoſe noble and great Legacies are buried, and in whoſe Hands they died, which formerly belonged to that Priſon: Generations yet to come would find Reaſon to engrave your Actions in golden Characters.

When your Lordſhip views the Revenues of the Keeper to ariſe from nothing to ſix or ſeven hundred Pounds per Annum, it will amaze you: But if your Lordſhip conſiders, that two Turnkeys and a Butler do likewiſe raiſe their Annuities to 2 or 300*l.* a Man, and that it is haraſſed out of the decaying Eſtates of poor Men, I hope then it will be beyond your Admiration.

My Lord, frequent Viſitations of Priſons, by juſt and worthy Perſons authorized to examine Abuſes therein, would (I humbly conceive) ſtop the Torrent of their Avarice and Oppreſſions; their Extortions being, indeed, the real Cauſe why Men are forced rather to compound than pay their juſt Debts.

Two Things I humbly crave of your Lordſhip, Pardon and Protection: Pardon for my Boldneſs in preſenting ſo mean and frivolous a Thing to ſo noble a Magiſtrate: Protection, becauſe I have neither Rhetoric nor Eloquence to defend myſelf againſt the Adverſaries Malice: Truth and your Lordſhip muſt be herein both my Shield and Buckler.

Your Honour's greater Thoughts ſhall be no longer detained by reading of the meer Entities of,

My Lord,

Your Lordſhip's moſt humble and obedient Servant,

A ſhort PREFACE to the Citizens of LONDON, of what Degree or Quality ſoever.

Gentlemen,

IT is you, of all Men, that are moſt concerned in the following Premiſes, and therefore to you I thought it convenient to declare my Reaſons for the Publication thereof.

It doth in itſelf concern each particular Member of this City, and all Men that are Merchants or Traders in any Way within this Commonwealth.

The rich Citizen or Merchant it concerneth,

I. For that their Way of Trade oftentimes is to truſt young Beginners, that have but ſmall Stocks, upon Day; and if they proſper, they pay for their Credit; but if they fail, having imbezilled the Stock intruſted with them, their Bodies are immediately forced to Priſon: This Book ſhews you what you gain by that; proving what your Experience could not but tell you, That Priſons pay no Debts.

To the Money Lender, or rich Uſurer, it declares,

II. That ſuch as are laid in upon their Account, have no Reaſon to take Care for the Payment of Debts, nor do they: For you ſhall find they here meet with Charges and Expences to ſpend what they have in their Hands, and do it for the moſt Part; and are thereby diſabled to return any Satisfaction.

To ſuch who think Men have ſufficient in that Priſon to maintain them,

III. It ſufficiently proves the contrary, fully acquainting them with what Benefits acrew to Priſoners, which is not comparable to what indeed formerly they did receive.

Them, who hereafter ſhall be Priſoners there, it informs,

IV. What Fees and Charges they muſt expect to be liable to, and pay, their Poverty and Inability not conſidered; and the utmoſt of Convenience they ſhall be Partakers of during their Impriſonment.

Them, who againſt good Times do now-a-days withdraw their Charity,

V. It ſerves to undeceive; ſhewing the Legacies given, how they are beſtowed, and the ſad Loſs of their great Donations, to invite all Pious and Good Men to their former Charities and Liberalities.

Its principal End and Intendment being this in general, to ſhew the rich Creditor his common Loſs and Hazard, the poor Debtor his common Miſery and Sufferings, and both of them the common Gain and Profit of Lawyers, Goalers, and their Under-Subſtitutes.

The Prayer of the Author is, That the preſent Power would be pleaſed, in their grave Wiſdoms, to find out a better Way for ſatisfying of Creditors, an eaſier Puniſhment for thoſe Debtors willing to pay their Debts, and a harder for ſuch who make Priſons their Sanctuaries to defraud their Creditors. This is the hearty Deſire of

The meaneſt of Citizens, and humbleſt of your Servants,

Ludgate Chapel,
Nov. 7, 1659.

MARMADUKE JOHNSON.

LUDGATE,

What it is: Not what it was.

I Have, by Preface, given the Reaſons inducing me to write this ſmall Tract, which, perhaps, to ſome may ſeem impertinent, to others ſufficient for the exhibiting of a Matter of this Nature: And that I may methodize the Buſineſs, and model it to my beſt Advantage; and for the better underſtanding of the Reader, (being poor, and deprived of ſuch Lights herein as are afforded by Records, and ſome Books of Hiſtory and Survey) I will, ſo near as I can, give an Account of theſe five Heads following, viz.

I. Of the Nature and Quality of the Priſon.
II. Of the Order and Government thereof.
III. Of the Officers thereof, and their ſeveral Duties.
IV. Of thoſe Benefits and Privileges, which are vulgarly known and enjoyed by the Priſoners in the ſame Priſon.
V. The Fees, and other Charges belonging to the Houſe, at a Priſoner's Entrance and Exit.

Of which briefly thus:

I. To give an Account what the Priſon was two hundred Years ſince, I muſt be beholden to Report, which, I aſſure, was very credible, and appears to me very reaſonable, and is thus: That the Priſon then conſiſted of thoſe Rooms or Holes over and belonging to the Gate, built by King Lud, about the Year of the World 3895; but ſince beautified and enlarged by others: Neither had it then ſo goodly an Entrance thereinto as now it hath, (nor half ſo many Turnkeys) but only a little Door underneath the Gate towards Ludgate Hill, which ſtill remaineth, though now quite uſeleſs.

When the Priſon was in this Condition, there happened to be Priſoner there one Stephen Foſter, who (as poor Men are at this Day) was a Cryer at the Grate, to beg the benevolent Charities of pious and commiſerate Benefactors that paſſed by. As he was doing his doleful Office, a rich Widow of London hearing his Complaint, enquired of him what would releaſe him? To which he anſwered, Twenty Pound; which ſhe in Charity expended; and clearing him out of Priſon, entertained him in her Service; who afterward falling into the Way of Merchandize, and increaſing as well in Wealth as Courage, wooed his Miſtreſs, Dame Agnes, and married her.

Sir Stephen Foſter, a great Benefactor.

Her Riches and his Induſtry brought him both great Wealth and Honour, being afterwards no leſs than Sir Stephen Foſter, Lord Mayor of the Honourable City of London: Yet whilſt he lived in this great Honour and Dignity, he forgat not the Place of his Captivity, but mindful of the ſad and irkſome Place wherein poor Men were impriſoned, bethought himſelf of enlarging it, to make it a little more delightful and pleaſant for thoſe who in after Times ſhould be impriſoned and ſhut up therein. And, in order thereunto, acquainted his Lady with this his pious Purpoſe and Intention; in whom likewiſe he found ſo affable and willing a Mind to do Good to the Poor, that ſhe promiſed to expend as much as he ſhould do, for the carrying on of the Work: And having Poſſeſſions adjoining thereunto, they cauſed to be erected and built the Rooms and Places following, that is to ſay, The Paper Houſe, the Porch, the Watch Hall, the upper and lower Lumbries, the Cellar, the long Ward, and the Chapel for Divine Service: In which Chapel is an Inſcription upon the Wall, containing theſe Words:

The Chapel.

This Chapel was erected and ordained for the divine Worſhip and Service of God, by the Right Honourable Sir Stephen Foſter, Knight, ſome Time Lord Maior of this Honourable City, and by Dame Agnes his Wife, for the Uſe and godly Exerciſe of the Priſoners in this Priſon of Ludgate, Anno 1454.

An Act of ſo great Piety and Worth in a holy and religious Couple, is left without a Parallel in theſe uncharitable Times; which ſooner ſets the Stamp of Authority to Demoliſhments and Devaſtations, than gives the Favour of an auſpicious Look towards the Increaſe of Piety, Vertue, and Godlineſs.

He likewiſe gave Maintenance for a Preaching Miniſter, which I ſuppoſe is in the Hands of the Lord Maior and Court of Aldermen, or ſome by their appointment, who to this Day do allow a Miniſter for Sabbath Days, but what Salary he hath is not certainly known.

Lodging free.

This was not all, his Charity ſtopped not here; he likewiſe ordained what he had ſo built, with that little which was before, ſhould be free for all Freemen, and that they, providing their own Bedding, ſhould pay nothing at their Departure for Lodging or Chamber-Rent, (as now they call it) which to many poor Men becomes oftentimes as burdenſome as their Debts, and are by the Keeper detained in Priſon as for Debt, only for their Fees, though diſcharged and acquitted of what they were committed for.

This worthy Gentleman (ſure) had ſome prophetick Inſpection into the Times that after him ſhould enſue, and we now ſee come to paſs. And therefore it ſeemed needful to his judicious Eye, to lay a Charm or ſtrong Obligation, and an abſolute Fore-warning of the Maſter Keepers that ſhould after come there, not to take or receive any ſuch Money for Lodging, as is now daily exacted and extorted from poor Men; which, that it might be effectual and obligatory enough to the deterring of them from the Breach thereof, was rendered in a Style not ordinary, though very neceſſary; and is ſet down by Stowe in his Survey, to be in theſe Words:

For Water and Lodging there is nothing to pay,
As the Keeper ſhall anſwer at dreadful Doomſday.

A Braſs Plate importing the ſame;

This Inſcription, engraven in Braſs, was ſet up (as a Monumental Teſtimony of the Worthineſs of the Act) in the ſaid Chapel, juſt by the former Writing aforementioned, which ſome of the late Maſter Keepers (the Introducers of the preſent Oppreſſion of paying for Lodging) moſt baſely and injuriouſly cauſed to be taken down, and ſet up over the outward Street Door, with theſe Words engraven on the other Side, This is the Priſon of Ludgate; abſconding the former Words in the Wall; who could not but have a Reflection on his Conſcience, whilſt this Pillar of Truth and Antiquity ſtood ſtaring in his Face, and was ſo obvious to the Eye of the Oppreſſed, and every honeſt Beholder.

Taken away.

The Abuſes of this Priſon.

According to the Conſtitution of the Priſon by the ſaid Sir Stephen Foſter, it continued many Years; and was, (and is ſtill, though falſly) accounted the beſt and freeſt Priſon in all England: And it was ſo then. For as Charity built the Houſe, ſo Charity maintained the Priſoners in the Houſe: But ſince Men of corrupt and ſeared Conſciences have got the Dominion, who neither fear God, nor will ſerve Men in their Generations; what is there, or what can there be expected from ſuch Men who make Gain both their God and Godlineſs, but the Baniſhment of Charity and Piety, the razing of Records, the defacing, obliterating, and pulling down the poor Man's Pillar of Truth, and the horrid and inhuman ſpoiling and impoveriſhing of the Miſerable and Oppreſſed?

Water granted to it by Sir Rob. Knowles.

The Water I find not to be altogether his Gift: (Which, indeed, is the only Thing that is free, though it may well be ſuppoſed by the former Words in the Braſs, that he had made a Proviſion for the Priſoners in that Kind) for that I peruſed lately a Book, wherein I found a Memorandum, That Sir Robert Knowles gave Maintenance for the Supply of the Priſons of Ludgate and Newgate with Water for ever; leaving it to the Care of the Company of Grocers: And that if, at any Time, any Stop ſhould be, that the Water could not come to the Places aforeſaid, (which God forbid) that then the Maſter and Wardens of the ſaid Company ſhall repair to the Chamber of London, where the grand Inſtruments are kept; and to conſult with the Lord Maior, Court of Aldermen, and Chamberlain, for the finding out ſome other Way for the Supply thereof. It is ſet down more largely in the Company of Grocers Journal-Book, to which I refer the Inquiſitive.

The Government of it.

II. As touching the Government of the ſaid Priſon, it will appear beſt in the Deſcription of the Offices holden in the Houſe. Which I ſhall endeavour to make perſpicuous, as well by the Orders by which they are elected, as by ſome explanatory Additions, wherein there ſhall be Occaſion; therein diſcovering the Government of the preſent from that of the primitive Inſtitution. And ſo, as to this ſecond Diviſion, I ſhall only ſay this, That the political Orders by which it is governed by its own Officers, are derivative from the Power of the Lord Maior and Court of Aldermen of the City of London, many of whoſe Orders I have ſeen the Originals; and if ſo be that I could procure Copies of them, they would neither prove much uſeful nor profitable to me or the Reader, to publiſh.

The Perſons intruſted with the Government of the Priſon, and the Execution of the ſaid Orders, are the Maſter Keeper, the two Stewards, and the ſeven Aſſiſtants for the Time being. Who likewiſe have made, and do ſtill make, as Occaſion is offered, ſeveral and reſpective Orders, touching the decent and quiet Government of the Priſon, the ordering and civilizing of the Priſoners, and the Puniſhment of Miſdemeanors and Offences therein committed. I ſhall now paſs from this, and come,

The Officers.

III. To the ſeveral Offices therein holden, and to decypher (as near as I can) their Duties and proper Employments, viz.

1. A Reader of Divine Service.
2. The Upper Steward, called, The Maſter of the Box.
3. The Under Steward.
4. Seven Aſſiſtants, that is, one for every Day of the Week.
5. A Running Aſſiſtant.
6. Two Churchwardens.
7. A Scavenger.
8. A Chamberlain.
9. A Running Poſt.
10. The Cryers at the Grate, which are commonly ſix in Number.

I. Of the Office of the Reader.

The Reader.

Becauſe I find the Office of Reader firſt ſet down in the publick Orders of the Houſe, I therefore will, in the firſt Place, exhibit his Duty, and Manner of chuſing. And the Orders by which he was appointed his Office and Employment, I find to be made in the Reign of our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth, (for before her Time, I ſuppoſe, their Service was the Maſs) and to be nominated and choſen thereunto by the Maſter Keeper, Stewards, and Aſſiſtants for the Time being ſucceſſively, and not by common Vote at Elections, as other Officers are: Appertaining to the Appointment and Injunction of whoſe Duty, I find two or three Orders, which I muſt be content only to give the Sum of, being denied the Peruſal of thoſe kept privately, ſo as to take a Tranſcript; and thoſe which are publick and commonly expoſed, being ſo obliterated, that from them I could not. But his Duty was to ring the Bell twice every Day to Prayers: (which is now fallen to the Officer called, A Running Aſſiſtant, for what Reaſon I ſhall afterwards ſhew) which, indeed, is all the Alteration which I find in this Office, from the primitive Inſtitution thereof: Which ſaid Running Aſſiſtant now ringing the Bell at Ten in the Morning, and Eight at Night, the People having likewiſe Notice by the Church-warden to repare to the Chapel, the Reader goeth into the Pew or Deſk, provided in the Chapel for the ſame Purpoſe, joining to the Pulpit, where he readeth ſuch Prayers, Confeſſions, Pſalms, Chapters, and ſinging Pſalms, as are appointed in a certain Book therefore given: (For you muſt know, that the Common Prayer is not there uſed now, according to the Appointment of the Inſtitutors of the ſaid Office; by Reaſon of a Prohibition by Sir R. T. when he was Lord Maior, who took away, or cauſed to be taken, the ſaid Book of Common Prayer, formerly given and belonging thereunto.) For the Performance of which, he hath the Allowance of two Shillings eight Pence ℘ Month, one Penny of every Priſoner at his firſt coming, if he payeth ſixteen Pence for his Table-Money, and a Diſh of Meat out of the Lord Maior's Baſket, when it comes in; which, by reaſon of a Fault that lies in I know not well who, but yet I gueſs, proved often an empty one.

There hath formerly been a Cuſtom to ring a Bell for the Space of a Quarter of an Hour, at Nine of the Clock at Night, for all Strangers to depart the Priſon, which did belong to the Reader to do, but that Bell hath been long down, and Strangers are now warned to depart by him that is called the Chamberlain; of which hereafter.

II. Of the Upper Steward, or Maſter of the Box.

Maſter of the Box.

THE Authority of him that is Maſter of the Box, is by the Priſoners eſteemed almoſt equal to the Maſter Keeper; and by all the Houſe reſpected with a Reſpect befitting him, whoſe Care and Courteſies to and for all Men (to my own Knowledge) hath exceeded, and doth far exceed any with whom I have had yet to deal.

The Order by which He and the Under Steward are choſen, ſaith, that they ſhall chuſe (that is, the Priſoners at ſuch Election) two honeſt and diſcreet Perſons, the one to be called The Maſter of the Box, the other, The Under Steward, &c. To the Charge of which Maſter of the Box is committed the Keeping of the ſeveral Orders of the Houſe, as well as all Accompts of Moneys received upon Legacies, given for the Relief of poor Priſoners: (As for thoſe given for their Releaſe, I ſhall afterwards point out at that Scylla or Carybdis, upon or in which they miſcarry before they come to the appointed Haven, where the Donors intended their unlading.) Alſo the Diſtribution of all Bread or other Proviſion ſent in by the Right Honourable the Lord Maior, or by any other private Perſons: And (which is the chief and moſt material) the Money which is begged at the Grates by the Cryers, with the Garniſhes, or Table Money, as it is commonly called, payed by every Priſoner at his Entrance, which is ſixteen Pence; and is beſtowed weekly for Bread, Candles, and other neceſſary Charges belonging to the Houſe, except what is paid out of it for Officers Salaries, as is and ſhall be ſhewed in their proper Places. He hath alſo a Liſt, or Roll, of all Priſoners, as well thoſe that are upon the Charity, as thoſe that are not; to whom, with the Aſſiſtance of the Aſſiſtant for the Day, he giveth their Proportion and Allowance of Bread, or other Proviſions, according as by Order and Cuſtom of the Houſe is appointed. The Gifts, likewiſe, of the Market People, Butchers, Fiſhmongers, or any other benevolent or charitable Perſon, which is taken by the Clerk of the Market, and brought in by him who is the Poſt, is delivered to him or the Under Steward; for which they give Receipts, and by either of them, in the Preſence of the Aſſiſtant for the Day, is expoſed to Sale to the Charity Men, as a Market: Which Money ſo raiſed for ſuch Victuals or Proviſions, is put into the common Stock or Bank, and there remaineth 'till the Accompt Day.

Elections of Stewards, &c.

Once every Month there is an Election of Stewards, Aſſiſtants, and Church Wardens, by the Vote and Conſent of all the Priſoners belonging to the Houſe; for the other Officers are only by Nomination and Appointment of the Maſter Keeper, Stewards, and Aſſiſtants. But you muſt know, that no Officers, choſen by Election or Suffrage of the Priſoners, are elected for any longer Time than one Month; and if he be found honeſt, that is, a popular Man, then he is again choſen; and ſo, many Months together: But if otherwiſe, he is ejected, and another choſen in his Stead. This Election is always on a Saturday. The Monday after this Election is the Accompt Day, wherein the whole Moneys received or gathered in the Boxes; as alſo Legacies given that Month (if any) are ſummed up by the ſaid Maſter of the Box, Under Steward, and Aſſiſtants, and the Dividend of each Charity Man caſt up; which done, the Maſter Keeper of the Priſon (by Order of his own making) receiveth two Shillings four Pence out of every Man's Charity, if the Dividend amount to three Shillings four Pence to each Man; otherwiſe, he is to have but one Shilling two Pence for his Months Lodging, and the reſt to go on, to be paid at his being diſcharged from Priſon; (all which is contrary to that former recited Diſtich obligatory, made by that good Founder and Benefactor, Sir Stephen Foſter.)

Here I may raiſe one Obſervation, That the Goaler's Creatures and Confidents, are the poor Man's Enemies, and Charity Robbers. Which you ſhall well perceive, if you obſerve, that all Charges of and belonging to the Houſe, as well ordinary and certain, as extraordinary and caſual, are paid out of the common Stock of Charity Money; and thoſe ordinary Charges are, ſuch as Payment of Officers Fees, and buying of Bread for the Charity and Ample Men, (which Ample Men are ſuch as are not entred upon the Charity) which is in the whole, one Penny Loaf every Sunday, after his being one Month Priſoner; and likewiſe Candles for the Uſe of the Houſe in Places neceſſary: For the Table Money, mentioned before, doth not anſwer that Charge by far, by reaſon of the Multitude of Priſoners in the Houſe. This kind of Charge we grant to be good. Then extraordinary Charges are, when any poor Priſoner is ſick, and is not able to ſupply his Wants; or when any dieth, and is buried at the Charge of the Houſe, that is alſo good. But that which appears to me to be the moſt extraordinary, and moſt unreaſonable Payment, is to the Turnkey of the Priſon, who receiveth twelve Shillings ℘ Month, out of the ſaid Charity; for turning his Silver Key, to let in the Gifts and Charity of the Houſe, (which, God knows, are very few) as, the Lord Maior's Baſket, and the other Proviſion mentioned before: Which twelve Shillings, with what Salary is allowed the Poſt, for his Pains in fetching it, I do (and ſo will a hundred Men more) avouch to be as much as it is worth. All which Deductions and Payments made, with ſuch as I ſhall mention hereafter, I have known when the remaining Dividend to each Charity Man hath amounted to no more than ſix Pence ℘ Man, and, indeed, ſeldom more now-a-days. And I hope no ſober Man, or Chriſtian, will judge, that four Pence in Bread, and ſix Pence in Money, can be a Competency ſufficient to maintain a Man a whole Month, taking in withal that Allowance which cometh in by the Lord Maior's Baſket. Some other Matters are alſo pertinent to his Office, which, as Occaſion ſerves, he doth perform with a pregnant Reaſon, and a very commendable Honeſty, according to that Truſt repoſed in him by the Charity Men and the whole Houſe. I ſhall next ſpeak of,

III. The Under Steward.

Under Steward.

TOuching whoſe Duty and Office there can no abſolute Alteration be made in any Particular from that of the Maſter of the Box, he being indeed in Power and Form the ſame, in the Abſence of the other, and his Authority and Actings of the ſame Latitude and Extent. For he is choſen as a Delegate or Adjutant to the former, to help him in the true and exact keeping and ſtating of the Accounts, and for the writing out the ſame in the Account Book every Month; and, in a Word, to do all Things in his Abſence, and to perform all thoſe particular Duties mentioned in the foregoing Paragraph of the Maſter of the Box. I ſhall therefore end with them two, and come to

IV. The Office and Duty of an Aſſiſtant.

Aſſiſtant.

I Have made Mention of ſeven ſeveral Aſſiſtants, that is, one for every Day of the Week, and they are ſo. But foraſmuch as their Office and Duty is all one and the ſame, without any Alteration or Difference, I ſhall make the Deſcription of one ſerve to delineate all the reſt.

He that is an Aſſiſtant, is choſen, as hath been ſaid, every Month, by all the Priſoners at an Election, next after the electing of the two Stewards; and by the Orders then read, is enjoyned to the ſeveral Duties following, viz. To attend in the Watch Hall all his Day, to ſee what Strangers come to ſpeak with Priſoners, and to call them down to them; and to attend for the changing Money for the Cryers at the Grates; (which Duty now is wholly neglected.) Alſo, to ſet down in Writing what Moneys or other Gifts, of what Kind ſoever, are ſent in for the Priſoners in his Day; and what Money is given to the Boxes, and to keep an Account thereof, and the ſame to charge the Stewards withal at the Account Day; and to ſee the Accounts truly caſt up, as well for all the Priſoners as for themſelves; (by which, we ſee, they ought to be Charity Men;) and to ſee whether the Charges of the Houſe, ordinary and extraordinary, brought in by the Stewards, ought to be allowed upon Accounts: And that, if he ſhall refuſe to hold the ſaid Employment before choſen thereto, then to forfeit one Shilling, for a Fine, to the Uſe of the Houſe, or to wear the Bolts or Shackles three Days, or three Nights, unleſs mitigated by the Maſter Keeper, Stewards, and Aſſiſtants, for the Time being, or the major Part of them: Thus far the Contents of the Orders in general. Now he likewiſe hath Power, either by Aſſumption or Conſent, that if one Priſoner abuſe another, or that a Priſoner abuſe or wrong any Stranger, to commit to the Stocks, Bolts, or Shackle, any ſuch Diſturber or Offender, without calling a Table of Officers for the publick adjudging of the ſame. You muſt note, that the Time that every Aſſiſtant cometh into his Office, is at Eight of the Clock at Night, and ſo continueth 'till Eight the next Night; and the Time of the Boxes opening is at Five in the Afternoon, and at Nine at Night. His Duty for the Day being performed, and the Day ended, it is his Care (by ſome collateral Order) to ſee the Cellar cleared by Ten of the Clock, of all Priſoners, and the Priſoners to be in their Lodgings quietly and civilly, for which (by either an Order or Cuſtom of their own conſtituting) ſix Pence is allowed out of the Charity Money every Night, and is accounted thus to be ſpent; two Pence for the Aſſiſtant, two Pence for the Maſter of the Box, and the other two Pence allowed, in Money or Drink, to him that is the Running Aſſiſtant, or to the Scavenger, for bearing two Candles before them: (Good Pay for idle Employment in a Priſon!)

Thus you ſee the Sum of the Duty of an Aſſiſtant: I have purpoſely omitted the Magnificence of an Aſſiſtant's going down the firſt Night, with the flaring Illumination of forty or fifty great Candles, provided by the Priſoners, with the Expence and Charge which they were at therein, becauſe it is lately laid aſide, and I alſo judge it a Matter both very vain and ſuperfluous: And herein, I think I have left out nothing of the Office and Duty of an Aſſiſtant, at leaſt, nothing which is material, but what will be taught them who ſhall come to that Preferment. For Salary, I think the better Sort of them take none, I am ſure there is nothing allowed them; but I believe the poorer Sort borrow of the Charity what they cannot pay, and ſo diſcount for their Duty. I come now to handle,

V. The Office of Running Aſſiſtant.

Running Aſſiſtant.

HE that is ſo ſtiled, attends upon the Criers for changing of Money; and alſo their Boxes at appointed Hours, opens them at Five in the Afternoon, and at Nine at Night; ſets up the Candles in their reſpective Places, waits upon the Aſſiſtants and Stewards, when they go to ſee the Cellar cleared of Company after Evening Prayers, looks to the Clock, rings the Bell to Prayers, is the Crier for Sale of Markets to Charity Men, hath many other ſmall Employments incumbent upon him, for which his Salary is four Shillings eight Pence ⅌ Month, and two Pence out of the ſixteen Pence paid by every Priſoner at his firſt Coming. This Officer ſtands in the Choice of the Maſter Keeper, Stewards, and Aſſiſtants, as their Prerogative, as I ſhewed before, in treating of the Appointment and Nomination of the Reader. Now follows,

VI. The Office of the Churchwardens.

Churchwardens.

THere is a Decorum obſerved in the Number, though not in the Quality, with the Churchwardens in Pariſhes, they having the Stock of the Pariſh in their Hands, theſe having none at all. Two of the youngeſt Priſoners are nominated at every Election to that Office, for the Month enſuing, who refuſing to hold it, are fined four Pence to the Uſe of the Houſe, and ſo by Gradation of two, 'till ſome wanting Money to fine, are forced to hold. He that firſt holds upon ſuch Nomination and Election, is ſtiled the Upper Churchwarden, and hath no Duty but only on Sabbath Days; the other is Under Churchwarden, and is, for all the Week Days, to call to Prayers when the Bell is rung: Their Duty likewiſe being to ſet down ſuch of the Charity as comes not to Prayers, who ſhould be therefore fined one Penny; but that Order is now altogether neglected: He that performs his Duty, hath, at the Account Day, for his Reward, one Groat, and no more.

VII. Of

VII. Of the Office of the Scavenger.

Scavenger.

IT is the Duty of the Scavenger to keep the Houſe cleanſed in all the ſeveral Places and Parts thereof. To him it belongeth properly to put the Bolts or Shakles upon any Priſoner, puniſhed for the Breach of Orders in the Houſe, and to have of the Offender one Penny; the like of them that ſuffer the Stocks, at their Releaſe. He hath for his ſtanding Salary five Shillings eight Pence ℣ Month, two Pence of every Priſoner at his coming in firſt, out of the ſixteen Pence Table Money by him paid; which, as is all the reſt, is paid by the Maſter of the Box at the Account Day.

VIII. The Office of the Chamberlain.

Chamberlain.

THE Chamberlain is by ſingle Nomination of the Maſter Keeper only, and neither by the Table of Aſſiſtants, nor by common Vote; the Reaſon is, becauſe to him is committed the keeping and looking to of all the Bedding and Linnen, which is the Maſter Keepers; to him it belongs to place Men in Beds at their coming in, to furniſh them with Sheets, for which he receives one Shilling ſix Pence, and pays to the Keeper at the Rate of ſix Pence for all Sheets uſed in the Houſe: But then note, that Sheets afterwards are only eight Pence or twelve Pence a Pair, if you lie ſingle, or with another; the Chamberlain is at the Charge of the waſhing them into the Bargain. He ſhould, by Order of the Houſe, make the Beds for all the Charity Men, for which he ſhould (by an Order made for his Advantage) have two Pence a Month for his Pains; which for a long Time he hath received, though he never touches their Beds; but in the Beginning it was not ſo. He warns all Strangers to depart the Houſe at Ten of the Clock at Night: Which formerly was done by ringing of a Bell. He hath no Houſe Salary, but as aforeſaid, yet lives well thereupon, having moſt of his Subſiſtence at the Maſter Keeper's, and is as his Houſhold Servant.

IX. The Duty of the Running Poſt.

Running Poſt.

HE that is Poſt is choſen by the Table or Court, conſiſting of the Maſter Keeper, Stewards, and Aſſiſtants. And his Duty is to fetch in the Baſket of broken Meat from the Right Honourable the Lord Maiors; to wait upon the Clerk of the Market for ſuch kind of Proviſion as he gets for Priſoners of the Market People, which, when brought Home, is expoſed to Sale among the Charity, as in a Market, and he that bids moſt carries it: The Reaſon is, becauſe every one cannot partake of that little that is ſo ſent, therefore, he that hath the Market, hath the leſs Money, to prevent Difference amongſt the Neceſſitous. The Clerk of the Market takes a Receipt for what he ſends in, and ſo do all that ſend in any Proviſion. His Buſineſs lies moſt abroad, and therefore called the Running Poſt: He hath four Shillings ℣ Month Salary, one Penny ℣ Month out of every Charity Man's Dividend, and the like out of the ſixteen Pence Table Money before ſpoken of, and no other Allowance whatſoever.

X. The Office of the Cryers.

Cryers.

THere be ſix Cryers at the Grates, which divide the Week amongſt them, and by their Days and their Hours, as they have ſo ordered the Buſineſs, that they have mutual Time of begging allowed them: As for Example, A Box is let down in the Hole at the Gate at five in the Afternoon, the Man begs 'till about Nine, and then it is taken up and opened, and the Maſter of the Box takes an Account thereof. In the Morning the ſame Box is let down again, and the ſame Man begs 'till Twelve a Clock; then another Box is let down, and another Man begs 'till Two, then the ſame goes in again 'till five, at which Time the Box is open'd again, and the Cryer receives the fourth Part of what is begged. The like Decorum is held at the Window toward Black Fryars; only, becauſe of the Little that is there, the Crier hath half what he gets. Thus go they by Turns; and what they ſo crave, and how it is beſtowed, I ſhall hereafter make appear in the Chapter of Privileges.

The Privileges and Benefits of the Priſoners.

IV. Having given an Account of the ſeveral Officers of the Houſe, and their reſpective Duties; it follows in order, to treat of the Privileges and Benefits vulgarly known and enjoyed by the Priſoners. And they properly conſiſt in the Gifts and Legacies given by many worthy Men, and good Benefactors; the Arms of ſome of them, with their Names, hang up in the Chapel at this Day, and are moſt of them compriſed in one entire Table, which is likewiſe there; in the Top of which (in good old Characters) is thus written:

> The Arms of our good Benefactors, which giveth to the Relief of us poor Men, in this Goal of Ludgate, Priſoners.

The Catalogue of whoſe Names I had thought to have expoſed to view as they are there ſet down; but having (by a very ſtrange Providence) the Sight of a Book wherein was ſet down the Names of all the Benefactors, whoſe Donations are now paid unto the Houſe, the ſeveral Sums they gave, and the Perſons or Companies which do pay the ſame, I choſe rather to take a Breviate thereof, and publiſh it for general Satisfaction, and afterwards to give you an Account how they now differ in the preſent diſpoſing thereof from the original Intendment of the Donors, as by that Table beforementioned will appear. It is thus entitled:

Legacies and Ample-Money.

Theſe Legacies, bequeathed by good Benefactors deceaſed, for the moſt part yearly, and for ever, be as followeth.

Fatherleſs Children and Orphans. 4. For Releaſe and Relief of poor Priſoners out of the four Priſons in London, and one in Southwark: Of which, five Pounds cometh to this Priſon yearly, the Thurſday before Eaſter, one Half for Relief, the other for Releaſe of Priſoners, now paid by Mr. Shambrook in Coleman-ſtreet, Dr. Salmon in Stepney, and Mr. Jones of the Temple —— —— —— —— 5 l.
Sir Ralph Freeman, Lord Maior of London in 1633, by the Company of Clothworkers —— —— 5 l.
From the Chamber of London, in lieu of 250 l. this Priſon is to receive 1 l. 11 s. 3 d. the Half of 3 l. 2 s 6 d. the other Half to others; the Gift of Mr. William Middleton —— 1 l. 11 s. 3 d.
John Stone, Haberdaſher, ſome Time living in Bow Church Yard, gave for ever, out of a Tenement in Bow Lane, called the White Griffin 2 l.
It was paid 'till the Year 1650.
In Anno 1632, John Meredith of London, Skinner, gave for ever to buy Coals every November yearly, Elizabeth his Wife his Executrix —— —— —— —— 1 l. 2 s.

Here I obſerve two Things: Firſt, That ſome whoſe Names are in the forementioned Table, are not ſet down in this Book of Legacies, out of which I took this Catalogue, for there is wanting Sir Stephen Foſter, Sir John Allen, Mercer, Mr. Wyat, &c. And ſecondly, That what Legacies are now belonging and paid to the Priſon, are only the later Gifts of Benefactors: Thoſe large Donations of Charity given before the Reformation, being too full of Superſtition, and looking with Faces like the meritorious Gifts of Papiſts; and therefore thought good by Avarice and Covetouſneſs to be obliviated: Nor knew they a ſurer Way to do it, that they might be utterly obſcured from the Eyes of after Ages, but by conſulting (as it were) with their Religion and tender Conſciences, who ſoon reſolved them, that the wiſeſt Way would be to demoliſh the idolatrous Tombs and Sepulchres of thoſe beſt of Men, and greateſt of Benefactors; and to take from before the Eyes of the Godly, thoſe Monuments of Braſs, which ſpake only of their good Works and Deeds, defacing them as vain-glorious, and pretending they would be more advantageous to a thriving State, to have them expoſed to Sale.

The Sum of theſe known Legacies is about 70 l. but ſome of them I find are out of Date, having run their full Race and Time out, therefore I do think 60 l. is the Extent of what annually comes in.

The Manner of Releaſe.

The ſmaller Sort I find to be rightly beſtowed, that is, for the Relief of the Priſoners in Bread, or otherwiſe, and thoſe are commonly received by the Maſter of the Box: The greater Sums are beſtowed for Releaſe of Priſoners, as they call it. The Way of Relief is to be underſtood the ſupplying of them with Neceſſaries, as Victuals or Money. That called Releaſe is thus, That when a poor Man hath got his Diſcharge from both Compters, and run the Gantlope of Clerks Fees and fobb'd Actions, whereby his ſmall Stock is utterly exhauſted, and he hath not wherewith to run quite through the Regiment of Extortions, he ſtops at the Door: By the Turnkey is brought him a Bill of Fees to be paid (which I ſhall ſpeak of when I come to treat of Charges and Fees) wherein Lodging leads the Van; which he not being able at preſent to pay, ſhall be detained until he either doth, or elſe give Security to pay it (though, perhaps, his Creditors took his own Bond for twenty Times a greater Sum) if he can procure no ſuch Security, there he muſt lie until the next Quarter, or that ſome Legacy be brought by ſome Company, or other Perſon, for to diſcharge Priſoners; and then by Petition to them preſented, ſigned by the Keeper (which he doth for his own Ends) very likely the Man ſhall be immediately turned out.

Corruption, by Demand of Lodging and Fees.

Corruption in ſome, and Policy in others, hath made it cuſtomary now, that theſe larger Gifts never come within the Priſon, but are ſwallowed up in the Paper Office, by the Keeper, for Lodging and Fees, (which is that Scylla or Carybdis I before ſpake of) contrary to the Intendment of the deceaſed Donors.

I have heard it credibly ſpoken by a knowing and rational Man, that theſe Moneys (and much more than theſe) was, at their appointed Times, uſed to be paid to the Stewards of the Houſe, who kept the Moneys in Stock; and if a Priſoner lay there, that might be diſcharged from his Creditor or Creditors for the Sum of three, four, or five Pound, did, by his eaſy Addreſs, procure the ſaid Money, and his Diſcharge immediately followed.

Note, That Lodging was not then exacted cum privilegio, as now it is, the more the Pity: But this I am confident of, that of this ſixty Pound a Year, or thereabouts, there is not above Ten that the Priſoners taſte of; the reſt, by that other Project, is converted into Lodging Money, as I have ſufficiently ſhewed.

Now I have begun to unlock the hid Treaſures of Ludgate, I intend, according to my poor Ability, to ſignify what more I underſtand to be given them freely, and for their neceſſary Suſtenance, and not to the Uſe before ſpoken of.

To Charity Men.

To be upon the Charity of the Houſe, is the accounted Benefit which a poor Man receives; and that he is admitted unto by Petition, and ſhewing the Copy of his Freedom to the Maſter Keeper, two Stewards, and ſeven Aſſiſtants; and of this Kind there are about fifty in Number, ſometimes more, ſeldom leſs now-a-days, who partake of what Money is begged at the Grates, &c. as I ſhall demonſtrate.

I gave you an Account of ſix Cryers, and their Manner and Turns of Crying; and alſo that the Money by them begged was put into the Cuſtody of the Maſter of the Box until the Accompt Day: And it is ſo. At which Time it is caſt up by the Stewards and Aſſiſtants, and after the Charges of the Houſe is taken out of it for that Month, as the buying of Bread for the Charity Men and Ample Men, (that is, ſuch as are not upon the Charity) the buying of Candles, the paying of Officers their ſmall Salaries, and other Things incident and neceſſary for the Houſe, as I have ſhewed; then, I ſay, they, in the next Place, caſt it up into Shares or Dividends for each Charity Man; which done, the Bell being rung, they come all up into the Chapel, where the Under Steward reads in the Account Book to this Purpoſe: ‘We the Stewards and Aſſiſtants, having peruſed the Account for this Month, being ſuch a Day of the Month, do find that it hath pleaſed God to beſtow upon us out of the Boxes, by good Benefactors, (the Houſe Charges being deducted) the Sum of eight Pound eight Shillings (or the like) to be divided amongſt fifty Charity Men and Women, which comes to three Shillings four Pence a-piece, for which we bleſs God, and give Thanks.

A Man hearing this read, would he not, being on the Charity, expect to receive it, think you? But ſtay, when he comes to the Maſter of the Box to have his Share, he ſhall find him to write thus in a Paper:

Lodging	2 s. 4 d.
Poſt and Chamberlain	3 d.
Markets (perhaps)	5 d.
Remains	4 d.

This I have often found to be the Account, nay, ſometimes nothing at all in a Month, when formerly every Man's Share hath come to ſixteen, eighteen, or twenty Shillings a Month; and at a good Time, as Eaſter and Chriſtmas, it may be, three or four Pound a-piece: Therefore this may well be called Ludgate, What it is; not what it was.

This is done, becauſe, with the Keeper it is, Sic volo, ſic jubeo, &c. Though there is a Pretence of an Order of the Lord Maior and Court of Aldermen for his receiving it, but I could never ſee it; and if there be, it was granted when Charity did (as Juſtice ſhould do) run down like a mighty Stream. But the Channel being now almoſt quite dried up, the Banks thereof having been cut by the oppreſſing Hand of Wars and Calamities, it is now high Time for the preſent Lord Maior and Court to ſearch into the Reaſon of its granting, and to abrogate it. For poor Mens Lives are much concerned therein, to my Knowledge; for three Shillings four Pence will go farther with a ſick and indigent Man, than a Groat or ſix Pence will, eſpecially in a Priſon.

I will give you a ſhort Example of an honeſt and charitable Act of the Maſter Keeper's, for which, I think, he had no Order of the Lord Maior and Court of Aldermen. It pleaſed God to inflict Sickneſs upon me, after my being in Priſon about a Month or ſix Weeks. I then not being upon the Charity, and being a very poor Man, and altogether friendleſs, (a poor Wife and Child excepted) was, at the Account Day, allowed four Shillings eight Pence by the Stewards and Aſſiſtants, in Conſideration of my Charge in my Sickneſs, and my known Poverty; which the Keeper underſtanding, took half of it for his Lodging, and left me the other, to repair my broken and diſlocated Fortunes. I could give other like Examples of his Kindneſs to Priſoners, but that is not here my Buſineſs.

The freeſt Gift, and now moſt eſteemed Benefit, is that of the Lord Maior's Baſket, which is twice (or thrice ſometimes) in a Week, and is divided amongſt poor Priſoners: His Lordſhip likewiſe ſends in light Bread ſometimes, when he takes it from the light Bakers, which is likewiſe a great Help when it comes.

What is ſent in by the Clerk of the Market, as Chumps of Beef, or any other Kind of Proviſion; and likewiſe by the Water Bailiff, as unſized Fiſh, (but that very ſeldom) is, as I told you, expoſed to Sale, as in a Market, amongſt the Charity Men, by which Means every Man receives a like Benefit.

I may conclude this fourth Head with this obſervable Truth, That all the Benefits (I mean of Legacies) formerly given to Priſoners, doth not add to their Relief a Farthing a Day, which is ſmall Allowance; and that if it were all beſtowed amongſt the Priſoners in general, as it ſhould be, it would not amount to a Penny a Day for each Man. To come now to

The Charges to Priſoners at their Entrance and Exits.

The Priſoners Charges.

A Freeman of London being arreſted by Action entered in either of the Compters, may refuſe to go to the Compter, (as is uſual) but may require to go immediately to Ludgate: Which the Keeper thereof cannot deny to receive into Cuſtody, although no Duci facias be brought then, but ſhall afterwards be ſent for: Which Way, if practiſed, would ſave many a Pound to poor Men, which the Serjeants and Yeomen do daily extort from them. But the uſual Way, indeed, is to go to the Compter, being arreſted, and take a Duce, which coſts ſixteen Pence, and ſo go to Ludgate with the Officers; for which Service only, they will often exact three, four, or five Shillings, ſometimes more of a poor Man, though their juſt due is but two Pence.

When the Officers have brought him to Ludgate, the Turnkey takes him into Cuſtody upon Sight of his Duce, and enters his Name and Addition into a Book kept for that Purpoſe; for which Entrance (or turning of the Key) the Priſoner pays fourteen Pence.

Having paid that, and being turned into the Priſon, his next Work is to fit himſelf with a Lodging, which is of three Sorts, or ſeveral Rates, and is one Penny, two Pence, or three Pence ⅌ Night.

Being furniſhed by the Chamberlain of the Houſe with Lodging, his next Payment is for Sheets, which is eighteen Pence, and is paid to the ſaid Chamberlain, who is accountable to the Maſter Keeper at a certain Rate for the ſame, whoſe Goods they only are.

Before he ſhall repoſe himſelf in his new provided Lodging, his Chamber Fellows will acquaint him with a Garniſh of four Shillings, to be by him paid, and by them ſpent, either in Coals or Candles, for their own proper Uſe, or elſe in a Dinner or Supper, as they can agree; for Non-payment of which, though through Poverty, or for refuſing through Obſtinacy, his Cloaths ſhall be taken privately from him in the Night, (or Mobbed, as they call it) which ſhall be detained by he knows not who, until ſuch Time as he hath paid the uttermoſt Farthing.

Having reſted one Night, he ſhall the next Day be called upon for a Due of ſixteen Pence, which is to be paid to one of the Stewards of the Houſe, and is called Table Money, with which Candles, &c. is bought for the Uſe of the Houſe, and every Night ſet up in Places neceſſary.

Theſe Fees and Dues muſt be paid by every Priſoner, be he never ſo poor, at his Entrance, amounting in all to eight Shillings. Which I have particularly mentioned, to undeceive ſuch who think Ludgate to be ſo Free a Priſon, and that the Fees are ſmall, and the Benefits and Privilege therein very great, which in their due Place I have diſcovered.

But now, to adminiſter a Word of Inſtruction to ſuch as deſire (not being brought in upon, nor ſued to Execution) to have Liberty to go out. It is wrought by two ſeveral Ways, though by one and the ſame Engine, Money.

He, I ſay, that would have his Liberty, muſt procure to go either with a Keeper, or elſe upon Security. In order to which, he muſt ſend to each Compter, to know what Actions are entered againſt him: Which muſt be certified under the Clerks Hands, and will coſt four Pence the Search, as much for every Action, and four Pence for the Clerks Hand to them.

This being done, and that he deſires to go out with the Keeper, he muſt, for his firſt Day's Progreſs, pay two Shillings ſix Pence to the Head Turnkey, twelve Pence to the Under-Turnkey, and eighteen Pence to the Keeper that attends upon him, which is alſo a Priſoner: And twelve Pence to the Turnkey, and as much to his Keeper every Day of his going out afterwards.

If a Priſoner will go out without ſuch an Attendant, it muſt be by Security of two Men, ſuch whom the Keeper or Turnkeys ſhall accept of, and judge ſufficient, each of them entring into Bond ſeverally for his true Impriſonment; and likewiſe one other Bond for Payment of his Lodging to the Maſter Keeper; for which the Turnkey takes as his Fee five Shillings at the leaſt; nay, I know ſome, of whom he hath demanded twenty Shillings, for his good Will to let him out after Bonds ſealed, for which the Priſoners muſt pay too, with ſome ſaucy Expences to boot; and what they condition for weekly muſt be truly and punctually paid, or he is ſoon fetched in, and deprived of Liberty, and his Bond cancelled and made void.

But ſuppoſing a Priſoner to end with his Creditor, and that he bring his Diſcharge from each Compter, he ſhall then find to pay at his Exit, the ſeveral Fees following, viz. Two Shillings the Maſter Keeper's Fee, fourteen Pence the turning of the Key, twelve Pence for every Action that lies againſt him: If he be charged in Execution, then it is two Shillings ſix Pence, and as much for every Writ that lies againſt him: Theſe added to his Lodging, proves ſometimes as much or more than the original Debt; and yet, perhaps, the Creditor never the nearer being ſatisfied. The Juſtneſs of taking which Fees I refer to the Legiſlators to conſider of.

Having ſtept thus far into the Diſcovery of Matters, I ſhall give you likewiſe an Account what the Keeper makes of his Lodgings, and alſo name you the Chambers, as they are called by the Priſoners, and their ſeveral Rates, and then give all in one groſs Sum. And firſt, to begin with the ſeveral Rooms, at three Pence ℘ Night, with the Number of Beds therein contained, two Perſons lying in a Bed for the moſt Part.

Chambers at 3 d. ℘ Night.

The Star Chamber hath three Beds for five Men	8 s. 9 d.
The New Chamber, four Beds	14 s.
The Carpenter's Chamber hath four Beds	14 s.
Two Hoppets, two Beds	7 s.
Another little Hoppet with a ſingle Bed	1 s. 9 d.
The Sun Chamber, four Beds	14 s.
The Horn Chamber and the Hoppet, three Beds	10 s. 6 d.
The Checquer Chamber and the Hoppet, three Beds	10 s. 6 d.
Weekly is	4 l. 0 s. 6 d.

Chambers at 2 d. ℘ Night.

The inner Knights Ward, four Beds	9 s. 4 d.
The outward Knights Ward, three Beds	7 s.
The inner Portcullis, four Beds	9 s. 4 d.
The outward Portcullis, three Beds	7 s.
Weekly is	1 l. 12 s. 8 d.

Chambers (or Lodgings) at 1 d. ℘ Night.

The Long Ward, twelve Beds	14 s.
The Lumbry, twelve Beds	14 s.
The Womens Hole and Hoppet, five Beds	5 s. 10 d.
Weekly is	1 l. 13 s. 10 d.

The Lodgings, at this Rate, amount to ſeven Pound ſeven Shillings ℘ Week: And is in a Year, three hundred ſixty one Pound, fourteen Shillings four Pence.

Now, if an Objection ſhould be, 'That there 'is not ſo many conſtantly, and that ſometimes 'Men die, and then the Money is loſt.

To this I anſwer: That it may and will be affirmed, that take thoſe who are abroad upon Security, which likewiſe pay for their Lodging, with thoſe that are within, which muſt pay, that then theſe Beds would not contain them.

And to the ſecond, That when Men do die, and though they be maintained in their Sickneſs, and buried after their Deaths, by the Charity of the Houſe; yet the Keeper will ſeize upon whatſoever they have in the Houſe, as Cloaths, Bedding, (if they have any) or other Matters, unleſs he be paid his Lodging-Rent by ſome Friend; a Cuſtom not uſual, 'till Covetouſneſs turn'd the Key: But if a Man had been buried at the Charge of the Houſe, his Cloaths were, by the Stewards and Aſſiſtants, expoſed to Sale among the Priſoners, and the Money for them received was put into the Maſter of the Box his Hand, for repairing the Loſs of the Stock by ſuch Diſburſements.

Having peeped into every Room of the Houſe, I think I had beſt ſtep down into the Cellar too, and out of Barrels of Beer and Ale I ſhall find the Keeper hath a very conſiderable Profit running into his Purſe.

He is the Head Butler of King Lud's Houſe; only, for his Eaſe, he lets it out to another, which is no Priſoner, who allows him ſixteen Shillings a Barrel for all the Beer and Ale that is drawn in the Cellar. The Tobacco he meddles not with, but allows that Profit to his Under-Butler, with which, it is ſuppoſed he finds Fire, Pipes, and Candles, and that, I think, is all he can do.

What he pays a Barrel for his Beer and Ale to the Brewer I know not, but it is ſold to Priſoners at two Pence a full Pot for Beer, and two Pence a Quart for Ale, though none of the ſtrongeſt.

His certain weekly Draught I know not, but did you but ſee the Cellar, how it is daily throng'd with Priſoners and their Friends, you would gueſs it to be about twenty Barrels in a Week.

Now, ſuppoſe it ſo, and that he pays the Brewer twelve Shillings a Barrel for both, which is as much as it is worth; then this Kind of Trade brings in the Keeper about four Pound a Week, for which he wets not his Finger. This, if conſtant, comes to two hundred and eight Pounds ℘ Year. Now, notwithſtanding all this, yet ſuch is the covetous Cruelty of the Keeper and his Turnkeys, that if any Drink be ſent to a Priſoner by a Friend, they will take it away at the Door, and give it to ſuch as leaſt want it, and ſometimes break the Veſſels, though, perhaps, the Perſon it was ſent to, is ready to periſh for want of a Draught of it. I hope he hath no Order of the Lord Maior and Court of Aldermen for theſe Kind of Practices. Authority, I am ſure, does think that the Profit thereof belongs to the Priſon, but I find that it is tranſmitted into Black Fryars. This added to his other Incomes by Lodgings, doth amount to betwixt 5 or 600*l.* ℘ Annum, beſides his Fees at the Door, which I hope is more than the Conſcience of a good Magiſtrate will ſuffer to be the Annuity of one Goaler only. I need not trouble myſelf to conclude with a Prayer to the Magiſtrate, for regulating theſe Things, becauſe the Beginning ſupplies that in ſpecial to the Perſons empowered with Authority, as well as good Conſciences (I hope) to do it. And truly, after my tedious writing of this Tragi-Comedy, I think it fit to repoſe myſelf and Reader with a Song fitted to the Purpoſe, compoſed by a merry Drolliſt, that was lately a Priſoner there.

The SONG.

THE Ninth of February, Fifty and eight,
For to be arreſted it was my hard Lot;
I call'd for a Duce to better my Fate,
Which forc'd me to Ludgate on a Serjeant's Trot.
Where I eſpy'd a muckle tall Man,
Ruſſling of Papers in a little Room;
He look'd like a Turnkey, and aſk'd me my Name,
But he read unto me my fourteen Pence Doom.

Out of his Pocket he pull'd a great Key,
As bright as a Piſtol, it frighted me ſore:
Into a great Room he ſhew'd me the Way,
And for nine Months I could ſcarce find the Door.

I walk'd up and down with a ſorrowful Heart,
At the Sight of the Shackles, the Bolts, and the Stocks;
The Priſoners ſhew'd me the Cellar ſo dark,
Which drowned me faſter than Doors and their Locks:

Where a Crab-footed Tapſter ſtar'd me in the Face,
He told me a Running Aſſiſtant there ſtood:
He aſk'd me four Groats for Candles and Bread;
I told him I never was us'd to ſuch Food.

An aged Man with a Broom I eſpy'd,
I thought he'd been going to ſweep the Streets,
He told me he would me a Lodging provide,
But firſt I muſt pay eighteen Pence for my Sheets.

Then I to a Court of Juſtice was call'd,
Thinking ſome Law or Religion to hear,
Becauſe two Books before him lay ſpread:
But, alas! they were Orders for Pris'ners to fear.

A Garniſh then was buzz'd in my Ear;
With that methought my Money grew ſcant:
I afterwards found what I then did not fear;
But a Cloak to my Back I i'th' Morning did want.

To this I ſubjoin another very memorable Tract, concerning the four Hoſpitals of London, when firſt eſtabliſhed with good and pious Orders, for the better Government of them. Which are ſtill in Force, and printed occaſionally, for the more common Information of Governours, and other Officers concerned.

CHAP. VII.

The Order of the Hoſpitals of King Henry the viijth, and King Edward the vjth, viz. St. Bartholomew, Chriſt's, Bridewell, St. Thomas's. By the Maior, Commonaltie, and Citizens of LONDON; Governours of the Poſſeſſions, Revenues, and Goods of the ſayd Hoſpitals, Anno 1557.

Offley Maior.

Martis viceſſimo Octavo die Septembris, Anno Phil. & Marie quarto & quinto.

At this Court it was agreed, that all the ſeveral Articles and Ordinances hereafter mentioned and expreſſed, and openly read to the Court here this Day, concerning the Governance and Ordering from henceforth of the Houſe of the Poore in West Smithfield, and the Hoſpitals of this Citie, lately deviſed by Sir Martin Bowes, and Sir Rowland Hill, Knights, and divers other of my Maſters th'Aldermen and the Commoners of this Citie, being Governours and Surveyors at this preſent, of the ſaid Houſes, and of all the Lands and other Revenues of the ſame whatſoever, ſhall be entred of Record, and from henceforth be put in due Execution from Time to Time, according to the true Meaning of the ſame.

The Ordinances and Rules for the Governors of the Hoſpitalls in the Citie of London.

To be redd in every of the ſaid Hoſpitalls at a full Courte once every Quarter, either xiiij Days before or after the Quarter Day.

Whereas the moſt excellent and worthy Princes our late Soveraigne Lordes Kinge Henry the viiith, and King Edward the vith, of their bountifull Benignitie and charitable Devotion towardes the Succour and Suſtentation of the Poor in this Citie, have geven and graunted by their Lettres Patents, with Indentures of Covenants and Bandes to the ſaid Princes and their Succeſſors, by the Citie made for Performation thereof, to the Maior and Cominaltie Citizens of this ſaid Citie, aſwell iiij ſeveral Hoſpitalls, (that is to ſay) By King Henry the viijth, one Hoſpitall called St. Bartholmewes the Little, and by Kinge Edward the vith iij other Hoſpitalls, called Chriſt's Hoſpital, Bridewell Place, and St. Thomas Hoſpital; as alſo certain Lands and Tenements, towards the Relief and Maintenance of ſuche Poore as there are releved, and have alſo, by their Kingly Prerogative, graunted unto the Maior and Cominaltie, for the better Government of the ſame, amongſt other Things in the ſaid Lettres Patents, Authority and Power to elect and chuſe Governours and Officers; and alſo to make and conſtitute good and holſome Ordinances for godlie Maintenance thereof: By vertue of the whiche Lettres Patents We the ſaid Maior and Cominaltie have made and ordained theſe Rules and Ordinances in Maner and Forme followinge.

Firſt, How manye Governours ſhal be elected; the Maner of their Election; and how they ſhal be divided; and of their Continuance.

THE Number of Perſons that ſhal Governe the ſaid iiij Hoſpitals beforementioned ſhal be Lxvi at the leaſt, and xiiij of them to be Aldermen, (that is to ſay) vj Graye Clokes and viij Callabre, with Lij grave Commoners, Citizens and Fremen of the ſaid Citie, whereof iiij to be Skriveners, at the leaſt. To th'Intent that in every Houſe may be one or moe, as Need ſhall require. And ij of the Aldermen of the Auncients Graye Clokes to be Governours General of all the ſaid iiij Hoſpitalls; the Senior of thoſe twaine to be Comptroler, and the other Surveior; and other xij Aldermen and Lij Commoners ſhal be devided equaly to the ſaid iiij Houſes, (that is to ſay) for every Houſe xvj Perſons at the leaſt, to wit, iij Aldermen, whereof one ſhal be a Graye Cloke, who ſhal be their Preſident, and xiij Commoners, whereof one ſhal be their Treaſurer.

And yearly, upon the Day of St. Matthew th'Apoſtell, at a General Court to be houlden in Chriſte Hoſpitall, or els in ſome other convenient Place, by the ſaid Governours, or the moſt part of them, ſhal be elected and choſen new Governours, to govern the ſaid Hoſpitalls for ij Years then next enſuinge, from the Feaſt of St. Michaell th'Archangell; and none to remain above ij Years, except upon reſonable Conſideration, and by Conſent of the greateſt Number of the ſaid general Courte.

And if it happen any of the ſaid Governours do dye within the Year (as God defend) being under the Degre of an Alderman, or the Threſorer (the Governours of St. Bartholomew's Hoſpitall being excepted) the Governors of the ſaid Hoſpitall in the ſaid Howſe where he ſerved, ſhal at the fartheſt within one Month after his Deceaſe, at a full Court, then and there elect and chuſe one other Commoner, in the Place of him ſo deceaſed. But if it happen, that either the Comptroler, or Surveyor General, or any of the Aldermen or Threſorers of the ſaid Hoſpitall, (except before excepted) ſhall happen to die, (as God defend) Then at a generall Courte to be holden in Chriſte's Hoſpitall or elſwhere, as before, within x Dayes at the fartheſt, after the Deceaſe, then and there ſhall by them be choſen one other or more in the Place or Places of him or them ſo deceaſed, and as often as it ſhal happen.

At whiche General Courte, being kept on St. Matthew's Daye, there ſhall alſo be choſen for Auditors Generall of the Accompts of all the ſaid Houſes, xvj Perſons, iiij of every Houſe, to wit, an Alderman and iij Commoners, and the Aldermen to be the Ancients of ſuch as have not been Maior, to audite aſwell the Threſorer and Renters Accompts, as alſo th'Accompts of all other Officers in any wiſe accomptable to the ſaid Hoſpitalls.

The Election being thus finiſhed, Then ſhall be called in before the ſaid Courte, all the Bedells, who ſhall deliver up their Staves and depart the Houſe, that the Opinion of the Court may be harde touching the doing of their Duties. To the entent, yf any of them be faultye, that he or they may be rebuked or diſmiſſed, at the Diſcretion of the ſaid Court; and thereupon to deliver unto ſuche as then remayne, their Staves, and again eſtabliſhe them.

And for the better Order and Redines in the general Election, the Governours of every Houſe, xx Days before the ſaid Day of Election, at a Courte to be holden in every of the ſaid Hoſpitals, ſhall then and there confer together, and nominate and put in Writing the Names of ſuch Number of grave Citizens, as by their Diſcretion ſhal be thought mete to ſuccede in the Places of ſuch as have remained their full Time. To the Intent, that out of the ſaid Number ſo nominated, ſuch of them as ſhal by the ſaid General Courte be thought mete, may ſuccede and be Governours for ij Years then next enſuinge.

And the ſame Election, aſwell made upon St. Matthew's Daye, as at any other Time after, within the Yeare, either at a Generall Courte or otherwiſe in any of the ſaid Hoſpitalls, the ſame ſhal be preſented in Writinge to the Lord Maior and Courte of Aldermen in the Guild Hall, at the next Courte there holden after the ſaid Day of Election, by them to be ratifyed and confirmed, or els to be reformed according to the Appointment of the ſaid Courte of Aldermen.

And within viij Dayes at the fartheſt, next after the Confirmation of the ſaid Election generall by the Lord Maior and Courte of Aldermen, the Threſorer of every Houſe ſhal cauſe a Courte to be warned, and call thereunto all their Governours, both Aldermen and Commoners, as well the ould remaininge as alſo thoſe that be new elected; and every Man to take his Place according to the Degree of the Company whereof he is free, except he be ſuch a one as have borne th'Office of an Alderman, or Sheriffe, or hath fined for the ſame, who ſhal take Place between the Aldermen and the Threſorer: Then ſhal the Clerke read the general Charge of every Governour as followeth.

The Charge of every Governour in general.

WHereas upon St. Matthew's Day laſt paſt, at a general Court, your Worſhips now here preſent were then elected Governours of this ſaid Hoſpitall for the ij Years next enſuinge from the Feaſt of St. Michaell th' Archangell, to ſuccede in the Places of ſuch as be departed, according to the Confirmation and Ratification of the Lord Maior and Court of Aldermen in that Behalf: Your Charge ſhal be in this Government, that every of you endevour yourſelves, with all your Wiſdomes and Powers, faithfully and dilligently to ſerve in this Vocation and Calling; which is an Office of high Truſt and Worſhip. For ye are called to be the faithful and true Diſtributors and Diſpoſers of the Goods of Almighty God to his poor and needy Members. In the which Office and Calling, yf ye ſhal be found negligent and unfaithfull, you ſhal not onlie declare yourſelves to be the moſt unthankfull and unworthie Servants of Almightie God, being put in Truſt to ſee to the Reliefe and Succor of his poor and needy Flock; but alſo ye ſhal ſhew yourſelves to be very notable and great Enemyes to that Worke, whiche moſt highlie doth advaunce and beautifie the Comonweale of this Realme, and chiefly of this Citie of London. For by this moſt commendable and notable Policie, Idleneſs, the Enemy of all Vertue, is ſuppreſſed and baniſhed; the tender Youth of the needy and idle Beggars vertuouſly brought up; the Number of ſicke, ſore, and miſerable People refreſhed, harbored, and cured of their Maladies; and the vile and ſturdy Strumpet compelled to labour and travaile in profitable Exerciſes: Requiring every of you faithfully to travaile in this your Office and Callinge, that this Worke may have his Perfection, and that the needy Number committed to your Charge be diligentlye and holmſomlye provided for. And by your Care towards theſe poore and needy Members of Chriſte, you ſhall be rewarded at his Hand, and receive his Bleſſing in this World, and in the World to come the Joyes everlaſting.

AND foraſmuch as your Worſhips now preſent, aſwell ſuch as be new elected, as alſo ſuch as remaine of the oulde, are now all confirmed and eſtabliſhed Governours; it ſhall be neceſſarie, that preſentlie from amongſt you there be choſen and elected iij Almoners, for the dailie overſight of the Houſe, as Aſſiſtants with the Threſorer; ij Scruteners to gather in the Legacies; with a Rent-gatherer, and ij Surveiors.

And to the Intent that every of your Worſhips may the better underſtande what in this Government yow have to doe duringe the Time you are in Office, now ſhal be preſentlie read unto yow the Lettres Patents and Graunte from the Kinge, with the Indentures of Covenants; thereby to ſhew to yow, aſwell what Benefits the Citie receiveth by the ſame; as alſo what is by the Citie to be done in that Behalf, for the Maintenance, Succour, and Reliefe of the Poore; with the true Eſtate of the Howſe, aſwell the Foote of the Threſorer's Account, as alſoe the Number of Children remaining and Penſioners relieved at the Cities Charge.

And for the better inſtructinge of your Worſhips touching the Government herein; you ſhal underſtand, that by Vertue of theis Graunts from the Kinge, the Maior and Cominaltie, Citizens of the Citie of London, Governours of the Poſſeſſions, Revenues, and Goods of the ſaid Hoſpitalls, have made and conſtituted certaine Ordinances and Rules, declaring aſwell in what Maner your Courtes ſhal be kept, as alſoe the Charge of every ſeverall Governour, accordinge to his Office and Appointment; with the Charge alſoe of everye Officer to the ſaid Hoſpitall appertaining, viz.

Firſt, of General Courtes, touching the Government of all the iiij Howſes, and what in them is to be done.

A Generall Courte is to be underſtoode, when the greater Parte of the Governours be aſſembled, that is to ſay, xxxij at leaſte in Number, for Generall Cauſes appertaining to all the iiij Houſes. Of the which Number, at the leaſte foure ſhal be Aldermen, and one of them to be a Graie Cloke. And whatſoever ſhal be agreed by ſuch a Number, the ſame to be taken as Matters agreed by a Generall Courte, and ſhal not be altered or annihilated, but by a Generall Courte, incident to Matters concerninge the generall Government of all the iiij Houſes.

Item, That no Governour, either Alderman or Threſorer of any of the ſaid Hoſpitalls, be taken into the Place of any ſuch as ſhal happen to die within the Year, otherwiſe than by Election at a Generall Courte, to be called in that Behalf, as before. And that the Names of the ſaid Perſon or Perſons ſoe elected and choſen, be preſented unto the Lord Maior and Courte of Aldermen, before they be called unto the ſaid Hoſpitall, to receive their Charge.

Item, That no Chief Officer, in any of the ſaid Hoſpitalls, to wit, either Clerke, Hoſpitaler, or Matrone, be admitted, or removed, without a Generall Courte, or els by Conſent of the Lord Maior and Courte of Aldermen.

Item, That no Leaſes be lett in Reverſion, proceeding of the King's Gifte, or otherwiſe generally graunted to all the Howſes, but one Year before the Years of the ould Leaſes be expired; and that the ſame Lands or Howſes be firſt ſurveied, and no ſuche Graunte to be made but by a Generall Courte: To the Intent, that according to the Covenant with the Prince, the moſt Profit may be made thereof, and to be onlye employed to the Benefit of the Poore, and not otherwiſe; except in Wages, and reaſonable Conſideration to the Officers ſerving in the ſaid Hoſpitalls.

Of a full Court in this Hoſpitall called Chriſt's Hoſpitall, for weighty Cauſes, and what is thereat to be done.

A Full Courte ſhal be when xiij of the Governours of this ſaid Hoſpitall be aſſembled at the leaſt, whereof two ſhal be Aldermen, the one of them to be the Preſident with ten Commoners beſides the Threſorer; and what theſe xiij Perſons or vij of them at the leaſte, the Preſident being one of the Number, ſhal decree, ordaine, or agree upon, the ſame ſhal ſtand in Force, and ſhal not be altered nor diſallowed, except by a like Courte to be called in that behalfe.

Item, That no Governour be taken into this Hoſpitall in the Place of any that ſhal happen to die within the Year, except it be at a full Courte, to be holden as afore, for weighty Cauſes; and the Name of him ſo admitted, to be preſented to the Maior and Courte of Aldermen, before he be called to receive his Charge.

Item, That no Sale of Land, Tymber, or Wood, Leaſe, Alienation, Buildinge, or Reparation be determined or done, of Lands or Tenements geven to th'onlye Uſe of Chriſt's Hoſpitall, or in any wiſe belonginge properlie to the ſame, except at a full Courte, to be holden in the ſaid Hoſpitall as before.

Item, That no Reward be geven to any Perſon above the Somme of v Shillings at once; which muſt be done by the Conſent of the Threſorer and one of the Almoners at the leaſt; except firſt the ſame be graunted and determined in a full Courte, as before.

Item, That there be no Leaſes lett in Reverſion but one Year before the ould Leaſe be expired; and that no ſuch Graunt be made but by a full Courte, as before, or els not; and that all the ſame Leaſes be drawn in Paper by a Scryvenor, one of the Governours of the ſaide Hoſpitall, before they be engroſſed; and he to be allowed for every Draught accordinge to the Quantitie: And the Clerke of the ſaid Hoſpitall to engroſſe them, and to procure the Sealing of all ſuch Leaſes before the Lord Maior and Courte of Aldermen, in the Chamber of London, where the Comon Seal of the Hoſpitall doeth remaine.

That noe manner of Bargaines be made for Timber, Tile, or ſuch like, or any other Neceſſaries for the ſaide Howſe, before the ſame be determined at a full Courte, to be holden as before; and the Perſons then and there to be named and appointed which ſhal be the Doers thereof.

What is to be done at Ordinary Courtes, when two or more of the Governours be aſſembled, the Threſorer being one.

TO examine, order, and puniſhe any Officers that ſhal be found to offend at any Time within this ſaide Hoſpitall.

To make Proviſion in convenient Time, for Victualls, Fuell, and other Neceſſaries, as Cloth, Woll, Flexe, Towe, and Lether, and other ſuch like, whatſoever ſhal be by them thought needfull for the Furniture of the Houſhold and Reliefe of the Children.

To paye the ordinary Fees to all ſuche as are allowed to be Officers, and all ſuch others, as the Governours of this Howſe have graunted any Penſion unto.

Touching the Admitting of Children, and Graunting of Penſioners, to be either paid in this Houſe or in Pariſhes.

THere ſhal be no Childe admitted into this Hoſpitall, except it be firſt declared to this Howſe, by a Certificate in Writinge from a Veſtrie holden in the Pariſhe by whom the Suite is made, and the ſame to be ſubſcribed with the Alderman of the Ward, or his Deputy, and vj of the Auncients of the ſame Pariſhe at the leaſt, that the ſaid Childe was there borne in lawfull Matrimonie, or els in no wiſe to be admitted. And that no poore Perſon be admitted to any Penſion, either to be paid in the Pariſhe or in this Hoſpitall, without the like Certificate as before: with Declaration, that the ſaid Parties have continued in this Citie by the Space of iij Years, except by Warrant from the Lord Maior and Court of Aldermen. And that this Ordinance touching the admittinge of Children, be not broken, except in Caſes of Extremity, where Loſſe of Life, and Periſhing, would preſently followe, if they be not received into this ſaid Hoſpitall; which is to be conſidered of by the Threſorer and two Almoners at the leaſte; and the ſame Childe to be entred into the Courte Booke, and by the Threſorer and Almoners to be underwritten, for the Clerk's Warrant in that Behalfe. And that all Bills received from Pariſhes, as before, either for Children or Penſioners, be kept on a File; and that there be geven Warrants to the Pariſhe, underwritten by the Threſorer and other Governours, what ſhal be paid to any ſuch Penſioner wekly, ſo long as they live, or ſhal have nede thereof, and dwell in the Pariſhe, being not otherwiſe provided for.

For putting Children forth to Service.

ITEM, The Threſorer, with one other of the Governours at the leaſt, ſhal put forth any of the Children of this Howſe to Service, having a careful Regard to whom they be put; chieflie, that they be honeſt Perſonnes, and ſuch as be well able to keep them, and to bring them up to ſuch Facultie, Service, or Occupation, as they may hereafter be good Members in the Commonweal. Whereas, without ſuch Regard taken, they may happen to become more poore than their poore Parents; and alſo become evil Members, to the great Griefe of ſuch as daily relive them in this Howſe; and that, as nigh as they can, to binde them with none but with Freemen of this Citie: And before they be ſo put foorthe, being Men Children, they may write and reade and caſt Accomptes, being found apt thereunto.

And that ſuche of the Children as be pregnant and very apt to Learninge, be reſerved and kept in the Grammar Schole, in hope of Preferment to the Univerſitie; where they may be vertuouſly educated, and in Time become learned and good Members in the Commonweale.

For the Examination of ſingle Women, being gotten with Childe: And the Perſons with whom they have committed the Offence.

AND that two Governours or more, whereof the Threſorer to be one, if he be not Sicke or out of Town, ſhal alſoe at any Time examine all ſingle Women, or others, being brought into this Howſe with Childe; and cauſe the Parties whom they accuſe to be ſent for before them; and upon his or their Confeſſion, to cauſe him or them to enter into Bands with Sureties to the Maior and Cominaltie, to ſee the ſame Childe kept from the Charge of this Citie and Hoſpitalls; and to ſee the Woman provided for, from that Time untill ſhe be delivered and churched; with ſuch other Covenants as the Caſe ſhal require. And if the ſaid Parties doe not confeſſe the Facte, and the ſame, by all Preſumptions, likely to be true; they ſhal be committed to Ward, there to remaine untill farther Tryal may be had thereof; or els put in Sureties to anſwer this Courte from Time to Time, untill the Truthe may be knowen. And theſe Matters to be uſed according to the Diſcretion of the Threſorer and two other Governours at the leaſte. And this is ordained, to avoide the laying of ſuche Children in the Streets, whereby this Hoſpitall, upon ſuch Extremities, ſhould otherwiſe be charged thereby.

GOVERNOURS.

A Comptroller } General.
A Surveior
A Preſident.
A Threſorer.
iij Almoners.
ij Scruteners.
A Renter.
ij Surveiors.

The Comptroller General.

ITEM, That the Comptroller be warned every General Courte, and alſoe to every Full Courte, which ſhal be holden in every of the ſeveral Howſes for weightie Cauſes: And that the Threſorer of the Howſe, or Clerke by his Appointment, where ſuche full Courte ſhal happen to be called, Do firſt informe the Comptroller of the Matter and Cauſes. So that it may be at his Choice and Pleaſure whether he will be there or not: Or whether it will pleaſe him to appointe ſome other Time in that Behalfe: Notwithſtandinge, if he be not there, yet that he be afterward informed how the ſame Matter was ended and determined.

Item, That after the Generall Courte, or Day of Election, the Copie of the ſaid Election being confirmed by the Lord Maior and Courte of Aldermen, ſhal be delivered unto the Comptroller; to th'Intent, by the ſame remaininge by him, he maye perceive from Time to Time, who be the Governours, for the Year enſuinge, for every ſeveral Howſe.

Item, That the Threſorer of every Howſe, or the Clerke, being thereunto appointed, doe, after the Generall Audite of every Howſe, deliver into th'Hands of the Comptroller, the juſt and true Foote of the Accompte of either of the Howſes, with the Number of Children and Penſioners; and the ſame to be done within vj Daies after the ſaid Audite Day at the fartheſt.

The Surveior General.

ITEM, That the Surveior General be likewiſe warned to every General Courte: And the Comptroller being not in Towne, he to be warned to any ſuch full Courte, as ſhal be houlden in any of the ſaid ſeveral Howſes for weightie Cauſes: And to be informed likewiſe by the Threſorer, or the Clerke by his Appointment, of the Cauſes; to th'Intent, that it may alſoe be at his Choice, whether he will be there or no, or otherwiſe refere the Time untill he may more conveniently.

The Preſident.

ITEM, That the Preſident of every ſeveral Howſe ſhal be taken as Chiefe Ruler and Governour, next unto the Lord Maior for the Time being, of the Howſe whereunto he is choſen. And his Authoritie ſhal be, from Time to Time at his Pleaſure, and as to him ſhal ſeme good, to cauſe the Number of the Governours to be called together; and to reprove and reprehend any Governour in his Office, if there ſhal appere good Cauſe unto him. And all Courtes for weighty Matters ſhal by the Preſident be appointed; and without his Perſon ſhal no weighty Matters be determined or agreed upon.

The Threſorer's Charge.

YOur Office and Charge is to receive and paye all ſuch Sommes of Money as by any Meanes ſhal apertayne or belonge to the relievinge and comfortinge of the poore Children of this Howſe, and Penſioners here paid; and to make a true and juſt Accompte thereof, within iij Months at the fartheſt, after th' End of every Year, during the Time that you ſhal remain Threſorer. And the ſame your Accompte to be made unto the Auditors thereunto appointed; and what Somme or Sommes of Money in the Foote of your Accompte by them ſhal be found due to the ſaid Houſe, you ſhal pay within twentie Dayes at the fartheſt after the ſaid Audite be done and finiſhed, unto the Threſorer whiche ſhal ſucceed you, except you remain Threſorer yourſelfe.

And whereas the Clerke, to th' Intent you ſhould be leſſe troubled, is appointed to many Receipts and Payments, you ſhall, for the more Securitie therein, once every Moneth call him to an Accompt. And on the Saturday before the Moneth's End, you ſhal at Ordinary Courtes appoint two Auditors, aſwell to audite the ſame his Accompte, as alſoe the Accompte of Blackwell Hall, or other ſuch like: And if he the ſaid Clerke, or any other, whoſe Accompte ſhal be ſo audited, do not deliver unto you the Money found to remaine in their Hands by the ſaid Auditors, within three Dayes next after at the fartheſt, the ſame being by you demaunded; you ſhal then advertiſe the Lord Maior thereof, (the Preſident not being in Towne) and what any of them ſhal adviſe you therein, the ſame to doe, for your better Safety in that Behalfe. And although here be limited one Moneth for them to accompte; yet you ſhal at your Pleaſure, at any Time within the Moneth, your ſelfe call them to Accompte, and uſe ſuch Means as may be for the moſt Suretie therein; detaining into your owne Cuſtodie the Overplus, if any Money be in their Hands; or by any other Waies or Means, as to you ſhal ſeem good in that Behalfe. Provided always, that the Clerke of this Howſe exceed not at any Time in Arearage x*l.* at the moſt. And as you ſhal receive the Overplus from him, or any other of the Officers at any Time being found: So ſhal you, if apparent need require for Payments to be made by them, deliver ſuche competent Somme or Sommes of Money, as to your Diſcretion ſhal ſeme good.

You ſhal, at your firſt Entrance into your Office, or within one Moneth after at the fartheſt, receive into your Hands an Inventory of all and all manner of Goods in the ſaid Hoſpitall, aſwell at the Hands of the Matron, as alſo at any other Officer charged in this Howſe; and the ſame ſhal be indented, th'one Part thereof to remain in your Cuſtody, and the other in the Cuſtodie of the Perſons charged. And at every Year's End, to peruſe the Inventory of the Goods, during your abiding in Office. And if it ſhal happen, that any ſuch Officer charged, ſhal depart in your Time; you ſhal ſee the Goods, in all Reſpects whatſoever, that were by Indenture committed to the Parties ſo departing, delivered over by Indenture, as before, into the Cuſtodie of the new Officers, what or whoſoever they be. And if there be any Parte or Parcell thereof wanting, which in Conſcience ought to be anſwered, you ſhal cauſe the Partie ſo departing away to pay for the ſame, if otherwiſe they cannot geve Account thereof to your Satisfaction; or els to bring them before a Court, that order may be taken therein.

You have alſo Authoritie to call before you all ſuch Perſonnes or Officers, as have the Collection or gathering of any Somme or Sommes of Money due to the ſaid Howſe, and to demaund an Accompt of their Doing, aſwell of the Collectours of the Pariſhes, as alſo of the Scrutiners, Almoners, Renters, and others whoſoever.

And all the Officers in this Howſe, aſwell Men as Women, whoſoever, (taking Wages of the Citie) not behaving themſelves faithfully in their Offices wherein they ſerve; when any ſuch Thing ſhal happen, you ſhal call them before you, and admoniſh them for the firſt and ſecond Time at the moſt. But if th'Offence be very grievous, and to the Hinderance of the Howſe, then the Matter ſhal be brought before the Courte, and the Parties thereunto anſwer, and abide ſuch Order as ſhal be taken in that Behalfe.

And you ſhal not make Paiment of any Somme or Sommes of Money for any manner of Proviſion of the ſaid Hoſpitall, except it be for nurſing of Children, and ordinary Penſions, Wages, and Fees, before it be condeſcended and determined by iiij of the Governours, and one of them to be an Almoner: From whoſe Hands you ſhal have the Bill for your ſufficient Warrant in that Behalfe.

And you muſt diligently foreſee, that ſuch Neceſſaries and Proviſions as are to be made, as of Butter, Cheeſe, Hering, Wood, Coal, and other whatſoever; that the ſame be provided in due Time, to the Profit and Commoditie of the ſaid Howſes. And if any withdrawinge of the Sommes graunted to the Maintenance of the ſaid Howſes, ſhal at any Time appear unto you, by Reaſon whereof the ſaid Howſes may come to any great Afterdeale; you ſhal then geve Knowledge thereof in due Time, deſiringe the Ayde and Helpe of the reſt of the Governours, for the Readineſſe thereof.

And foraſmuch as your Office muſt of Neceſſity be an Office of much Paines and Attendance, by Reaſon whereof you ſhal have Occaſion to be oftner in the Hoſpitall than other of the Governours ſhal be; it is therefore ordered, that you, with one Almoner, ſhal from Time to Time, in the Abſence of other the Governours, have Power and Authoritie to examine all ſuch Beggars, Vagabondes, Strumpets, or ſingle Women gotten with Childe, and other Perſonnes that ſhal happen to be taken and brought before you by the Beadles, or els ſent by the Alderman, Deputie, or Conſtable of any Warde of this Citie; and then to examine, commit to Priſon, reprove, baniſhe, put to Labour, puniſhe, or being diſeaſed, to admit into the Hoſpitalls at your Diſcretion. And your Warrant in ſending any to the Hoſpitalls, ſhal be ſufficient to the Hoſpitaler for the receiving of the ſame.

This is your Charge, which we require of you diligently to obſerve. And your Labours and Paines herein ſhal be rewarded at the Hands of Almightie God, whom ye chiefly ſerve in this Office. For, as the Apoſtle ſaith, Godlineſs ſhal have his Reward, not onely in this World, but alſo in the World to come.

The three Almoners Charge of this Howſe.

YOur Office and Charge ſhal be at all Times as ye conveniently may, to viſit Chriſt's Hoſpitall, and there to learne and knowe the true Number of Children that the Howſe is charged with: Aſwell thoſe that are harboured in the Howſe, as alſoe thoſe that are found at the Charges of the ſame in the Countrie; for fear that you not knowing the true Number, ſhall exceade in burdeninge and charginge of the Howſe.

Alſo ye ſhall enquire of their Diet and Entertainment; and of the Quietneſs of the Howſe, and whether every Officer in his Callinge doe his Dutie; as, the Schole Maſters in Teachinge, the Matron in governinge the Women, and keping the Proviſion of Bedds, Sheets, Shirts, and other committed to her Charge; the Nurſes in waſhinge and keping cleane the Children; the Steward in dividing of Victuals in due Time, and at reaſonable Priſes; the Cooke in holſome dreſſinge, and cleane ſervinge of the ſame; the Butler in providinge their Proportion of Bread and Drinke; the Porter in geving of his Attendance upon the ſafe keping of the Howſe; the Keper of your Cole Howſe, in ſaving of your Fuell, and keping cleane of the Cloiſter, and all other outward Parts of the Howſe; and the Clerke in writinge and entringe of Things done and determined from Time to Time, in ſuch Sort and Manner as every of them is bound to do by his Office, which, in the Book of the Charge of Officers, you ſhal find plainly ſet out. And if any ſhal be found not to doe their Dutie, you ſhal reprove and admoniſh them, that they amend and be no more found faultie; and that if they doe not, you will cauſe them to be brought before the Preſident and Governours at the full Courte: That in like Manner as they were admitted by them, ſo ſhal they before them be diſcharged, to their Shame and Reproch for ever. And that, ſettinge aſide all Favour and Affection, if any offend after ij Admonitions, they ſhal be called to a Generall or Full Courte, without longer Sufferance.

And if, by your good Travaile, there ſhal appeare unto you a Lacke of ſome farther Ordinance or Decree for the better Government of the ſaid Howſe or Howſes than before hath been made; then ſhal it be lawfull unto you to penn the ſame Ordinance, and at the next Full Courte to make Preſentation thereof; committing it to their Wiſdomes to be confirmed or rejected; and being agreed upon, the ſame to be entred into this Book of Ordinances.

The Scrutener's Charge.

YOur Office is diligentlie to ſerch and enquire from Time to Time, for all ſuche Giftes, Legacies, and Bequeſts, as have or ſhal be geven or bequeathed to the Succour and Comfort of the Poore, harbored in Chriſt's Hoſpitall; and the ſame to receive at th'ande of the Executors, or other, and to make Paiment thereof unto the Threſorer of the ſaid Hoſpitall for the Time being; receivinge of him your Acquittance for the ſame, keping a Booke alwayes with you of the Particulars thereof. Which Booke ye ſhal bringe to the Auditors of the Howſe, when the Threſorer maketh up his Accompt; to th'Intent the Legacies by you collected, may be conferred with the Receipts that the Threſorer ſhal make received of you.

And for every ſuch Somme or Sommes as ye ſhal happen to collect and receive of any Perſon, ye ſhal make an Acquittance in your Names, as Governours and Scrutiners of the ſaid Hoſpitall.

And finally, when you ſhall happen to be in Companie of good, vertuous, and wealthy Men, you ſhal, to the beſt and uttermoſt of your Wits and Powers, advance, commend, and ſet forth the Order of the ſaid Hoſpitall, and the notable Commodities that enſue to the whole Realm of England, and chiefly to this Citie of London, by Erection of the ſame; and alſoe, how faithfully and truely the Goodes geven to their Uſes, are by the Governours thereof miniſtred and beſtowed.

Ye ſhal alſo enquire who are the Wardens of the Scrivenors; to whom ye ſhal reſort, and moſt heartily pray and deſire, that they will convocate and call their whole Company together, and earneſtly exhort them all, that at the makinge of ſuch Teſtaments as they ſhal be called upon, they put the Teſtatour in Remembrance to commend ſomewhat to the Reliefe of the Poore, provided for in the ſaid Hoſpitall.

And that they may the better perſwade them thereunto, ye ſhal deliver unto the ſaid Wardens, for every Houſholder of that Company, one Bill, wherein is ſet forth the true Declaration of all the Commodities that have enſued by th'Erection of the ſaid Hoſpitalls. Ye ſhal alſo make the like Requeſt to the Biſhop of London for the Time beinge, that he will likewiſe exhort all Spiritual Miniſters within the Citie, not onlye to provoke and ſtirre up from Time to Time their Pariſhioners to yeld and give to the Maintenance of the ſaid Hoſpitalls wekely that they have graunted; but alſo, when God by Sickneſs ſhal viſit or call any of their Pariſhe, that then they faile not to put them in Remembrance to make ſome ſpecial Legacie, to the Reliefe of that great and nedy Number comforted and ſuccored by th'Erection of the ſaid Hoſpitalls.

Alſo ye ſhal make the like Requeſt to the ſaid Biſhop, to require all Preachers, eſpecially ſuche as ſhal preach at Paul's Croſſe, that they twice or thrice in the Quarter at the leaſte, doe move and exhort the People to further the ſaid Worke.

And the like Requeſt ſhal ye make to all ſuch Preachers and learned Men, as your ſelves are acquainted withall. And to the Phyſicians alſo, requiring them, in like Manner, both by their Doctrine and good Report, to advance the ſame.

And at th'ands of him whom ye chiefly ſerve in this Office, which is Almightie God, you ſhal receive your Reward for your painful and faithful Service herein.

The Surveior's Charge.

IN the Moneth of March ye ſhal yerelie ſurvey all ſuch Tenements and Lands as in any wiſe appertayneth to this Howſe. At which Time the Clerke ſhal be redy to attend with a Rentall, wherein ſhal be expreſſed the ſaid Tenements; with the Places and Streets where they are, and their yearly Value, with the Names of the Tenants: And upon the Head of every Tenement ſhal be noted the Terme of Yeares, if it be lett out by Leaſe; and whether the Lord or Tenaunts be bound to Reparations. And alſo thereunto ſhal be joyned ſuch Covenants as ſhal or doe mention any Forfeiture of the ſaid Leaſe, for not obſerving the Covenants; to th'Intent that readily he may know when Faults be made, whether he may re-enter for the ſame. And all Defaults that ſhal be found in ſuch Survey ye ſhal cauſe the Clerke to enter in a Booke; putting apart thoſe Tenements wherewith the Howſe is to be charged with Reparations, from ſuch as the Tenants are bound to repaire. And at the next Courte, (the Preſident being thereat) the ſame Book of Survey ſhall be redd; and ſo much as ſhal be at the ſame Courte determined to be done, the Threſorer ſhal cauſe the Renter to doe or ſee done; whereat the Steward ſhal be alwaies attendant, and the Determination of the ſaid Courte ſhal be the Threſorer's Warrant.

And for your Paines in this Behalfe, you ſhal be recompenced with a Crown in everlaſting Glory, purchaſed by our Saviour Chriſte, for all ſuche as travaile to the Comfort and Succoure of his poore and needy Members.

The Renter's Charge.

YOUR Charge is quarterly to collect and gather for the Terme and Space of one whole Year, all theſe Rents that ſhal be contayned in a Rentall, and delivered yow by the Threſorer of this Howſe for the Time being; and the Sommes by yow collected ye ſhal forthwith pay unto the ſaid Threſorer.

Alſo, ye ſhal doe or cauſe to be done all ſuche Reparations as from Time to Time ſhal be determined by the Governours of the Howſe at a General Courte to be done. Which ſhal be delivered unto you in a Bill, ſubſcribed with the Hand of the ſaid Threſorer.

And of all ſuche Sommes as ye ſhal receive or pay, ye ſhal make Accompt thereof to the ſaid Threſorer. And if at any Time ye ſhall perceive the Tenants negligent in doeing of Reparations, being bound thereunto by Vertue of their Leaſes, ye ſhal give warning thereof unto the Threſorer, that the Governours may take Order therein.

And if ye ſhal perceive any Leaſe or Termes to be nigh expired, or any Suite to be made for them, whereby the Howſe maye take any Commoditie; ye ſhal alſo give Knowledge thereof in due Time.

And the Fees and Rewards that ye ſhal have, ſhal be the ſame that God hath promiſed to all them that lovinglie and carefullie ſeke to ſerve and pleaſe him.

The Clerke's Charge.

YOUR Charge is to be continually attendant here in this Howſe, or ſome other convenient Perſon at your Appointment, ſuche as yow will anſwer for, to attend as well upon the Preſident, the Threſorer, and Governours, whereſoever they ſhal be, here or elſewhere, about the Affairs of the Howſe, being at due Time advertiſed thereof. To th'Intent, if Occaſion require to have anything put in Writinge, that ſuche Order may be alwaies uſed by yow, as the ſame may be entred into the Books of this Howſe, incident to the Matter.

As alſo to attend upon the Collectors and all other Perſonnes, about the Receipts and Payments of Money; which yow ſhal not only receive and pay duly, but from Time to Time and at all Times, when it ſhall pleaſe the Threſorer to requeſt yow thereto, to yield to him a true and juſt Accompt thereof; and ſuch Money as ſhal at any Time be found to remaine in your Hands, the ſame to deliver to the Threſorer within iij Dayes after your Accompt ſo taken either by himſelf or by the Auditors upon whom ye ſhal attend, as you will avoyde the Perill that maye fall thereof.

And all and all manner of Matters whatſoever, at any Courte or othirwiſe, touching the State, neceſſary Affairs, or Governance of this Houſe, that yow ſhal be appointed to write, being requiſite to be kept ſecret, you ſhal not in any wiſe open or diſcloſe to any manner of Perſonne or Perſonnes whatſoever, as you will avoide the Danger that may happen to you for the ſame; and as the Judgment of a Full Courte for wheighty Cauſes ſhal judge and deeme thereof.

You ſhall not deliver any Money in preſt to any Officer of this Howſe, or to any other, without the Threſorer will yow the ſame to doe, or that the ſame by an Ordinary Courte be graunted.

And to th'Intent that all Things in your Office may be the readier anſwered, yow ſhall keep all theſe Bookes followinge, and any other that may be thought hereafter convenient, for the better ordering of all Things appertaininge to the ſame.

Firſt, You ſhal kepe a Courte-Booke, otherwiſe called a Memorial Booke, whereinto yow ſhal write all Things paſſed in any Courte or otherwiſe. And the ſame yow ſhal paſſe into ſuche other Booke or Bookes, as the Cauſe and Matter ſhal require. To th'Intent there may readily be found any Matter that ſhall be required of yow. And whatſoever ſhal be at any Courte by yow written down, the ſame ſhal be redd before the breaking up or departure, that the Governours may perceive thereby, whether yow have entered all Things to their Mindes or not.

Item, You ſhal kepe a Book of all the Children admitted into this Howſe; and the ſame ſhal be called The Booke of Children. Which Booke ſhal containe th'Admiſſion of any Childe into this Howſe, and by what order the ſame was received; directing the ſame to the Number of Files of Bills received from the Pariſhes in that Behalfe. Whereby the Daye of the Moneth and Yeare of their Admiſſion may appeare; thereby to find, when View is taken, whether the ſame Child be living and remaining in the Howſe, or at Nurſe; at Service, or els dead, in ſuch Manner as the ſame Booke is ordered, extant to be ſeen.

Item, Yow ſhal kepe a Booke of all the Nurſes which kepe any of the ſaid Children of this Howſe, and the ſame ſhal you call The Nurſe Booke; thereby to ſhew how many Children every Nurſe hath, their Wages weekly due for them, and a juſt Note of the Daies they were delivered; the better to kepe a juſt Accompt thereof.

Yow ſhal alſo kepe a Penſion Booke, which ſhal declare the Number of the Poore in this Citie, relieved by this Hoſpitall, and paid in the Pariſhes. Wherein ſhal be expreſſed the Time of their Admiſſion, and their Stipends wekely, which ſhal be referred unto the Bills on the Files received for their Admiſſion from Pariſhes, as Warrants for payinge of them in in that Behalfe.

Item, Yow ſhal kepe an Yerely Book for Collections, Legacies, and Benevolences, Boxe Money, and all other Receipts and Payments for the Year, beginninge alwaies the .... Day of September, and ending the .... of the ſame Moneth the next Yeare followinge. Which Booke ſhal ſerve aſwell to accompt with every Pariſh ſeverall; as alſo for the Legacies, and other Accompts beforementioned.

Item, Yow ſhal kepe xiij Moneth Bookes: Every Booke ſhal containe all your Receipts and Paiments received and paid in every Moneth; and they ſhal paſſe under theſe Titles in their Payments, that is to ſay, Boord Wages paide wekely to the Matron and Nurſes; Neceſſaries for the Houſholde; Penſioners paide in this Howſe, with every of their Names recited; and the ſeveral Penſions, with a juſt Accompte what is every Weke due to any of them: And alſo the like for Children abroad at Nurſe. Which Bookes are extant to be ſeen and daily had in Uſe. And at every Quarter's End the Fees and Wages of Officers; as be alſo entred into iiij of their Bookes, ſuch as ſhal be incident to the Cauſe, accordinge to the Time of the Year.

And the Subſtance of all the ſaid xiij Bookes, aſwell Paiments as Receipts, yow ſhal bear over into the former Collection Book immediately upon. To th' Intent, that at th' End of the Year, the ſame Book may contain aſwel your Receipts and Paiments in all Reſpects, as alſo the Threſorers. Wherein together ſhall be the whole Accompte of the Threſorer for the Year ſet down. Which yow ſhal engroſſe and write faire into a Book entitled The Threſorer's Accompts. And beſides the ſame, make for him a true and juſt private Copie thereof verbatim, which he ſhal have under the Auditors Hands, in his own Tuition, for his Diſcharge in that Behalfe.

And yow ſhal not faile to have the ſaid iij Bookes, to wit, The yearly Collection Booke, The Threſorer's Accompt Booke, and The Threſorer's private Copie Booke, all made in a Readineſs in convenient Time for the Audite; and thereupon give Notice to the Threſorer, what Time yow be ready, to th' Intent that the Auditors may be warned to audite the ſame; and that it be within the Time limited.

Item, Yow ſhal kepe a Booke, wherein ſhal be entred all Debts owing to the Howſe by Compoſition, and therein declare their Time of Payment, and the Manner of the Bands; and alſo what Money remaines to any of the Children, which was received at their Admiſſion.

Item, A Booke briefly to declare how many Children from Time to Time have been received out of the Pariſhes of this Citie, and ſhal be entitled Children from Pariſhes; how many of them be living; how many be put to Service; how many be dead; and how long they remained at the Citie's Charge before they were put forth; and how many doe remaine at the Citie's Charge. Therewith to charge the Collectors withall, when they ſhall be importunate in their Suites.

Item, A Book briefly to declare what Bands remaine, and from henceforth ſhall be taken, for keeping of Children, or otherwiſe; and as the ſame Bands be delivered, the ſaid Booke to be diſcharged thereof.

Item, A Booke of all the Lands and Tenements belonging to this Howſe; of whoſe Gift they be; where they lie; of their Butts and Boundes; for what Rent they goe; when all their Leaſes will be expired; with all other ſuche neceſſarie Declarations as in that Behalfe ſhal be nedeful; and this Booke ſhall be entitled The Booke of Lands and Tenements.

Yow ſhal alſo be mindfull of the Time for chooſinge of Collectors, and prepare their Preceipts in a Readineſs for the ſame. And alſo for the viewing of all the Poore in the Citie, and ſuch like, and put the Threſorer in Mind thereof.

And againſt Eaſter yow ſhall prepare a Booke for the Receipt home of Children, to perceive thereby how the ſame will accord with your Nurſe Booke, and Booke of Children; thereby to kepe your great Bookes faire. And note alſo, that yow neither make nor meddle in any other Man's Office, but in your own: And if you ſee anything amiſſe in them, give the Governours to underſtand thereof, who will reform the ſame.

The Matron's Charge.

YOUR Office is an Office of great Charge and Credite. For to yow is committed the Governance and overſight of all the Women and Children within this Hoſpitall.

And alſo to yow is given Authoritie to commaunde, reprove, and rebuke them or any of them. And if any ſhal happen to diſobey, whom yow ſhal not be able to correct, you ſhal from Time to Time make ſuch known unto the Almoners and Governours of the Howſe, that they may take Order with them, as ſhal be thought mete by their Wiſdomes.

Your Charge is alſo to ſearche and enquire whether the Women do their Dutie, in waſhing of the Children's Sheets and Shirts, and in kepeing clean and ſweet thoſe that are committed to their Charge: And alſo in the Beddes, Sheets, Coverlets, and Apparaile, (with kepeing clean Wards and Chambers) mending of ſuch as ſhal be broken from Time to Time. And ſpecially yow ſhal give diligent Hede, that the ſaid Waſhers and Nurſes of this Howſe be alwaies well occupied and not idle: And that their Linnen be wholſomly and cleanly waſhed; and the ſame firſt received of the Kepers, be (after the waſhing thereof) quietly delivered unto them.

Yow ſhal alſo once every Quarter of the Year, examine the Inventorie which ſhal be delivered unto you, of the Implements of the Howſe; as of Beddes, Bolſters, Mattreſſes, Blanquets, Coverlets, Sheets, Pallads, Shirts, Hoſen, and ſuch other; whether any of the ſame be purloyned, embeziled, ſpoiled, or otherwiſe conſumed; and to make ſuch Lacke and Faultes, as by you ſhal be eſpied, knowen unto the Almoners of this Howſe for the Time beinge; that they may take Order therein.

You ſhal alſo give great Charge unto all the Nurſes of every Ward, that no Childe be received by them, before the Name of the ſame Childe be entred into the Ward Booke; nor that any be delivered to Nurſe or otherwiſe, but that they be alſo entred, and to whom they are delivered, with the Day of the Moneth when the ſame is done.

Yow ſhal alſo neither receive nor deliver any thinge that is in the Wardrobe, unleſs yow cauſe the ſame to be written by them that are appointed thereunto. And be ſure to receive from the Nurſes in the Country, when any Children die, their Apparaile.

Yow ſhal take ſuch Order among the Nurſes or otherwiſe, that the Hall be kept ſwete and clean; and ſuffer none of the Children to be there after their Meals, except it be at Service Time, and when it ſhal pleaſe the Governours to appointe them.

Yow ſhall twice or thrice in every Week ariſe in the Night, and goe aſwell into the Sick Warde, as alſo into every other Warde, and there ſee that the Children be covered in the Beddes, whereby they take no Colde.

And laſte of all, if yow ſhal perceive that any Officer or Officers of this Howſe do abuſe themſelves, either in Word or Deed, yow ſhal admoniſh the Governours of the ſame, and not meddle any farther therin, neither to have to do with any Officer or Officers, other than appertaineth to your owne Office and Charge, as aforeſaid.

The Charge of the Nurſes, and Keepers of the Wardes.

YOUR Charge is faithfully and truely to ſerve in this Howſe, and to obey the Matron thereof.

Ye ſhal alſo flie and eſchue all Railing, Scolding, Swearing, and Drunkenneſs.

Ye ſhal in your Behaviour and Doings be vertuous, lovinge, and diligent.

Ye ſhal alſo carefully and diligently overſee, kepe, and governe all thoſe tender Babes and yonglings that ſhal be committed to your Charge, and the ſame holeſomly, cleanely, and ſwetely nooriſhe and bring up.

And in like Maner ſhal ye kepe your Wardes, and every Part thereof, ſwete and cleane.

Ye ſhal alſo, to avoid all Idleneſs when your Charge and Care of keping the Children is paſt, occupie yourſelves in Spinning, Sewing, mending of Sheets and Shirts, or ſome other vertuous Exerciſe, ſuch as you ſhal be appointed unto.

Ye ſhal not reſort, or ſuffer any Man to reſort to you, before ye have declared the ſame to the Almoners, or Matron of this Howſe, and have obtained their Lycenſe and Favour ſo to do.

Ye ſhal at all Times according to ſuch Order as is and ſhal be taken in this Howſe; be within your Wardes and Places of Lodginge, and ſee that all your Children; before they be brought to Bed, be waſhed and cleane, and immediately after, every of yow quietly ſhal go to your Bed, and not to ſit up any longer; and once every Night ariſe, and ſee that the Children be covered, for taking of Colde.

Theis are the ſpecial Partes of your Charge, which ye ſhal endeavour every of yourſelves, with all your Powers to obſerve and kepe; or els ye ſhal not only remaine under the Correction and Puniſhment that ſhall be thought mete by the Diſcretion of the Governours; but alſo to be expulſed and baniſhed this Howſe for ever. And whatſoever Faults ye ſhal perceive by any other Officers of this Howſe, the ſame ye ſhal declare unto the Governours, and not otherwiſe meddle or make but in your own Buſineſs.

The Steward's Charge.

YOUR Office ſhal be to provide all ſuche neceſſary Victuales as ſhal be aſſigned from Time to Time by the Threſorer or Almoners of this Howſe, to the Uſe of the Poore; and the ſame ſo provided, ye ſhal deliver the due Proportion appointed for every Meale unto the Cooke. And this ſhal yow daily doe in the Preſence of the Matron, or one of the Almoners of the Howſe.

Alſoe yow ſhal diligently foreſee what neceſſarie Proviſions are to be made, as of Butter, Cheeſe, Fiſhe, Wood, Cole, &c. and in due Time give Knowledge thereof unto the Threſorer, or one of the Almoners of this Howſe, that Proviſion may be made accordingly.

Yow ſhal not embezell, or convey any maner of Victualls, either to your owne Uſe, or to the Uſe of any Perſon, other than to th' Uſe of this Howſe, as aforeſaid; upon Pain to be deprived of the Howſe, and loſe your Office for ever.

And attendant ſhal yow be upon the Rentar, what Time any Buildinge ſhal be for this Howſe, and upon the Workmen, and carefully to overſee them in all reſpects.

This is your Charge, which ſee that yow doe, and have not to do with any other Man's Office: But if yow eſpy any not to do their Duties faithfully, yow ſhal give Warning thereof to the Governours, and to meddle no farther.

The Officer's Charge, appointed to warn the Collectors and Churchwardens.

YOW ſhal be diligent from Time to Time, when you are required, to warne the Collectors and Churchwardens; aſwell for the bringing in of their Money, and the Preſentation of their Poore, as for any other Cauſes incident thereunto. In the doing whereof, yow ſhal uſe gentle and courteous Speche, as ſhal become yow in that Behalfe.

Yow ſhal alſo ſee that there be aſwell in the Sicke Warde, as alſo in every other Warde, a Booke kept by ſuch a one of the Grammar Children as can readilieſt write, of all the Names of the Children in every Warde; and when any Childe is received into any of the ſaid Wardes, the ſame Childe's Name, with the Day of the Moneth, to be entred. And ſo likewiſe, when any be delivered to Nurſe, or in any wiſe removed, either into the Sicke Warde, or otherwiſe, likewiſe to be entred. And once every Moneth to confer theis Ward-Bookes with the Clerke, to ſee how they will agree with his Bookes.

Yow ſhal alſoe kepe the Wardrobe-Booke, wherein ſhal be written, firſt, the Remainder of all Things at every Michaelmaſs. Into the which Booke you ſhall alſoe enter all Things that ſhal be bought in the whole Yeare following, ſetting every Kind by itſelf.

And yow ſhal kepe another Book for the ſaid Wardrobe, which ſhal containe the Names of all the Children belonging to this Howſe; ſetting the Children at Nurſe by themſelves, in ſuch Sorte, that the Nurſes Names may appeare, and how many Children each of them hath, with their Names; and directly againſt every Childe, yow ſhal write what was delivered, (thereby to ſhew whether the Nurſes have received more than they ought or not) and the Time when any of their Children die.

And not to be a Medler in any other Mens Buſineſs than your own; but if you ſee ought amiſſe, to informe the Governours thereof.

The Cooke's Charge.

YOUR Office is to dreſſe ſuch Meate as ſhal be delivered unto yow by the Steward, to the Uſe of the Poore, wholſomly and cleanly. And that you receive no Meate of the Steward, but in Preſence of the Matron of the Howſe, or of one of the Almoners. And the Meate ſo received, you ſhal enter every Meale into a Booke, and once every Moneth your Book ſhal be conferred with the Steward's Book; and your ſaid Booke ſhal be ſubſcribed or ſigned by the Matron or Almoners that ſhal be preſent. And the ſame Steward to have his Allowance according to the Booke ſo ſubſcribed, and not otherwiſe.

Yow ſhal have no manner of Fee, Profit, or other Commoditie, as Tallow, Aſhes, or any other; but onely your Wages and Livery.

This is your Office and Charge, which ſee that yow faithfully do; and have not to do with any other's Office. But if yow eſpie any thing that ſhal founde either unhoneſt or unprofitable to the Howſe, yow ſhal give Warning thereof to ſome of the Governours; and yow to meddle no farther, upon Pain of Diſpleaſure.

The Butler's Charge.

YOUR Office ſhal be to receive of the Baker and Bruer, ſuch Breade and Drinke as ſhal from Time to Time be appointed by the Governours of this Howſe, for the Uſe of the Poore. And the ſame to deliver againe to the Uſe of the Poore at every Meale; after ſuch Maner and Proportion, as ſhal be appointed yow by the Threſorer and Almoners of that Houſe.

And always the Tallies of the ſame Baker and Bruer ſhal be in the Cuſtodie and Keping of the Threſorer, or one of the Almoners, who at the bringing in either of Bread or Drinke, ſhal be called and made privie thereunto.

Yow ſhal have no manner of Fees but your ordinarie Wages.

This is your Office; which ſee that yow doe, and have not to doe with other Mens Offices: But if anything be amiſſe, informe the Governours, and meddle no farther.

The Porter's Charge.

YOw ſhal be attendant diligently and carefully in looking to the Gates, chieflie in the Winter Evenings; and ſee them ſhut in a due Hour; and after they be ſhut in, to be circumſpect whom you let in and out.

And after the Houre of Nine of the Clock in the Winter Seaſon, not to open the Gates in any wiſe, except on a very great Occaſion.

And in Somer Seaſon, yow ſhal kepe the Gates open no longer than Nine of the Clocke; and yow ſhal, after they be ſhut in, neither let any in nor out after Ten of the Clocke at the fartheſt.

Fail yow not this to obſerve, as yow will anſwer thereunto, if any Complaint come thereof before the Governours.

And yow ſhal not make or meddle in any other Man's Office, but duely doe your own. But if yow ſee anything amiſſe in them, yow ſhal certifie the Governours thereof, that they may take Order therein.

The Shoomaker's Charge.

YOW ſhal in due Time put the Threſorer in Minde to provide Leather for this Howſe.

And all the Children under your Governance, yow ſhal not onely teache your Science, but alſoe governe them orderlie. And ſuch of them as you cannot rule, yow ſhal preſent unto the Threſorer and Almoners, that ſuch may receive condigne Puniſhment.

And yow ſhal not deale with any Man's Office and Charge but your owne; and if yow ſee anythinge amiſſe in others, yow ſhall certifie the Governours thereof, that they may uſe Reformation therein.

The Beadles Charge.

YOUR Charge is daily, and as Occaſion ſhal ſerve, to attend at this Hoſpitall, upon the Threſorer and Governours of the ſame Hoſpital; and to be ready and willing to execute ſuch Buſineſs as the ſaide Threſorer and Governours, or any of them, ſhal command you; and to do ſuch other Buſineſſes as is needful, by the Direction of the Clerke, or other cheefe Officers in the Governour's Abſence.

Yow ſhal viſit every Day all ſuch Wardes as are appointed for your Walkes; and ſhal cleanſe all the ſame Wardes from Beggars and other idle People; and the ſame People ſo found to drive away, or to carry to Bridewell.

Yow ſhal alſoe, according to the ould Cuſtome, give your Attendance upon the Lord Maior, at the Guildhall, the Seſſions Howſe, and Bridewell; and there performe your Office as yow are commanded, as Occaſion ſhal ſerve.

Yow ſhal alwaies carry your Tipſtaves in your Hands, and weare your blue Liveries; except yow be otherwiſe Licenſed.

And at every Courte Day, yow ſhal deliver into the Courte Houſe your ſaide Tipſtaves in the preſent Courte; and after the Courte is ended, yow may lawfullie take them againe, except the Governours do detaine them from yow, or any of yow, for ſome Offence, or neglecting your Dutie.

All theis Things yow ſhal performe to the utmoſt of your Power, and the Orders hereunder written, and all other good Orders whiche ſhal hereafter be deviſed for the Good of this Citie; whiche ſee yow do obſerve and keep.

And have not to do with other Mens Offices: But if yow ſee any Officer or Officers to doe amiſſe, yow ſhal informe the Governours thereof, and meddle no farther.

The Orders for the Beadles of this Howſe.

FIRST yow ſhal every Day, two and two together, walk through your Wards appointed, with your Staves in your Hands; and all ſuch vagrant and idle Perſons, as yow ſhal find in your Walkes, or in any Place abroad, yow ſhal apprehend and convey to Bridewell. And if you chance to be reſiſted by way of the ſaid Vagrants and evil Perſons, yow ſhal call for Aid to every Conſtable next adjoining to aſſiſt you. And if he refuſe ſo to doe, to take his Name, and to goe to the Lord Maior, and deliver unto him the Diſobedience of the ſaid Conſtable. And if the Lord Maior doe not preſently cauſe ſuch Conſtables to be puniſhed, then, at the next Court of Aldermen, yow to attend, and make your Complaint, whereby the Law may be executed accordingly.

Item, if any of your Citizens die within your Walkes, yow are to give your Attendance at the Howſes of them ſo deceaſed; and to ſee that no Rogues or idle Perſons reſort thither to trouble the Street.

And if anything be given yow of Benevolence for your Travaile, take it thankfully, without calling ought of Dutie. And if yow be not of yourſelves able to cleare the Streets of ſuch; then yow ſhal call to your Aid ſuch

Beadles whoſe Walkes are next adjoining, to aid and aſſiſt yow therein. And yow ſhal diſtribute to them Part of ſuch Money as ſhal be given unto yow. And yow ſhal not intrude yourſelves to none other Burials out of your Wardes or Walkes, but unto ſuche as yow ſhal be called by your Fellow Beadles.

Item, One of you every Sunday, with the reſt of the Beadles of the other Howſes, ſhal give your Attendance at Paul's Croſs, at the Sermon Time; to viſit all the Streets and Lanes adjoining, and there to apprehend all ſuch vagrant and idle Perſons, as ſhal be there found by yow or any of yow; and to carry them, as well Men, as Women and Children, to Bridewell, whereby there may be Order taken, according to the Law preſcribed.

And if any of yow ſhal be found negligent in performing theſe Orders aboveſaid, or any other Orders hereafter made and deviſed; upon every Fault found, your Staves ſhal be taken from yow, and to be ſecluded for evermore for ſerving in thoſe Roomes. Whereof aſſure your ſelves, without any Favour, or otherwiſe, to be puniſhed according to the Governours Diſcretion.

I add one more uſeful Tract, which is for paving and cleanſing the Streets. Being an Act of Common Council: Together with certain Orders, Rules, and Directions, touching the ſaid paving and cleanſing the Streets, Lanes, and common Paſſages within the City and Liberties, and other Things relating thereunto: Made by the Commiſſioners for Sewers, Pavements, &c. This was purſuant of a former Act of Common Council, relating to the paving and cleanſing of the Streets. And it was ordered, for the better diſperſing the Knowledge thereof to all Citizens, that the ſame ſhould be printed in a little Book, and delivered to every Houſholder. Which Book follows.

CHAP. VIII.

An Act of Common Council: Together with certain Orders, Rules, and Directions touching the paving and cleanſing the Streets, Lanes, and common Paſſages, within the City London, and Liberties thereof: And other Things relating thereunto.

Veneris primo die Martii, 167½.

By the Commiſſioners for Sewers, Pavements, &c. in LONDON.

The Commiſſioners willing that all Perſons concerned may take Notice of a late Act of Common Council, and of ſeveral ancient Cuſtoms, and other Statutes, Rules, and Orders relating to the paving and cleanſing of the Streets and Sewers, and preventing other Inconveniencies to the common Paſſages in and about the City of LONDON, and Liberties thereof; and that due Conformity may be yielded thereunto, and the Penalties for Breach thereof may be avoided: Have agreed and ordered, That the ſame be forthwith printed in a ſmall Book, and delivered to, or left for, every Houſholder within this City and Liberties; and which are as follow, That is to ſay:

FORD Maior, Octob. 27, 1671.

An Act for ſettling of Lay-Stalls, preventing ſeveral Inconveniencies to Paſſengers, and relating alſo to the cleanſing of the Streets and Paſſages within this City and Liberties thereof.

Whereas, by an Act of this preſent Parliament, entitled, An Act for the better paving and cleanſing the Streets and Sewers in and about the City of LONDON, the appointing, ſetting out, and purchaſing of Places convenient for Lay-Stalls, and for publick Stores for Materials and Commodities, is veſted in the Maior, Aldermen, and Commons, in Common Council aſſembled; and other Authorities therein mentioned, are thereby veſted in the Maior, Commonalty, and Citizens of the ſaid City, to be managed, executed, and done by ſuch Perſons as by the ſaid Maior, Aldermen, and Commons, in Common Council aſſembled, ſhal be thereunto authorized and appointed, or by any Seven or more of them, (being all Members of the ſaid Court) and no other Perſons whatſoever: Be it therefore enacted, ordained, and eſtabliſhed, by the Right Honourable the Lord Maior, the Right Worſhipful the Aldermen, and the Commons in this preſent Common Council aſſembled, and by the Authority of the ſame, and the ſaid Lord Maior, Aldermen, and Commons, in this preſent Common Council aſſembled, do hereby appoint, That the ſeveral Pieces or Parcels of Ground hereafter named, that is to ſay, a Piece or Parcel of waſte Ground on the South Side of the hither End of Mile-End Green, adjoining to the High Way there, extending from the Place called the Fort, to the hither End of the Wall of the Houſe and Ground called the Red Lion; a Piece of Ground on the Weſt Side of and contiguous to Dowgate Dock, now or late in the Poſſeſſion ſeſſion of Job Clark; a Piece or Parcel of Ground on the Eaſt Side of and contiguous to Puddle Dock, now or late in the Poſſeſſion of John Cock; and a Piece or Parcel of Ground on the Weſt Side of and contiguous to White Fryars Dock, now or late in the Tenure and Poſſeſſion of Robert Goſling, ſhall be from henceforth Places for common Lay-Stalls, to be employed for the publick Uſe and Benefit of this City, and Liberties thereof, in ſuch Manner as the Commiſſioners authorized or to be authorized by this Court according to the ſaid Act of Parliament, or any Seven or more of them ſhall order and direct. and the ſaid Commiſſioners or any Seven or more of them, ſhall by Warrant under their Hands and Seals directed to the Chamberlain of this City for the Time being, order the Payment of all ſuch Sums of Money as are or ſhall be agreed upon concerning the ſame, between the reſpective Proprietors of the ſaid Grounds and the ſaid Commiſſioners; which Agreements the ſaid Commiſſioners are hereby empowered to perform and make. And the ſaid Chamberlain for the Time being, ſhall make Payment thereof accordingly out of the Moneys ariſing by the Impoſition upon Coals, according to the aforeſaid Act of Parliament.

And the ſaid Commiſſioners, or any Seven or more of them, are hereby farther authorized, as Need ſhall require, to appoint and ſet out ſuch and ſo many other Parcels of Ground for common Lay-ſtalls, and for publick Stores, for all Sorts of Fuel, and for all Sorts of Materials for Pitching, Paving, and Cleanſing the Streets, and for other Commodities for publick Uſe, as from Time to Time ſhall be by them found requiſite and neceſſary; and to make Agreement with the Proprietors of the ſaid Grounds, and to order Payment for the ſame, in Manner as aforeſaid; and the Ordering and Managing of the ſaid Places, when ſet out and appointed, ſhall be in the ſaid Commiſſioners, or any Seven or more of them. And that all the Profits thereof ſhall be paid unto the Chamberlain of this City for the Time being, for the Uſe of the Maior, Commonalty, and Citizens of the ſame, and diſtinct Books of Accompts ſhall be kept concerning the ſame. And the ſaid Profits ſhall be diſpoſed of from Time to Time, as the ſaid Commiſſioners, or any Seven or more of them, ſhall appoint, to be approved of by this Court.

And be it enacted by the Authority aforeſaid, That the ſaid Commiſſioners, or any Seven or more of them, ſhall from henceforth have Authority, and are hereby impowered from Time to Time, to ſummon, enquire after, examine, and, in default of Appearance upon ſuch Summons or Submiſſion to the Cenſure or Judgement of the ſaid Commiſſioners, or any Seven or more of them, to cauſe to be indicted or informed againſt at the Seſſions of the Peace to be held for this City, all ſuch Perſons as have made and ſhall continue within this City and Liberties thereof, any Bulks or Stalls, contrary to the ancient Uſage and Cuſtom of this City, and ſeveral late Acts of Parliament, or have made and ſhall continue any Stall Boards above the Breadth allowable by the ſaid ancient Uſage and Cuſtom, and Acts of Parliament, or ſhall ſet Goods and Commodities, or Materials for Building, into the common Streets and common Paſſages within this City or Liberties thereof; or ſhall hang out Goods to the Hindrance or Damage of Paſſengers, or their Neighbours Trade, or ſtreightning the common Paſſage; or ſhall throw out or caſt into the Streets any Duſt, Soil, or Rubbiſh; or ſhall dig any Pits, or Drains, or otherwiſe intermeddle with the Pavements, (without Licenſe from the ſaid Commiſſioners, or any Seven or more of them) which ſhall tend to the Obſtructing or Annoyance of the Ways, Paſſages, or Water Courſes of this City.

And farther, be it enacted by the Authority aforeſaid, That from henceforth no Beggars or Vagrants, Tankard-Bearers, Porters, or other Perſons whatſoever, bearing any kind of Burthens on their Heads, Backs, or Arms, Horſes, or any kind of Cattle, ſhall be permitted at any Time of the Day, from Six of the Clock in the Morning, until Nine of the Clock at Night, to go, or paſs, or be led upon the ſaid flat Pavements in any Street between the Houſes and the Poſts adjoining to the ſaid flat Pavements, except only for going into the ſaid Houſes directly croſs the ſaid Pavements, under the Penalty of five Shillings for every Horſe or other kind of Cattle whatſoever, and three Shillings four Pence for every Tankard-Bearer, Porter, and other Perſon carrying Burthen as aforeſaid, for every Offence, and the ſaid Beggars and Vagrants to be puniſhed according to the Laws already in Force: And that all Conſtables within this City and Liberties thereof, and other Officers, employed or to be employed by the ſaid Commiſſioners, or any Seven or more of them, (who ſhall have Power, and are hereby authorized and directed to employ ſuch Perſons accordingly) and all Marſhals and their Men, and Warders, are to take ſpecial Care to prevent the ſaid Offences, and to apprehend all ſuch Offenders. And in Caſe the ſaid Marſhals or their Men, or Warders, ſhall be negligent in doing their Duty herein, it ſhall be lawful for the Lord Maior for the Time being, and his Succeſſors, upon due Proof of ſuch Neglect, to amove ſuch Marſhals and their Men, and other inferiour Warders; and others to put in their Places.

And farther, be it enacted by the Authority aforeſaid, That no Street-Car, or Brewers Dray, ſhall from and after the Tenth Day of December next enſuing, be drawn with more than one Horſe within this City or Liberties thereof, unleſs in ſuch Caſe only where the Load cannot be divided, and that the Weight thereof ſhall require more than one Horſe for the Draught thereof; and in Caſe alſo of drawing up any the Hills from Thames Street, and up Holborn Hill, upon the Penalty of ten Shillings by the Owner of ſuch Car or Dray which ſhall break this Law, for the firſt Offence, twenty Shillings for the ſecond Offence, and thirty Shillings for the Third, and every other Offences. And that the ſupernumerary Horſe and Horſes ſhall and may be ſeized and impounded by the Officers appointed to take care of the beforementioned Offences, or any of them; or by ſuch Officer or Officers as are or ſhall be appointed by the Preſident, Treaſurer, and Governours of Chriſt's Hoſpital for the Time being, for taking care of Cars and Carmen, until the ſaid Penalty be paid.

And be it farther enacted, That all Cars, Wagons, Drays, and other Carriages, during all the Time of their Loading and Unloading within the Streets of this City and Liberties thereof, unleſs before Six of the Clock in the Morning, and after Eight of the Clock in the Evening from Lady Day to Michaelmas, and before Eight in the Morning and after Six in the Evening from Michaelmas to Lady Day, ſhall ſtand Side Ways the long Way of the Street, and not croſs the ſame, that ſo Paſſengers may ſafely go between the Houſes and Carriages, (except for ſuch Goods and Commodities as are not portable) and that no Dray, upon any Occaſion whatſoever, ſhall from henceforth ſtand in any Street or Paſſage within this City or Liberties thereof, but where a Coach or other Dray may paſs by ſuch Car or Dray ſo ſtanding; nor ſhall ſtand any longer Time than for Loading or Unloading, or other Caſe of abſolute Neceſſity; And that, if any Perſon or Perſons ſhall cauſe his or their Car or Carriages to be ſet otherwiſe in Loading or Unloading; he or they ſhall forfeit three Shillings four Pence for every ſuch Offence; and upon the Penalty, that every Owner and Owners of every Dray ſtanding contrary to this Act, ſhall forfeit three Shillings four Pence for every Offence. And the Horſe and Dray ſhall be impounded by any the Officers aforeſaid, till Payment thereof.

And be it farther enacted by the Authority aforeſaid, That from and after the tenth Day of December next enſuing, all the Dung, Soil, Filth, Seacoal Aſhes, and other Dirt, as well from all the Streets, Lanes, and Paſſages, as from all the Houſes of the Inhabitants within this City and Liberties thereof, ſhall be carried away by ſuch Perſons or their Servants, who are at preſent, or that ſhall or may from Time to Time hereafter, be permitted or allowed to work any Car or Cars within this City or Liberties thereof, by the ſaid Preſident, Treaſurer, and Governours of Chriſt's Hoſpital, in ſuch Manner and Method, and for ſuch Conſideration as by the ſaid Commiſſioners, or any Seven or more of them, and the Fellowſhip of Carmen, ſhall from Time to Time be agreed upon: And in Caſe the ſaid Commiſſioners and Fellowſhip cannot or ſhall not agree for or touching the carrying away the Soil as aforeſaid, That then and in ſuch Caſe, it ſhall and may be lawful to and for the ſaid Preſident, Treaſurer, and Governours of Chriſt's Hoſpital, and they are hereby required and impowered, upon Certificate from the ſaid Commiſſioners, to licenſe ſuch Number of Cars, as the ſaid Commiſſioners, or any Seven or more of them ſhall think fit, not exceeding eighty over and above the four hundred and twenty licenſed by former Acts of Common Council. Which ſaid Cars are to be diſpoſed of by the ſaid Commiſſioners, for the better carrying on their Work, and are hereby enabled to do ſuch other Work as other Street-Cars do or may do, and the Owner and Owners thereof ſhall in all Points (excepting for carrying of Soil and other Works to be done by Order of the ſaid Commiſſioners) be under the Regulation of the ſaid Preſident, Treaſurer, and Governours, as other Street-Cars, and ſhall pay ſuch Rent as by the ſaid Preſident, Treaſurer, and Governours with the ſaid Commiſſioners, or any Seven or more of them, ſhall be adjudged fit and reaſonable, not exceeding ſeventeen Shillings four Pence ℘ Annum apiece.

And it is enacted by the Authority aforeſaid, That one Act of Common Council, bearing Date the one and twentieth Day of June 1665, touching the ordering and diſpoſing of Cars, and all and every the Clauſes therein contained, be put in due and effectual Execution by the ſaid Preſident, Treaſurer, and Governours, and that the ſaid Commiſſioners be aſſiſting to them therein.

And it is enacted, That all Pains, Penalties, and Forfeitures, in and by this Act before limited and appointed, in Caſe the ſame ſhall not be paid to the ſaid Commiſſioners, or Seven or more of them, upon Summons to the reſpective Offenders beforehand made for their Appearance before the ſaid Commiſſioners concerning Payment thereof, ſhall and may be recovered by Action of Debt, Bill, or Information, in the Name of the Chamberlain of this City for the Time being, in his Majeſty's Court holden before the Maior and Aldermen of the ſaid City in the Chamber of the Guildhall of the City of London, wherein no Eſſoin or Wager of Law ſhall be admitted or allowed for the Defendant; and after Recovery thereof, one third Part ſhall be to the Proſecutor, and the other two Parts and Reſidue thereof (after all Charges out of the ſaid two Parts deducted) to the Poor of Chriſt's Hoſpital in London, to be employed for and towards their Relief: In all which Suits to be brought by this Act, the Chamberlain ſhall recover his ordinary Coſts and Charges, to be expended in and for Recovery of all ſuch Forfeitures againſt the Offender or Offenders: And in Caſe the ſame Pains, Penalties, and Forfeitures ſhall be paid to the ſaid Commiſſioners, or any Seven or more of them, upon Summons as aforeſaid, without any farther Proceſs, one third Part ſhall be diſpoſed by the ſaid Commiſſioners, for Encouragement of their Officers who ſhall take Pains in the Matter aforeſaid, in ſuch Manner as they ſhall think fit, and the other two Parts ſhall be diſpoſed to the Poor of the Hoſpital as is aforeſaid.

And laſtly, be it enacted by the Authority aforeſaid, That the Wardens and Aſſiſtants of the Fellowſhip of Carmen, now conſiſting of twenty three in Number, ſhall be forthwith increaſed and made up to the Number of forty one, and ſhall ſo continue forever hereafter: And that the Eighteen to be ſo added, and ſo upon any Choice or Election of others for the Future, upon any Avoidance, ſhall be ſuch Perſons as have or ſhall actually ſerve an Apprenticeſhip to the ſaid Calling of a Carman, and no other.

AVERT.

Rules; Orders, and Directions.

I. Item, That hereafter all Streets within this City, called, known, or ſet down to be High Streets, ſhall be paved round, or Cauſeway Faſhion: And upon Notice given to the Commiſſioners, of any defective Pavements in any of the Streets, Lands, and Paſſages within this City and Liberties, the ſame ſhall be forthwith made good and amended, unleſs by general Conſent ſome better Expedient be found and publiſhed.

Paviers.

II. That inaſmuch as it hath been found by common Experience that the Paviers, to hide and cover their bad Workmanſhip, have oftentimes ſpread and laid great Quantities of Gravel over their Pavements, to greater Charge of the Perſons ſetting them on work, than was needful, and which, upon a ſudden Rain, did either choak the Common Sewers, or turn to dirt and Mire in the Streets; therefore the ſaid Paviers are required, that hereafter they do forbear to lay or ſpread any more Gravel on the Pavements than will only fill up the Joints of their Work, and cauſe the ſame to be ſwept and well rammed, and leave the Pavements bare of Gravel, and keep a regular Method of Paving, not paving one Door higher than another, upon Pain of Paying five Shillings for every Complaint.

III. That the Breadth of ſix Foot at the leaſt from the Foundation of the Houſes in ſuch of the ſaid High Streets which ſhall be allowed to be poſted, ſhall be paved by the Inhabitants or Owners with flat or broad Stone for a foot Paſſage, unleſs ſuch Parts thereof as ſhall lie before any Gateway, which may be done with ſquare Rag by the ſaid Breadth of ſix Foot, upon Pain of paying five Shillings for every Week the ſame ſhall be omitted to be done after Notice given.

IV. That every Perſon having Occaſion to rebuild or repair any Houſe or Houſes fronting any Street, Lane, or common Paſſage, do firſt procure cure Licence of Mr. Chamberlain for the Time being, to hourd in a Piece of Ground before his Building, within which to lay his Materials for Building, or in Default ſhall pay forty Shillings, and twenty Shillings for every Week's Omiſſion ſo to do.

V. That a Fall, or Ceſt-pool of convenient Bigneſs ſhall be made and continued to every Grate of the Common Sewer within this City and Liberties, to receive the Sand or Gravel coming to the ſame, ſo to prevent the choaking thereof. And upon Complaint at any Time made of the Want, Decay, or Defect thereof, the Commiſſioners will forthwith cauſe the ſame to be made or amended.

Carmen. VI. That the Fellowſhip of Carmen of this City, having undertaken, for one Year to commence from the firſt of January 1671, to ſweep and cleanſe the Streets, Lanes, and common Paſſages within the ſaid City and Liberties from Dung, Soil, Filth, and Dirt, and to carry the ſame, together with what ſhall be brought out of the Houſes of the Inhabitants unto certain Lay-ſtalls appointed, or that ſhall be appointed by the ſaid Commiſſioners for the Time being, the ſeveral Perſons by them employed in and about this Affair, (whoſe Names, Places of Abode, Number of Tunbrils or Cars, and the Wards to which they are reſpectively deſigned, are hereafter ſet down) or ſuch others as (by Death, or Removal of any of them) ſhall be employed therein, ſhall keep, obſerve, and follow the Rules and Orders hereafter following, viz.

VII. That they, their Agents, or Servants, ſhall come out with their Tunbrils or Cars and Horſes, on Mondays, Wedneſdays, Thurſdays, and Fridays, in every Week of the Year, from the Eleventh of October to the Eleventh of February, by Five of the Clock every Morning of the ſame Days, and not to continue and remain in the Streets, Lanes, or Paſſages, after the Hour of Nine of the Clock the ſame Morning; and from the Eleventh of February to the Eleventh of October, to come out, as aforeſaid, by Four of the Clock every Morning of the ſame Days, and not to continue or remain in the Streets, Lanes, or Paſſages, after the Hour of Seven of the Clock the ſame Morning, and upon every Saturday in the Year to come out as aforeſaid, by Two of the Clock in the Afternoon of the ſame Day, to remain and continue 'till Night, if Need be: And within the Hours and Times aforeſaid, ſhall cleanſe all the Streets, Lanes, and Paſſages, every Man within his or their reſpective Diviſions, from its Soil, Filth, and Dirt, by ſweeping of the ſame, and carrying it away, together with what ſhall be brought out of the Houſes of the Inhabitants to the Lay-ſtalls appointed, or that ſhall be appointed, upon Pain to forfeit for every Offence ten Shillings.

VIII. That the ſeveral Inhabitants within this City and Liberties, or their Servants, do take care that the Dirt, Aſhes, and Soil of their Houſes be in a Readineſs for the Carmen, their Agents, or Servants, either by ſetting out the ſame over Night in Tubs, Boxes, Baſkets, or other Veſſels, near and contiguous to their Houſes, or by bringing out the ſame within convenient Time, before the Hours for their Departure as aforeſaid.

IX. That the ſaid Carmen, their Agents or Servants, in their ſeveral Wards or Diviſions, (with the Aſſiſtance of the Servants of the Inhabitants, who are hereby directed to give ſuch Aſſiſtance) ſhall in Times of Froſt and Snow, daily employ themſelves in the opening of the Chanels, and heaping up the Ice and Snow, that ſo the Paſſages may be cleared, and upon a Thaw of the ſame, that all the Soil and Filth found in the Streets, Lanes, and Paſſages, be carried away, upon Pain of ten Shillings for every Days Omiſſion.

X. That no Perſon whatſoever do preſume to caſt out any Soil, Horſe-dung, or Filth, or carry the ſame into any Street, Lane, or common Paſſage, after the Hours aforeſaid, either by Night or by Day, upon the Penalty that the Perſon offending, if known (and if a Servant, his or her Maſter or Miſtreſs) to forfeit and pay five Shillings; and if not known, the Party againſt whoſe Houſe the ſame ſhall be found, (having been laid there in the Day Time, after the Hours beforementioned) ſhall forfeit one Shilling; which ſaid ſeveral Forfeitures ſhall be paid, the one Moiety to the Diſcoverer, and the other to the Carman or Carmen appointed to cleanſe that Ward wherein the Offence ſhall be committed.

XI. That the ſeveral Tunbrils or Cars employed in this Work, ſhall be marked or numbred according to the Number of Cars appointed for each Ward, upon the Penalty of two Shillings for every Load carried without ſuch Mark.

XII. That the ſeveral Carmen, Undertakers in this Affair, ſhall ſet upon the fore Part of his Tunbril or Car, open and plain to view, a Board, whereon to be painted the City Arms, the Ward to which he or they are appointed, the Mark or Number of his Tunbril or Car, upon Penalty of paying three Shillings four Pence a Day for want thereof; which ſaid Marking is to betoken the Allowance of the Commiſſioners, and to caution the Inhabitants from employing of foreign Cars.

XIII. That the ſaid Carmen Undertakers, their Agents or Servants, ſhall give Notice of their being in the Streets with their Tunbrils or Cars by loudly knocking a wooden Clapper, eſpecially in Courts, Alleys, and other back Paſſages, upon pain to forfeit three Shillings four Pence upon every Complaint duly proved.

XIV. That the ſaid Carmen, their Agents or Servants, do take Care that the Falls or Ceſt-pools belonging to any Grate within their reſpective Wards, be once in every Week, or oftner, if Need require, cleanſed of its Dirt and Filth, and the ſame carried away, upon pain to forfeit five Shillings for every Complaint duly proved.

XV. That the aforeſaid Carmen, their Agents or Servants and no other, ſhall alſo carry away to the Lay-ſtalls aforeſaid, all ſuch Soil, Dirt, and Dung, (Rubbiſh or Earth excepted) that ſhall be made or found in any of the Houſes or Stables of any Inn-keeper, Livery-Stable-keeper, Brewer, Dyer, Sugar-baker, Sope-maker, or other Trader or Inhabitant within any the Wards to which they are reſpectively appointed and deſigned. For which ſuch quarterly Allowance (over and above the cuſtomary Rates by the Scavenger's Book) ſhall be made by the Aſſeſſors of each Ward according to their beſt Diſcretion, Reſpect being had to the Trade or other Occaſions in the making of more or leſs Dung or Soil by ſuch Traders or Inhabitants.

XVI. That the aforeſaid Carmen, their Agents or Servants, and no other, ſhall take up and carry away to ſuch Perſons or Places as will receive the ſame, all ſuch Rubbiſh or Earth that ſhall be made or found within their reſpective Wards or Diviſions. For which there ſhall be paid them by the Owners or Proprietors thereof twelve Pence ℔ Load, and no more. Provided they carry it away within one Day after Notice given for the Conveniency of the Owners, and to avoid Complaint of them, upon Pain, that the Perſon Offending in either of theſe Caſes, ſhall pay two Shillings ⅌ Load.

XVII. That no other Tunbril or Car than what is or ſhall be appointed and allowed by the ſaid Commiſſioners for doing the Works aforeſaid, ſhall be employed, or ſhall intermeddle with the carrying of any Soil, Rubbiſh, Earth, Dung, Paving-Stones, Thames-Gravel, or the like, within this City or Liberties; Bricks, or Tyles from the Water-Side within the City or Liberties; upon Pain to pay to the Carman or Carmen employed in cleanſing the Streets as aforeſaid of the Ward where this Offence ſhall be committed, two Shillings for every Load ſo taken up or carried in a Tunbril or Car: And for Non-payment, that ſuch Tunbril or Car ſhall be carried to the City's Pound, called the Green-Yard, and there to remain 'till Payment thereof. Provided, that if any the ſaid Carmen ſhall not, immediately after Notice, employ himſelf in carrying the ſaid Materials, to forfeit and pay two Shillings for every Load thereof, and the Owners at Liberty to employ foreign Cars.

XVIII. That no Coachman, Carman, Carter, Drayman, or other Perſon, ſhall feed his or their Horſe or Horſes with Hay or Grains in the Streets, Lanes, or common Paſſages, within this City and Liberties, upon Pain to forfeit and pay for every Offence two Shillings ſix Pence (over and above the like Sum formerly impoſed and to be paid to the Governors of Chriſt's Hoſpital) the one Moiety to the Diſcoverer and Proſecutor, and the other to the Carman or Carmen of the Ward in which the ſaid Offence ſhall be committed: And in Caſe of Non-payment, to carry the Horſe or Horſes to the City's Pound, called the Green-Yard; there to remain till Payment thereof.

XIX. That none of the aforeſaid Carmen, their Agents or Servants, or other Perſon or Perſons, do ſweep the Filth or Soil of the Streets, Lanes, or Paſſages, into any the Chanels of this City, in Time of Rain, or otherwiſe, upon Pain to pay ſix Shillings and eight Pence for every Complaint duly proved.

XX. That no Man ſhall caſt or lay in the Streets, Lanes, or common Paſſages, or Chanels within this City or Liberties, any Dogs, Cats, Inwards of Beaſts, Cleaves of Beaſts Feet, Bones, Horns, Dregs or Droſs of Ale or Beer, or any noiſom Thing, upon pain of ten Shillings for every Offence.

XXI. That no Perſon ſet a Tunbril, Car, or Cart, in the Street by Night Time, upon Pain to pay two Shillings, beſides Satisfaction to any Perſon hurt thereby.

XXII. That no Perſon do ride or drive a Tunbril, Car, Cart, or Dray, a Trot in the Street, (or ſit on any Part of the Car, Cart, Tunbril, or Dray, unleſs another ſkilful Perſon lead the Horſe) upon Pain to forfeit and pay two Shillings; and in Caſe of Non-payment, to carry the Horſe to the Pound, as aforeſaid, to remain till Payment thereof.

XXIII. That no Waggon, Car, or Cart, ſhod with Iron, or Spignails, or having more Horſes than is allowed by the aforeſaid Act of Common Council, ſhall take up any Goods within this City or Liberties, to carry for Hire about the Streets, upon Pain to pay five Shillings for every Offence: And in Caſe of Non-payment, to carry the Horſe or Horſes to the aforeſaid Pound, till Payment thereof.

XXIV. That no Goung-Fermer ſhall carry any Ordure till after Ten a Clock in the Winter, and Eleven a Clock in the Summer, at Night, nor ſhall ſpill any Ordure in the Streets, upon Pain to forfeit and pay thirteen Shillings four Pence.

XXV. That no Pudding-Cart of Shambles ſhall go out till after the Hours laſt beforementioned, upon Pain to forfeit ſix Shillings eight Pence.

XXVI. That no Artificer, Labourer, or other Perſon, ſhall make any Stop or Dam in any Channel, nor ſhall ſlake any Lime in the Streets, Lanes, or Paſſages, upon Pain to pay two Shillings for every Offence.

XXVII. That no Man ſhall feed any Kine, Goats, Hogs, or any Kind of Poultry, in the open Streets, upon Pain to forfeit three Shillings four Pence for every Offence.

XXVIII. That no Man ſhall caſt into the Ditches or Sewers, Grates or Gullets of the City, any manner of Carion, ſtinking Fleſh, rotten Oranges or Onions, Rubbiſh, Dung, Sand, Gravel, or any other Thing that may ſtop the Courſe of the ſame, upon Pain of forfeiting forty Shillings for every Offence.

XXIX. That no Man ſhall make or continue any Widraughts, Seat or Seats, for Houſes of Eaſement over, or Dreins into any the Common Sewers, without Licenſe of the Commiſſioners for the Time being, upon Pain to forfeit forty Shillings, and forty Shillings a Month for ſo long Time as the ſame ſhall be continued after Warning.

XXX. That no Perſon or Perſons do preſume to keep any Lay-Stall for Dung, Rubbiſh, Earth, or other Soil, either at the Water-ſide, or other Place within this City or Liberties, other than the common or publick Lay-Stalls, appointed, or to be ſet out and appointed, by the ſaid Commiſſioners for the Time being; upon Pain to forfeit and pay fifty three Shillings four Pence, and forty Shillings a Week for every Week he or they ſhall ſo continue to do after Warning, or be indicted from Time to Time, as a common Nuſance.

XXXI. That no Tyler, Bricklayer, or other Perſon, do throw out of Gutters, or off Roofs or other Parts of Houſes, any Tyles, Loam, or Rubbiſh, into any Street, Lane, or common Paſſage; but do bring down the ſame in Baſkets or Trays, upon Pain to forfeit three Shillings four Pence for every Offence.

XXXII. That no Perſon or Perſons do ſet out in the Streets, Lanes, or Paſſages, any Hogſheads, Barrels, or other Caſks or Veſſels, to hoop, waſh, or dry, or otherwiſe encumber the Paſſage; upon Pain to forfeit and pay twenty Shillings for every Offence.

XXXIII. That the Dung, Mud, Filth, and Soil of the Wards of Billingsgate, Bridge, Langborn, Cornhill, Candlewick, Walbrook, Vintry, and Dowgate, ſhall be carried down to the Lay-Stall at Dowgate Dock: Of the Wards of Portſoken, Tower, Aldgate, Dukes-Place, and Lyme-ſtreet, to the Lay-Stall ſet out at Mile-End: Of the Ward of Biſhopsgate within and without to the Lay-Stall at Holloway Lane End, being Part of a Meadow there belonging to the City: Of the Ward of Cripplegate within and without, Alderſgate without, Baſſiſhaw, Coleman-ſtreet, and Broad-ſtreet, to the Lay-Stall at Bunhill: Of the Wards of Cheap, Cordwainer, Queenhith, and Bread ſtreet, to the Lay-Stall at or near the Three Cranes, and in Dunghill Lane near Broken Wharf, until ſuch Time as the publick Wharf or Key at the River Side ſhall be laid open, and afterwards to the Lay-Stall at Puddle-Dock: Of the Wards of Farringdon within, Caſtle Baynard, Alderſgate within, and St. Martin le Grand, to the Lay-Stall at Puddle-Dock: Of the Ward of Farringdon without, to the Lay-Stall at White Fryars: And this Courſe to be uſed until the Commiſſioners ſhall ſee Cauſe to alter the ſame; and whoſo ſhall offend herein, ſhall forfeit and pay five Shillings for every Offence.

XXXIV. That the Carmen, Undertakers, their Agents or Servants, ſhall have Liberty to carry Rubbiſh from all Parts of the City or Liberties, into the Vineyard near Aldgate, for levelling the ſame, till the firſt of May next, and to ſhoot the ſame there gratis, and after that Time to pay ſuch Sum for what they there ſhoot as the Commiſſioners ſhall require.

XXXV. That inaſmuch as the ſaid Carmen have undertaken to do this Work in better Manner and to greater Satisfaction than heretofore hath been done; and the Commiſſioners believing from what they have already obſerved, that they will accordingly perform the ſame, do therefore exhort all Perſons that ſhall be rated towards this Work, willingly and readily to pay the ſame; ſo to prevent Trouble to themſelves, and Diſcouragement to the ſaid Carmen, in a Work of this Nature, ſo requiſite and neceſſary to the Health and Trade of the Inhabitants of this City.

XXXVI. That the ſeveral Pains and Penalties beforementioned, not particularly expreſſed to whom to be paid, ſhall be paid into the Chamber of London, upon Summons or Warning by the Officers attending the Commiſſioners, or either of them; or in Default, the Offender or Offenders to be indicted at the Seſſions for his or their reſpective Offences.

XXXVII. That if any the aforeſaid Carmen, their Agents or Servants, do offend in any the Particulars aforeſaid, or otherwiſe relating to this Affair; that Complaint be made thereof to the Commiſſioners at the Guild-Hall, who will deal with them according to their Offences.

XXXVIII. That the Scavengers for the Time being, in the ſeveral Wards and Precincts within this City and Liberties, do take Care, either by their own Obſervations, or Complaints to them by any of the Inhabitants, that the ſaid Carmen, their Agents or Servants, do accordingly perform the ſeveral Branches aforementioned to them relating; or to make Complaint thereof to the Commiſſioners; upon Pain that the ſaid Scavengers ſhall, from Time to Time, for their Negligence or Remiſſneſs, be indicted at the Seſſions, unleſs they ſhall ſubmit to the Cenſure and Judgment of the ſaid Commiſſioners for the Time being.

XXXIX. Laſtly, That every Houſhoulder do pay to the Perſon delivering this Book, three Pence at leaſt, for and towards the Charge of Printing and Delivery of the ſame.

Then followed the Names of the Carmen, Undertakers in the Affair aforeſaid, being 37 in Number, their Places of Abode, their Number of Tunbrils or Cars, being 79, and the Wards to which they are deſigned.

Signed,

Ja. Cole, Cler. to the ſaid Commiſſioners.

CHAP. IX.

ORDERS and ORDINANCES,

For the better Government of the Hoſpital of

St. BARTHOLOMEW the Leſs.

Publiſhed in the Reign of K. EDWARD the Sixth, for the Vindication of the Citizens Care thereof, and the faithful Diſcharge of their Truſt in the ſaid Hoſpital, committed to them by King HENRY the Eighth: Againſt certain Clamours and Slanders raiſed by ſome ill-minded Perſons in thoſe Days. And printed again An. MDLXXX.

The PREFACE to the Reader;

Shewing, what was firſt done by the City, as to their Care and Expence, when that Hoſpital was firſt granted them by that King; and the Caſe and Condition thereof.

THE Wickedneſs of Report at this Day, good Reader, is grown to ſuch Rankneſs, that nothing almoſt is able to defend itſelf againſt the Venome thereof; but that, either with open Slander, or privy Whiſpering, it ſhall be ſo undermined, that it ſhall neither have the good Succeſs, which otherwiſe it might, or the Thanks, which for the Worthineſs it ought. It is better known by Report unto the Number, than weighed in Effect almoſt to any, that for the Relief of the Sore and Sick of the City of London, it pleaſed the King's Majeſty, of famous Memory, Henry the Eighth, (Father to this our moſt dread Sovereign Lord now reigning) to erect an Hoſpital in Weſt Smithfield, for the continual Relief and Help of an Hundred Sore and Diſeaſed. And the ſame endowed with the Yearly Revenues of five hundred Marks, to give unto the ſaid City and Citizens conditionally, that they alſo for their Part, ſhould add other five hundred Marks by the Year. Which Thing, with all due Thankfulneſs, they received at his Majeſty's Hands: And (for that they ſaw it proceeded from his Highneſs, as well of moſt charitable Zeal toward the afflicted Members, and his Brethren in Chriſt, as of a ſingular Favour toward the City) very gladly embraced the Condition. Thinking it, for their Parts, rather too little than enough. But when they had taken ſuch Survey thereof, as was convenient for them in this Caſe to do; although the King's Majeſty's Endowment was after the Rate of his Highneſs's moſt gracious Gift; yet found they the Nature of the ſame, and the State of the Whole, far under that that they at the firſt had hoped. The raiſing of this five hundred Mark-rent, to lie only in a certain Number of Houſes, ſome in great Decay, and ſome rotten and ruinous: And ſome other, to whom better Tenants had happened, already leaſed out at Term, and Rent, ſcant reaſonable enough for the Behoof of the Poor. So that, firſt to make them again worth the wonted Revenue, and then to continue them in the ſame, was no ſmall Charge: And the Help thereunto, which out of the better repaired might have grown, was by the former Leaſes and Rentings prevented. In the Hoſpital itſelf (beſide the Penſions iſſuing out of the ſaid five hundred Marks, and granted by the Letters Patents of his ſaid Highneſs to the Hoſpitaler there, and to other the Miniſters of the ſame) was found ſo much of Houſhold Implements and Stuff, toward the ſuccouring of this hundred Poor, as ſufficed three or four Harlots then lying in Child-bed, and no more; yea, barely ſo much, if but neceſſary Cleanlineſs were regarded. So far had the godly Meaning of the gracious King been abuſed at thoſe Days; and yet was little then ſmelled, and leſs talked of.

Good Citizens

The good Citizens nevertheleſs, not ſo much diſcouraged with others evil Doings, and the great fall of their Hope, as moved with the Duty of their Enterpriſe, and godly Regard, not to their own poor and afflicted only, but to all other ſore and diſeaſed, which daily, out of all Quarters of the Realm, reſort to the City, (as into a common Receipt and Refuge of their Miſery) proceeded with ſuch Speed as they could, to the Redreſs of all theſe Decays, Diſorders, and Defaults; and beſtowed thereabout, above their Covenant of five hundred Marks yearly, for their Welcoming and Beginning, not much leſs than a thouſand Pounds; whereby (together with other their good Endeavours) when they had won

Buſy-Bodies.

Preachers.

won it to ſuch Point, that it was fit to receive the Number, and to ſuccour the ſame with all Neceſſaries requiſite, and in ſuch Caſe needful; and had indeed received, and daily maintained it at the Full; certain Buſy-bodies, more ready to eſpy Occaſion how to blame other, than ſkilful how to redreſs Things blameworthy indeed; yea, I fear me, having all their Zeal in their Tongue only, not contented privately, one and another, among their Neighbours, to hinder the Profit of the Poor, and to ſlander the good Citizens occupied thereabout, rounded into the Ears of the Preachers alſo their tender Conſideration. Who being leſs circumſpect in crediting their Matter-Miniſtrers, than to Men of ſuch Calling appertaineth: And thinking peradventure, if the City had done their Duty herein, this Hoſpital ſhould have made a general ſweep of all Poor and Afflicted: As though this privy Backbiting could not ſo ſufficiently and weightily ſet forth this Enormity of the Citizens, as ſeemed behoveful for the Querele of Charity; took upon them to give Speed and Authority to the Thing, each after his Manner.

Eight Hundred healed.

Eight Score and Twelve dead.

So that the good Citizens, which now for theſe five Years Space have ſhunned for no Loathſomeneſs, to adminiſter the Relief, without other Gain than that Jeſus Chriſt, God and Man, promiſeth, and will undoubtedly pay, have here received nothing elſe but for a common Benefit, an open Detraction, and the Poor (as ſhall afterward appear) a larger Hinderance. Where, in the mean Seaſon notwithſtanding, there have been healed of the Pocks, Fiſtulaes, filthy Blains and Sores, to the Number of eight Hundred; and thence ſafe delivered, that other, having Need, might enter in their Room. Beſide eight Score and Twelve, that have there forſaken this Life, in their intollerable Miſeries and Griefs; which elſe might have dyed and ſtunk in the Eyes and Noſes of the City, for all theſe Charity-Tenderers, if this Place had not vouched ſafe to become a Pump alone, to eaſe a common Abhorring. Wherein, although they have at all Hands ſo well deſerved, that hard it were with the moſt favourable Report to requite it; yet, for that they look for their Reward another where, contented to paſs that in Silence: It may juſtly be anſwered to all ſuch Charity-Proctors, that if they well weighed theſe Things already alledged, and the Wages of the Chirurgeons, and ſuch Officers and Servants as needfully are attendant about the Poor; the Charges of Bedding and Shift for ſo many Sore and Diſeaſed, and the exceſſive Prices of all Things at this Day: They might both marvel how ſo many are there relieved, and daily maintained; and with Repentance of that they have miſ-ſaid, endeavour themſelves, with as much good Report and Praiſe, to advance both the Deed and the Doers; to wipe away the Slander as they have ſpread, to hinder them both by the contrary.

But foraſmuch as it is doubtful whether they will do as they may, and of Conſcience are bounden, and the Slander is ſo wide ſpread, that a narrow Remedy cannot amend it: It is thought good to the Lord Maior of this City of London, as chief Patron and Governour of this Hoſpital, in the Name of the City, to publiſh at this preſent, the Overſeers and Orders by him appointed, and from Time to Time practiſed and uſed by twelve of the Citizens moſt ancient in their Courſes, as at large in the Proceſs ſhall appear; partly for the Stay and Redreſs of ſuch Slander, and partly for that it might be an open Witneſs, and Knowledge unto all Men, how Things are adminiſtred there, and by whom. Wherein, if any Man judge more to be ſet forth in Word, than in Deed is followed, there be Means to reſolve him. But if there be not ſo much ſet forth as is expedient, (as what Thing at the firſt can attain to the Top of Perfectneſs?) or that any Man ſpieth ought in this Order worthy to be reformed, he ſhall not need to cry it at the Croſs, but ſhall find thoſe at the Hoſpital, that both gladly will and may reform it.

And where yet by ſuch Means Occaſion is found, as tofore was ſignified, to withdraw Mens Charities, by reaſon that it is thought but Folly to beſtow more Relief where there is enough for the Number already; the City, of their endleſs good Will toward this moſt neceſſary Succour of their poor Brethren in Chriſt, although at the firſt they ſeemed bound to the preciſe Number of an Hundred, and no more, wiſh all Men to be moſt aſſuredly perſwaded, that if by any Means poſſible they might, they deſire to enlarge the Benefit to a Thouſand, as ordinary as at this Day the Hundred are. Finally, they wiſh that all Almoiſners and Houſes of Almoiſe, known either by the Name of Hoſpital, or Savoy, might, by theſe their Doings, be provoked to like Endeavour and Benefit to the Poor; that what one is not able alone to ſuccour, the other might in Fellowſhip ſupply at this Time, namely, when the Miſery of the Poor moſt buſily ſeemeth to awake.

The Lord Jeſus kindle in us all that Faith that worketh by Love; that we may indeed put on Chriſt our Righteouſneſs before God, and not ſuffer him to lie up in Preſſe, that ſeeketh to be worn, to the Glory of his Father and ours, and to the Teſtimony of our Hope laid up in him. Amen.

The DIVISION of the GOVERNOURS and OFFICERS:

The NAMES and NATURE of them both.

IT behoveth firſt to underſtand for the more evidentneſs of that that followeth, that there are in this Adminiſtration two Sorts or Kinds of Men: The one called Governours, (by a Name proper to their Authority) placed there by the Lord Maior, as Patron of this Hoſpital: And the other called Officers, that for Wages are hired, for to have the neceſſary Doings in the Service of the Houſe and the Poor.

The Governours ſo change, that the one Half remaineth two Years in their Governance, to help and inſtruct the later elected, which alſo become Inſtructors to their Followers. And theſe are in Number twelve, whereof four are Aldermen, and the Reſidue Commoners; and according to their Governance, thus are they named.

The Preſident, alway the Senior Alderman.
Surveyors four, two Aldermen, and two Commoners.
Almoiſners four, one Alderman, and three Commoners.
The Treaſurer, a Commoner.
Scrutiners two, both Commoners.

The Officers are ſeven in Number, continuable or removeable, as the Governours ſhall find Cauſe, and be thus called.

The Hoſpitaler.
The Renter-Clerk.
The Butler.
The Porter.
The Matron.
The Siſters, twelve.
The Byddles, eight.

Theſe are alſo as in a Kind by themſelves, three Chirurgions in the Wages of the Hoſpital, giving daily Attendance upon the Cures of the Poor.

And a Miniſter, named, The Viſitor of Newgate, according to his Office and Charge.

The Governours are always elected by the Lord Maior and his Brethren; who yearly electeth ſix, that is to ſay, two Aldermen, and four Commoners, which are admitted into the Hoſpital after this Manner.

The whole Company of the twelve old Governours ſitting in Aſſembly together, cauſe their Clerk to read unto the ſix newly elected, the Charge hereafter following.

The Charge.

IT may pleaſe you to underderſtand, that ye are here elected and choſen as fellow Governours of this Hoſpital. to continue by the Space of two Years: By all which Time, according to ſuch laudable Decrees and Ordinances as have been and ſhall be made by the Authority of the Lord Maior, chief Patron hereof, in the Name of the City, and the Conſent of the Governours for the Time being, all your other Buſineſs ſet apart, as much as you poſſibly may, ye ſhall endeavour yourſelves to attend only upon the needful Doings of this Houſe, with ſuch a loving and careful Diligence, as ſhall become the faithful Miniſters of God, whom ye chiefly in this Vocation are appointed to ſerve, and to whom for your Negligences or Defaults herein ye ſhall render an Accompt: For truly ye cannot be blameleſs before God, if after you have ſet Hand to this good Plough, and promiſed your Diligence to the Poor, ye ſhall contrariwiſe turn your Head backward, and not perform the Succour that Chriſt looketh for at your Hands, and hath witneſſed to be done to himſelf, with theſe Words: Whatſoever ye do to one of theſe needy Perſons for my Name's Sake, the ſame ye do unto me. And contrariwiſe, if ye neglect and deſpiſe them, ye deſpiſe me. We therefore require and deſire every of you, on God's Behalf, and in his moſt Holy Name, that ye endeavour yourſelves, to the beſt of your Wits and Powers, ſo to comfort, order, and govern this Houſe, and the Poor thereof, that at the laſt Day ye may appear before the Face of God, as true and faithful Stewards and Diſpoſers of all ſuch Things as ſhall for the Comfort and Succour of them, (during the Time of your Office) be committed to your Credit and Charge. And this to do, we require you faithfully to promiſe in the Sight of God, and hearing of your Brethren. And ſo doing, we here admit you into our Fellowſhip.

That done, and the New-elected conſenting, and yielding themſelves to the Charge; the Half of the Governours that have already fulfilled their two Years Governance, to ſtand apart; and the other Half that ſhall remain with the New-elected, to take them by the Hands after their Degrees, and ſo admit them; and not to depart Fellowſhip, before they have dined together, all wholly, as well thoſe that come new as thoſe that have governed their Time, and thoſe that remain, every Man at his own Coſt and Charge.

The Preſident.

THE Preſident of this Hoſpital is chief Ruler and Governour of the ſame, under the Lord Maior, who hath Authority from Time to Time to convocate and call together all the Governours for Matters concerning the Maintenance and good ordering of the Poor; and to demand of every of them the Account of their Doings in their ſeveral Offices; and with the Aſſent and Conſent of the ſaid Governours, to grant Leaſes and Fees, and make neceſſary Decrees and Ordinances.

The Treaſurer and his Charge.

ALL the Treaſure of this Houſe is committed to your Charge, that is to ſay, all ſuch Money as ſhall riſe and grow, either by Rents or by Gifts to the Uſe of this Houſe, of the which ye ſhall keep a true and juſt Account. And it ſhall not be lawful for you to pay any manner of Perſon, any Sum or Sums of Money, (except it be to the Steward of this Houſe, for the victualling of the ſame; and the ordinary Fees and Wages that goeth out thereof;) but ye ſhall firſt have the Names of thoſe Perſons ſubſcribed to the ſaid Sum of Money, under whoſe Office and Charge ſuch Payment ſhall happen to riſe and grow, or the Names of the moſt Part of them.

Ye ſhall alſo keep one ſeveral Account between the Renter and you, by which may appear not only the Charge of the ſaid Renter and his Arrearages, but alſo whether the Rents of the Lands pertaining to the ſaid Houſe encreaſe or decay.

Ye ſhall alſo yearly the 20. Day of October (within this Hoſpital) yield and give up in Writing unto the Preſident and Governours of the ſame, a true and a perfect Account of your whole Charge, during the Year of your Treaſurerſhip; and then the ſaid Preſident and Governours ſhall name and appoint among themſelves four to be Auditors for the ſame. And the ſecond Day of November next following, ye ſhall likewiſe reſort to the ſaid Hoſpital, at the Hour of eight a Clock in the Forenoon, that ye may then anſwer and clear your Account, if any Doubts or Faults ſhall happen to riſe or be found by the Auditors of the ſame. And the ſame Day, then and there ye ſhall declare unto the new Treaſurer that ſhall be appointed, the whole Courſe and State of the Affairs, Profits, and Commodities of this Houſe, in as large Sort as ye poſſibly can, and deliver unto him all ſuch Sums of Money due to the Houſe, as ſhall then reſt in your Hands. and all ſuch Acquitances, Rentals, and other Writings, as neceſſarily ſhall appertain to the Affairs of the ſaid Houſe. And the ſame Day to dine within the ſaid Hoſpital, with the Governours thereof. And in Recompence of your Pains, ye ſhall be aſſured of the Mercies laid up for you in the Promiſes and Blood of Jeſus Chriſt our Saviour.

Surveiors.

UNTO you is committed the View of all the Lands and Leaſes pertaining unto this Houſe, as well ſuch as heretofore have been granted, as alſo hereafter ſhall be granted; and ye ſhall cauſe the ſame to be regiſtered in the Repertory-Book by the Clerk, from Time to Time, when, and as often as you ſhall aſſign him. To the Intent that the Governours of this Houſe may always be aſſured what Grants have paſſed them, and both whereunto they have bound themſelves, and alſo whereunto their Tenants are bound: that the Lands and Tenants may be looked unto accordingly. And ye ſhall adjoin unto you the Treaſurer of this Houſe for the Time being, as a neceſſary Aid in all your Doings: for that he moſt chiefly hath Experience of all the Affairs and Doings of this Houſe. And for the better accompliſhing hereof, you, or the greateſt Part of you, ſhall meet every fourteen Days in this Houſe on the Wedneſday. At which Time ye may warn the Tenants that have made Default in non-doing of Reparations, or Non-payment of their Rents or other, to be before you, to take Order with them, according to the Covenants expreſſed in their Leaſes. And your Grant, with the Particulars of ſuch Reparations as by you ſhall be allowed, to be entred into a Book with the Name of the Tenant and Tenement, whereunto you or the moſt Part of you ſhall ſubſcribe your Names. And then commit the Overſight thereof to the Renter, ſo that it be agreed, that one or more of you may viſit and peruſe the ſame in ſuch wiſe as the Greatneſs or Quantity of the Thing will require.

Alſo every Year, at the Feaſt of St. Michael the Archangel, two new Surveiors to be choſen; and the old with the new to make the 12. Day of October following, or within two Days before or after, a general View and Survey of all the Lands appertaining to this Houſe, and truly to keep a Book of the Defaults thereof. And for your Pains taking here, God hath promiſed to give you Reſt and Pleaſure in Heaven perpetually.

Almoners.

YOU ſhall every Monday come into this Houſe, or oftner, if you ſhall think good, but at the leaſt once in the Week: Always provided, not on the Saturday, for that Day ſpecially ſhall be reſerved and kept for the Seſſion of the Preſident and Governours of this Houſe, for the general Affairs of the ſame.

And every Time of your being here, if there be Cauſe why, ye ſhall call before you every particular Officer of this Houſe, and enquire if every Man do his Duty therein according to his Charge, and whether there be Peace and Quietneſs maintained in the ſame. And if ye ſhall at any Time find any diſordered Perſon or Perſons, then to take ſuch Order with him or them for their better Reformation, as to you ſhall ſeem moſt meet. And if any refuſe to be ordered by you, then to make ſuch Perſon known to the Preſident and the reſt of the Governours, that farther Order may be taken by the whole Houſe.

Ye ſhall alſo diligently enquire, if the Chirurgeons of this Houſe do their Duty toward the Poor without Corruption or Partiality, and calling them before you, ye ſhall enquire what Number there were healed that Week, and the ſame deliver, and reward, according to your Diſcretions. And of the ſame Rewards to have your Allowance of the Treaſurer, ſo that you deliver unto him the Paticulars thereof, ſigned with the Hands of two of you at the leaſt. And in the Places of the Poor ſo departed, to admit other, in ſuch Sort and Manner, as in the Charge of the Hoſpitaler is mentioned and declared.

Ye ſhall view from Time to Time this Houſe, keeping one entire and perfect Inventory of the Utenſils and neceſſary Implements thereof, in a Book, as well that Proviſion may be made in due Time, for ſupplying that which ſhall be found to lack, as alſo in due Time to provide for Wood, Coal, and other neceſſary Furniture. And whatſoever elſe ſhall ſeem needful unto you for the Benefit of the Poor; as the enlarging of Rooms, or encreaſing the Number of Beds, the ſame ye ſhall ſignify to the Preſident and Governours, that by one Aſſent it may be decreed, and by you finiſhed and performed.

Ye ſhall alſo ſee unto the keeping ſweet of the Poor, and in your proper Perſons viſit them once every Week at the leaſt, and to ſee that their Service of Bread, Meat, and Drink, be truly and faithfully delivered unto them. And for your Labours and Pains, ye ſhall be ſure of the Reward that God hath promiſed to all them that ſuccour his Members.

Scrutiners.

YE ſhall be ready and diligent to make Search and Enquiry from Time to Time for all ſuch Gifts, Legacies, and Bequeſts, as have been, or ſhall be given or bequeathed to the Succour and Comfort of the Poor of this Houſe. And the ſame receive at the Hands of the Givers or Executors, together with a Bill of the Sum, ſubſcribed with their Names that make Payment or Deliverance thereof : The which Bill and Money ye ſhall forthwith deliver unto the Treaſurer of this Houſe, receiving his Acquittance for the ſame, keeping nevertheleſs a Book yourſelves, wherein ye ſhall enter and regiſter all ſuch Charity, the Givers, the Time, and the Sum; and for all ſuch Sum or Sums of Money, as by you, or any of you, ſhall be procured, had, or received, ye ſhall (if it be required) make unto the Givers or Deliverers thereof, an Acquitance in your own Names, as the Governours and Scrutiners of this Houſe.

And yearly at the Election of the new Governours into this Houſe, ſhall be elected one new Scrutiner; and the old Scrutiner that ſhall be removed, ſhall make Delivery unto the new Scrutiners, of all ſuch Records, Bills, and Writings as concern the Affairs of this Houſe. And alſo at the Audit of the Treaſurer's Account, the Scrutiner's Book of Gifts and Bequeſts ſhall in like Manner be examined and allowed.

Finally, ye ſhall in every Place where you ſhall have Occaſion to come in the Company of good, vertuous, and wealthy Men, to the uttermoſt of your Power, commend and ſet forth the good Order of this Houſe, and how rightly the Goods given to the Poor, are here beſtowed, to the Encouragement of other to extend their Charity thereunto. Ye ſhall alſo, as Occaſion and Opportunity ſerveth, move thoſe that have the Office of Preaching committed to them, that they may the rather provoke the Devotions of the People, to the Help and Comfort of this Houſe. And thus doing, you ſhall not loſe the Reward that God hath promiſed to all them that ſeek to glorify and reverence his Name in his poor Members.

An Admonition to the Auditors.

INTO your Audit muſt be brought theſe Sorts of Books; Firſt, the Hoſpital Book, being in the Cuſtody of the Hoſpitaler, to which alſo ye ſhall look, that every Page or total Sum thereof be ſubſcribed with two of the Hands of the Almoners: And this Book ſhall ye confer with the Steward's Book, who firſt maketh the Proviſions. Ye muſt alſo have the Scrutiner's Book, to examine the Account of the Treaſurer for Money delivered unto him by Gifts and Bequeſts. Alſo the Book of Survey, to confer the Bills brought in by the Treaſurer, with the Allowances of Reparations, expreſſed in the ſaid Book. Alſo ye ſhall demand of the Renter his Rental for that Year, not forgetting always to charge him with the Arrearages that remain the Year before, (if any be) and to confer the Sums of Money, received by the Treaſurer, with the Charge and Account of the ſaid Renter. And laſtly, to have ſpecial Regard, if any Sum of Money have been paid by the Treaſurer, by any Decree or general Order of this Houſe, to look in the Journal for the ſame.

And thus in the whole Affairs of this Houſe ſhall ye perfectly be inſtructed.

An Order for the ſafe keeping of the Evidences and Writings appertaining to the Hoſpital.

THERE ſhall one fair and ſubſtantial Cheſt be provided, and the ſame be ſet in the moſt convenient and ſureſt Place of the Houſe, the which ſhall have three ſeveral Locks, and three Keys, whereof the Preſident always to have one, and the Treaſurer one, and a Communer appointed by the whole Houſe, to have the Third. And it ſhall not be lawful to any of the Governours to have any Specialty, Evidence, or Writing, out of the ſaid Cheſt, neither any other Perſon, to carry any of them out of the Houſe, (no, tho' it be for the Affairs of the ſaid Houſe) but only a Copy thereof, which ſhall be taken in the Preſence of the three Perſons above-named, that have the Keys, and the Original forthwith to be locked up again.

Officers of Houſhold, with their particular Charge.

The Renter Clerk and his Charge.

YOUR Office is, with all Care and Diligence to collect and gather the Rents due of the Lands and Tenements appertaining to this Houſe, and of all Sums of Money ſo by you collected and gathered, to make Deliverance and Payment to the Treaſurer of this Houſe for the Time being, ~~receiving~~ his Acquitance for your Diſcharge.

You ſhall alſo once every Week at the leaſt, reſort unto the Preſident of this Houſe, or to the Treaſurer thereof, for the Knowledge of the Affairs of the ſame, and at every of the ordinary Sittings of the Governours in this Houſe, for the Affairs thereof, as well at the Days appointed for the Aſſembly of the Surveiors and Almoners, as alſo when the Preſident and all the Maſters ſhall aſſemble, ye ſhall give your Attendance, that from Time to Time ye may enter and regiſter all ſuch Decrees, Orders and Determinations, as by them and every of them in their ſeveral Charges ſhall be decreed, ordained and determined.

And for that, the good Order and Governance of this Houſe may the better appear, as well to the Governours now being, as to all other worthy Perſonages that hereafter ſhall govern, or ſhall deſire the Certainty thereof, it ſhall be requiſite that ye keep diligently four ſeveral Books, the Names whereof, and the Uſe are here deſcribed :

A Repertory.
A Book of Survey.
A Book of Accounts.
A Journal.

And firſt you ſhall note, that before every of theſe Books ye muſt have a Calendar, into the which ye may enter by Order of Letters of the A. B. C. all proper Names and Matters that ſhall be contained in every of them. And for the better accompliſhing hereof, ye ſhall, with your Pen, in the Head of the Leaf, number the Pages of every Leaf, in every of theſe Books, and then adding in your Calendar the Number of the Page, where the Name or Matter is entered, tered in your Book, the Reader, without any Difficulty, may turn to the ſame.

The Uſe of the firſt Book, called a Repertory.

INTO this Book ſhall ye firſt enter the Foundation of this Hoſpital, and alſo all Deeds, Leaſes, Obligations, Acquittances, and other Specialties; uſing always in the Margent of the ſaid Book, to note in a few Engliſh Words the Sum and Content of every Article of thoſe Writings that ſhall appear note-worthy, and the ſame Notes particularly to enter into their ſeveral and proper Places of your Calendar, according to the Order of the A. B. C.

The Uſe of the ſecond Book, called a Book of Survey.

FIRST, in a ſeveral Leaf, yearly before ye enter any other Thing into this Book, ye ſhall make an Abſtract of the Names and Surnames of every of thoſe Tenants, to whom this Houſe is bound to do Reparations, and alſo of them that are bound to find their own Reparations, noting in the Margent the Leaf of your Repertory, where every of their Leaſes is entered. Alſo every Year when the Surveiors ſhall ſurvey the Lands of this Houſe, ye ſhall be attendant upon them, and aptly and plainly enter into this Book all ſuch Defaults as by them ſhall be found, in the Time of their View, making a diſtinct Difference between Tenants at Will, and Tenants by Leaſe; and alſo between thoſe, to whom this Houſe is bound to find Reparations, and ſuch as have bound themſelves to Reparations.

Alſo ye ſhall diligently enter into this Book all ſuch Orders and Grants of Reparations or other, as the Surveiors from Time to Time ſhall make or take with the Tenants.

And every Year when the Treaſurer ſhall bring in his Account, and before the Auditors ſhew ſuch Bills of Reparations, ſigned with two of the Hands of the Surveiors, as he hath paid, ye ſhall, after the Admiſſion of the ſaid Bills by the Auditors, enter every of them into this Book particularly under this Title.

Reparations done in the Year that A. B. was Treaſurer of this Hoſpital (that is to ſay) from the Feaſt of St. Michael in the fifth Year, &c.

And then ye ſhall write firſt the Name and Surname of the Tenant, the Tenement, and the Day of the Month, and then the Reparations. And thus ye ſhall do with the other. And it is to be noted, that in your Calendar muſt be entred the Name of every Treaſurer, and the Leaf where the Reparations brought in his Account are entred. And next after the Reparations, ye ſhall enter yearly your whole Rental, being firſt examined by the Surveiors, and having two of their Names, at the leaſt, ſubſcribed thereunto. And in a particular and plain Manner ye ſhall expreſs and declare the Encreaſe of Rents that Year, and that ſhall ye enter into your Calendar under this Title, Augmentation of Rents, titling from Leaf to Leaf, where the ſaid Encreaſings be noted. And in like Manner ſhall ye do with Rents decayed, entring them into your Calendar by this Word, Decayed Rents; likewiſe with Tenements or Rents altered or changed, by this Name, Alteration of Rents.

The Uſe of the third Book, called a Book of Accounts.

IN this Book ye ſhall firſt enter all the Accounts (being allowed by the Auditors) of all the Treaſurers that have been ſince this Hoſpital was firſt committed to the City of London. And from henceforth at the Foot of every Account made by the Treaſurer, ye ſhall expreſly and plainly add, and enter the Arrearages of the Renter for that Year, which alſo firſt by the Auditors ſhall be examined and ſubſcribed, as aforeſaid.

And foraſmuch as in all Accounts divers and many Things at ſundry Times are requiſite to be known, ye ſhall therefore in your Calendar firſt note the Name of the Treaſurer, with the Leaf where his Account is entered; and alſo in the Margent at the Entrance of the ſaid Account, ye ſhall note the Leaf of your Book of Survey, where the Reparations mentioned in the ſame Account, are particularly entered.

And for the ready finding of every Matter contained in every Account, ye ſhall in the Margent of this Book uſe, as is aforeſaid, to note divers general Words, Accompts, Proviſions, Liveries, Gifts, Legacies, Rewards, Agreements, Surrenders, Bargains, Suits, Recoveries, Penſions, Fees, &c. Adding to every one of theſe, being placed in your Calendar, the Leaf where every of them is mentioned in any of the Accounts contained in this Book, that at a Word may be ſeen what hath been done in all theſe Things, from the firſt Treaſurer to the laſt.

And for a perfect Declaration of the whole Affairs of this Houſe, ye ſhall alſo out of another Book (which ſhall contain the Doings of the Almoners, and ſhall be called the Hoſpital-Book) enter into this Book of Accounts, as well a perfect Inventory of all ſuch Implements as then ſhall be found within this Hoſpital, as alſo a full Remainder of all the Proviſions and Victuals firſt ſubſcribed by two of the ſaid Almoners. And in the End ye ſhall manifeſtly declare the Names and Surnames of ſo many diſeaſed Perſons as that Year have been cured and delivered out of this Houſe, and alſo the Names and Surnames of ſo many as that Year have dyed in the Houſe: The Names and Surnames alſo of as many as then ſhall remain ſick and diſeaſed in this Houſe, together with the Name of the Shire wherein each was born, and their Faculties, Exerciſe, or Occupations.

The Uſe of the fourth Book, called a Journal.

THIS Book muſt alſo have a Calendar, and it ſhall always be brought forth at ſuch Time as the Preſident and moſt Part of the Governours ſhall ſit within this Hoſpital, for the general Affairs of the ſame. And into this Book ſhall ye enter all ſuch Orders and Decrees, as from Time to Time ſhall by the ſaid Governours, or greateſt Part of them, be decreed and ordained. And in the Margent thereof ye ſhall do as before is aſſigned in the Book of Repertory, in few Words ſet forth the Sum of every Decree, Order, &c. contained therein. And chiefly ye ſhall uſe the general Words before deſcribed in the Book of Accounts: that by the Entrance of them into your Calendar, every Matter may eaſily and readily be found. And ye ſhall not fail, but in five or ſix Days after the Entrance of any Thing into this Book, to enter the ſame by a general Word into the Calendar, that as well when you are abſent as preſent, the Governours may, without Difficulty, be ſatisfied of that they ſeek therein:

The Officer of the Hoſpitaler.

YOUR Office is chiefly and moſt principally to viſit the Poor in their Extreams and Sickneſſes, and to miniſter unto them the moſt wholſome and neceſſary Doctrine of God's comfortable Word, as well by reading and preaching as alſo by miniſtring the Sacrament of the holy Communion at Times convenient.

To receive alſo into this Houſe, of the Steward, to the Uſe of the ſame Poor, ſuch Victuals and other Proviſion as by him ſhall be provided, entring the ſame into your Book, and ſafely to keep them to their Uſe.

Alſo to deliver unto the Cook of this Houſe, from Time to Time, ſo much of the ſame Victuals as ſhall be needful from the preſent Time to be dreſſed for the Poor. And the ſame being dreſſed, to ſee ſeaſonably and truly delivered and diſtributed unto them.

Alſo whenſoever any poor Perſon ſhall be here preſented or ſued for, to be admitted into this Houſe, you ſhall receive the ſame Preſentation, calling unto you two of the Chirurgeons of this Houſe, to view and examine the Diſeaſe of the ſaid Perſon, whether it be curable or not curable; if they judge it curable, then you, by a Bill of your Hand, to certify the Name and Surname of the ſaid diſeaſed Perſon unto the Almoners, or two of them at the leaſt, deſiring them to ſubſcribe their Names thereuuto; and that being done, you keep upon a File the ſame Bill for your Warrant. And then ye ſhall commit the ſame Poor to the Matron of this Houſe, to be placed accordingly as the Caſe ſhall require.

Alſo at the Admiſſion of every poor Perſon into this Hoſpital, ye ſhall enquire what Money, or other Things of Value, he or ſhe hath, and the ſame together with his, or her Name, to enter into your Book, and you to receive and ſafely keep the ſame to the Uſe of the ſame Poor, to be delivered again unto him, her, or them, when they ſhall be cured out of this Houſe. And monthly to deliver to the ſaid Almoners a Copy of your Book of Entrances, that they may regiſter the ſame in the Book of their ordinary Doings. And if any ſuch Poor fortune to deceaſe and die in this Houſe, then you to deliver all ſuch Money and other Things as ſhall be in your Cuſtody, to the Treaſurer of this Houſe for the Time being, entering the ſame into your Book, to be committed and diſpoſed to the Uſe of the Poor.

And as often as any of the Poor ſhall be cured and made whole, you, with the Chirugeons to preſent them to the Almoners of this Houſe at their next Aſſembly here, and to regiſter in your Book their Names, and Surnames of them, and every of them, with the Day and Year of their Delivery and Departure out of this Houſe. And at their Departure to give unto them a Paſſport, to be made according to the Precedent and Form that is expreſſed in the End of this Book.

This is your Charge, and ye have not to do with any other Thing in this Houſe. Howbeit, if ye ſhall perceive at any Time any Thing done by any Officer of this Houſe, or other Perſon, that ſhall maintain Diſorder, or procure Slander to this Houſe, that ye then declare the ſame to ſome one or two of the Governours of this Houſe, and to none other Perſon, and no farther to meddle therein.

The Office of the Steward and Butler.

YOUR Charge is faithfully and truly to make Proviſion of ſuch needful Victuals, as from Time to Time ye ſhall be appointed by the Almoners to provide for the Poor of this Houſe: remembring always that whereinſoever you ſhall hinder, or negligently burden this Houſe, either with exceſſive Prices, or not making your Proviſion in due Time, the Dammage and Hurt you do unto God, whoſe Members the Poor are, and therefore ye ought the rather to ſtudy to ſerve in this Houſe with Fear of God and Conſcience, as one that manifeſtly and plainly walketh before the Face of God, who perfectly ſeeth and beholdeth the very Thoughts of your Heart.

Your Charge is alſo to keep a true and perfect Account of all ſuch Victuals as by you ſhall be bought, and to make Deliverance of the ſaid Victuals unto the Hoſpitaler of this Houſe, declaring unto him the juſt Weight, Number, and Prices of the ſame, that he may make due and true Entrance and Account thereof.

Alſo at ſuch Times as ſhall be needful for the Poor to be ſerved of their ordinary Meals or otherwiſe, either of Bread or Drink, ye ſhall not be abſent, but with all Diligence and Readineſs ye ſhall give your Attendance.

Ye ſhall have to do in none other Man's Office in this Houſe, but only with your own in Manner as is above deſcribed. But if ye ſhall perceive at any Time any Thing done by any Officer or other Perſon of this Houſe, that ſhall be unprofitable thereunto, or that may be Occaſion of any Diſorder, or ſhall engender Slander to the ſame: That then ye declare the Thing to ſome one or two of the Governours of this Houſe, and to none other Perſon, nor farther to meddle therein.

The Office of the Matron.

YOUR Office is to receive of the Hoſpitaler of this Houſe, all ſuch ſick and diſeaſed Perſons, as he by his Warrant ſigned from the Almoners of this Houſe, ſhall preſent unto you, and the ſame Perſons to beſtow in ſuch convenient Places within this Houſe, as you ſhall think meet.

You have alſo the Charge, Governance, and Order of all the Siſters of this Houſe, to ſee from Time to Time that every of them in the Wards committed to their Charge, do their Duty unto the Poor, as well in making of their Beds, and keeping their Wards, as alſo in waſhing and purging their unclean Cloaths, and other Things. And that the ſame Siſters every Night after the Hour of ſeven of the Clock in the Winter, and nine of the Clock in the Summer, come not out of the Womans Ward, except ſome great and ſpecial Cauſe (as the preſent Danger of Death, or needful Succour of ſome poor Perſon.) And yet at ſuch a ſpecial Time it ſhall not be lawful for every Siſter to go forth to any Perſon or Perſons (no tho' it be in her Ward) but only for ſuch as you ſhall think virtuous, godly, and diſcreet. And the ſame Siſter to remain no longer with the ſame ſick Perſon then needful Cauſe ſhall require.

Alſo at ſuch Times as the Siſters ſhall not be occupied about the Poor, ye ſhall ſet them to ſpinning, or doing of ſome other Manner of Work, that may avoid Idleneſs, and be profitable to the Poor of this Houſe.

Alſo ye ſhall receive the Flax provided by the Governours of this Houſe; and the ſame being ſpun by the Siſters, ye ſhall commit to the ſaid Governours, that they may both put Order for the Weighing of the ſame to the Weaver, and for the Meaſuring of it at the returning thereof.

You ſhall alſo, as the chief Governeſs and worthy Matron of this Houſe, have ſpecial Regard to the good ordering and keeping of all the Sheets, Coverlets, Blankets, Beds, and other Implements committed to your Charge, that now do, or hereafter ſhall, appertain unto the Poor.

Alſo ye ſhall ſuffer no poor Perſon of this Houſe to ſit and drink within your Houſe at no Time, neither ſhall ye ſo ſend them Drink into their Wards, that thereby Drunkenneſs might be uſed and continued among them; but, as much as in you ſhall lie, ye ſhall exhort them to Vertue and Temperance, declaring this Houſe to be appointed for the Harbour and Succour of the dear Members of Chriſt's Body, and not of Drunkards and unthankful Perſons.

Herewith ye are charged, and not with any other Thing. But if there ſhall be anything done by any Officer or any other Perſon of this Houſe, that ſhall be unprofitable thereunto, or that may be Occaſion of any Diſorder, or ſhall engender Slander to the ſame, that ye then declare it to ſome one or two of the Governours of this Houſe, and to none other Perſon, nor no farther to meddle therein.

The Siſters.

YOUR Charge is, in all Things to declare and ſhew yourſelves gentle, diligent, and obedient to the Matron of this Houſe, who is appointed and authorized to be your chief Governeſs and Ruler.

Ye ſhall alſo faithfully and charitably ſerve and help the Poor in all their Griefs and Diſeaſes, as well by keeping them ſweet and clean, as in giving them their Meats and Drinks, after the moſt honeſt and comfortable Manner. Alſo ye ſhall uſe unto them good and honeſt Talk, ſuch as may comfort and amend them; and utterly to avoid all light, wanton, and fooliſh Words, Geſtures, and Manners, uſing yourſelves unto them with all Sobriety and Diſcretion. And above all Things, ſee that ye avoid, abhor, and deteſt Scolding and Drunkenneſs, as moſt peſtilent and filthy Vices.

Ye ſhall not haunt or reſort to any manner of Perſon out of this Houſe, except ye be licenſed by the Matron; neither ſhall ye ſuffer any light Perſon to haunt or uſe unto you, neither any diſhoneſt Perſon, either Man or Woman; and ſo much as in you ſhall lie, ye ſhall avoid and ſhun the Converſation and Company of all Men.

Ye ſhall not be out of the Woman's Ward after the Hour of ſeven of the Clock in the Night, in the Winter Time, nor after Nine of the Clock at Night in the Summer; except ye ſhall be appointed and commanded by the Matron ſo to be, for ſome great and ſpecial Cauſe that ſhall concern the Poor, (as, the preſent Danger of Death, or extream Sickneſs) and yet ſo being commanded, ye ſhall remain no longer with ſuch diſeaſed Perſon than juſt Cauſe ſhall require.

Alſo, if any juſt Cauſe of Grief ſhall fortune unto any of you, or that ye ſhall ſee Lewdneſs in any Officer, or other Perſon of this Houſe, which may ſound or grow to the Hurt or Slander thereof, ye ſhall declare the ſame to the Matron, or unto one or two of the Governours of this Houſe, that ſpeedy Remedy therein may be had; and to no other Perſon, neither ſhall ye talk or meddle therein any farther. This is your Charge, and with any other Thing you are not charged.

The Chirurgeons.

YOUR Charge is faithfully and truly, to the uttermoſt of your Knowledge and Cunning, to help to cure the Griefs and Diſeaſes of the Poor of this Hoſpital; ſetting aſide all Favour, Affection, Gain, or Lucre; and that, as well to the Pooreſt, deſtitute of all Friends and Succours, as to ſuch as ſhall, peradventure, be better friended, ye ſhall, with all Favour and Friendſhip, procure the ſpeedy Recovery of their Health.

Alſo, for your Stipend and Fee, given and paid out of this Houſe, ye ſhall be ready at the Commandment of the Almoners of this Houſe, and Hoſpitaler of the ſame, to view and look upon ſuch diſeaſed Perſons, as here from Time to Time ſhall be preſented. And after your View, to ſignify to the ſaid Almoners or Hoſpitaler your Judgment of the ſaid diſeaſed Perſon, without all Affection, whether he or ſhe be curable or not; to the Intent there may not be admitted into this Houſe, that ſhall be incurable, to the great Lett and Hindrance of the curing and helping of many other; or none rejected and put back that are curable, to the great Slander of this Houſe, and Diſpleaſure of God.

Alſo, at all ſuch Times as ye ſhall go to the Dreſſing of any diſeaſed Perſon in this Houſe, as much as in you is, ye ſhall give unto him or her faithful or good Counſel: Willing them to mind to ſin no more, and to be thankful unto Almighty God, for whoſe Sake they are here comforted of Men. And above all Things, ye ſhall take nor receive of no Perſon any Gift or Reward for the curing ot helping of them, either of them or their Friends, but ye ſhall firſt make the ſame Offer or Reward known unto the Almoners of this Houſe.

Alſo, we utterly forbid and command you, that ye by no Colour peſter or burthen this Houſe with any Sick or diſeaſed Perſon, for the curing of which Perſon ye before have received a Sum or Sums of Money, upon Pain to be diſmiſſed this Houſe.

This is your Charge and Office, with which ye have to do, and not with any Thing, neither with any other Office in this Houſe. But if you ſhall perceive at any Time anything done by any Officer or other Perſon of this Houſe, that ſhall be unprofitable thereunto, or that may be the Occaſion of any Diſorder, or ſhall engender Slander to the ſame, that ye then declare it to the Almoners, or one of them, and no farther to meddle therein.

The Office of the Porter.

YOUR Charge is, to keep the Doors, opening and ſhutting them in due Time, and to give good Heed to all ſuch Perſons as ſhall at any Time paſs to and fro out of this Houſe, as well for the conveighing or embezelling of any thing that appertaineth to the Poor of this Houſe, as Wood, Coal, Bread, Meat, or Drink, as alſo for all ſuſpicious Perſons, as Men to reſort to the Womens Ward, or Women to the Mens Wards; or ſuch ſuſpicious Men to reſort unto the Men, or Women to the Women, as ſhall be thought to be petty Pickers, or Perſons otherwiſe of naughty Diſpoſition.

And alſo every Night, at the Hour of Seven of the Clock in the Summer, ye ſhall go into every Ward where the poor Men be, and ſee them in good Order; and ſuffer no Siſter nor other Woman to remain among them, (except juſt Cauſe be declared by the Matron) and cauſe them to ſay the appointed Prayers.

And whatſoever poor Perſon ſhall be found a Swearer, or an unreverent Uſer of his Mouth, towards God or his Holy Name, or a Contemner of the Matron or other Officer of this Houſe, or that ſhall refuſe to go to Bed at the lawful Hours before appointed him, ſhall ye puniſh (after once Warning given) in the Stocks, and farther declare his Folly unto the Almoners of this Houſe, that they may take ſuch Order with him or them, as ſhall ſeem meet by their Deſcretions.

Ye ſhall alſo be diligent and ready from Time to Time, to do ſuch other Things as the Governours of this Houſe ſhall aſſign and appoint you. This is your Charge, and more you have not to do; but if you perceive at any Time, anything done by any Officer of this Houſe, or other Perſon, that ſhall maintain Diſorder, or procure Slander to this Houſe, that ye then ſhall declare the ſame to ſome one or two of the Governours of this Houſe, and to none other Perſon, and no farther to meddle therein.

The Bedels.

YOUR Office and Charge is to give Attendance from Time to Time upon the Governours of this Houſe, and to do ſuch Buſineſs as they ſhall aſſign you.

And alſo, all ſuch Days as the Governours of this Houſe ſhall ſit in this Hoſpital for the Affairs of the ſame, ye ſhall ſeparate and divide yourſelves into ſundry Parts and Liberties thereof, every Man taking his ſeveral Walks. And if in any of your Walks ye ſhall happen to eſpy any Perſon infected with any lothely Grief or Diſeaſe, which ſhall fortune to lie in any notable Place of this City, to the Noyance and Infection of the Paſſers by, and Slander of this Houſe, ye ſhall then give Knowledge thereof unto the Almoners of this Hoſpital, that they may take ſuch Order therein, as to them ſhall be thought meet.

Ye ſhall alſo have a ſpecial Eye and Regard unto all ſuch Perſons as have been cured and healed in this Houſe, that none of them counterfeit any Grief or Diſeaſe, neither beg within the City and Liberties thereof. And if ye ſhall fortune to find any ſo doing, ye ſhall immediately commit him or them to ſome Cage, and give Knowledge thereof to the Governours of this Houſe, that they may take farther Order, as they ſhall think beſt.

Ye ſhall not haunt nor frequent the Company of any poor and beggarly Perſons, that is to ſay, to drink or eat with them in any Victualling-Houſe, or other Place, neither ſhall ye receive any Bribe or Reward of any of them, leaſt, by Occaſion thereof ye ſhould wink at them, and ſo lewdly licenſe them to beg, upon Pain to be diſmiſſed this Houſe.

Alſo, ye ſhall not ſuffer any ſturdy or idle Beggar or Vagabond, to beg or aſk Alms within this City of London, or Suburbs of the ſame, but ye ſhall forthwith commit all ſuch to Ward, and immediately ſignify the Name and Surname of him or them to the Alderman of that Ward where ye ſhall apprehend any ſuch Beggar, or elſe to the Lord Maior, that Execution may be done as the Law in that Caſe hath provided. This is your Charge.

The Viſitour of Newgate.

YOUR Charge is faithfully and diligently to viſit all the poor and miſerable Captives within the Priſon of Newgate, and miniſter unto them ſuch ordinary Service, at Times convenient, as is appointed by the King's Majeſty's Book for ordinary Prayer.

Alſo, that ye learn without Book the moſt wholeſome Sentences of Holy Scripture, that may comfort a deſperate Man, that readily ye may miniſter them to ſuch Perſons as ye ſhall perceive them moſt needful to be miniſtred unto.

Alſo, ye ſhall faithfully and truly uſe and bear yourſelf between Party and Party, excluding Bribes and all other Corruption, that is to ſay, between the Priſoners and the Parties to whom they have offended, exhorting them to the uttermoſt of your Cunning, to make Reſtitution of their Things falſely gotten: Shewing them the Burthen of Conſcience depending thereupon. And that alſo they diſcloſe all ſuch other Perſons as they know living, which by Robbery or Murther may hurt a Commonweal. And in all their Extreams and Sickneſſes, ye ſhall be diligent and ready to comfort them with the moſt pithy and fruitful Sentences of God's moſt Holy Word.

And whatſoever Perſon you ſhall perceive to have Subſtance, and to be minded to beſtow ſomewhat thereof in Deeds of Charity, ye ſhall exhort him or them to beſtow ſome Part to the Relief of the needy and diſeaſed Perſons of this Houſe. And of all ſuch Gifts from Time to Time, to give Knowledge to the Almoners or Scrutiners of this Houſe.

And foraſmuch as you are numbered among the Miniſters of Chriſt's Church, ye ſhall therefore four Times in the Year at the leaſt, that is to ſay, every Quarter once, do ſuch Service in the ſaid Church as is requiſite for ſuch a Miniſter to do.

This is your Charge, which ſee that ye do, and with any other Thing ye are not charged.

The Eſtimate of the Yearly Charges of this Hoſpital.

IT is firſt here to be conſidered, that although the Charges were very great to bring the Endowment of the Hoſpital into ſuch Point as behoved, and to furniſh the Houſe with neceſſary Implements and Bedding for ſuch Number (as hath been afore touched in the Beginning) yet is there of all theſe Charges, no Parcel hereafter mentioned, but the yearly Expences only, ſuſtained for the Maintenance and Continuance of the ſame. And albeit theſe Charges following be all and every of them ordinary, and of Neceſſity; yet for that there is a Difference in the Certainty of the one and the other, they are divided into two Kinds, with theſe Titles; Charges certain, and Charges uncertain.

Charges certain,

Which only riſeth of the Charity of certain merciful Citizens, for whoſe Continuance, with the Increaſe of moe, we earneſtly pray unto the Fountain of Mercy, Jeſus Chriſt, the Lord of all, to whom for ever appertain the Kingdom, the Power, and the Glory, World without End, Amen.

A Thankſgiving unto Almighty God, to be ſaid by the Poor that are cured in the Hoſpital, at the Time of their Delivery from thence, upon their Knees in the Hall before the Hoſpitaler, and two Maſters of this Houſe at the leaſt.

And this the Hoſpitaler ſhall Charge them to learn without the Book, before they be delivered.

WE magnify and praiſe thee, O Lord, that ſo mercifully and favourably haſt looked upon us miſerable and wretched Sinners, which ſo highly have offended thy divine Majeſty, that we are not worthy to be numbered among thy elect and choſen People: Our Sins being great and grievous, are daily before our Eyes; we lament and be ſorry for them; and with ſorrowful Heart and lamentable Tears, we call and cry unto thee for Mercy: Have Mercy upon us, O Lord, have Mercy upon us; and according to thy great Mercy, wipe away the Multitude of our Sins; and grant us now, O Lord, thy moſt holy and working Spirit, that, ſetting aſide all Vice and Idleneſs, we may in thy Fear walk, and go forward in all Virtue and Godlineſs. And for that thou haſt moved, O Lord, the Hearts of godly Men, and the Governours of this Houſe, to ſhew their exceeding Charity towards us, in curing our Maladies and Diſeaſes, we yield our moſt humble and hearty Thanks to thy Majeſty, and ſhall inceſſantly laud and praiſe thy moſt holy and glorious Name; beſeeching thee, moſt gracious and merciful Lord, according to thy holy Word and Promiſe, ſo to bleſs this thine own dwelling Houſe, and the faithful Miniſters thereof, that there be here found no Lack; but that their Riches and Subſtance may increaſe, that thy holy Name may thereby be the more praiſed and glorified, to whom be all Laud, Honour, and Glory, World without End. Amen.

A Paſſport to be delivered to the Poor.

To all Maiors, Bailiffs, Conſtables, &c.

KNOW ye, That A. B. Taylour, born in the Town of S.T. in the County of Northampton, being cured of his Diſeaſe in the Hoſpital of St. Bartholomew, in Weſt Smithfield, in London, and from thence delivered the 13th Day of Auguſt, in the ſixth Year of the Reign, &c. hath Charge by us A. B. C. the Governours of the ſame to repair within . . . . Days next enſuing the Date hereof, to his ſaid Place of Nativity, or to Weſthandfield,, the Place of his laſt Abode; and there to exhibit this preſent Paſſport to the Head Officer or Officers, in either of the Places appointed, that they may take farther Order for his Demeanour.

CHAP. X.

A brief DISCOURSE, declaring and approving the neceſſary and inviolable Maintenance of the laudable Cuſtoms of London: Namely, of that one whereby a reaſonable Partition of the Goods of Husbands among their Wives and Children is provided: With an Anſwer to ſuch Objections and pretenced Reaſons, as are, by Perſons unadviſed or evil Perſwaded, uſed againſt the ſame.

WE find it neceſſary in all Commonwealths, for Subjects to live under the Direction of Laws, Conſtitutions or Cuſtoms, publickly known and received, and not to depend only upon the Commandment and Pleaſure of the Governour, be the ſame never ſo juſt or ſincere in Life and Converſation. For that the Law once enacted and eſtabliſhed, extendeth his Execution towards all Men alike without Favour or Affection: Whereas, if the Word of a Prince were a Law, the ſame being a mortal Man, muſt needs be poſſeſſed with thoſe Paſſions and Inclinations of Favour or Diſfavour that other Men be; and ſometimes decline from the conſtant and unremoveable Level of Indifferency, to reſpect the Man beſides the Matter, if not to regard the Perſon more than the Cauſe. Wherefore it was well agreed by the wiſeſt Philoſophers and greateſt Politicks, that a dumb Laws Direction is to be preferred before the ſole Diſpoſition of any living Prince, both for the Cauſe afore touched, and for other Reaſons which I will here omit. But to deſcend to the Particularities of my Intention, and to treat of the Validity and inviolable Obſervation of ſome laudable (I might term them ſacred) Cuſtoms, being the principal Joints, and very Sinews of all good Corporations and Fellowſhips, and being alſo the Maintainers of a ſacred Unity and natural Amity between the Huſband and his Wife, the Parents and their Children, which (as Ariſtotle the wiſe Philoſopher termeth it) is the Beginning of a City. For what is a City but a manifold and joint Society conſiſting of many Houſholds, and living under the ſame Laws, Freedoms and Franchiſes? So I muſt needs confeſs them to be the Procurers and Cauſes of ſundry good Effects to the general Eſtate of the City wherein they be obſerved: As for the other Side, they may breed ſundry Inconveniencies in ſuch a City where the ſame are violated and broken with Allowance and Impunity. I will therefore ſhortly ſhew the Nature of a Cuſtom, and the Difference which it holdeth from a publick Law. And next I will declare how neceſſary the ſame are to manage the Government, and to entertain the Proſperity and Traffique of this City; and namely, that one good Cuſtom which I intend to ſpeak of. Laſtly, I will endeavour to anſwer thoſe pretended Reaſons, and colourable Objections made againſt the preciſe Maintenance and Defence thereof.

Firſt then, I ſuppoſe that a Cuſtom which juſtly deſerveth that Name, is of no leſs reverend Regard and Authority, than a written Law, paſſed and allowed in Parliament: Which notwithſtanding, I do grant, that there are certain Differences between a Law and a Cuſtom; for the Cuſtom taketh its Force by Degrees of Time, and Conſent of a certain People, or the better Part thereof; but a Law ſpringeth up in an Inſtant, and receiveth Life from him that is of ſovereign Authority to command. A Cuſtom enlargeth itſelf by plauſible Entertainment, and acceptable Circumſtances of Time and Occaſion, with general Liking and Allowance; whereas a Law is commanded and publiſhed by Power, and received with dutiful Conſtraint, and that often againſt the Good Will of them that are bound by it; for which Cauſe St. Chryſoſtome not improperly compared the Cuſtom to a King, and the Law to a Tyrant. Moreover, the Cuſtom doth neither promiſe a Reward for Obſervation, nor inflict a Puniſhment for Violation thereof: Whereas, the Law always importeth either a Conſideration of Gain, or a Terror of Puniſhment or Damage, if the ſame be not a Law of Enlargement, or Permiſſion that diſannulleth the Prohibitions of a former Law. Finally, * a Cuſtom is applied to the Commodity of ſome one Province, Circuit, or City, and grounded upon a ſpecial Reaſon of Conveniency or Commodity, for thoſe Perſons or Place where it is obſerved: Whereas the Law hath a general Reaſon, extended to the whole Nation bound by the ſame, without private Conſideration of the due Importances of any peculiar

A Cuſtom, what.

* See 34 H. 8. B. Cuſtom, 59. A Man may not preſcribe or plead a Cuſtom per totam Angliam, for that is Common Law and no Cuſtom otherwiſe, if the Cuſtom had been pleaded to be in ſuch a City or County as Gavelkind, Gloc. Fee, and ſuch like.

Place or People. Therefore it is well ſaid, and put in ure by the common Lawyer, Quod conſuetudo ex rationabili cauſa profecta privat communem legem, That a Cuſtom grounded upon reaſonable and honeſt Conſideration, abridgeth or altereth the Judgment of the Common Law. So that in Cuſtoms the Eſtate or Condition of the People are to be reſpected, and ſuch Cuſtoms as are conſonant to Reaſon, and moſt appliable to the Eſtate and Quality of ſuch People, are to be allowed.

Boroughengliſh.

For Example: The Cuſtom of Boroughengliſh, yet in Force in ſundry Places of England, whereby the younger Son is to inherit his Father's Land, hath taken Strength by this Reaſon, That the Father may (if he be not careleſs and ſecure to do his Children Good) train up his elder Sons in ſome good Trade or Occupation, by which they may be able to get their own Living: Whereas the youngeſt, by the Impotency and Tenderneſs of his Years, may be, perchance, unapt and unable for ſuch Inſtruction; and ſo the Cuſtom commendable, that provideth for the Relief of the Young and Impotent. Alſo by an old Cuſtom of this Land, in ſundry Boroughs and Towns, Lands were deviſable by Will, though the Laws of England pronounced ſuch Deviſes to be void; and the Reaſon was, for that Inhabitants of Boroughs or Cities, whoſe Traffique and Trade reſteth much upon mutual Truſt and Credit, are oftentimes indebted at the Time of their Death.

But ſee now the Statute of 32 H. 8. c. 2, & 34. H. 8. c. 5. of Explanation.

Wherefore it was thought meet, that they might deviſe their Land for the due Satisfaction of their Creditors; which to do, they were enabled by the Cuſtom. In Kent and other Places of this Land, the Cuſtom of Gavelkinde is maintained, which importeth an equal Diviſion of the Inheritance to be made among all the Brethren: A Cuſtom partly grounded upon a natural Conſideration; for that all the Sons hold the like Obligation of Nature and Deſert with their Parents, in the which they have an equal Intreſt: And alſo ſuffered to take Place in Kent, and other Places of this Land, in thoſe Days moſt inclinable to Rebellion; to the Intent to enfeeble their Forces, and to bring their great Houſes and Families to Impuiſſance and Decay, thereby to diſable and diſcourage them from ſuch unlawful and violent Attempts.

Cuſtomes of London.

And to come nearer to the Matter, this famous and renowned City of London hath many laudable and ancient Cuſtomes; which, though they derogate and differ much from the Rules of the Common Law, yet have they been not only approved by inviolable Experience of ſundry Ages, but alſo have been of old ratified and confirmed by ſundry Acts of Parliament, and Charters of Princes, and namely by the Statute of Magna Charta, by theſe Words following, Quod civitas London habeat omnes libertates ſuas antiquas & conſuetudines quas habere conſuevit: Which is, That the City of London have all their ancient Liberties and Cuſtoms which they have uſed to have.

Magna Charta, Cap. 9.

The Words following for other Cities, &c. be, Quod habeant omnes libertates & liberas conſuetudines ſuas: Which ſignifieth, That they ſhall ſtill retain their Liberties and free Cuſtoms: That is to ſay, their Freedoms and Immunities, as to be diſcharged of Toll, Pontage, and ſuch like: Whereas the City of London hath Proviſion made by that Statute, for all Uſages and Cuſtoms whatſoever. Verily, as the City of London beareth Odds and Prerogative over other Cities in England, being the Metropolis, or Mother City thereof; ſo are the Inhabitants of it no leſs neceſſary than profitable Members of the Commonwealth, in tranſporting our Commodities into other Lands, and enriching us with the Benefits and Fruits of other Countries. The City of Rome, and Citizens of the ſame, had that Prerogative, as in other Things, ſo alſo in their Executions for Cauſes capital, that they ſhould not be crucified, being a Death of great Torment and Infamy, but only beheaded. The Benefit of which Cuſtom St. Paul claimed and obtained in the Time of Nero, pretending that he was a Citizen of Rome. The ſaid Citizens alſo by the Dignity and Reputation of their City, were not, for any Tranſgreſſion or Offence, to be fettered, whipped, or ſcourged; which Privilege likewiſe the ſaid St. Paul took hold of, who being oppreſſed by the calumnious Accuſations and Outcries of the Jews, was by Commandment of Claudius Lyſias, the Captain, to be examined by Torture of Whips; what was the Cauſe of that general Murmur and Exclamation of the People againſt him: Yet St. Paul, by alledging that he was a Freeman of Rome, not only delivered himſelf from the Injury and Rage of the People, but alſo made the Captain much afraid of Queſtion or Puniſhment, for the Indignity offered unto him.

Acts 22.

So great was the Majeſty of that City, and ſo reverend the Reputation of all ſuch as were accounted Members thereof. Athenæus termed Rome in thoſe Days very fitly, Epitome totius orbis, An Abridgment of the whole World, for the continual Concourſe and Reſort of all Nations thither. We may derive thence an Argument for our Purpoſe, that London being worthy that Title, Epitome totius Angliæ, in Reſpect of the neceſſary Repair and frequent Aſſembly of all Eſtates therein, whether it be for Juſtice by the Laws of this Land, which are here adminiſtred, or by Trade of Merchandiſe, which is here ſo great, that it may be termed totius occidentis Emporium: And chiefly, becauſe of the favourable and often ſojourn of our moſt royal and gracious Sovereign, whoſe Majeſty's Chamber this is, as it always hath been of her moſt noble Progenitors: The ſame is no leſs worthy of ſundry Preheminences, which by Cuſtom and Charter it enjoyeth above other Cities of this Land.

43 Ed. 3. fo. 17. Vide Brook, Preſcr. 8.

We find in our Law Books, that the Scholars of Oxford claimed a Privilege by Cuſtom, to have Preferment of any Houſe or Lodging that was to be let in the City of Oxford; and the ſame was allowed in the Common Place in Weſtminſter, where Juſtice Finchden, a Man of great Reckoning at that Time, ſaid, That it is Reaſon, that they which are principal Inſtruments of good in the Commonwealth, ſhould have beneficial Cuſtoms for the Maintenance of their Societies: The like Reaſon, ſaith he, ſerveth for the Merchants of the Staple in Weſtminſter; and alſo for the Juſtices of Aſſiſes, or Juſtices in Eyre, to have the like Prerogative.

Barons Prerogatives.

Alſo, it is not unfit to remember, that the Barons of the Land have divers Prerogatives above other Subjects, that is, they ſhall not be ſworn when they paſs upon their Peers; and if they bring an Appeal, the Defendant ſhall not wage Battaile againſt them; and they are exempted out of all Returns in Juries, and ſhall not be ſworn in Leets; and all in Reſpect of their Dignity, and for the neceſſary Uſe of them in Government of the Commonwealth.

Citizens.

So that Perſons of needful Employment in the Eſtate, have always been favoured in all their honeſt Cuſtomes or Preſcriptions, and eſpecially the Citizens of London, and the rather, for the great Preſumption and Opinion conceived of their Experience; who being trained by hard Education, in great Uſe of Service and Affairs; and alſo by their Travel and Traffique beyond the Seas, by continual Negociation with other Nations, muſt needs, by all reaſonable Likelihood, procure to themſelves great Judgment and Sufficiency, to manage a politick Regiment in their City, according unto that Verſe of the Poet Homer, in the Beginning of his Treatiſe of wiſe Ulyſſes his Adventures, remembring his Travel into ſundry Nations and Cities:

Dic mihi Muſa virum captæ poſt tempora Troiæ,
Qui mores hominum multorum vidit & urbes.

The Senſe whereof may be well expreſſed in Engliſh, without Rhime, thus:

All Travellers do gladly report great Praiſe of Ulyſſes:
For that he knew many Mens Manners, and ſaw many Cities.

Lord Maiors.

Which Opinion of their Policy and Experience conceived and approved by the noble Princes of this Land in all Ages, doth evidently appear by the Manner of their Government; whereat Strangers do no leſs envy than admire, ſeeing ſo populous a City, containing by true Eſtimation, more than 500 Thouſands of all Sorts of Inhabitants, managed not by cruel Viceroys, as is Naples or Milain, neither by proud Podeſtà, as be moſt Cities in Italy, or inſolent Lieutenants or Preſidents, as are ſundry Cities in France, (whoſe Preſidents are Noblemen or Captains, having their Perſons environed with a Guard of Soldiers, and holding their Cities poſſeſſed with a Garriſon, as well in the quieteſt Calm of Peace, as in the hotteſt Combuſtion of War:) But by a Man of Trade, or a meer Merchant; who notwithſtanding, during the Time of his Magiſtracy, carrieth himſelf with that honourable Magnificence in his Port, and Enſigns of Eſtate, that the Conſuls, Tribunes, or Pretors of Rome, namely, when the ſame was reduced to a Monarchy, much leſs the Podeſtà of any City in Italy, never bear the like Repreſentation of Dignity: And that, not only in peaceable Seaſons, but in Time of greateſt War: For ſuch Credit the Princes of this Land have ſtill repoſed in their Fidelity and wiſe Direction, that we have few Examples in any Chronicle, of any Nobleman or other, appointed to aſſiſt the Lord Maior in his Government; much leſs to be ſole Ruler or Lieutenant for the Time, were the State never ſo troubleſome, and the Affairs of never ſo great Conſequence and Importance.

Honour of London.

7 H. 6. 32.

And to add a little more in Proof of the ſingular good Conceit had of their Service to the Commonwealth: and that the ſame hath in all Ages from the Conqueſt, given them Prerogative above other Cities of this Land, we read in the ſeventh Year of Henry the Sixth, that in a nativo habendo, brought by the Lord to recover his Villain, it was adjudged a good Return made by the Sheriff of London, that ſuch was the Cuſtom of London, that a Villain having remained there the Space of one whole Year and a Day, could not be fetched or removed out thence. For ſo great is the Prerogative of that Place, that it giveth Protection to the Villain or Bondman againſt his Lord, while the ſaid Bondman ſhall be reſiant there. Likewiſe it was taken for a good Cuſtom in the City of London, that no Attaint ſhould be maintained for a ſuppoſed falſe Verdict given in that City. In the which Caſe, the Sheriff of London made Return upon a Writ of Attaint, ſued againſt a Londoner, that ſuch was, and had been always the Cuſtom of the City, that no Attaint ſued againſt any Commoner, or other Citizen of the ſame; for which Cauſe, he might not ſalvis Libertatibus, without Impeachment of their Liberties, ſerve or execute the Writ. Then was there a Writ directed out of the Chancery to the Juſtices of the King's Bench, with expreſs Commandment to allow to the Maior, Sheriffs, and Citizens, all their Liberties, Immunities, and Cuſtoms; and farther, out of that Writ was a Venire facias, directed to the Maior and Sheriffs, whereby was Day given them to come and make Declaration of their Cuſtom. At which Day the Parties, Plaintiff and Defendant, being preſent, the Maior and Sheriffs had full Allowance of their Cuſtoms: The Sheriffs were holden excuſed for their Return, and the Parties Writ was abated, and himſelf puniſhed by Impriſonment for his Vexation. I have here at large remembered this Caſe, to the End it may appear both what Credit, and Opinion of Conſcience and Truth the Law aſcribed to the Citizens of London; and alſo how careful and vigilant the Maior and Sheriffs have always been to preſerve and uphold their Cuſtoms, although ſithence that only Cuſtom was for eſpecial Cauſes abrogated by the Statute of 11. H. 7. and an Attaint given in London. Moreover, we find it recorded in M. 2. E. 3. That whereas a Citizen of London brought an Appeal of Robbery, and the Defendant would have tryed his Innocency by Battaile, as he may in ſemblable Caſe againſt another Man, Wilby, then Juſtice, anſwered him, that he was not to have Allowance of Battle in an Appeal commenced by a Citizen of London: For that by Cuſtom of their City, they were exempted from it. The like Appeal was ſued P. 20. E. 3. wherein the Defendant made Offer of the ſame Trial. And although he that ſued the Appeal would have joined Battaile, without Regard of this Franchiſe, the Lord Maior, with the reſt of the Corporation, ſued a Writ out of the Chancery, reciting their Cuſtom or Franchiſe, and prayed Allowance of it, in Diſturbance of the Battaile, 20. E. 3. Coron. 125.

Ludgate.

If a Freeman or Freewoman of London be committed to Ludgate, they are to be excuſed from the Ignominy of Irons, if they can find Sureties to be true Priſoners, and if the Sum be not above an hundred Pounds. Upon the like Reaſon is that Cuſtom eſtabliſhed for the liberal and midle Impriſonment of the Citizens in Ludgate, whereby they have Indulgence and Favour to go Abroad into any Place by Baſton, as we term it, under the Guard and Superintendency of their Keeper, with whom they muſt return again to the Priſon at Night: A Cuſtom verily, tho' quarrelled with by ſome, and ſuppoſed to be the Hinderance and Delay of Juſtice, and oftentimes a Means to defraud Men of their true Debts and Executions, yet the Ground thereof being well examined, it wanteth not a ſound Maintenance in the Courſe of Reaſon (as I think.) For the Preſcription or Cuſtom is but a Mitigation of the Extremity of their Impriſonment, ſerving rather for the Expedition of their Diſcharge, and ſpeedy Satisfaction of their Creditors, than for any other Purpoſe: So that this Scope and Licence, in proper Conſtruction and Senſe of the Law, cannot be termed an Enlargement or Liberty. For to remain in the material Priſon in the Night, and to go forth out of the ſame in the Day, under the Reſtraint and Controul of a continual Keeper, is always an Impriſonment, tho' exerciſed with greater Mildneſs and Lenity. And divers Cauſes there are to warrant the ſame in London rather than in other Places: The one is, for that the City of London ſtandeth chiefly upon the Traffique and Intercourſe of Merchants, and the Uſe of buying and ſelling of their ſundry Commodities, which is not always performed by themſelves, but by their Factors and Servants; and oftentimes one Factor or Agent ſerveth the Turn of many Merchants, whereby he is preſſed to ſundry and ſeveral Accounts. Wherefore, to the End the Priſoners may inform themſelves, upon their mutual Reckonings, both what they owe, and what is due unto them, and alſo that upon Conference and Account with their Agents returning from other Countries, they may be made acquainted with the Increaſe of their Adventures or Commodities, it is neceſſary they ſhould have Places of Meeting, which will not be ſo convenient in a cloſe Priſon, the ſame being no Place of Aſſembly or free Acceſs, (eſpecially it being no common Duty in the Gaoler to permit any Perſon to come among his Priſoners for any ſuch Occaſion) and if the Gaoler were bound to endure and ſuffer ſuch common and voluntary Repair unto his Priſoners, yet will it be no fit Place for Merchants to treat and negotiate their Cauſes, which cannot be well determined without their Books of Accounts, and Witneſſes of their Contracts, and oft muſt the ſame be decided before the Maſters of their Trades or Companies. So that this Cuſtom made in Furtherance of mutual Accounts, do very much enable the Priſoner to procure his Liberty and pay his Debt. Alſo if the Priſoner be poor, and of himſelf unable to pay, this Toleration of their going Abroad with the Keeper, is a good Mean for him to procure the Alms and Relief of other charitable People, thereby the ſooner to purchaſe his Liberty. Whereby it appeareth what Reckoning the Law maketh of them, in Conſideration of their great Hazard by Sea (thro' Danger of Shipwreck or Piracy) and Adventure in ſtrange Countries, (by Falſhood and Negligence of Factors) or by Wars between Princes, the Inconveniences and Miſchiefs whereof are not ſo offenſive or prejudicial to any, as to Merchants, whoſe Condition, as it may by a fortunate Voyage be much enriched, ſo may it, by any of the Miſchances aforeſaid, be ſo impaired and overthrown, that it may turn himſelf, his Wife and Family to utter Calamity and Diſtreſs.

Cuſtoms of London for Wife and Children.

Therefore, as the Hope and Comfort of the (Wife, having commonly no Aſſurance of Jointure in the City, nor Expectation of Dower as other Women have) and alſo of the Children (being for the moſt part born to no great Patrimony, other than that which their Fathers ſhall by their vertuous Induſtry acquire) doth only depend upon the Fortune of their Husband's or Father's Travail, it hath laudably and conſcionably been obſerved for a Cuſtom, and is yet, by the wiſer and better Sort, religiouſly regarded, that when any Citizen of London dieth, his Wife ſhall have the third Part of his Goods, and the Children another third Part, equally to be divided among them, according to the Proportion of his Goods, and himſelf another third Part to diſpoſe by his laſt Will and Teſtament at his Pleaſure. A Partition ſo reaſonable, and grounded upon ſo good Conſideration, (the Quality and State of the Londoners conſidered) that if it were not approved by Cuſtom, but to be propoſed in the wiſeſt and higheſt Court of Parliament, whether it were fit to have the Force of a Law, I think no Man, (unleſs he were a Timon by Nature, or a Diogenes by Diſpoſition) no Man, I ſay, poſſeſſed with common Humanity, would gainſay or impugn it. Doth not the Common Law now in Force give the Huſband preſently by the Intermarriage, all the Goods and Chattels of his Wife, tho' the ſame be of the Value of ten thouſand Pounds; ſo that when ſhe is once his Wife, the Law diſableth her to give or diſpoſe any Thing that was hers before? And ſhall not the Huſband be bound by ſemblable Obligation of Reaſon to leave his Wife the third Part of his Goods? And if the Law be in that Reſpect defective, (as what Law in the World, except the Law of God, is without his Imperfections?) ſhall not the Cuſtom ſupply it in ſuch Sort, that no barbarous and uncharitable, or cautelous and unkind Practices by Deed of Gift, or otherwiſe, ſhall diſappoint or defraud the ſame? Eſpecially here in London, where the good Eſtate of Men, for the moſt Part conſiſteth in Movables, by Reaſon of their continual Trades and Exchanges: ſo that their Wives cannot aſſure themſelves of their Dowry, commonly called Thirds, as they might, if their Huſbands were ſeiſed of Lands in Fee-ſimple. Alſo, the comfortable Society between Huſband and Wife, is of that pretious Eſtimate and honourable Reputation before God and Man, that there may not poſſibly a more ſacred and ſtrait Conjunction be imagined among the Children of Men. Charondas the Philoſopher calleth them Homoſitios, which ſignifieth, fed with the ſelf ſame Food. And Epimenides, another Philoſoper, calleth them Homocapnos, which is as much to ſay, as uſing the ſelf-ſame Smoke, and the ſelf-ſame Manger, as it were drawing the ſelf-ſame Breath. Finally, the Scripture giveth expreſs Charge to each Man to tender his Wife with extraordinary good Offices, by ſaying, Thou ſhalt leave thy Father and Mother, and cleave to thy Wife. If the Force of Cuſtom did not enforce the Matter, theſe only Conſiderations were ſufficient to prove, that there ſhould be nothing private, nothing peculiar, nothing proper, but every Thing in common, every Thing equally intereſted between the Huſband and the Wife. The like, tho' not equal Affection, is commanded by the Apoſtle to the Col. 3. by the Fathers towards their Children: You Fathers be tender and loving to your Children, and diſcourage them not.

But let us ſee what Account our common Law hath made of the like Cuſtoms, founded upon the Love and Affection between Man and Wife. It was uſed of ancient Time in Gavelkinde Land, and hath received the Allowance and Judgment of a good and lawful Cuſtom, that if the Huſband be attainted and executed for a Felony by him committed, yet ſhall his Wife, for the Solace of her Loſs and Deſolation, have her Dowry of his Land, and alſo the Heir ſhall inherit the ſame according to that old Saying; The Father to the Bough, and the Son to the Plough: Altho' the Common Law, by rigorous Imputation, to make Man more fearful to offend in Crimes of ſuch Quality, extendeth the Puniſhment, tho' not to the Perſons of the Wife and Children, yet to their Fortune, ſo far as it may turn to their utter Impoveriſhment and Diſcomfort.

A Cuſtom in York.

In the City of York there is a Cuſtom, that the Huſband may enfeoffe his Wife of ſuch Land as he ſhall purchaſe, which, tho' it be againſt the Rule of Common Law (which diſableth the Huſband to convey any Land to his Wife) by Feoffement or Deed, yet by Force of the Cuſtom it was adjudged to be lawful and effectual. Alſo the Cuſtom of many Places in England is, that the Wife ſhall enjoy the whole Land of her Huſband in Name of her Dowry, as it appeareth by M. Litt. himſelf, and the Huſband cannot by any Cautel or Deviſe defeat her thereof. And in ſome other Countries they have the Moiety or tone Part, and generally by the Common Law the third Part. In North Wales the Cuſtom is ſo beneficial for Wives, (that altho' they be ſure of their Thirds of ſuch Land as their Huſbands ſhall chance to be ſeiſed of at any Time during the Marriage) yet are they to have the Moiety or tone Part, not only of his Goods and Moveables, but alſo of his Leaſes, be the Terms thereof never ſo long. Not many Years ago, the Cuſtom of Taundean was alledged, and allowed by the Court of King's Bench, that the Huſband or Wife, whetherſoever of them did did happen to over-live, ſhould have the Inheritance or Fee-ſimple Land of the other by Survivor; a Cuſtom, verily, neither contrary to Reaſon, nor repugnant to Religion; as no well-diſpoſed or good Huſband can deny, when he entreth into Conſideration of thoſe holy Duties and good Obſervances that are commended and commanded in holy Scripture. If then theſe Cuſtoms bear Sway in ſundry Places, and are publickly approved by judicial Sentences, what Citizen will be ſo ſenſeleſs, what Londoner ſo looſe, what Merchant or other Freeman ſo inconſiderate, and unregardful of his own good Eſtate, and ſo ready to defile his own Neſt, as once to attempt or practiſe the Violation or Breach of ſo good a Cuſtom? What is he, who ſeeing the Eſtate of London is preferred before other Cities of the Land, by the Benefit and Means of their moſt profitable Cuſtoms, that will give a dangerous Example to abrogate the ſame, and to call their Uſages in Queſtion? A Cuſtom, if it have been once notoriouſly diſcontinued, or interrupted, loſeth the Title and Appellation of a Cuſtom, and by Inſtance given of the Time when it was diſuſed, lacketh a great Part of his Authority. Then unnatural, or, at leaſtwiſe, unadviſed is that Citizen, which to ſerve his private Humour, bringeth a general Cuſtom either into Queſtion by his Fraud, or by his Example into Contempt. Pernicious alſo is the Precedent of one Cuſtom called in Queſtion to the Ruin of the reſt: Namely, whenas the City by their Counſel in her Majeſty's Courts of Weſtminſter, claiming the Benefit of their Cuſtoms, may be encounter'd and confronted with a Counterplea given by themſelves, that ſuch of their own Aldermen and Commons have by their Deeds and Deviſes either Diſaffirmed or Diſannulled the ſame. A Practice, as of great Condemnation in them that do it, ſo, no Doubt, of great Overſight and Incircumſpection in them that ſuffer it.

Read the Epiſtle to the Epheſ. ca. 5.

See before, in the Caſe of Robbery, how careful the City was to avoid this Danger, and to preſerve their Cuſtom: And alſo, in the Caſe of the Attaint before. 7 H. 6. &c.

Objections to the Cuſtom.

But ſomewhat to ſatisfy the idle Cavils pretended to the contrary: Saith ſome one, Is not the general Law of England ſufficient to manage the Government of London as well as of all other Subjects, but that Londoners muſt have private Cuſtoms and Uſages of their own? This Objection made by the Enviers or Enemies of the Wealth of London, (howſoever they make Shew to the contrary) rather deſerveth a Hiſs than a Reply, and is ſufficiently confuted in the former Diſcourſe.

But it is farther urged by ſome hard Huſbands, My Wife is froward and undutiful, and hath not deſerved it. She is a Fool, and cannot rule it. She will marry again, and enrich ſome other with the Fruit of my Travail. Wherefore, I think it neceſſary to abridge her of that Liberality which the Cuſtom doth extend. Alſo, my Children be evil inclined, diſobedient, or untractable, or ſome of them be: Wherefore, I may with Reaſon deprive them of the Benefit of this Cuſtom. Firſt, to anſwer the Undutifulneſs: I wiſh thee, whoſoever thou art, to ſummon and convent thyſelf to the Tribunal Seat of thy inward Mind, as Saint Auguſtine ſaith, and to make Conſcience thy Judge, thy Cogitations the Witneſſes, thy Actions the Accuſers, thy Memory the Regiſter or Record to give in Evidence: And let it be diſcuſſed in all due Circumſtances, whether thou didſt not likewiſe forget the Offices of a good Huſband, and defraud her of her Duties, (as Saint Paul ſaith) or provoke her to Impatience, which the ſame Apoſtle forbiddeth in theſe Words, You Huſbands be loving to your Wives, and no Way be bitter unto them. Which alſo St. Peter remembreth in adviſing Huſbands to dwell with their Wives ſincerely and according to Knowledge, in doing Honour unto them as to the weaker Veſſel. Let it, I ſay, be examined in the Conſiſtory of thy Conſcience, whether thou either by thy Fault wittingly, or negligently by thy Default, or by thy Unkindneſs unduly, haſt cauſed her, being the weaker Veſſel, to be the more intolerable. If thou find thyſelf condemned by thy Conſcience, let Remorſe be thy Executioner, and Amendment, with Kindneſs towards thy Wife, be thy Penance: But if thou find thyſelf guilty of no Want of Affection, Love, or good Carriage of thyſelf towards her, ſo that her Undutifulneſs proceedeth of herſelf; yet, I pray thee remember the Benefits which God hath given thee by her Means, whether they be Gifts of Fortune in bettering thy Eſtate, or eſchewing of Sin by her lawful and comfortable Company; or the Bleſſing of Children, a ſovereign Good in this World; thy Children being the Monuments of thy Life and Being upon Earth, and the Repairers of thy Decay. And let theſe Favours and Graces enjoyed by her Company, cover and countervail her other Imperfections whatſoever. Follow therein the Example of the wiſe Socrates, who being demanded how he could endure the continual Scolding and Vexation of his Wife Xantippe, likewiſe aſked of the other, why he ſuffered the cackling and unpleaſant Noiſe of Hens and Turkeys in his Houſe; becauſe, ſaid the other, they lay Eggs, and breed Chickens for me: And ſo, ſaid Socrates, Xantippe beareth me Children: Which good Turn alone covereth and diſpenſeth with infinite Defects. Callicratides, the Athenian being demanded why he, a Man ſo nobly deſcended, but having matched with a baſe Theſſalian Woman, yet, by his laſt Will, bequeathed unto her all his Subſtance, leaving his other Friends and Kinſfolks unregarded: Becauſe, ſaid he, ſhe is my Wife. Meaning, that ſhe who was, by his Judgment and Choice, made worthy to be his Wife, ſhould be unworthy of nothing that was his. Which may alſo ſatisfy that ſecond Point of ſuppoſed Folly in the Wife, and Want of Diſcretion to marſhal ſo great a Proportion of Wealth, as the Cuſtom will give her. Wherefore, wouldſt thou marry with a Fool, if thou thoughteſt her unworthy of the Rights of Marriage? Then ſeeing thy Choice hath eſtopped thy Teſtimony of her Folly, thy Duty towards thy Wife ſhall bind thee to Favour and conceal her Weakneſs, and to perform that which the Cuſtom pronounceth to be convenient. It cannot be evil beſtowed upon her, whoſe Right by Cuſtom demandeth it, and whoſe Eſtate and Imperfections have need of it; whereas, if the Huſband may be permitted by this Colour to defeat his Wife, many Inconveniencies and Diſorders might enſue.

Leges ſe accommodant ad ea quæ frequentius non quæ raro accidunt. Bartolus.

Firſt, a general Cuſtom, which is alſo a general Law, never provided for ſuch rare Accidents as ſeldom fall in Experience, but for Things that ordinarily and commonly happen, ſhould be broken, to the general Scandal and offenſive Example of all, through the Inhability of one, which were a Thing unreaſonable. Likewiſe, then might Huſbands (if that were a juſt Allegation) eaſily deviſe and publiſh that or ſome other Imperfection to be in their Wives, and thereby bereave them of their Right. No more than it is a juſt Counterplea, or Bar to a Woman's Dower, to alleage that ſhe is a Fool, no more is the Imputation of ſuch Simplicity honeſt, and ſufficient to exclude her from her Portion. No, it is well ſaid, and maintained for a Maxim in the Common Law, Better it is to ſuffer a Miſchief than an Inconvenience. Leſs harmful and hateful it is for a Man to ſwallow twenty of theſe light Offences, and to digeſt ſundry of theſe pretenced Scruples, than by violating of a Cuſtom no leſs common than commendable, to leave to Poſterity an odious Memory and Obloquy of his Name.

The laſt Objection againſt Wives is no leſs ridiculous than tyranical, grounded upon an unjuſt Deſire to reſtrain them from Marriage. Marriage is an honourable Ordinance of God, fit and neceſſary for all Perſons diſpoſed thereunto, to the avoiding of Sin, and Maintenance of a comfortable and ſociable Chriſtian Life. To reſtrain or prohibit the ſame either in Maids or Widows, as St. Paul ſaith, is the Doctrine of Devils. Tim. Ep. 2. ca 4. And to indent or condition with any, that he or ſhe ſhall not marry, is a Condition limited againſt Law, and by the ſame pronounced unlawful and unreaſonable. 43 E. 3. 6. Make it thine own Caſe; admit thou didſt match with a wealthy Wife, whoſe Furniture and Riches hath increaſed thy Eſtate; if God ſhould call for her, wouldſt thou in a kind Memorial of the Benefits attained by her Means, make thyſelf a Votary to live unmarried? Do thoſe which marry great Heirs, being Women, and after their Wives Deaths enjoy their whole Inheritance by the Curteſy of England, making their Wives Heirs to expect during their Lives, take it for any Matter of Conſcience or Scruple to marry again? Unleſs it be in ſome Place where the Force of the Cuſtom and the Benefit of the Living joined together, work a contrary Reſolution in ſome Huſbands: Which Cuſtom annexed to Gavelkinde Lands in Kent and other Places is of this Quality, 16 E. 3. aid 129. 19 E. 3. aid 144. That the Huſband ſhall, after the Deceaſe of his Wife, be Tenant by the Curteſy of her Land, as long as he remaineth unmarried, whether he have Iſſue by her or not; but upon his next Marriage ſhall utterly forgo all his Intereſt therein. A Cuſtom therefore the leſs unreaſonable, becauſe the Reſtraint of Marriage on the one Side is countervailed by the beneficial Favour of the other Side, to have the Land by the Curteſy without Iſſue, and alſo for that he is to deprive the next Heir of his Wife, who perchance hath been married with him but few Months or Days, of the Profit and Commodity of the whole Land during his Life. But chiefly becauſe it is a Cuſtom grounded and grown in Continuance to ſuch religious Obſervation and Regard, that it ſeemeth an Offence of Conſcience to infringe it. But in our Caſe, ſithence there is neither Cuſtom nor Conſcience to warrant thy Will, why ſhouldſt thou then ſeem to quarrel with the lawful Liberty of thy Wife, if ſhe ſurvive thee, ſhe being weak by Kind and Education, and thereby leſs able to direct her Occaſions, and govern her Eſtate without a Companion and Coadjutor? No, on God's Name refer her to her own Choice and Conſcience therein, and make it no Pretence and Colour to abridge her of her Right, becauſe ſhe ſeemeth inclinable unto that which God hath ordained, and all Men and Women do embrace. As to the Fear and Suſpicion pretended, that another in matching with thy Wife ſhould be enriched by thy Travaile: What ſhould move thee to make that ſuperſtitious Account of thy Goods when thou art gone? Were they any longer thine. than while thou haſt Life and Licenſe to employ them? Thou muſt needs know and acknowledge, beſides thy daily Experience, by the very Etymology and Signification of the Word, the true Nature and Quality of the Thing. Theſe worldly Goods are called Temporal, becauſe they ſerve one but for a Time: They are termed Tranſitory, for that their Property is fleeting from one Owner unto another: They are named Moveable or Current, becauſe all their Grace and Credit is in running and removing into divers Hands, according to that rude and old (but yet true) Latin Rhime:

Omnia mundana per vices ſunt aliena,
Nunc mea, nunc hujus, poſt mortem ſunt alterius.

This worldly Wealth each Day doth change
Their Owners, as we ſee;
Now mine, now his, and after Death
Another's Goods they be.

Then ſithence thy Wealth hath waited upon thee all thy Life long; wouldſt thou require the ſame to reſt at thy Devotion after thy Death? If that ſeem impertinent and unprofitable unto thee, then relinquiſh this Care, and ſuffer the Goods of this World to have their natural Courſe and Condition, which is to be ſtill in Exchange, Paſſage, and poſting from Hand to Hand, ſerving all Men, ut peregrinationis viaticum, that is, A Pilgrim's Charge, or Defrayment in his Journey, as Saint Hierome termeth it. Hieronymus in Epiſt. And addreſs thy Mind to the Deſire of ſuch Goods as are neither temporal, tranſitory, current, nor moveable, but perpetual, permanent, conſtant, and not only immutable but ineſtimable.

But finally, to ſatisfy the laſt Objection againſt thy Children, I wiſh thee to look back unto that I have ſaid, that thou mayſt not, for a private Injury or Diſpleaſure, ſeem as much as lyeth in thee to ſupplant and abrogate a publick Cuſtom, to the no leſs Prejudice than Offence of a great Number that have Intereſt therein. In enriching thy Son, thou doſt diſcharge the Duty of a natural Father towards him, which, if he prodigally or wickedly miſpend or abuſe, he carrieth his own Condemnation, and proveth a wilful Enemy to himſelf. The good Luke ca. 15. Father mentioned in the Goſpel, who, at the Suit of his undutiful Son, (that would needs abandon the Service and Attendance on his Father, to run the Courſe of an extravagant Libertine with lewd Company) gave him a great Portion of his Wealth, is not any Way blamed by our Saviour for that Indulgence, but rather recommended to all Poſterity as a true Pattern of a kind Father. Col. ca. 3. Saint Paul commandeth the Father to be well affected to his Children, and no Way to diſcourage them. What may breed greater Diſcouragement or Diſcontentment in any Child, than to ſee himſelf by the Place of his Birth, and the good Fortune of the City entitled to the Commodity of a good Cuſtom, and yet injuriouſly, by his own Father, (whoſe Affection ſhould be always occupied and earneſt in procuring the Good of his Children) diſappointed of his Hope, and defrauded of his Right. And as well as ſome, having juſt Cauſe of Diſpleaſure againſt their Son and Child, may, in this unlawful and diſorderly Sort, practiſe their Revenge: So may ſome other inconſiderate and wilful Father, upon a Conceipt taken againſt a good Son and of ſingular Deſert, for that he concurreth not with him in ſome Humour or Diſpoſition, moſt wrongfully diſtreſs and undo him by ſuch a Preſident. Thus the Miſchiefs objected on the one Side are light and of ſmall Moment, whereas the Inconveniencies apparent on the other Side be manifold and of dangerous Conſequence.

I will not vouchſafe to anſwer that undiſcreet Sarcaſmus, or bitter Scoff that ſome uſe, We may play our Wealth at Dice, without Offence to the Cuſtom; wherefore ſhould we not then diſpoſe the ſame from our Wife and Children by our Deeds of Gift? This amounteth to as much as if a married Man would ſay, I may commit Felony, or Treaſon, and be attainted and hanged therefore. And then the Law giveth my Wife no Dower, nor my Heir no Patrimony; then why ſhould I not in Reaſon uſe my Diſcretion with the Land, without Incumbrance by the one, or Injury to the other? Match theſe two Caſes together with Judgment, and thou ſhalt perceive they have a ſenſible Concurrency in their Addreſs and Application to this Purpoſe. It is well ſaid by the Poet:

Nil juvat exemplum quod litem lite reſolvit.

The Example of one wilful or wicked Act, giveth no juſt Countenance or Allowance to another. Let ſo much ſaid to thy Objections, take ſome Place to alter thine Humour, or, at leaſt, be a Preparative for thine own Reaſon in the Fear of God, to purge thee of the ſame.

An important Conſideration

But to conclude this ſhort Diſcourſe with one Conſideration of great Importance: I wiſh thee to conſider, that this City of London is and hath been happily preſerved in this flouriſhing Proſperity, by the wiſe and politick Conſent, that all and always the Particulars have had to increaſe the general good Eſtate thereof; thinking it their Duty, as they got and acquired their Subſtance in this City, ſo alſo to ſpend and defray it in the ſame; inſomuch, that whatſoever falleth from the one, cometh and groweth unto another; and by Alteration of private Fortunes, (as Chances and Changes of Times do require from one Citizen to another) the general Eſtate hath flouriſhed, and never wanted particular Men of Wealth and Ability, to ſuſtain the Offices and Functions of the City. Upon which Conſideration, by moſt laudable and ancient Cuſtom, the Lord Maior and Senate of London have been and are entitled to the Tuition and Cuſtody of young Orphans and their Goods; and likewiſe are made acquainted, by ordinary good Means, of Inventories taken and produced, what Subſtance and Wealth each Man dyed poſſeſſed of; to the Intent, that although that Man, which by his good Travaile and Trade hath grown to be rich among them, be departed hence, yet his Goods may remain as among his Wife and Children in Uſe and Property, ſo to the general Strength of this City in Account and Reckoning. For we often ſee that one rich Man's Wealth paſſeth to the Increaſe of the good Eſtate of another Citizen, either by Marriage of the Widow, or of the Orphan: So that the City, though deprived of a Member or Inhabitant; yet is not deſtitute of ſuch as may diſcharge his Employment and Place. Whereas, if this pernicious Practice, and uncharitable Liberty might take Root, by Deeds of Gifts, and cautelous Conveyance to Strangers, not only the Wife and Children may be diſtreſſed, but alſo the State of the City much weakened, and in Danger of a great Diſreputation and Decay, from that that it hath been and yet is. For if it be adjudged lawful in one, of what Degree ſoever he be; it is neither impoſſible nor unlikely, that the ſame will be uſed by many, and conſequently may be practiſed by all; which if it befal, what will become of the happy Condition of this City, it is not hard to conjecture.

I mean not to extend my Speech to the Prejudice of any true Debts that a Man oweth without Fraud or Colluſion, ſeeing the Cuſtom very providently careth for the Diſcharge thereof: But my Purpoſe is to diſſwade Men from evil Example, from inſolent Violation of good Cuſtoms, and from odious and unſeemly Practices of Deceit and evil Meaning towards their Wives and Children: Which Perſuaſion I would wiſh all Profeſſors of the Law ſeriouſly and carefully to uſe and enforce to their Clients, being Citizens of London, as in good Conſcience and Diſcretion they ought to do.

An Apoſtrophe to the Reader, and the Motive of this Treatiſe.

BLame not my bold Enterprize, gentle Reader, nor reprove my ſimple Cenſure herein preſented unto thee, which might, I know, both for the Matter and Manner of it, have been by any other, and perchance by myſelf more largely and effectually delivered, if the Opportunity of my Leiſure might have anſwered the Quality of the Argument which I had in Hand. But fearing leaſt I ſhould with too long a Diſcourſe in ſo plain a Propoſition, breed more Loathſomeneſs than Liking, I would not; for want of Leiſure, I might not; and if I had had Time at Will, I minded not; (ſeeing, for any urgent Occaſion, the Error being yet freſh, the Practice rare, and not grown to an Enormity, I needed not) but in a Word or two to make thee acquainted with the Cauſe that moved me to addreſs theſe few Reaſons to thy gentle View. So it happened, that I being in Company and Conference with ſome Perſons, (though otherwiſe wiſe and well affected, yet in this Matter ſtrangely conceited) it chanced that the Lawfulneſs and Conveniency of this Cuſtom came in Queſtion and Debate among us, and was by ſome of them (being Men for Sufficiency, of great Opinion, and for Countenance and Credit, of good Appearance and Regard in the City) ſo preſſed with Objections, that the moſt Part of thoſe which were preſent ſeemed to incline to that Perſwaſion. Wherefore, leaſt the Authority of the Men might the ſooner ſeduce the ſimple Multitude unto their Error, and for that I thought it a charitable Policy to prevent the Peril in the Prime, before it grew to a feſtering Sore, or incurable Evil, according to the Poet Ovid's Advice:

Principiis obſta: Sero medicina paratur,
Cum mala per longas invaluere moras.

Withſtand at firſt the ſpringing Evil,
With Medicines fit therefore:
Too late it is to take the Cure
Of old and feſtred Sore.

I thought good to apply this ſimple Receipt of Reaſon to the Minds of all ſuch as ſhall chance to be diſtempered by theſe Perſuaſions; hoping that they will yield me that friendly Requital of good Conſtruction, which my offered Good Will may ſeem to deſerve: And although I keep myſelf unnamed, and unknown; it may pleaſe them to have this Opinion of me, (no more favourable than reaſonable) that he which is well devoted to the Defence of good Cuſtoms, is rather to be juſtified in his good Meaning, than condemned or held ſuſpected of any ſiniſter Conceipt.

CONCLUSION.

Sir Richard Martin, Kt. L. Maior, to the L. Treaſurer Burghley: Complaining of one, for attempting to build a Wharf upon the Watergate of the Tower.

The Conteſts formerly between the City and the Lieutenant of the Tower, concerning the Extent of his Liberty, were ſhewed before, Book I. Chap. 15. Where an Encroachment upon the City was mentioned to have been granted and countenanced by the Lieutenant, or ſome of his Officers, to the great Injury and incommoding of the Citizens. Of which the L. Maior informed the Lord Treaſurer by his Letter, in order to a Remedy, and to ſtop the Building. Which Letter being upon ſo remarkable an Occaſion, I ſhall enter entirely from the Original, which ſhall be the Concluſion of this Appendix.

MY Duty humbly don unto your Lordſp. Where manitimes heretofore Variances have ariſen between the City and the Officers of her Majeſties Tower of London, touching Encroachments upon the common Soil within the Liberty of the City; which ſome Perſons, reſpecting their private Profit, have ſuppoſed to appertain to the Officers of the Tower; and have therefore procured Grants from ſome Officers unto themſelves, and ſo ſtirred Contention between the City and Maſter Lieutenant; as hath heretofore been made known unto your Lordſp. and other the Lords of her Highnes Honourable Council: And where heretofore, for Stay of Troubles between the City and Maſter Lieutenant, it pleaſed their Lordſhips to give Order, that nothing ſhould be attempted on either Side, until Order ſhould be taken for Pacification of the Controverſies therein.

Now, foraſmuch, my very good Lord, as one John Cox, Limeman, a wilful and diſobedient Citizen, pretending Title to a Part of the common Soil within the Liberties of the City, under an Officer of the Tower, as he ſaith, as a public Place of Paſſage for her Majeſties Subjects, Brewers and others, to fetch Water with Carts, and other common Affairs, ordinarily known by the Name of The Watergate, ſituate between the Weſt End of the Tower Wharf, and that Part of the City of London; hath attempted to build a Wharf into the Thames there; to the ſtraitning of the Place, and to the great Let and Hindrance of the common Paſſage: I thought it my Duty to give Order for Stay of this proceding with his Building; which nevertheleſs he would not do. And Mr. Richard Young * (as he ſaith) commanding him to ſtay his Building, Cox heaved up a Staff againſt him, to ſtrike him. And yet he ſtill procedeth. Which I thought good to ſignify unto your Lordſp. humbly beſeeching, that it may pleaſe your Lordſp. (the rather to ſet a quiet End of Controverſies for Time to come, and that al Unkindneſſes between the City and Mr. Lieutenant, and other her Majeſties Officers of her Tower of London may be taken away) to be pleaſed to extend unto the City your Honours Favour ſo far, as that by your Lordſps. Honourable Means, the Title of each Side may be examined, touching this and al other Cauſes of Controverſy, which reſt as yet undecided between them. And that in the meantime Cox may be commanded to take away his Frame, and to ſurceaſe his ſaid Building of this Wharf, which wil be a great Annoyance to her Majeſties Subjects. And ſo I humbly commit your Lordſp. to the Tuition of the Almighty. London, this XVI. of Auguſt, 1589.

* An active Juſtice of the Peace.

Your Lordſhip's moſt bounden

Richard Martin Maior.

THE PERAMBULATION, OR CIRCUIT-WALK.

J. S.

NOW, for Diverſion, let us ſtep out of our City, and take a Perambulation or Circuit-Walk four or five Miles round about; and eſpecially, let us Viſit the ſeveral Churches within that Compaſs, and take a View of the Monuments and the Inſcriptions thereon: And the rather, ſince many of our eminent Citizens having Country Houſes in thoſe Towns, happened to dye, and be interred there.

And firſt we ſhall walk on the Weſt and South Sides of LONDON, and ſo round on the Eaſt and Northern Parts of it.

CHAP. I.

A VISITATION of the Towns and Churches within four or five Miles diſtant of LONDON: viz. Kenſington, Hammerſmith, Chelſea, Fulham, Putney, Wandeſworth, Batterſea, Clapham, Camberwel, Lambeth, and Newington Butts. With Cognizance of the Monuments of the Dead in thoſe Churches.

KENSINGTON.

We begin with Kenſington. In which Town is ſituate one of the Palaces of our Princes.

In the Church of Kenſington are theſe Monuments.

Stay, Reader, gaze, admire,
And paſs not ſlightly ore
The Caſket of his Corps,
Embalmed in this Flore.
Let his induſtrious Hand,
Paterne of Paternes be ;
And blazon forth his Worth
To al Poſteritie.
And let his oft Footſteps
Unto this ſacred Place,
Be pious Clues to guide
Thee to like holy Trace.
Let him in Peace reſt here in Peace,
Till God of Peace return :
And give him Peace, that loved Peace,
And call him from his Urne.

Unto the Worldly Wiſe,
Death doth apologize.

Suſpend thine own By-thoughts :
His Thoughts did ever aim at Good :
Had I forborne, they had
At full been better underſtood.

Quæ langueſcendo, Miſeræ prætædia vitæ
Senſit, tam dulci conjuge caſſa ſuo.
Ut teneri cordis concordia junxerat ambos,
Sic idem Amborum contegit oſſa locus.
Quos jungit tumulus, conjungunt cœlica Tecta,
Ut teneant Cœlum, qui tenuere fidem.

Nobilis iſte Vir obiit Septemb. 25. 1594.	Nobilis iſta Mulier obiit Maii 14. 1595.

Nobilis Anna jaces, prudens Sackvillia proles,
Viva tui deſles funera mœſta viri.
Nil mortale placet, Cœlum tua pectora ſpirant,
Poſtquam Parca viri, conſcidit Atra, diem.
Fœminei lux Clara chori, pia, caſta, pudica,
Ægris ſubſidium, pauperibuſque decus.
Fida deo, perchara tuis, conſtanſque, diſerta,
Ut patiens Morbi, ſic pietatis amans.
O quoties manibus paſſis ad culmina Cœli,
Hanc animam dixti, ſuſcipe, quæſo, Deus?
Mens pia, cœleſtis patriæ pervenit ad arcem;
Hic tumulus corpus mentis inane tenet.

Another Monument on the North Side of the Chancel, thus inſcribed:

O Lord, in thee have I truſted,
Let me never be confounded.

Here lyeth the Body of Thomas Hungerford of Chelſey in the County of Middleſex, Eſq; the ſecond Son of Robert Hugerford the Elder, of Cadnam in the County of Wilts, Eſq; Who ſerved King Henry VIII, in the Roomth of a Gentleman Penſioner, and was with his Majeſty at the winning of Bolein; and King Edward VI, at Muſſelborough Field; beſides Q. Mary and Q. Elizabeth in their Affairs; being of the Age of 70 Years. PUTNEY.

In the Church at Putney are the enſuing Monuments.

This Monument is in the Chancel on the North Side, and hath this Inſcription.

Memoriæ Sacrum.

Putney. HEre lyeth the Body of Richard Luſher of Putney in the County of Surry, Eſquire: Who married Mary, the ſecond Daughter of George Scot of Stapleford Tauney in the County of Eſſex, Eſquire. He departed this Life the 27th of September, Anno 1515. Ætatis ſuæ 30.

What Tongue can ſpeake the Vertues of this Creature,
Whoſe Body faire, whoſe Soule of rarer Feature?
He liv'd a Saint, he dy'd a holy Wight,
In Heaven, on Earth, a joyful heavy Sight:
Body Soule united, agreed in one,
Like Strings well tuned in an Uni-ſone.
No Diſcord harſh this Navel could untie,
'Twas Heaven, the Earth, this Muſicke did envie.
Wherefore may well be ſaid, he lived well;
And being dead, the World his Vertues tell.

Though Richard Luſher ſleepeth in the Duſt,
He ſleeps in Hope, and hopes to live again:
His Soul in Heaven is waking with the Juſt,
And wakes in Joy, being freed from Senſe of Pain.
Bones, take your Reſt, your Soul in Heaven attends
The bleſt Re-union of two loving Friends.

Marito dilectiſſimo, Maria Luſher conjux Mœſtiſſima, in perpetuum Amoris Teſtimonium, hoc Monumentum plorans poſuit.

Mary, (by her firſt Match married Luſher) Daughter of George Scot, Eſquire, deſcended from John Scot, Lord chief Juſtice of England in the Reign of King Edward the Third; and after Wife to Thomas Knivet, deſcended from John Knivet, Knight, Lord chief Juſtice in the ſame King's Reign, and Lord Chancellor of England.

To Thomas Knivet.

That you have laid my Body here,
By that firſt Side I lov'd ſo dear,
I thank you, Huſband: That the Poor
Are ſtill your Care, I thank you more.
Theſe laſt I charg'd you with alive,
Being done, I reſt, while you ſurvive.
But yet I have another Boon,
When Fate ſhall come, (as come full ſoon
It will, and will not be deny'd)
That you would cloſe my other Side.
T'ave thought it worthy to be read
You once were ſecond to my Bed;
Why may you not like Title have,
To this my ſecond Bed, the Grave?
This Stone will cover us all three,
And under it we ſhall be free
From Love, or Hate, or leaſt Diſtruſt
Of Jealouſy to vex our Duſt:
For here our Bodies do but wait
The Summons for their glorious State.

This Stone doth tell, the Children and the Mother,
That liv'd and dy'd all in one Year together:
The Children firſt Death did deprive of Life,
Yet ſtaid not here, but took away the Wife.
Inſatiate Death, not with the Fruit content!
But thy laſt Malice on the Tree haſt ſpent.

Her vertuous Life it needleſs were to praiſe,
That's ſtill the Gloſs to cover vicious Ways:
I'll ſay but this, that all who knew her well,
For Life, for Death, will ſay ſhe did excel.

[It is a middling handſome Monument: The Letters are in Gold.]

Another Monument againſt the North Wall of the Chancel, with this Inſcription.

To Henry Huſſy, Eſquire, his loving Wife Judeth Paget hath erected this Monument. He was born at Slinkfold in Suſſex: He was Clerk of the Spicery to Queen Elizabeth and King James, and lived in the Court 35 Years. He delivered his Soul to God the 23d of May 1611, in the 64th Year of his Age. His Body lyeth buried here, waiting for a joyſul Reſurrection.

Beſides theſe, are many other Monuments of the Dead, ſome more ancient, ſome more modern, viz.

Other Monuments.

In the Chancel.

On the Ground, on a Braſs Plate, this Inſcription.

Here lyeth the Body of Richard Ratcliff, late of Batterſey, Gent. Who deceaſed the 8th of July 1587.

On the Stone was the Figure of a Man, but the Braſs torn off.

On the North Side of the Table, a Braſs very ancient, thus engraven:

Undre this Stone John Stanley lyeth.
Pray for hym, and Kateryn hys Wyf.
For ſuch Gooden God hem ſent,
They gaf to the Chirch with good Entent.
For that, for their Solles doon pray,
Chriſt quyte ther Mede at Domys Day.

A fair Marble Stone thus inſcribed:

Here lyeth interred the Body of Mr. Charles Chappel, Son of Mr. John Chappel: Who was Prebendary of Saliſbury fifty Years. He departed this Life the 6th of February, 1685, in the .... Year of his Age. He married Mary Daughter of Sir Alexander Radclyff, Knt. of the Noble Order of the Bath: By whom he left one Daughter, viz. Anne, aged ſeven Years.

Next to this, the Figure of two young Men in Braſs; and betwixt them, on a Braſs Plate, theſe Words:

As we were, ſo are ye:
As we are, ſo ſhall you be.
Your ſelves by us ſee here, which lie,
Who dyed to live, though born to die.

And on another Plate under this, thus writ:

Hereunder lie buried Rowland and William Prat, two of the Sons of Jacob and Margaret Prat, of Barmondſey in the County of Surrey.

An old Braſs with three Lines; and another Braſs with Arms. The Inſcription is as followeth.

Hic jacet Robertus Moro de Devonio, quondam de Interiori Templi. Qui obiit 7mo die menſis Septembr. Anno Domini MCCCCLXVIII. Cujus anime propicietur Deus. Amen.

South Ile. South Wall.

A Woman kneeling againſt a Deſk, and this Inſcription.

Here lyeth the Body of Elizabeth Hillary, late the Wife of Thomas Hillary, Gent. both deceaſed. Whoſe Love, Piety, and Charity to the Poor deſerveth never to be forgotten. She dyed an old Woman, childleſs, the 10th Day of Septemb. Anno Dom. 1592.

Roland Benſon, Gent. being her Kinſman, and brought up by her, (who likewiſe departed this Life the 9th Day of October, 1606, and lyeth buried hard to this Church Wall) carefully in his Life-time, at his Coſt, provided this Monument, to ſhew his Thankfulneſs unto her; and for her Remembrance.

Edwardus Randolph, Armig. eorum Con hoc Monumentum poſt eorum mortem conſici fecit.

Lower.

Near this Place are buried the Bodies of Nicolas Wyld of London, Merchant, and Inhabitant of this Pariſh, and Elizabeth his Wife. With whom he lived 35 Years in Marriage, and had four Sons and five Daughters by her. One of which Sons, viz. John was buried by them. Elizabeth his Wife dyed the 1ſt of April, 1688, Aged 58. And the ſaid Nicolas Wyld departed this Life the 15th of April, 1693, being the 73d Year of his Age.

Next, a very fair Monument of white Marble: On the Top of all, an Head of Sir Edward Wynter curiouſly cut. This is the Epitaph:

P. M. S. Edwardi Wynter, Equitis. Qui adhuc puber ex patria proficiſcens in Orientalibus Indiis mercaturam feliciter exercuit, magnas Opes comparavit, majores conflaturus, ſi non ſpreviſſet. Ibidem ſplendidè vixit, & honorificè poſt annos 42 Angliam reviſit. Uxorem duxit Emmam filiam Richardi Howe, Armigeri, Norfolciens. Deceſſit Martii 22°, Anno ætatis 64. Anno Dom. 168$\frac{5}{6}$.

Poſuit marito optimè de ſe merito ux. mœſtiſſima.

Born to be Great, in Fortune as in Mind,
Too great to be within an Iſle confin'd:
Young, helpleſs, friendleſs, Seas unknown he try'd:
But Engliſh Courage all thoſe Wants ſupply'd.
A pregnant Wit, a painful Diligence;
Care to provide, and Bounty to diſpenſe,
Joyn'd with a Soul ſincere, plain, open, juſt,
Procur'd him Friends, and Friends procur'd him Truſt.
Theſe were his Fortune's Riſe, and thus began
This hardy Youth, rais'd to that happy Man.
A rare Example, and unknown to moſt,
Where Wealth is gain'd, and Conſcience is not loſt.
Nor leſs in martial Honour was his Name,
Witneſs his Actions of immortal Fame.
Alone, unarm'd, a Tyger he oppreſt,
And cruſh't to Death the Monſter of a Beaſt.
Thrice twenty mounted Moors he overthrew,
Singly on Foot; ſome wounded, ſome he ſlew;
Diſpers'd the reſt. What more could Sampſon do?
True to his Friends, a Terror to his Foes.
Here now in Peace his honoured Bones repoſe.

Under theſe Verſes is writ,

VITA PEREGRINATIO.

The Repreſentation of both theſe his Exploits are engraven on the Monument.

In this South Ile is a flat Stone, with an Inſcription; under which lyeth the ſaid Sir Edward Wynter.

On another Stone, on a Braſs Plate, the Figure of a Man in a Gown, and a Woman, both ſtanding, with their Hands together, and this Inſcription:

Under this Stone lyeth buried the Body of Richard Turk, late of this Pariſh. Who deceaſed the 17th Day of December, Anno Dom. 1570. Leaving to Goddes Mercy Bridget his Wife, of whom he had three Sons and two Dowghters. His Sowl reſteth with God.

In the Middle Ile.

A little Stone, with the Figure of a young Woman in Braſs, and this Inſcription.

Hic jacet Agnes filia Johis. Reynold, Magiſtri Scolar. Sti. Pauli. Que ob. 2do die Octobr. An. Dni. M CCCC XLIIII.

Lower lyeth interred William Kent, Gent. late of this Pariſh. Who departed the 17th of April, 1705, aged 47: And three Children.

Upon a Table hanging on a Pillar is this Inſcription:

On the South Side of the Chancel lyeth buried Henry Sayer, Gent. who dyed in November 1619. John, Son of Henry, dyed in Novemb. 1628, and Rebecca his Wife; and John, Son and Heir of the ſaid John, dyed Decemb. 31, 1666, And Mary his Wife dyed the 14th of May, 1659. And Samuel, Rebecca, and Edward, Brothers and Siſter of the ſaid John, and three Children of John Sayer, Gent. (now living, 1706) lie buried in the Middle Ile near this Place.

But ſince, this John is dead too.

North Ile.

On a Braſs Plate are theſe Words:

Hugh Morgan, late of Batterſey, Eſq; ſleepeth here in Peace: Whom Men late did admire for worthful Parts. To Q. Elizabeth he was Chief Pothecary, till her Death.

And in his Science as he did excel,
In her high Favour he did always dwell.
To God religious, to all Men kind,
Frank to the Poor, rich in Content of Mind.
Theſe were his Vertues, in theſe dyed he,
When he had liv'd an Hundred Year and three.

On the ſame Stone another Plate, thus inſcribed.

Hic jacet venerabilis Vir Hugo Morgan. Moriebatur 13 die Septembr. Anno Dom. 1613. Cui Robertus Morgan Generoſus, ejus ex fratre nepos Saxum hoc amoris ergô Poſuit.

This Church hath a fine Eaſt Window of painted Glaſs. Wherein is Q. Elizabeth's Arms, and on each Side thereof the Arms of the St. Johns, a Noble and ancient Family in this Pariſh. Under which Coats are three Pictures: The firſt is of the Lady Margaret, with this Inſcription.

Margaret Beauchamp, (Grandmother to K. Henry VII.) from Patſhul, Grandiſon, and Tregoze, Aunceſtors to the Family of St. John of Lidiard, Tregoze, and Bleiſho, Earl of Bullingbroke.

The ſecond of K. Henry VII. with this, wrote under.

King Henry VII, Grandſon to Margaret Beauchamp, Wife to Sir Oliver St. John, Aunceſtor to the Family of St. John of Lidiard, Tregoze, &c.

The third, of Q. Elizabeth, with this Inſcription.

Q. Elizabeth, Daughter of K. Henry VIII, by a Daughter of Thomas Bullen Earl of Wiltſhire. great Grandfather of Anne, Daughter of Sir Thomas Leighton, Wife of Sir John St. John, of Lidiard, Tregoze, &c.

In this Church is a new Gallery, built Anno 1705, by Sir Walter St. John, for the Boys of his School, founded in the Pariſh, for teaching of 28 Children: It is endowed with Lands in Peckham.

CLAPHAM.

From Batterſey we next take our Courſe to the Pariſh of Clapham, ſituate upon a fine Riſing; whence is a pleaſant Proſpect over the River Thames, upon Chelſea, and the Places on that Side. Here divers Citizens have choſen Manſions for their Country Retirements.

In the Church are theſe Monuments erected, for pious and dutiful Reſpects to the Dead, whoſe Bodies are here repoſited.

In the Chancel.

Within the Rails of the Communion Table is a flat Stone, covering the Body of John Thomſon, Eſq; Who departed the 1ſt Day of March, 1665. Aged 71. And the Body likewiſe of Abraham Babington, Gent. Febr. 7, 1681, and Elizabeth his Wife, 9. of May, 1689.

Under another flat Stone within the Vault lie the Body of Sir Laurence Bromfield, Kt. who deceaſed the 20th of June, 1668. And alſo his Grandchildren, Charles Corbet and Thomas Corbet; the former dying 1660, the latter 1667.

Againſt the North Wall a little Monument, with theſe Words:

Hannah Liſter: Dear Wife! dyed 1695, and left ſix Children in Tears for a moſt indulgent Mother.

She was Daughter and Heir of Tho. Parkinſon of Carleton in Craven.

On a Braſs Plate faſtened to a flat Stone before the Rails, is this Inſcription:

Gulielmus Glanvil Generoſus, Mercator Exonienſis feſſus itinere (quod Londinum ſuſcepit) necnon febris violentia fatigatus, hic requieſcit, Anno Dom. 1647. Et Ætatis ſuæ 57.

Quis jacet hic quæris? Tibi ſupra ſcripta loquuntur.
At qualis vixit, te ſua fama docet.
Neglexit moriens jactans Encomia Marmor.
Nam benè qui vixit ſat ſibi laudis habet.

North Ile.

Againſt the South Wall, a Monument of a Man in a Crimſon Gown, and a Woman, both kneeling before two Deſks: Behind the Man a Son, and under him theſe Verſes:

Ingenium, Eloquium, Doctrina, Scientia, Virtus,
Si vitam tribuunt, CLERCE, perennis eris.
Invida mors habeat Corpus, ſed Mente ſuperſtes,
Inviſus nulli, CLERCE, perennis eris.
Ob. Martii 12°. An. Ætat. ſuæ 52.

Under her:

Caſta, pia, & prudens, conjux ELENORA relicta:
O! tali conjux quam bene juncta viro?
Conſortes gemina Omnipotens vos prole beavit,
Sit Proles felix, ſit benedicta Deo.

At the upper End of this Ile is erected a very noble Monument, raiſed from the Ground to ſome Heighth; where appear two Effigies in white Marble, lying along, being a Man in Armour, and a Woman by him. On the South Side of the Baſis of this Monument is this Inſcription:

Domini Richardi Atkins de Clapham in Com Surrey, Militis & Baronetti. Qui obiit 19 Aug. An. Chr. 1689. Et Dominæ Rebeccæ mæſtiſſimæ ejus Relictæ; Filiæ & Cohæredis Edmundi Wright alias Bunckley, de Swarely in Com. Middleſex. Equitis aurati. Ex qua decem ſuſcepit Liberos, Filios nempe duos, Filias Octo; viz. Annabellam & Rebeccam, quæ (unà cum Henrico) cælebes obierunt, duas filias abortivas; unumq; filium & filias quatuor ſuperſtites; ſcil. Ricardum, Mariam, Agnetem, Elizabetham, & Rebeccam.

The Inſcription on the North Side of the Tomb is this:

D. Richardus Atkins, Baronettus, (filius & Hæres dicti Richardi) duxit in uxorem Elizabetham filiam Thomæ Bide de Ware Park in Com. Hertford. Militis.

Maria Atkins, Reverendo in Chriſto Patri Gulielmo (Moreton) Epiſcopo Kildarenſi in Hibernia nupta eſt.

Agnes, Edwardo Atkins, Armigero, filio ſecundo genito Roberti Atkins de Saperton in Comit. Glouceſter. Militis Balnei, ſe Connubio junxit.

Elizabetha, Thomæ Tooke de Wormley in Com. Hertford. Armigero, deſponſata eſt.

Et Rebecca, Wolſtano Dixie, Armigero, (filio & Hæredi Apparenti D. Beaumontis Dixie de Boſworth in Com. Leiceſtr. Baronetti) ſe Matrimonio copulavit.

There be farther belonging to this Monument three other curious Figures in white Marble, placed againſt the Eaſt Wall, ſomewhat advanced; which were Sir Richard's three deceaſed Children.

Under the firſt, which is a Female Child, holding between both her Hands a Death's Head, is this Inſcription:

Here lyeth the Body of Rebecca the Daughter of Sir Richard Atkins of this Place, Knight and Bart. by Dame Rebecca his Wife. She departed this Life in the 9th Year of her Age, the 10th Day of June, 1661.

Reader, ſurvey with piteous Eye,
The mercileſs Hand of Deſtiny:
Which, from a tender Parent's Breaſt,
With Fury tore this welcome Gueſt:
Still culling out the faireſt Gem,
T'adorn his mighty Diadem.
But Heaven concern'd to hear thoſe Cries,
Which did perform her Obſequies,
In Compenſation, gave no leſs
Than everlaſting Happineſs.

Under the ſecond Figure (which is a Lady ſitting, having a Book in her left Hand, with her Finger in it, and an Handkerchief in the other Hand) is this written:

Here lyeth alſo the Body of Annabella, the Daughter of the aforeſaid Sir Richard; who dyed at Paris, January the 1ſt, in the 19th Year of her Age; and interred here, Anno 1670.

Could Tears have ſav'd her precious Life, no doubt,
A general Deluge had been poured out:
Or could the Skill of all the Learned have
Prevail'd but to reprieve her from the Grave;
Mankind had ne'er permitted ſo much Worth,
To their great Loſs to vaniſh from the Earth.
She dyed young; not that ſhe really cou'd
Be weary yet ſo ſoon of doing good:
But fit for Heaven, ſhe without Pretence,
Might juſtly ſcorn a meaner Reſidence.

The third Figure is a Man ſitting in Armour, having a commanding Staff in his Hand. Of whom is this Account given underneath:

And alſo the Body of Henry, the eldeſt Son of the aforeſaid Sir Richard. He departed this Life the 5th of February, 1677. Ætatis ſuæ 24.

That Miroir of all Youth, whoſe Genius ſtood
So happily diſpos'd towards all that's good:
And who could never, for the baſe Delight
Of filthy Sin, find any Appetite:
Here reſts in Peace, until the Day ſhall come,
When Men muſt all receive their fatal Doom:
Then he, attired like a wedding Gueſt,
Shall be admitted to the Bridegroom's Feaſt:
Mean Time it ſhall be my continual Strife,
Next unto Chriſt to imitate his Life.

In the Church-yard,

Are ſeveral Monuments: One on the South by the Wall, bearing this Inſcription:

Conditur hoc tumulo Reverendi viri SAM. SYMONDS Eccleſiæ Anglicanæ Preſbyteri, admodum pii, probi, prudentis, fidi, animo quo digna fuit, & quod diu deperiit, ad Beatorum Conſortium conceſſit 30 Jan. Anno Dom. 1699, & peregrinationis ſuæ 45.

Other Monuments, for Margaret Whiting, Wife of William Whiting, late Miniſter of Tutin; departed 1676. For Mary, the Wife of Will. Kendrick, 1661. And John Kendrick, their Son. And of Rich. Birch, 1693. And Jane Birch, 1692. Thomas Barkley, late of London, Goldſmith, 1695. And Heſter Barkley, Widow, his Mother: And Jane Wright, a Siſter to the ſaid Heſter. Elizabeth Leach. Francis Bridges, late Citizen and Salter of London. George Langham, Eſq; 1683. Tho. Juxon of Mortlake, Gent. 1705. Andrew Crawley, 1690. And Joſeph his Son. And Will. Maniſtie his Grandſon. And Wm. Shelden, Gent. Aged 84, 1700.

CAMBERWELL.

SOmewhat farther on this Side is ſituate the pleaſant Town of Camberwell: Where the ancient worſhipful Families of the Scots and Bowyers now (or lately) inhabited; with divers other fair Seats. The Pariſh taketh in Peckham, and Dulwich, famed for its purging Waters, and the College. Dulwich.

The Church is ancient, and adorned with many Monuments for Remembrances of the Dead.

In the Chancel.

On the North Side, againſt the Wall, is an ancient Monument raiſed from the Ground; where, on a Plate of Braſs, is the Effigies of a Woman kneeling, her Hands together, with a long Pair of Beads hanging at her Girdle, and reaching to the Ground. And a Man in Armour alſo kneeling, Hands together. Labels of Braſs proceeding out of their Mouths, but torn away. Coats of Arms, ſome remaining, and ſome torn off. The Arms are, On a Feſſe three Boars Heads couped. Behind the Woman kneel ſeven Daughters: Behind the Man four Sons.

The Plate underneath them, containing the Inſcription, is half looſe, and like ſuddenly to be quite gone; but our entering it here may preſerve the Inſcription itſelf: Which was this;

Of your Charite pray for the Soul [This was defaced] of John Scot, Eſquier, and one of the Barons of the Eſcheker. Which John deceſyd the vii. Day of September, in the xxiiii. Yere of the Reygne of our Soveraign Lord King Henry the VIII. and in the Yere of our Lord God XV^c. & XXXII. On whos Sowles Jeſu have Mercy..... Amen.

By this, Eaſtward, againſt the Wall, on a Braſs Plate, is a Man in a Gown, kneeling, and eight Sons kneeling behind him; and a Woman kneeling, with four Daughters behind her. The Inſcription:

Here lye buried the Bodies of John Bowyer, Eſquire, and Elizabeth his Wife, one of the Daughters of Robert Draper, Eſquire. They had Iſſue eight Sons and three Daughters; and John dyed the Xth of October, 1570. Elizabeth after maried William Foſtar, Eſquire, who had Iſſue by her one Son and one Daughter; and dyed April 27, 1605.

On the South Side of the Table, againſt the Wall, a ſmall Monument plated.

Here lyeth the Body of Mathye Draper, Eſq; who was maried unto Senſe Blackwel, Daughter of William Blackwel of London, Eſq; who dyed without Iſſue the 21. Day of July, in the Year of our Lord God 1577. [His Picture and hers kneeling.

Next to this, Weſtward, againſt the Wall, on a very old Monument, is the Effigies of a Man and a Woman in Braſs, kneeling: Behind him five Sons; behind her five Daughters; and this Inſcription:

Hic jacet Rycus. Skynner, Et Agnes uxor ejus Qui quidem Rycus. ob. 3^o die Januar. Ann. Dom. MCCCCVII. Agnes vero ob. V° die Martii Ann. Dom. MCCCCLXXXXIX. Quorum .... [Here muſt needs be a Miſtake in the Date.]

Juſt over this is an Inſcription engraven in Stone:

Here lyes interred the Body of Dame Anne Vernon, deceaſed the firſt of March, 1629. Wife ſhe was to Sir Robert Vernon, Kt. Clerk of the Green Cloth to his Majeſty, and Mother of ſeven Children to her Howſband; yet living.

Her virtuous Life and godly End, God grant they al may imitate: That as ſhe is departed in Peace, by God's Mercy, and through Chriſt's Merits, they may al at the laſt Day meet again in Joy.

Chancel, South Wall.

A handſome Monument there, advanced ſomewhat high, for Dame Heſter Bowyer, late Wife of Sir Edmund Bowyer of this Pariſh, Kt. and eldeſt Daughter of Sir Anthony Aucher, Knight.

There was a happy Sympathy between the Vertues of the Soul and the Beauty of the Body of the excellent deceaſed Perſon. She lived an holy Life, and dyed the Death of the Righteous, Decemb. 19, 1665.

A good Life hath but few Days, but a good Name endureth for ever.

Sir Edmund alſo (as he deſired) lyes here by his moſt loving and welbeloved Wife. Likeneſs begat Love, and Love Happineſs: True here, complete in Heaven, where they reap the Fruit of Faith and good Works. He dyed the 27. of Jan. 1681. Aged 67.

Tam pios Cineres nemo conturbet.

In the middle Ile,

Before the Communion Table, the Figures of a Man and Woman in Braſs, praying; the Arms and Inſcription torn off.

By this Stone, another with the Figure of a Child in Braſs, but torn off with the Epitaph; only a Part of the Label remains, containing theſe Words: Sancti Innocentes orate pro nobis.

Lower in this Ile, an ancient Figure of a Man in Braſs, and this written:

Hic jacet Mighel Skenner, Generos. qui ob. die..... Novembr. Ann. Dni Millimo CCCCLXXXXVII. Cujus anime propitietur Deus. Amen.

Lower, under a fair Marble Stone are buried four Sons of Robert Maddocks, Eſq; and Anne his Wife; Roger, Richard, Robert, Roger, and afterwards was buried Byſhe.

Margaret Dove, Wife to John Dove, Daughter of Tho. Kelette of Surrey, Gent. and had Iſſue by the ſaid John five Sons and four Daughters: And deceaſed the 22. of April, 1582.

North Ile.

A Monument againſt the Wall, of a Woman kneeling, with a Book before her. She was Jane, the Daughter of Sir Tho. Hunt, and Wife of Thomas Grimſton. By whom ſhe ſeems [for the Inſcription is obſcure] to have had ten Sons and three Daughters.

When twenty Years and ..... Days were ſpent
In Wedlock Bands, and loyal Loves Delights;
November 12 day then ſhe was content
This World to leave, and give to God his Right:
Her 63 Year ful complete and ended,
Her Soul to God, to Earth her Corps commended.
Ann. Dom. 1604.

On a Braſs Plate.

Here lies buried the Body of Tho. Muſchamp, Gent. youngeſt Son of Francis Muſchamp, Eſq; Married Elizabeth the Daughter of Thomas Nayler of Standiſh in the County of Lancaſter, Gent. who departed this Life, in certain Hope of a joyful Reſurrection, the 3. Day of May, Anno Dom. 1637. For whoſe Memory, Elizabeth, his loving Wife, cauſed this Memorial, &c.

Engraven upon the ſame Stone:

Here lyeth the Body of Elizabeth Pearſe, the Widow of John Pearſe, Gent. and Daughter of Francis Muſchamp of this Pariſh, deceaſed, Eſq; who departed this Life the 14. of May, 1694. Aged 84. And her dear Son George Pearſe, Gent. April 29, 1685. Aged 48.

Henry Duntot, Born at Horſham in Suſſex; dyed Novemb. 20, 1600.

On a Pillar, between the Middle Ile and North Ile, is erected a decent Monument, upon which is the following Inſcription:

This Monument is erected in Memory of the vertuous Mrs. Joanna Vincent, by her moſt ſorrowful Huſband Thomas Vincent, Eſq; one of the Juſtices of the Peace of this County, and Alderman of the City of London. To whom ſhe was Wife twenty Years; and by whom he had five Sons and nine Daughters: The laſt, finiſhing her Mother's ſhort but pious Courſe, made Death her Triumph, not her Conqueror, in the 27. Year of her Age, the 22. Febr. 1654. She was one of the Daughters of Thomas Burgeſs of Horly in the County of Surrey.

In her Grave, at the Foot of this Pillar, is interred Vincent Blayney, Son to Richard and Elizabeth Blayney: He was Son to Henry Lord Blayney; and ſhe the eldeſt Daughter of Thomas and Joanna Vincent. He was born the 17th, and buryed the 29th of March, 165$\frac{4}{5}$. O Lord, how glorious art thou in thy Saints!

What Solomon ſcarce found, was truly here;
And Time to come will hardly find her Peer:
For all the Vertues now in one you find,
One of ten thouſand, ſhe excell'd her Kind.
Her vertuous Life, if writ, might t' all Inſtruction give;
To be a Wife, a Mother, Friend, and teach them live.

VINCENTI corona dabitur.

South Ile.

Againſt the Eaſt Wall, a Monument for Robert Waith, Gent. Pay-Maſter of the Navy to King Charles the Second; who dyed the 28th of Octob. 1685. And Elizabeth his Wife, who dyed the 13th of April, 1667. And Rob. Waith, Gent. their eldeſt Son, the 16th of Decemb. 1686.

Againſt the South Wall in this Ile, a fair large Monument, thus inſcribed:

D. O. M.

Here ſleeps, in Hope of Reſurrection, the Body of Sir Peter Scot, Kt. who having lived deſired and beloved both of his Friends and Neighbours, deceaſed the 28th of June, 1622, and in the ..... Year of his Age. He married Elizabeth eldeſt Daughter of Edmund Kederminſter, Eſquire, one of the Six Clerks of Chancery; and left behind him one Son and three Daughters, with their moſt ſorrowful Mother; who, among other Teſtimonies of a pious Affection to his Memory, conſecrated this Monument in her Tears.

Here might be Praiſes, but he needs not them;
Thoſe Puffs the Vertuous and the Dead contemn,
For ſuch are better pleaſed good to be,
Than to be called ſo; and ſuch was he.
This then for Oſtentation raiſe we not,
Nor out of Fear his Worth may be forgot;
But that the Readers, and the Paſſers by,
Reflecting on the Shrine of Death an Ey,
May mind their own: So neither will the Coſt
Seem vain, nor the Beholder's Labour loſt.

Next adjoining on this Wall:

Lower on the ſaid Wall, the Figure of an old Man in a Gown, kneeling; and on the Back of him, one kneeling in Armour, and a Woman in the ſame Poſture facing him: And thus underwritten:

John Scot, the Son and Heir of John Scot, one of the Barons of the Exchequer, being married to Elizabeth the Daughter and Heir of John Roberts of London, Merchant of the Staple at Calais, had Iſſue, John, Richard, Edward, William, Bartholomew, Acton: Being alſo married to a ſecond Wife Chis, (the Widow of John Sandford) had Iſſue Mary; and by Margaret Borton, his third Wife, had Edgar and Southwel. Of which his nine Children, Bartholomew Scot the fifth Son, repairing the decayed Ruines of this Right Worſhipful and ancient Family, reviveth the Deceaſed.

Bartholomew Scot, the Son of John Scot, Eſq; and Juſtice of Peace in the County of Surrey, having no Iſſue of his Body begotten, liveth notwithſtanding after Death, by the never dying Commendation of his Vertues, being a valiant, wiſe and religious Gentleman; and leaveth behind him Peter Scot his Nephew, the Son of Acton Scot his Brother; whom he had carefully and lovingly foſtered from his Youth, the Heir of his Lands, and the Hope of their Family. This Gentleman was married to three Wives: The firſt was Margaret the Widow of the Right Reverend Prelate and Martyr Tho. Cranmer, Archbiſhop of Canterbury. The ſecond was Chriſtian, the Widow of ..... Laud, Citizen of London. And the third and laſt was Margaret, the Widow of William Gardiner, Eſq; Juſtice of Peace in the County of Surrey.

Margaret the laſt Wife of Bartho. Scot, at her own Coſt erected this Tomb, to the happy Memory of her beloved Huſband.

In this South Ile, on the Pavement, is a Stone with a Braſs Figure of a Man in Arms, and this Inſcription:

Of your Charite pray for the Soul of Edward Scot, one of the Sons of John Scot, Eſq; which Edward deceſſed the 29. Day of September, Anno Domini M° CCCC XXXVIII. On whoſe Soul, and all Chriſten Souls, Jeſu have Mercy.

This Gentleman is figured with a great long Sword, reaching to the Ground, hanging before him, faſtened to his Belt, and a leſſer Sword or Dagger hanging on the right Side of him.

Anthony Stanlake, Eſq; Citizen and Dyer of London, who departed July the 26th, 1671. And Anthony Stanlake his eldeſt Son, 1671.

Church-yard.

Entring into the Porch is a Stone thus engraven:

Conditus hoc tumulo variis vigilavit in oris,
Aſſiduus Chriſti Paſtor ubiq; gregis.
Quod poſt fata poteſt in limine dormit Ovilis,
Exprimat ut priſcam cum pietate fidem.
Dupliciter . . . . . locum; nam ducit ad ædem
Hic Lapis, & poſitus duxit ad aſtra Senex.

Piæ & fragranti Memoriæ chariſſimi Conjugis NEHEMIAH LAMBERT, tam Charitate in proximos quàm in ſuos Pietate conſpicui, Sacroſancti Evangelii foras domiq; Promulgatoris fideliſſimi, inſtituendæ Juventutis Profeſſoris indefeſſi, nati ipſis Calend. Decembr. anni 1644, denati 7. Calend. April. 1700. hanc Inſcriptionem Sacram eſſe mæſta voluit Uxor.

On the South Side of the Church-yard, a raiſed Tomb, with this Inſcription:

S. R.

Under this, in a Vault, lyeth the Body of Elizabeth, Daughter of Sir Roger James, Kt. late Wife of Rich. Parr, D. D. Who departed this Life Novemb. the 8. 1688. For her Modeſty and Sobriety, Prudence and Humility, Charity and Piety exemplary.

M. S.

Here alſo lyeth her Huſband Richard Parr, D. D. Vicar of this Place almoſt 38 Years; Ob. Nov. 12. 1691. He was in preaching conſtant, in Life exemplary, in Piety and Charity moſt eminent: A Lover of Peace and Hoſpitality; and, in fine, a true Diſciple of Jeſu Chriſt.

In this Vault alſo was buried Jane Bradford, Relict of John Bradford, D. D. Prebendary of Canterbury. Ob. 30. July, 1702.

Here be alſo Monuments for John Granſden. . . . . . Badger, Tallowchandler. Tho. Fox, Merchant. Mary Harris. And one of a larger Size than ordinary, whereon are theſe Words only inſcribed:

Sir THOMAS GARDINER, Kt. the Servant of Jeſus Chriſt.

On the Eaſt Window in the Chancel, is painted in the Glaſs between the Letters R. W. a Mitre and a Crozier-ſtaff ſtruck thro' it, (which ſeems ancient) for ſome Biſhop of Wincheſter, probably a Benefactor here.

Alſo in the Eaſt Window of the North Ile, an ancient Figure in the Glaſs, of a Lady Crowned, her golden Hair hanging about her Shoulders, with a Sword in her left Hand, the Point downwards; perhaps intended for Q. Elizabeth on her firſt Acceſſion to the Crown, when Executions, ſo rife in the former Reign, were happily ſtopt.

LAMBHITH, alias LAMBETH.

IN Lambhith, or Lambeth Pariſh, is a moſt noble ancient Palace belonging to the Archbiſhops of Canterbury. In the Church are theſe Monuments.

On the North Side, on a Marble Tomb, is written as followeth:

Here under this Tomb lyeth buried the Body of Thomas Clere, Eſquire, Son of Robert Clere in the County of Norfolk, Kt. Which Thomas deceaſed the 14. Day of April, Anno Dom 1545. On whoſe Soul, and all Chriſtian Souls, Jeſus have Mercy.

And upon a Table hung up was an Epitaph made by the Right Noble Henry Earl of Surrey; being thus intitled:

Epitaphium Thomæ Clere, qui fato functus eſt 1545. auctore Henrico Howard, Comite Surrey. In cujus fælicis ingenii ſpecimen, & ſingularis Facundiæ Argumentum, appenſa fuit hæc Tabula per W. Howard, filium Thomæ nuper Ducis Norfolcienſis, filii ejuſdem Henrici Comitis.

Norfolk ſprung thee, Lambeth holds thee dead,
CLERE, of the County of Cleremont thou height:
Within the Womb of Ormond's Race thou bred,
And ſaw'ſt thy Coſin crowned in thy Sight.
Shelton for Love, Surrey for Lord thou chaſe:
Ah! me, whilſt Life did laſt, that League was (tender,
Tracing whoſe Steps, thou ſaweſt Kelſal blaſe,
Landerſey burnt, & batter'd Bulleyn render.
At Muttrel Gates, hopeleſs of al Recure,
Thine Earl, half dead, gave in thy Hand his Wil.
Which Cauſe did thee this pining Death procure,
Ere Summers four times ſeven thou couldſt fulfil:
Ah! CLERE, if Love had booted, Care or Coſt,
Heaven had not won, nor Earth ſo timely loſt.

In the Chancel, on the North Side, is an old Tomb of Marble, thus written on:

Sub pedibus ubi ſtatis jacet Corpus Magiſtri Hugonis Peyntwin, Legum Doctoris, nuper Archiepp. Cant. Revendiſſimorum Patrum, Dom. Johannis Morton Cardinalis, Henrici Dene, & Willielm. Warrham Curiæ Archiep. Audien. Cauſarum Auditoris. Qui obiit VI. die Auguſti, Anno Dom. MDIIII. Cujus animæ propitietur Deus. Amen.

On a flat Stone before the Communion Table, within the Rails, is thus written:

Volente Deo.

Hic jacet Richardus Bancroft S. Theologiæ Profeſſor, Epiſcopus Londinenſis primo, deinde Cantuarienſis Archiepiſcopus, & Regi Jacobo à Secretioribus Conſiliis. Obiit ſecundo Novembris, Anno Dom. 1610. Ætatis ſuæ 67.

Volente Deo.

On another flat Stone, is thus written:

Here lyeth the Lady Elizabeth Howard, ſometime Counteſs of Wiltſhire.

On the South Side

Lyeth the Body of Sir Noel Caroon, Ledger Ambaſſador for the States of Holland, with his Arms and Hatchment; as namely, his Creſt, Helmet, Arms, Sword, Gantlet, and Spurs.

In the South Chapel is a fair Monument of Marble engraven as followeth:

Here lyeth Sir John Legh Knight of the Bath, Son of Ralph Legh, Eſq; Lord of the Mannors of Stockwell and Leveburſt, and Dame Iſabel his Wife, Daughter of Otwell Worſley. Which Sir John deceaſed the 17. Day of Auguſt, Anno Dom. MDXXIIII. and the ſame Iſabel deceaſed the 18. Day of April.

On the upper End on the Wall, a Monument as followeth:

Here lieth the Body of John Arundell of Gwarnicke, in the County of Cornwall, Eſquire, Sonne and Heire of Roger Arundell, of the ſaid County, Eſquire, of an ancient, honourable, and faire deſcended Family, who died the 25. of May, 1613. without Iſſue, and in the 56. Yeere of his Age.

Sape & prævale.

On the North Side of the Quire is this Inſcription, againſt the Wall near the Rails, with the Effigies half Way.

Neere to this Place, lyeth interred, the Body of Robert Scot, Eſquire, deſcended of the ancient Barons of Bawery in Scotland. Hee bent himſelf to travell, and ſtudy much, &c. And, amongſt other Things, he invented the Leather Ordnance, and carried to the King of Sweeden 200. Men; who, after two Yeeres Service, for his Worth and Valour, was preferred to the Office of Quarter-Maſter General of his Majeſties Army; which he poſſeſſed three Yeeres. From thence, with his Favour, he went into Denmarke (where he was advanced to be General of that King's Artillery.) There being adviſed to tender his Service to his own Prince, which hee doing, his Majeſty willingly accepted and preferred him to be one of the Gentlemen of his moſt Honourable Privy Chamber, and rewarded him with a Penſion of 600 l. per Annum.

This deſerving Spirit, adorned with all Indowments befitting a Gentleman, in the Prime of his flouriſhing Age, ſurrendered his Soul to his Redeemer, 1631.

Of his great Worth to know who ſeeketh more,
Muſt mount to Heaven, where he is gone before.

In France he tooke to Wife Anne Scot, for whoſe Remembrance ſhe lovingly erected this Memorial.

Overagainſt the other, in the ſame Ile, lieth the Body of Elizabeth Bayly, late Wife of John Bayly. Obiit 24. of June, 1629. Ætatis ſuæ 25.

Reader tread ſoft, under thy Foot doth lye,
A Mother buried with her Progeny:
Two Females and a Male, the laſt a Sonne,
Who with his Life, his Mother's Thred hath ſpun,
His Breath her Death procur'd (unhappy Sinne,
That thus our Joy with Sorrow uſhers in.)
Yet he being loth to leave ſo kind a Mother,
Changes this Life to meet her in another.
The Daughters firſt were robb'd of vital Breath,
The Mother next in Strength of Yeeres met Death,
The Father's only Joy, a hopeful Sonne,
Did loſe his Life when Life was ſcarce begun.
If harmleſſe Innocence, if loyal Truth,
Found in a conſtant Wife combin'd with Youth;
If a kind Huſband's Prayers, or Father's Teares
Could have prevail'd, they had liv'd many Yeeres.
But theſe all fayling, here rak'd up in Duſt,
They wait the Reſurrection of the Juſt.
A Huſband's Love, a Father's Piety,
Dedicates this unto their Memory:
And when he hath his Debt to Nature paid,
In the ſame Grave himſelf will then be laid,
That altogether, when the Trumpe ſhall ſound,
Huſband, Wife, Children, may in Chriſt be found.

Another Monument on the South Side the Quire, with this Inſcription againſt a Pillar:

Here lieth four, Foot Diſtant from this Wall, the Body of William Suthies, Gent. a Man adorned with the Gifts of Grace, Art, and Nature: By Grace he was Religious and Charitable; by Art he was in Maſonry exquiſite; and by Nature he was humane and affable. He, by God's Appointment, changed his Mortal Life of Miſery for glorious Immortality, on the fifth of October, 1625. His ſorrowful and grateful Wife, Mrs. Anne Suthies, as a loyal Teſtimony of her Love to her deceaſed Huſband, cauſed this Monument to be erected for an exemplary Token of his Worthineſſe, and her Affection. He was Maſter Maſon of Windſor Caſtle; he was a Citizen and Goldſmith of London, and an Aſſiſtant of the ſaid Worſhipful Company. He left three Sonnes towardly and hopeful, to be each of them the Imitators of their Father's Vertues, John, James, and Matthew. And herein the Reader may ſee expreſt the Goodneſs of the deceaſed Huſband, and the thankfulneſſe of a ſurviving Wiſe.

He now ſings Praiſe amongſt the Heavenly Hoſt,
To God the Father, Sonne, and Holy Ghoſt.

Other ancient Monuments there have been in this Church; as of Katharine Howard, one of the Siſters and Heirs of John Broughton, Eſq; and Wife of L. Will. Howard, one of the Sons of the High and Mighty Prince L. Thomas Duke of Norfolk. She deceaſed April 23, 1535.

Other ancient Monuments, MSS. in Offic. Armor. Surrey, N° 129. J. S.

In Howard's Chapel.

Good Dutcheſs of Norfolk, the Lord have mercy upon thee: Which dyed at Lambeth the laſt of November, ...

On a Table.

Farewel, Good Lady and Siſter dere,
In Erth we ſhall never mete here;
But yet I truſt, with Godis Grace,
In Haven we ſhal deſerve a Place:
Yet thy Kindneſſe ſhal nere depart,
During my Life out of my Hert;
Thou waſt to me both fare and nere,
A Mother, a Siſter, a Frende moſt dere:
And to al thy Frendes moſt ſure and faſt,
Whan Fortune had ſounded the froward Blaſt.
And to the Powre a very Mother,
More than was known to any other.
Which is thy Treſure at thys Day,
And for thy Sowle they hertily pray.
So ſhall I do that here remayne;
God thy Sowle preſerve from Payne.

By thy moſt bounden Brother,

Henry Lord Stafford.

Hic jacet Henricus Howard, Armig. filius Comitis de Surrey. Qui obiit 2. die Menſ. Febr. An. Dom. 1502. Cujus animæ propitietur Deus.

There be alſo theſe Monuments, beſides thoſe already mentioned, in this Church of Lambeth; and ſome of them more modern.

A large plain Stone in the Chancel, with this Inſcription:
Hic jacet Thomas Thirleby, olim Epiſcopus Elienſis. Qui obiit xxvi. Aug. Anno Dom. 1570.

Next beneath him lay the Stone of Biſhop Tunſtal, ſometime Biſhop of Durham. But a Pew is now erected over his Monumental Stone, which anciently was under the Communion Table. Both theſe Biſhops being confined, by Q. Elizabeth's Command, in the Palace at Lambeth, whilſt Matthew Parker was Archbiſhop, dyed there in Peace, and were buried here by his Order.

Near lyeth Elizabeth, one of the Siſters of William Sancroft, late Archbiſhop of Canterbury, ſometime Wife of Francis Herdſon, Clerk; after whoſe Death ſhe lived 17 Years a Widow indeed, and dyed Septemb. 7. 1689.

At the Head of this Stone, a Stone for Katharine Battely, Wife of John Battely, S. Th. P. and Chaplain to the above-ſaid Archbiſhop. She lived 23 Years, 9 Months, 9 Days. Dyed the 1ſt of Octob. 1685.

John Alſop, Comptroller of the Family of Richard Archbiſhop of Canterbury; afterward Treaſurer to George Archbiſhop of Canterbury. Dyed July 12, 1611. Ætatis 51.

On the Side of Archbp. Bancroft's Stone, within the Rails, lyeth a fair Stone over Miles Smith, Secretary to Gilbert Archbp. of Canterbury. Ob. 17. of Febr. 1671.

Without the Rails, near adjoining, lyes Rob. Thompſon, L L. D. Secretary alſo to Gilbert and William, Archbiſhops of Canterbury. Obiit Feb. 3. 1683. Ætat. 42.

In the North Chancel or Chapel, a plain Stone, round about it thus engraven:

Hic jacet MARGARETA caſtiſſima & integerrima Conjunx quondam MATTHÆI Archiep. Cantuarienſis, Quæ obiit 17. Aug. An. 1570. ....
[The reſt not legible.]

In this Chancel, or Chapel, is a ſtanding Monument of the Duke of Norfolk, as they ſay; the Inſcription pulled off.

On the Wall on the South Side of the Chancel is this Inſcription:
In Memory of Anthony Burleigh, third Son of John Burleigh, late of the Iſle of Wight, Eſquire, who was Lieutenant to K Charles I. of bleſſed Memory; and was put to Death at Wincheſter the 26. of Jan. 1647. for endeavouring to releaſe his ſacred Majeſty, Priſoner in Cariſbrook Caſtle in the ſaid Iſle of Wight. His two elder Brothers were ſlain at Worceſter Fight, in the Forces of his preſent Majeſty K. Charles II. This being the laſt of that loyal Family, except his truly loving and ſorrowful Siſter, who cauſed this Monument to be erected. Obiit 17. of Febr. 1681. Ætat. Suæ 48.
Spe reſurgendi.

Near this, a Monument of William Beeſton of this Pariſh, Eſquire; who dyed the 9. of Auguſt, 1679. And Jane his Wife, who dyed the 17. of May, 1652. Left only one Daughter, who married Edward Leventhorp, Eſq; by whom ſhe had Iſſue three Sons and five Daughters.

In the South Chancel a Stone upon Elias Aſhmole.

Hic jacet inclytus ille & eruditiſſimus ELIAS ASHMOLE Litchfeldienſis, Armiger. Inter alia in Rep. munera, Tributi in Cerviſias Contrarotulator: Fecialis autem Windſorienſis Titulo per annos plurimos dignatus. Qui poſt duo Connubia in uxorem duxit tertiam Elizabetham Gulielmi Dugdale Mil. Garteri Principalis Regis Armorum Filiam. Mortem obiit 18 Maii, 1692. Anno Ætatis 76. Sed durante Muſeo Aſhmolæano Oxon. nunquam moriturus.

For the Creſt, is a Mercury mounting, ſtanding upon two little Boys.

A Table Monument of white Marble for Richard Laurence of this Pariſh, Merchant; one of the Members of the Levant Company. Who married Joan Stephens. By whom he had Iſſue two Sons and one Daughter. He departed Octob. the 8th, 1661. Aged 53.

Another Monument againſt the Wall, to this Tenour:

Abſalom had no Son, and he built him a Pillar.

The Body of John Goſton, Eſq; younger Son to Sir Francis Goſton of Stockwel, Kt. who, with his Lady, were buried in a Vault in this Ile, which doth belong unto the Manour-Houſe. Three later Monuments. Ralegh.

Here are lately ſet up againſt the North Wall, in Howard's Chapel, theſe Monuments: One for Judith Ralegh, late Wife of Captain George Ralegh, ſometime Governor of the Ile of Jerſey. She departed Decemb. 14, 1701. [This Gentleman, who is ſtill living, was Nephew to the famous Sir Walter Ralegh.]

Morleigh and Granvile.

Another fair Monument of white Marble for Colonel Cutbert Morley, buried 30. of June, 1669. And for Bernard Granvile, Eſq; who married Anne, Daughter of the ſaid Cutbert; and dyed June 14, 1701; and for the ſaid Anne, Daughter of Francis Earl of Scarſdale: She dyed the 20th of Septemb. 1701. Then follows a large Inſcription in Latin of their Families.

Marſh.

And a third Monument for Richard Marſh, Eſq. Part of the Inſcription is, That before he went to bed, he ſupped with Chriſt. He departed May the 18. 1704. Aged 61. And was buried in a Vault near adjoining.

This Church of Lambeth is newly repaired and beautified, and new pewed, with much Decency. To the Charge of which, Ralph Snow, Eſq; Treaſurer to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, was a very liberal Benefactor.

In this Pariſh, in the Road to Clapham, ſtands a fair Alms-houſe for ſeven Widows of the ſaid Pariſh, who receive each 4 l. yearly. It was founded by a Nobleman, Ambaſſador from the States of Holland in K. James the Firſt his Time.

It hath this Inſcription:

NEWINGTON-BUTTS.

In the Church of St. Mary Newington, on the North Side, is this Monument:

Deo Viventium. Pietati Sacrum.

Sir Hugh Brawne, Kt. the Founder and Adorner of this Ile, and for the Space of two and twenty Years, the whole Ornament of this Pariſh: Religious toward God, and reſpectful of the Poor: Determining to provide for the Day of his Death, deſires here to repoſe his Body, in a happy Hope of a glorious Reſurrection.

Reader, it pleas'd th' Almighty to infuſe
Senſe of his Goodneſs in my bleſſed Heart.
Faith quickned Love, and did this Church-Work chooſe:
Both jointly here did ſhew themſelves in Part.
His be the Glory, Peace. Soul-ſaving mine,
Prayer, Thankſgiving, Uſe, Example thine.
1614. Vivens poſui, An. Ætatis 77.

He is repreſented here in Armour, kneeling; and in that Poſture are his two Wives againſt him, and four Sons and five Daughters kneeling underneath.

George Powel, of this Pariſh, who departed 28. Decembr. 1705, in the 47th of his Age.

A Table of Benefactors is ſet up in this Church, which was repaired and beautified, and the Altar-Piece erected, and the Chancel railed, at the Charge of the Pariſhioners, Anno Dom. 1704.

A ſudden Rupture in this Church.

Upon a Sunday in the Month of July, 1° Reg. Georgii, in the Time of Divine Service, there happened a ſudden Rupture in the Wall of this Church: Which put the Congregation then aſſembled into ſuch a general Conſternation, that they all ran out; and many, in making their Eſcape, were bruiſed, and trodden under Foot, and received great Hurt. And upon a careful Review of the Church by experienced Workmen, (the Structure being very ancient) it was found ſo much decayed in the Pillars, Walls, and Beams, and in the Roof and Foundation: That notwithſtanding the Sum of 850 l. laid out in Repairs by the Pariſh, the ſame could not any longer be ſupported: And ſo of late was taken all down, and rebuilt from the Foundation. For which the Pariſh got a Brief, wherein the Charge was ſaid to amount to 926 l. and upwards.

In this Pariſh, fronting the Road, is a fine Hoſpital, very handſomely and largely built, like the Houſe of ſome Gentleman of Rank, for 22 Perſons; who have Eight Shillings a Month each, beſides Coals and Cloth. To it belongeth a Chapel, where Prayers are ſaid every Day by a Chaplain. The worſhipful Company of Fiſhmongers of London have the Care of it.

And now we proceed in our Walk to the Pariſhes on the South Eaſt and Eaſtern Parts bordering upon LONDON: Some in Kent, and ſome in Eſſex; whoſe Banks are moſtly waſhed by the River Thames.

THE next Town onward to the South Eaſt of the City, and lying upon the Bank of the River, is Rotherhith, commonly called Redriff.

The Church repaired.

Sermons.

It hath a ſmall old Church, going down into it by ſome Steps. It is not ſufficient to contain the numerous Inhabitants; and requires new building and enlarging. It was repaired and new pewed at the Pariſh Charge, 1687. At five a Clock in the Afternoon, every third Sunday in the Month, is a Sermon here preached, maintained by Batchelors: Which Sermon is accompanied with a Collection at the Church Door. The Maintainers of this Lecture put out and keep about 20 Boys to School. Sacrament Sermons are alſo preached here every Thurſday in the Month.

Free-School.

In this Pariſh is a Free School, for teaching eight Children of Seamen to read and write. For which is allowed 8 l. ℘ Ann.

The Decay of Rotherith Church.

This Pariſh Church hath of late Years coſt the Inhabitants ſeveral hundred Pounds in Repairs: But yet, by ſtanding low and near the Banks of the River Thames, is overflowed: Whereby the Foundation of the Church is rotted; and was in ſuch great Danger of falling down, that the Inhabitants could not without Danger of their Lives, aſſemble to hear Divine Service therein. Which occaſioned them to obtain a Brief Anno 1710, to enable them to take it down, and rebuild it. The Charge whereof they computed at 4361 l. and upwards. And that it might be built again of larger Capacity, the Church not being able to contain half the Pariſhioners, which good Work is now effected.

This Pariſh conſiſts of abundance of Seafaring Mens Families; which encreaſeth the Poor there exceedingly. So that in thirty Years, the Aſſeſſments for the Poor were advanced [in the Year 1710] from 80 l. to above 700 l. ℘ Ann.]

In the Church at Rotherith are theſe enſuing Monuments.

In the South Ile, on the Wall, is this written.

Poſt tenebras, ſpero Lucem.

Next without this Wall are buried Brian, Richard, and Marke, Alize, and Elizabeth, the three Sons, and two Daughters of Nicholas Reynolds, Citizen and Goldſmith of London, and of Elizabeth his Wife. The forenamed Elizabeth, their younger Daughter, was married to Robert Wheatley, Salter, the 20th Day of Auguſt, 1593, and died the 18th of September in the ſame Year.

Theſe Bloſſomes young and tender, loe,
Blown down by deadly Wind,
May urge the riper Sort to know,
Like Blaſt ſhall them out find.

For Fleſh, as Graſs, away doth wither;
No Age can it eſchew;
The Young and Old decay together,
When Death ſhall them purſue.

No Parents, Friends, or Advocate,
Can him entreat to ſpare
The Faire, the Fine, or Delicate,
For Threats he doth not care.

Let that moſt certain Statute made
By God our heavenly King;
All Men aſſure, and eke perſwade,
Death ſhall them equal bring.

Poſt Mortem, Vitam Æternam.

In the Middle Ile of this Church is thus written:

Trinitas in Unitate.

Here lies buried the Body of Richard Hills, Mariner, one of the eldeſt Brothers and Aſſiſtants of the Company of the Trinity, and his two Wives. Who, while hee lived in this Place, gave liberally to the Poor, and ſpent bountifully in his Houſe; and after many Troubles, being of the Age of 80 Years and upward, departed this Life without Iſſue, upon the 16th of February, 1614.

This was made at the Charge of Robert Bell.

Tho' Hills be dead, Hills Will and Act ſurvives,
His Free-School, and his Penſion for the Poor:
Thought on by him, performed by his Heir,
For eight poor Seamens Children, and no more.
1627.

On the Outſide of the North Wall is a Monument bearing the Figure of a Ship at Sea; under it the Portraiture of him for whom it was erected, with his Wife, ſix Sons, and four Daughters; the Living and the Dead diſtinguiſhed by Deaths-Heads, which the buried ſeem to bear in their Hands, and under them this Inſcription.

Here beneath lyeth interred, the Body of Captain Anthony Wood, who departed this Life the 24th of Auguſt 1625, being the 40th Yeere of his Age, and had Iſſue by his Wife Martha Wood ſix Sonnes, and four Daughters.

In the Chancel, J. S.

A little Monument againſt the Wall, and this Epitaph:

Roger Tweedy, Eſq; was interred in the Middle Ile of this Church, in the Year 1655. He gave by Will two Shillings every Lords Day forever, to be diſtributed among 12 poor Seamen, or Seamens Widows, in Bread: The Officers of this Church to take Care to diſtribute it: And thoſe neareſt of Kin to him, to enquire of its Diſpoſal; and if not performed according to the Will, to take it into their Hands.

In Commemoration of Mr. Roger Tweedy:

Who living, was Landmens Counſellor, Seamens Glory,
Schiſmes Scourge, and Truth's living Story.
His Soul a Ship, with Graces fully laded,
Through Surges deep did plow, and ſafely waded.
With Principles of Faith his ballanc'd Mind,
Did ſteddy ſail 'gainſt Blaſts of boiſt'rous Wind, &c.
At Rotherhith he did at length arrive,
And to their Port his Tribute freely give;
And in this Port he did at Anchor ſtay,
Hopefully expecting Reſurrections Day.

A Hatchment for Mr. Tho. Lewſley, 1688. And Anne Lewſley, 1698.

On the South Wall, a ſmall Hatchment for Mr. John Roope, 1678.

Under a flat Stone in the Chancel,

The Body of Thomaſin Pasfield, the faithful Yoke-fellow and beloved Wife of George Pasfield, Eſq; and the only Daughter of William Hacker of Rotherhith, Gent. 1659. Alſo Thomaſin their youngeſt Daughter, 1660. And the ſaid Geo. Pasfield, 1660. And Samuel Pasfield, Jun. 1700.

North Wall of the Chancel, a Hatchment for Mr. Phil. Mell, Mercer, ſecond Son of Mr. Guſtavus-Adolphus Mell, 1699.

Another ſmall one for Joſeph Lyne, 1688.

A flat Stone over Elizabeth Lock, Daughter of Charles Lock, 1683.

In the Middle Ile, a great Braſs Plate torn off and gone; and a little Braſs Plate thus inſcribed.

This was made at the Charge of Robt. Bell.

Though HILLS be dead, HILLS Will and Acts ſurvive, &c. as before.

In the North Ile, a flat Stone over Elizabeth Wife of Capt. William Evan, 1703.

An Hatchment for Jone late Wife of Jonas Shiſh, 1685.

Another for Matthew Hungerford, Eſq; late of Chiſbury in the County of Wilts, 1677.

Elizabeth Wife of Guſtavus-Adolphus Mell, Daugh- of Lancelot Coppleſton.

Capt. Nathaniel Pecket.

Church Yard.

On the South Side a Tomb for Anne Blake, Widow of Capt. John Blake, 1681, with four Sons and two Daughters.

In Jettipore the Head, in Callibar the Heart,
The Body here entombed, muſt meet tho' far apart.

In

Henry Smith's Gift.

In the Chancel, near the Veſtry Door, is a Table, containing Directions for the Diſpoſal of Mr. Henry Smith's Gift, conſiſting of eight Articles, beginning,

The Churchwardens and Overſeers of each Pariſh immediately, &c.

It ſeems to be the ſame Gift with that of St. Olave's Southwark; but is ſcarcely legible.

DEPTFORD:

O R,

WEST GREENWICH.

NEXT beyond Rotherhith on the Eaſt is Deptford ſituated, being the firſt Town in Kent, bordering upon Surry; a Place on the Thames Side, where many good Ships are built, and where is a Wet Dock: And eſpecially, where is a Store-houſe for the Royal Fleet, erected at firſt by K. Henry the Eighth, and govern'd by the Maſter and Wardens of Trinity Houſe.

A great Harbour and Mold made here for Ships.

Here at Deptford were 250 Acres of Meadow Ground, lying next unto the River of Thames by the Dock and Yard: Which were, about the Year 1655 or 1656, purchaſed by Robert Stanton, Samuel Moyer, Charles Harris, and others, for making Harbours and Molds for the Riding of 300 Sail of Ships, without the Uſe of Anchor or Cable: And where many Conveniencies were to be made for building, careening, and repairing Ships. Towards which much had then been expended in digging one of the Molds, and Cuts towards the other; and Contracts made for Proviſions and Workmanſhip to a great Value. This was confirmed in an Act of Parliament Anno 1656.

Trinity Hoſpitals.

There be two Hoſpitals in this Town, whereof the Members of this Corporation are Governours. One (which is ancient) is ſituate near the Church, hath Rooms for 21 poor Seamen The other, called Trinity Hoſpital, hath 38 Houſes, fronts the Street in Length. A very fair Building, and large Gardens, well kept, belong to it. On the Arch going into the Garden is this Inſcription:

DOMINO POTIORA.

Sir Richard Brown of Sayes Court in Deptford, Kt. and Bart. Elder Brother and Maſter in the Year 1672, gave the Inheritance of the Land on which theſe Alms-houſes are built, after the Expiration of 28 Years formerly leaſed.

In the Garden is a good Figure in full Proportion, of a Mariner, with this Inſcription:

Capt. Maples a great Benefactor.

To the Memory of Captain Richard Maples, who dying Commander of a Ship in the Eaſt-Indies, in the Year 1680, left to the Trinity-houſe the Value of 1300*l.* With which part of theſe Alms-houſes were built. The ſaid Corporation cauſed this Statue to be erected Anno 1681.

Tho' this Hoſpital is the finer Structure, yet the other hath the Preference for the Antiquity of it. And the Brethren of the Trinity hold their Corporation by that Houſe; where their Meetings muſt be for Buſineſs at particular Times.

The Church rebuilt.

The Church of Deptford is new built. It hath a fair Organ; the Pipes gilt. It was ſet up at the Coſt of ſeveral Perſons. The Church was begun to be rebuilt, and the Organ erected Anno Dom. 1697, and both finiſhed the ſame Year by a voluntary Subſcription, and an Aſſeſſment of 5*s.* in the Pound.

Snelling Thomas, } Churchwardens.
William Thornton, }

And the Organ gilded at the ſole Charge of Mr. Robert Caſtle.

But the greateſt Benefactor towards this ſacred Structure was Mr. Loader, a generous Inhabitant of this Pariſh: As may appear by an Inſcription upon a Pillar North in the Middle Ile:

In Thanks to ſo generous a Benefactor, for the Encouragement of others, to imitate good Works of Piety and Charity: This Pariſh have thought fit, at their own Charge, to perpetuate the Memory of the voluntary Contribution of Iſaac Loader, Eſq; preſent High Sheriff of this County, towards the rebuilding and beautifying of this Church.

Given for Subſcription to the Church —	125*l.*

GREENWICH.

The next is Greenwich, a Town on the Bank of the River Thames.

The Palace.

J. S.

HERE the Kings of this Land had a fair Palace, and Park on a Hill adjoining to it: Part of which is turned into a vaſt Structure of Charity, for the Reception and Harbouring of ſuch who have ſerved in the Royal Navy or Merchant-Ships; and by Reaſon of Wounds, Loſs of Limbs, or Age, are diſabled.

The Church of Greenwich is dedicated to St. Alphage, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, who is ſaid to have been kill'd by the Danes, in the very Place where the Church is built.

Prayers are ſaid here twice every Day; that is, in the Morning between Ten and Eleven, and at Night between Six and Seven. And twelve Monthly Sermons are preached here on the Wedneſdays before the firſt Sundays in each Month. For both which, by a Collection made in the Pariſh, is paid 30*l.* ℔ Ann.

This Church is furniſhed with an Organ.

Two Schools in Greenwich.

There be two Free-Schools in this Pariſh. One founded by Sir William Boreman, Kt. for 20 Boys, who are to be boarded as well as taught. For which Uſe there is a large Houſe appropriated for the Maſter and Scholars. The preſent Maſter is Mr. William Lee. The Boys wear Green Coats and Caps. This School is but of late Foundation, of twenty Years and upwards. The other School alſo maintains twenty Boys: For which the Founder left an Eſtate in Houſes about the Church for ever. It was founded by Sergeant John R..... The preſent Schoolmaſter is Mr. William Herringham, who hath a Salary of 20*l.* a Year. Theſe Boys wear Grey Coats.]

In the Church are theſe enſuing Monuments.

COLLEGE at GREENWICH.

There is at Greenwich a fair College built, fronting pleaſantly the Thames, for Maintenance of twenty poor Men, and a Maſter: Founded and well endowed by Henry Earl of Northampton, and committed by him to the Care of the worſhipful Company of Mercers of London.

In this College is a fair Chapel, where the Body of the ſaid Noble Peer is laid. Whoſe ſaid Body, together with his Monument, was lately tranſlated by the ſaid Company from the Chapel of Dover Caſtle hither: Where is a moſt ſumptuous Mauſolæum erected for him.

There is a black Marble in the Reſemblance of a Stone Coffin, reſting upon Pedeſtals. Four Figures in white Stone, on the Corners of the Fabrick, reſembling the four cardinal Vertues.

On the Top of all is the Figure of the Earl kneeling: His Hands claſped, his Sword by his Side, with his Robes of the Garter on. It is placed on the South Side of the Communion Table. There is an Inſcription on the Side, viz.

Inclytus hic Comes tria Hoſpitalia fundavit, & latifundiis dotavit, unum Greenwici in Cantio: In quo xx egeni, & Præfectus: Alterum Cluni in Comitat. Salopiæ, in quo xii egeni cum Præfecto: Tertium ad Caſtrum Riſing in Comitat. Norfolciæ, in quo xii pauperculæ cum Gubernatrice in perpetuum aluntur.

On the Wall South, by the Tomb:

Deo Patri Domini noſtri Jheſu Chriſti, Omnipotenti, Glorioſo, ſempiterno, & Primæ Trinitatis individuæ Perſonæ, Henricus Howardus trinæ & unius Majeſtatis Cultor obſequentiſſimus Feſto quo natus erat B. Matthiæ Apoſtoli, devotiſſimè ſua manu poſuit, Anno Domini 1613. Februarii die 25°.

Upon the Weſt Side is this Inſcription.

Johanne Griffitho huic Comiti ab Epiſtolis curante, Poſitum.

On the North Side of the Chapel is another Inſcription, ſhewing the Removal of this Monument and the Body of the Earl from the Chapel of Dover Caſtle (of which he was Conſtable) to this Chapel, by the Company of Mercers, William Ivat, Eſq; Maſter.

Upon a flat Stone in this Chapel.

Here lyeth buried the Body of Robert Gilbert Citizen and Mercer of London: Who was the Son of Thomas Gilbert of Weſt Beer in Eaſt Kent, Gent. And Anne his Wife, who was the eldeſt Siſter unto George Fitz-Gerald Earl of Kildare in Ireland. Which Robert was late Warden of this College ſeveral Years, and dyed May 28, 1689. Aged 63. In Memory of whom, his Son Robert Gilbert cauſed this Stone to be laid.]

HOSPITAL at GREENWICH.

King William Founder. J. S.

KING William the Third, Founder of this Hoſpital, directed a Subſcription to be made for the ſaid Hoſpital. In the Preamble to which he declared his Deſire to promote and advance the Trade, Navigation, and Naval Strength of this Kingdom, and invite greater Numbers of his Subjects to betake themſelves to the Sea. And therefore did determine to erect and eſtabliſh this Hoſpital: And that for this peculiar Uſe, viz. For ſuch Engliſh Seamen and their Children, as by Age, Wounds, or other Accidents, ſhould be diſabled from farther Service at Sea: And for the Widows and Children of ſuch as happened to be ſlain in Sea-Service.

The King and Queen's Letters Patents;

For the Ground and Palace.

His ſaid Majeſty, and Queen Mary his Royal Conſort, by Letters Patents under the Great Seal, dated the 5th of Octob. 1694, did give and grant unto ſeveral Truſts, for the Uſe of that intended Hoſpital, a Parcel of Ground in the Pariſh of Eaſt Greenwich in Kent, with their Royal Palace in Greenwich thereon erected by King Charles the Second, and ſeveral other Edifices, Buildings, and other Things in the ſame Grant particularly mentioned.

Commiſſioners.

And the ſaid King William, by Letters Patents dated Mar. 12, 1694, appointed Commiſſioners for the better carrying on his pious Intentions. And therein deſired the Aſſiſtance of his good Subjects; the Neceſſity of his Affairs not permitting him to advance ſo conſiderable a Sum towards the ſaid Work as he deſired.

July 1, 1708. This Hoſpital had now in it poor Seamen to the Number of 350. The Incomes of it are computed at 12000 l. ℘ Ann. whereof 6000 l. goes yearly towards the Maintenance of the poor Men placed there; and the other 6000 l. towards the Buildings.

De la Fountain's Gifts.

John de la Fountain, a Gentleman of Lincolnſhire, lately deceaſed, gave by his laſt Will 2000 l. to the publick Charity; that is, one thouſand Pounds to this Hoſpital of Greenwich, and one other thouſand Pounds to that of Chelſey]

STEPNEY.

TO this Pariſh of St. Dunſtan Stepney belonged a Rector and a Vicar. The Rectory was of conſiderable Value; and the Patronage ſeems to have been in the Biſhop of London. The Rector had the Right of preſenting the Vicar. In Richard the Third's Time, one William Kemp Deacon, was Rector: Related, 'tis like, to Tho. Kemp, then Biſhop of London, who had preferred him to a Prebend in St. Paul's. The ſaid Rector had granted the next Preſentation of the Vicarage to one Nicolas Sudbury of London, Haberdaſher. Who, upon the next Voidance, preſented one Degory Watur. But the Biſhop, it ſeems, delayed his Inſtitution: And at length one Richard Fox was preſented. Which Richard was afterwards a great Man, and Biſhop of Wincheſter, and the Founder of a College in Oxford: But now with the Earl of Richmond. Who at that Time was actually in Arms againſt K. Richard. The Wrong done to Degory was complained of to the King. And he eſpouſing his Cauſe, after ſome Meſſages ſent to the Biſhop of London, for declining the Perſon that was truly and rightly preſented, the Matter at length was on both Sides referred to the King, (eſpecially Fox being at this Juncture in Rebellion) and the King gave it for Degory, requiring the Biſhop forthwith to admit him.

A Rector, and Vicar here, preſented by the Rector. J. S.

And theſe were his Letters to the Biſhop, declaring the Cauſe, and his Determination of the Buſineſs: Which having met with, I inſert here, as a Thing relating to this Pariſh, worthy to be preſerved.

But notwithſtanding this Letter of the King, Watur had not the Vicarage, but Fox obtained it. Whoſe Name ſtands in the Biſhop of London's Regiſter, next after Luke deceaſed.

Among the Vicars of this Church were two in the Reign of King Henry the Eighth, of eminent Note, both Deans of St. Paul's; the one Dr. John Colet, the Founder of St. Paul's School; and the other Dr. Pace, that had been the King's Embaſſador in foreign Parts.

The Rectory and Vicarage of Stepney, purchaſed by Brazen Noſe College:

The Parſonage and Vicarage of this Pariſh of Stepney, were purchaſed ſome Years ago by the Principal and Scholars of King's Hall and College of Brazen Noſe, Oxon, with the perpetual Advouſons, Donations, Rights of Patronage and Preſentation to the ſaid Rectory, Parſonage, and Vicarage; which, before the ſaid Purchaſe, was granted to others. And alſo the perpetual Advouſons, Donations, and Rights of Parſonage and Preſentation of and to the Rectory or Parſonage of St. Mary Matfelon, alias White Chapel. And alſo of and to the Rectory or Parſonage of St. John Wapping. And alſo a Leaſe of the ſaid Rectory of Stepney, formerly granted for three Lives, whereof one of them then in Being. Which ſaid Leaſe, Advouſons, Donations, and Rights of Parſonage, were, and ſtood veſted in Truſtees, in Truſt for the only Benefit of the ſaid Principal and Scholars of the ſaid King's Hall, and College of Brazen Noſe, and of their Succeſſors and Aſſignes for ever; for the Payment of the Purchaſe-Money, they were obliged to borrow, and take up, being great Sums of Money, at Intereſt.

And of St. Mary Matfelon: And St. John Wapping.

Confirmed by Act of Parliament.

For the confirming this Purchaſe to the ſaid Principal and Scholars, and of the Advouſon of Stepney, and the other Churches, and for the ſettling the ſame to the Benefit of the ſame College, an Act of Parliament was obtained about the Year 1710. By this Act it was declared, that the Right Reverend Father in God Henry late Lord Biſhop of London, Ordinary of the ſaid Church, and John Wright, the Vicar, were willing and deſirous, that upon the Terms there mentioned, the ſaid Vicarage ſhould be for ever united to the ſaid Rectory: And that the ſaid Principal and Scholars ſhould have and enjoy the yearly Penſion and Sum of 106 l to be iſſuing out of the ſaid Rectory and Vicarage ſo united, and out of the Profits of the ſame; toward the reimburſing of the ſaid Sums by them borrowed, and for the better Support of the College and Principal. And ſo, by Vertue of this Act, the ſaid Advouſons, Donations, Rights of Patronage and Preſentations of thoſe ſeveral Pariſhes, and all their Rights, Members, and Appurtinences, were for ever veſted in and confirmed to the ſaid Principal and Scholars, their Succeſſors and Aſſigns.

And the ſaid Vicarage was for ever united and annexed to the Rectory. And the Rectory and Vicarage ſo united, to be deemed and called, The Rectory of Stebunheath alias Stepney. And John Wright the then Vicar, thereby to be conſtituted and appointed the actual and full Incumbent of the ſaid Rectory and Vicarage, ſo united: And that without any Diſpenſation, Inſtitution, or Induction into the ſame; he paying, as long as he ſhould remain Incumbent, the yearly Penſion of 106 l. unto the ſaid Principal and Scholars, free of all Taxes and Payments whatſoever: The firſt quarterly Payment to begin at the Nativity of St. John Baptiſt, Anno 1711. And from and after the Death, Reſignation, Ceſſion, &c. of the ſaid Wright, the ſaid Rectory to be, and be conſidered and underſtood in the Law to be, and under the Term of two Moieties or Portions of the ſaid Rectory. And that it ſhall and may be lawful for the ſaid Principal and Scholars, and their Succeſſors, under their Common Seal, to preſent two fit Perſons, as Portioniſts, to the ſaid united Rectory, in Manner following: One Perſon, by the Name of the Portioniſt of Stepney, [Ratcliff Stepney:] And the other Perſon, by the Name of the Portioniſt of Spittle-Fields Stepney: Who ſhall be ſeverally admitted, inſtituted, and inducted, as two Portioniſts, into their ſeveral Portions of the united Rectory. And the ſaid Principal and Scholars, and their Succeſſors, from Time to Time, upon the Death, Reſignation, Ceſſion, Deprivation, &c. of any of the ſaid Portioniſts, or any other Avoidance, to preſent a fit Perſon, to be inſtituted into ſuch void Portion.

The ſaid two Portioniſts to have their reſpective Cure of Souls of the Inhabitants of the ſaid Pariſh; and alternately to ſerve, viz. One of the ſaid Portioniſts to ſupply the Cure of his Pariſh, and perform all Duties belonging to the ſaid Cure, during the Space of one Month; and the other Portioniſt the ſucceeding Month; and ſo on in continual Succeſſion. And they, from Time to Time, to hold, take, receive, and enjoy, the ſame Rectory, and the Meſſuages, Glebe, Lands, Rents, Reverſions, Services, to the ſame Rectory and Vicarage appertaining; and all manner of Tithes as well great as ſmall; and all Fruits, Oblations, Obventions, Perquiſites, &c. equally to be divided and enjoyed between them, Part and Part alike.

The Portioniſts likewiſe to pay to the Principal and Scholars of the ſaid College for ever, at the four moſt uſual Feaſts, and Days of Payment, the yearly Penſion of 106 l. free of and from all Charges, Payments, Taxes, &c. each Portioniſt to pay 53 l. [being his Share] to be made at or in the common Dining-Hall of the ſaid College, and without any Demand to be made for the ſame. Twenty Pounds thereof, Part of the ſaid yearly Penſion, to be paid and applied towards the Maintenance of two Scholars in the ſaid College, and other Uſes; for which the Principal and Scholars purchaſed and applied certain Wood-Grounds, called Aſhenſhaw, &c. Which they ſold for the Purchaſe of this Rectory.

John Wright, during the Time he ſhould continue Rector, to hold and enjoy the Vicarage Houſe: And afterward, the firſt Portioniſt, of Ratcliff Stepney Portion, and his Succeſſors, may enjoy the Rectory, or Parſonage Houſe, with the Orchard and Gardens thereunto belonging, after the Determination of a Leaſe of the ſame, now in being, made by Edward Northey, Eſq; now Sir Edward Northey, &c. and others, for the Term of 99 Years, if Charles Earl of Peterburgh, and Thomas White the then Rector of Stepney ſhould ſo long live, and until the Determination thereof; ſhall and may receive, enjoy, and take the Annual Rent of 26 l. reſerved by the ſaid Leaſe.

The firſt Portioniſt of Ratcliff Stepney, to be liable to pay to the Queen's Majeſty, her Heirs and Succeſſors, the firſt Fruits and Tenths, as the ſaid Rectory of Stepney now ſtandeth charged with in her Majeſty's Books in the Firſt Fruits Office: And alſo all Procurations, Synodals, &c. And the firſt Portioniſt of Spittle-fields Stepney Portion, and his Succeſſors, to enjoy the Vicarage Houſe, with the Orchards, Gardens, &c. from and after the Death of John Wright, until a more convenient Houſe ſhall be provided for him, by and at the Charge of the Pariſhioners of the ſaid Pariſh of Stepney; to be approved of and by the Lord Biſhop of London, and the Principal of the aboveſaid College. And after ſuch Proviſion of an Houſe, the ſaid Vicarage ſhall be and remain to ſuch Perſons as ſhall be the Churchwardens of the ſaid Pariſh for the Time being; for the Uſes and Purpoſes, as the Veſtry ſhall from Time to Time order, direct, and appoint. And this ſaid firſt Portioniſt of Spittle-fields Stepney Portion, and his Succeſſors, ſhall be liable to and pay to the Queen, her Heirs and Succeſſors, all ſuch and the ſame firſt Fruits and Tenths, as the ſaid Vicarage of Stepney now ſtandeth charged with, in her Majeſty's Books in the Firſt Fruits Office, and alſo all Procurations, Synodals, &c.

It ſhall be lawful for the Principal and Scholars of the ſaid College, and their Succeſſors, upon any Vacancy, from Time to Time, to nominate fit Clarks to officiate in the Chapel at Stratford Bow; and in all other Churches and Chapels, that now are, or ſhall be built within the ſaid Pariſh of Stepney; and to receive the Profits belonging to the ſame.

This Act to be taken and allowed in all Courts of Juſtice, as a publick Act. And all Judges and Juſtices, hereby required as ſuch, to take Notice thereof, without ſpecial Pleading the ſame.

Mr. Wright, the aboveſaid Vicar, died July... 1718. So that the ſaid Rectory being actually void; and the Act for dividing and diſpoſing it two Portions commenced from hence. And accordingly the College have preſented their Clarks.]

In the Church of St. Dunſtan's Stepney are theſe enſuing Monuments.

In the Chancel.

One ancient Monument of Sir Henry Collet, Kt. third Son of Robert Collet, Eſq; twice Lord Maior of London, and free of the Mercers, and Father to Dr. John Collet, ſometime Dean of St. Paul's. It was refreſhed by the Company of Mercers in the Year 1605, on the North Side. R.

The ſaid Sir Henry deceaſed 1510.

This Tomb was repaired the ſecond Time, at the Charge of the Company of Mercers, London, the 28th of July, 1697. J. S.

Sir John Wolfe, Kt. Maſter, and Sheriff of London.

Laurence Moyer, Surveyor-Warden,
William Willis, Houſe-Warden,
William Trigg, Renter-Warden.]

On the North Side of the Chancel, is the following Inſcription.

Here reſteth the Body of Robert Clarke, Eſquire, Sonne of Roger Clarke, Eſquire, late Alderman of the City of London: A Man humble in Proſperity, and a liberal Diſtributer to the Poore, courteous and affable to all; an upright and juſt Dealer in this World, and a moſt religious Seeker of the World to come. He had to Wife Margaretta, Daughter to John Langton, Eſquire, ſometime Governour of the Engliſh Company in Sprucia, under the King of Polonia. Who lived together in great Love and Integrity almoſt ſixe Yeeres. He had by her one only Daughter, named Frances, who lived one Yeere three Quarters; and here lies interred with her moſt deare and loving Father.

In whoſe Memory the ſaid Margaretta, to expreſſe her true Love and Affection, hath cauſed this Monument to be erected. He died the xxx. Day of May, Anno Dom. 1610, having lived xxxvi Yeeres.

A little Monument on the South Side of the Chancel, hath this Inſcription.

Genero ſuo Guilielmo Dawtrey, quondam Lincolnienſis Hoſpitii ſocio, Willielmi Dawtrey, Suſſexiæ, Armigeri, Filio & Hæredi; viro ingenii accumine, mentis acie, & non vulgari Municipalium Angliæ legum ſcientia præcellenti, Richardus Stonley, Armiger, hoc Amoris, & pietatis ſymbolum poſuit. Obiit 16 Octobris, 1589.

A Monument at the upper End of the Chancel hath this Inſcription.

Sacræ Memoriæ

Janæ Nevillæ Dominæ Dethicke Matronæ Religioſiſſimæ, Modeſtiſſimæ, omnibus quæ corporis, quæ Animi (dum vixit) dotibus ornatiſſimæ: Jeſu Chriſti ſervæ devotiſſimæ; conjugi ſuæ fideliſſimæ, amantiſſimæ. Quæ cum viginti fere duos Annos feliciſſime tranſegerat, Alexander Nevillus, Armiger, miger, hoc nunquam intermorituri amoris ſui Monumentum fieri, Teſtamento curavit. Poſtquam Annos ferè ſexaginta novem vixerat, viceſſimo nono Novembris 1606, placidiſſimè in Domino obdormivit.

Tobiah Worthington, Alexandro Nevillo, ex Teſtamento ſolus, ipſius mandato, hoc Monumentum poſuit.

On a little Braſs Monument in the South Side of the Chancel is thus written:

Hereunder lieth buried Nicholas Gibſon, Citizen and Grocer of London, and Avis his Wife: Who were Founders of the Free Schoole at Ratcliffe. And after ſhe married with Sir Anthony Knevit, Knight, which lieth here buried alſo. Which Nicholas died the xxiij. of September, Anno 1510: And the ſaid Lady Avis died the third Day of October, 1554. Whoſe Souls Jeſu pardon.

J. S. The Writer of this Epitaph was guilty of Careleſſneſs, both in the Date of Nicholas Gibſon's Death, For he was Sheriff in the Year 1538, (that is, long after the Year here ſet down, in which he is ſaid to die.) And alſo in the Name of Avis her ſecond Huſband, who was William Knevit, Eſquire. As appears by the Verſes graven upon Nicholas's Marble Monument, yet preſerved in our Books, (though not in the Church) Wev. p. 541. which ran thus:

The fyve and twentyth Day of thys Monyth of Septembyr,
And of owre Lord God the fifteenth hundryd and fourty Yeere,
Maſter Nicholas Gybſon dyde, as thys Tombe doth remembyr.
Whoſe Wyff aftyr marryed the worſchypful Eſquier,
Maſter William Knevet, one of the Kynges privy Chambre, &c.]

But here the Monument itſelf is wrong: For his Name was indeed Anthony. As appears in Porter's Caſe, in the ſecond Book of Cook's Reports.

J. S. Here were two other (and they ſpiritual) Perſons of great Note in their Time, buried anciently in this Church, with Monuments and Inſcriptions, which are long ſince gone; but preſerved in Wever's Monuments.

The one was John Kitte, or Kite, a Londoner born, firſt a Titular Archbiſhop in Greece, afterwards made Biſhop of Carliſle. He flouriſhed under three Kings, as the old Verſes on his Stone ſhewed; namely, K. Edward IV, K. Henry VII, and K. Henry VIII. By which laſt he was ſent Ambaſſador to the King of Spain. Dyed Jun. 19, 1537. The Epitaph began,

Undyr thys Stone cloſyd & marmorate
Lyeth JOHN KITTE Londoner natiff, &c.

The other was Richard Pace, Dean of St. Paul's, a very learned, affable, and good Man; whom K. Henry VIII employed Ambaſſador to Maximilian the Emperor, and at Rome. He was bred up under Cardinal Wolſey. He dyed young, at the Age of 40, Anno 1532. His Epitaph was in tolerable good Latin Verſe; beginning,

Ricardus jacet hic venerabilis ille Decanus,
Qui fuit ætatis doctus Apollo ſuæ, &c.]

In the Chancel likewiſe was the Monument of one deſervedly to be remembred to Poſterity, having been the firſt Founder of Trinity Houſe.

D. O. M.

Hereunder was laid up the Body of Sir Thomas Spert, Knight, ſometime Comptrowller of the Navy to K. Henry VIII, and both the firſt Founder and Maſter of the Society or Corporation of the TRINITY Houſe. He lived innobled by his own Worth; and dyed the 8th of September, in the Year 1541. To whoſe pious Memory the ſaid Corporation hath gratefully erected this Memorial.

Not that he needed Monument of Stone,
For his well-gotten Fame to reſt upon:
But this was rear'd to teſtify that he Lives in their Loves, that yet ſurviving be.
For unto Vertue, which firſt rais'd his Name,
He left the Preſervation of the ſame.
And to Poſterity remain it ſhall,
When Braſs and Marble Monuments do fall.
Learn for to die while thou haſt Breath,
So ſhalt thou live after thy Death.

Anno Domini 1622, by the Company of the Trinity Houſe, this Monument was erected 81 Years after the Deceaſe of their Founder.

Here lyeth alſo in the ſame Chancel, under the Communion Table, the Body of HENRY STEWARD, Lord DARLEY, of the Age of three Quarters of a Year; Son and Heir of MATTHEW STEWARD Earl of Lenox, and Lady MARGARET his Wife. Which Henry deceaſed the 28th Day of Novemb. in the Year 1545. Whoſe Soul Jeſu pardon.

The Noble Father of this Henry had another Son of the ſame Name: Who afterwards had the Honour to marry MARY Queen of Scots; by whom he had JAMES the Firſt, King of England.

Add. The Wife of John Brewſter, Eſq; ob. An. 1596. On a Braſs Plate theſe Verſes:

Here lyes the Wife of JOHN BREWSTER, Eſquire,
Whoſe heavenly Death declares her happy Life;
Fame, ſay thy worſt of her, I thee deſire,
And thou muſt blaze her for a godly Wife.
Of Rich and Poor thou know'ſt belov'd was ſhe:
Speak thou, therefore, the reſt of her for me.
I ſay no more, her Name was Thomaſine.
Now bleſſed is Almighty God therefore,
And praiſed be his Name for evermore.

Againſt the Eaſt Wall, ſomewhat out of Sight; South of the Communion Table:

In Memory of …… Elizabeth, the Widow of Richard Startute Citizen and Fiſhmonger of London. Who had Iſſue by him 3 Sons and 4 Daughters. After 16 Years ſpent with him, remaining 34 Years his Widow: In Life and Death a conſtant Example of true Vertue; and ſweetly ſlept in the Lord Decemb. 5, 1620. Ætat. ſuæ 74.

Under this Monument:

Michael Merrial and Clare his Wife, eldeſt Daughter of Eliz. Startute …… A Monument of her Vertue and their Love …..

Tread gently, Reader, near the Duſt,
Cometh to this Tomb-ſtone's Truſt.
For while 'twas Fleſh, it held a Gueſt,
With univerſal Love poſſeſt.
A Soul that ſtemm'd Opinion's Tyde,
Did over Sects in Triumph ride.
Yet ſeparate from the giddy Crowd,
And Paths Tradition had allow'd.
Through good and ill Reports he paſt;
Oft cenſur'd, yet approv'd at laſt.
Wouldeſt thou his Religion know?
In brief 'twas this: To all to do
Juſt as he would be done unto.
So in kind Nature's Law he ſtood,
A Temple undefil'd with Blood:
A Friend to ev'ry Thing that's good.
The reſt, Angels alone fitly can tell:
Haſte, then, to Them and Him; and ſo farewel.

All theſe, with a great many more, lie buried under fair Grave-ſtones, or raiſed Tombs in Vaults made for the reſpective Families. Whereby it comes to paſs that the Ground of the Churchyard is better improved for Graves: For, by digging theſe Vaults deep, there is more Room for Burial of Corpſes: Which the Churchyard, tho' large, is ſcarce able to contain. For they bury 2000 People, or upward, every Year.

Numbers buried yearly in this Pariſh.

In the Year 1703, from December the 13th, to December the 14th, 1704, were buried in Stepney Church and Churchyard 2150. Sometimes they bury more in a Week in this ſingle Pariſh, than are buried in that Space of Time in all the Pariſhes of London within the Walls. As in the Bill from the 5th of September to the 12th of the ſame, An. 1704.

Buried within the Walls	45
Buried in Stepney	48.

An Organ.

They have in this Church a good Organ: Galleries about the Church, capacious for abundance of People: A Table of Benefactors hanging up.

Vicarage Houſe.

A fair Vicarage Houſe and Garden, not far from the Church, lying on the left Hand of the Road coming from London: Late inhabited by the Reverend Mr. Wright, ſometime Vicar. In the ſaid Houſe remains a good old Picture of Dr. Gouldman, ſometime Vicar of the Pariſh, Doctor of Law, and Juſtice of Peace.

The Jews Burial Place.

At Mile end Town, within this Pariſh, there is another Burying Place; which is peculiar for the Jews. There is a handſome Houſe of Brick, lately erected at the Eaſtern Part of the Town: Through which the Corps is carry'd on Mens Shoulders into a large Piece of Ground of an Acre or more: where be abundance of Monuments of Marble, with Hebrew Inſcriptions; And the Corpſes laid North and South.

Two Inſcriptions on two Monuments there.

The Benefactors to this Pariſh of Stepney, whoſe Names and Benefactions are expreſſed in two Tables placed againſt the South Wall in the ſaid Pariſh Church, are as follow:

John Fuller of Biſhops-hall, Eſq; by his laſt Will, dated 1592, gave the Almes-houſe of Mile-end Green: And 50*l.* for ever, out of his Lands in Lincolnſhire: To twelve poor ſingle Men of this Pariſh, of good Name; of the Age of 50 Years or above.

Thomas Joans of Ratcliff, in his Will gave 40*s.* ℘ Ann. for ever, to the Poor of the ſaid Hamlet.

Elizabeth Colbert of Limehouſe, in her Will dated 1631, gave 45*s.* ℘ Ann. to the Poor of the ſaid Hamlet: To be paid them by the Wardens and Aſſiſtants of the Trinity Company, in Conſideration of 50*l.* to them paid.

Captain Edward Johnſon of Low-Leyton, in his Will dated 1669, gave 400*l.* to be laid out in a Purchaſe for the Relief of twenty Poor Inhabitants of the Hamlets of Limehouſe and Ratcliff, yearly forever. And 30*l.* to be diſtributed among the Poor of the foreſaid Hamlets.

Capt. Curtis's Charity.

Captain William Curtis, in the Year 1669, bequeathed a Rent Charge of 60*l.* ℘ Ann. for the Releaſe of poor Priſoners: Relief of aged People: For a Weekly Diſtribution of Bread, and the placing out of poor Children to Trades: For the Benefit and Behoof of the Poor in the Hamlets of Poplar, Mile-end, Limehouſe, and Ratcliff, for ever. The Truſtees for this Charity are, or lately were, Sir Henry Johnſon, Kt. Hugh Squier, Eſq; and Capt. Joſeph Stevens. And for this Charity ſeems to be an Anniverſary Sermon appointed to be preached. Dr. Joſiah Woodward, late Miniſter of Poplar deceaſed, who preached it in the Year 1698, in his Dedication of his Sermon to the ſaid Truſtees, ſhewed their great Integrity in this Truſt, and that they had put their Accounts in ſuch an exact Method, as would not only juſtify their own Faithfulneſs, but make it difficult for any that ſucceeded them to be unfaithful.

Richard Underhil, by Will, dated 1671, gave 60*l.* to be laid out in Lands for ever, for buying twelve Penny Loaves, to be given at Church every Lord's Day, to 12 ancient poor People: And the Reſidue of the Profits of the ſaid Lands to be for the Preaching of a Sermon every Year, on the Day of his Burial.

But Sir Henry Johnſon, Kt. laying claim to the Eſtate, out of which theſe Legacies were to be paid, in the Right of his Lady, as Heireſs to Thomas Lord Wentworth, this Pariſh, as well as the other Legatees, after a great deal of Trouble, and Money ſpent in Law, were oblig'd to compound for half. And accordingly, Febr. 24, An. 170¾, did receive 100*l.* which is made Uſe of by the Pariſh; and the Intereſt given weekly in Bread to ſeveral poor Inhabitants of the ſaid Pariſh.

About the Year 1703 or 1704, the Lady Row, by her laſt Will, gave to the Pariſhes of Stepney and Shadwel, equally to be divided, all her Houſhold Goods, Plate, Jewels, and Moveables, for building Alms-houſes for the Poor of the ſaid Pariſhes. Which Goods and Moveables amounted to 114*l.* The Half of which being 57*l.* Stepney Pariſh had a Right to. But there is a Conteſt in Law about it with the Executor.

She gave alſo by her laſt Will 200*l.* to one of her Siſters, during her Life: And after her Death, to come to the ſaid two Pariſhes, for the ſaid Uſe, viz. for Alms-houſes to be built. This Legacy is already fallen by the Death of that Siſter.

She gave alſo 500*l.* to Mrs. Naſh of Low-Leyton, her other Siſter, during her Life. And after her Deceaſe, to come to the ſaid Pariſhes of Stepney and Shadwel, for building of Alms-houſes. The Pariſh of Stepney have taken this 500*l.* by her Conſent, and pay her 30*l.* a Year for her Life. Who is alſo divers Years ago deceaſed.

Farther, the ſaid Lady Row gave a 1000*l.* to her Huſband, Mr. Carant, on theſe Conditions: That if he marry again after her Deceaſe, and get a Son by the Woman he ſhall marry, and ſhall name him Cook, (which was the Name of her firſt Huſband, a Sea Captain) and the ſaid Son live to the Age of One and twenty, then he to enjoy the ſaid 1000*l.* But in Caſe of a Failure in any of theſe Conditions, then this 1000*l.* to go alſo to the ſaid two Pariſhes equally, for building Alms-houſes.

Cockney's Feaſt of Stepney.

Moreover, a conſtant Charity is derived to this Pariſh, by Means of a yearly Meeting of the Natives, called The Cockney's Feaſt. When, after a Sermon preached at the Pariſh Church before them by ſome Clergyman born in the Pariſh, (the Honour of which hath fallen to my Lot to perform ſometimes) the eight Stewards and the reſt of the Natives commonly take a Walk with Officers and Muſick playing before them, through Limehouſe and Ratcliff, and ſo return back to the King's Head overagainſt the Church; and there dine plentifully and friendly together: New Stewards choſen for the enſuing Year, and a Collection made for the putting out of poor Pariſh Children Apprentices to the Sea, or other Trades: The Collections uſually made, amount to 15, 18, or 20*l.* Of which each Steward takes his equal Dividend, and with it puts out ſome poor Child. And ſome of theſe Children thrive ſo well, that they have come to be Stewards themſelves. And that it may viſibly appear, what Good is done by theſe yearly Aſſemblies, the ſaid Boys ſo put out, (which are now very many) are obliged to walk two and two before the Company in their ſaid Proceſſion.

Alms-houſes in Stepney Pariſh.

This Pariſh of Stepney hath more Alms-houſes built within the Bounds of it than I can tell of; ſome anciently founded, others more lately erected. Some of the latter Sort ſhew themſelves from the Road between Mile end and London.

Trinity Hoſpital or College.

The firſt is the Hoſpital, or (if you will) the College of the Trinity Company; a very handſomly built and becoming Structure, worthy the Founders, with a Chapel at the farther End, for the Reception of decayed Commanders of Ships, or Mates, and their Wives, or Widows: Conſiſting of 28 Rooms with Cellars, and Pumps to every two Houſes. Each of them that are here harboured receive a very good Penſion [ſome ſay 12*s.*] the firſt Monday every Month, or according to their Condition. It hath an Inſcription, importing the Gift of the Ground whereon it ſtands to be from Capt. Henry Mudd, an elder Brother of the Trinity Company; the Widow alſo contributing thereto. But it was built at the Charge of the ſaid Company.

Vintners Alms-houſe.

Next is the Vintners Alms-houſe, for twelve Widows, who enjoy alſo a Penſion of 2*s.* a Week. It hath the Convenience of a Chapel, and publick Prayers ſaid there twice a Week. It was founded upon ſome former Gift, that lay dormant a great while.

Skinners Alms-houſe.

Nearer London is an Alms-houſe belonging to the Skinners of London. It was the Gift of Mr. Lewis Newbury, Skinner: Built by Tho. Glover, Eſq; his Executor, Anno 1688, containing twelve Rooms, with Cellars to each The Salary is 2*s.* a Week. There is alſo o Chapel built, and an Houſe for the Miniſter: Who is oblig'd to preach them a Sermon every Lord's Day, and to read Prayers every Day. This Houſe is committed to the Truſt of the Skinners Company.

Over the Gate are the Effigies of two old Cripples; the one with a Crutch, the other leaning on a Staff; and the Skinners Arms.

Pemel's Alms-houſe.

As you draw nearer London, you have Pemell's Alms-houſe, conſiſting of eight Rooms, for as many Widows: Four whereof for ſuch whoſe Huſbands were of the Company of Drapers: The other four to be poor Seamens Widows, of the Hamlets of Stepney Pariſh, which are eight. And as the Women die, each Hamlet comes in Order to have a Woman elected thence to enjoy the Room. And this Benevolence the Founder appointed out of thankful Acknowledgement, that he being a Merchant had got a great Part of his Eſtate by Seafaring Men The Founder was John Pemell, Citizen and Draper of London. It was built Anno 1698.

$$\text{The Benefit is}\left\{\begin{array}{l}4\,l.\text{ in Money}\\ 1\,l.\text{ for Coals}\\ 1\,l.\text{ for Gowns}\end{array}\right\}\text{to each yearly.}$$

There is alſo Capt. Fiſher's Alms Houſe in Dog Row, for 6 Seamens Widows.

Lady Mico's Alms-houſe.

To which I add the Lady Mico's Alms-houſe near Stepney Church. The Truſt committed to the Company of Mercers. Who accordingly built the Houſe upon a Quarter of an Acre of Ground; for which the Company pay 20*s.* a Year. Mr. Tho. Blackmore, Sen. being Warden of that Company about Twenty Years ago, took upon him the Care of the Building. And there being two broad unwholſome Ditches on either Side of this Ground, the Pariſh of Stepney gave them; which the Company filled up; whereby ſome Ground was gained to the Alms-houſe and the Situation became more healthful. It contains twelve Rooms appropriated to twelve poor Widows, with Cellars, and little Gardens to each, and a Penſion of 2*s.* Weekly. There is, or lately was, a poor Widow living here very contentedly, who had been the Wife of a Grocer of the City, and brought 1500*l.* to him for her Portion, as I have been told by the ſaid Mr. Blackmore.

Manours in Stepney. J. S. Rec. Turr.

In this Pariſh I find theſe ſeveral Manours, and theſe ſeveral Lords and Owners of them in former Times.

Mile End Manour, granted to John Philpot [an Alderman of London] 2. Rich. 3.

The Manour of Wyke in Hackney and Stepney, granted to Maud Wife of John Earl of Sarum, by Hen. 4. the firſt of his Reign.

Add, That the Church of Stebbenheth was granted to William Biſhop of London, 1. Rich. 2.

Ed. Alex. In the Biſhop of London's Regiſter of Wills, are mentioned theſe Places in this Pariſh, above 300 Years ago.

Capella Beatæ Mariæ in Mariſcho in parochia de Stepney.

Lymeoſtes, alias, Lymehouſe in Stepney.

Roger Potter de la Popiler in parochia de Stebunheath.

Poplar and Blackwal.

Poplar. Record. Turr. WHich brings me unto one conſiderable Hamlet of this great Pariſh of Stepney, now called Poplar and Blackwall, where Sir Henry Johnſon, Father and Son, had their Wet Dock and Ship Yard. John de Pulteney (as was noted before) held this Manour. This Pulteney was a famous wealthy Citizen, that had been four Times Lord Maior, and founded a College near St. Lawrence Lane, which hath its Name ſtill from him. Cold Harbour was Pulteney's Inn, where he lived.

What farther followeth, both of this Place, and of a Chapel and Hoſpital here builded of later Times, I am beholden to the late Reverend Miniſter thereof, Dr. Joſiah Woodward, who communicated to me the Accounts and Notices enſuing.

Poplar, whence ſo called. Dr. Joſ. Woodward. Popler or Poplar, is ſo called from the Multitude of Poplar Trees (which love a moiſt Soil) growing there in former Times. And there be yet remaining in that Part of the Hamlet which bordereth upon Limehouſe, many old Bodies of large Poplars ſtanding, as Teſtimonials of the Truth of that Etymology.

Blackwall. To Poplar adjoineth Blackwall, a notable Harbour for Ships, ſo called, becauſe it is a Wall of the Thames, and diſtinguiſhed by the additional Term Black, from the black Shrubs which grew on it, as on Black Heath, which is oppoſite to it on the other Side of the River: [Or, perhaps, from the Bleakneſs of the Place and Situation.]

The Manour of Poplar did belong to the Crown, as ſome have informed; but now it is in the joint Poſſeſſion of Thomas Middleton and William Benſon, Eſquires.

Poplar and Blackwall, which make one of the Tower Hamlets, is about ſeven Miles in Circumference; for about four of which, it bordereth on the Thames.

Iſle of Dogs. The fertile Soil of the Marſh here is much admired, uſually known by the Name of The Iſle of Dogs: So called, becauſe, when our former Princes made Greenwich their Country Seat, and uſed it for Hunting, (they ſay) the Kennels for their Dogs were kept on this Marſh; which uſually making a great Noiſe, the Seamen and others thereupon called the Place The Iſle of Dogs: Though it is not an Iſle, indeed, ſcarce a Peninſula, the Neck being about a Mile in Length.

A Chapel here. There is in this Marſh, juſt oppoſite to Greenwich, an Houſe, called, The Chapel Houſe; where are the Remains of a Chapel built of Stone. And near this, are Foundations of Houſes found; and ſometimes Hooks of a great Size, as though of ſome great Gate, taken up. Which maketh it probable, that hereabouts were Inhabitants formerly; perhaps Fiſhermen, or ſuch as had their Livelihood from the Water: And that, by ſome Inundation, or the Unhealthfulneſs of the Situation, they left thoſe Parts at Length, for ſome more ſafe and commodious Settlement.

The wonderful Fertility of this Marſh. Such is the Fertility of this Marſh, that it produceth Sheep and Oxen of the largeſt Size, and very fat. They are brought out of other Countries, and fed here. I have been aſſured by a Grazier of good Report, (ſaith the Reverend Dr. Woodward) that he knew eight Oxen ſold out of this Marſh for 34 l. each. And all our Neighbourhood know, that a Butcher undertook to furniſh the Club at Blackwall with a Leg of Mutton every Saturday throughout the Year, that ſhould weigh 28 Pound, the Sheep being fed in this Marſh, or he would have nothing for them; and he did perform it. It may not be altogether foreign to this Subject, though it relate not to this Marſh, but to the whole Kingdom, to add, that one Mr. Elderton of this Hamlet, trading in Hogs, had two Hogs of ſo large a Size, that he ſold one of them for 15 l. and the other for above 20*l*. He is now living to teſtify it.

Remarkable Matters happening at Poplar. Some other Matters of Remark happening here at Poplar, may be added. In the Time of the Elder Sir Henry Johnſon, Kt. Ship-builder, an Horſe belonging to his Ship-yard, was wrought there 34 Years, driven by one Man: And he grew to that Experience, that at the firſt Sound of the Bell, for the Men in the Yard to leave off Work, he alſo would ceaſe labouring; and could not, by any Means, be brought to give one Pull after it. And when the Bell rang to Work, he would as readily come forth again to his Labour, which was to draw Planks, and Pieces of Timber, from one Part of the Yard to another.

A ſtrange Accident befalling a Man in Fear. A Perſon lately living in this Hamlet, having a great Concern for the Safety of a Ship, that was like to break her Back at Blackwall, had his Blood and Spirits ſet into ſuch an extraordinary Ferment, or Ebullition rather, by the Fear of her Miſcarriage, that by the Violence of it, the Tops of the Nails of his Hands and Feet were caſt off to a great Diſtance from their natural Situation, and ſo remained to his Death. And many Perſons now living have atteſted the ſame.

A Sperma Ceti Whale. A Sperma Ceti Whale was landed here not long ago; which, had the Owner known the Value of it, for making from the Blubber thereof (as they call it) Parma Ceti, might have brought him incredible Gain.

A Copperas Work. There is, in the Border of this Hamlet towards Bromley, a large Copperas Work: Wherein a great Quantity of Copperas is made every Year.

The Chapel and Hoſpital. Now for the Chapel of Poplar, and the Foundation thereof, and of the Hoſpital; and the ſeveral Benefactors to that, and to the Poor of that Part of Stepney Pariſh, I chooſe to give it in the Words of the late Reverend Miniſter thereof, beforenamed.

I very

Dr. Joſ. Woodward.

I Very willingly reply, Sir, to your Letter of the 13th Inſtant, wherein you deſire an Account of the pious and charitable Benefactions in this Hamlet, becauſe ſome of them deſerve to be better known. And here it is but juſt that I begin with the Society of the Eaſt India Company, not only becauſe of my particular Obligations to that Honourable Body, but alſo becauſe their Bounty is the moſt conſiderable of any, tho' it be not confined to this Hamlet.

The Chapel: By whom built.

Our Chapel, which is very large and commodious, was built on their Ground in the Year 1654; partly by the voluntary Contributions of the Inhabitants, Mr. Gilbert Dethick leading the Way by the Gift of One Hundred Pounds, and others of the Inhabitants following, according to their Ability and Diſpoſition. But this pious Work was chiefly advanced by thoſe very worthy Gentlemen, Mr. Maurice Thompſon, from whom the preſent Lord Haverſham is deſcended, and Mr. Thomas Tomlins, whom I muſt by and by mention again: Who partly by their own Bounty, but chiefly by their earneſt Application to wealthy Perſons of their Acquaintance, carried on this noble Building to its Perfection, at the Coſt of above Two Thouſand Pounds, as it is uſually computed And at the Preaching of the firſt Sermon in this Chapel, our aforeſaid Benefactor, Mr. Thompſon, gave an uncommon Inſtance of his great Humility and Piety, in that he condeſcended to go into the Clerk's Deſk,* and there named and ſet the firſt Pſalm that was ſung in this Chapel. And tho' ſome, perhaps, thought that he did a Thing too mean for his Quality; as the Dancing of King David before the Ark was cenſured of old; yet the great Honour, whereby God has ſince diſtinguiſhed his Poſterity, may ſerve to demonſtrate the ſure accompliſhment of God's Promiſes of exalting the Humble, and honouring thoſe that Honour him. But to return to our Benefactors.

Ever ſince the Building of this Chapel, the Eaſt India Company has been pleaſed to grant to the ſeveral Miniſters that have officiated therein, (of which, by the Providence of God, I am the Fourth) the yearly Allowance of Twenty Pounds, as Miniſter of this Hamlet; with a convenient Dwelling Houſe, Garden, and a Paſture Field of about three Acres. But they could never yet be prevailed with to grant this otherwiſe than during their Pleaſure; tho', for want of a ſettled Endowment, which the Lord Biſhop of London did very lately importune, by his Letter to them, the Conſecration of this very decent Chapel has been hitherto deferred.

A School and Alms-houſe.

About the ſame Time that our Chapel was built, it pleaſed the Eaſt India Company to erect a School here for the Education of the Children of ſuch Seamen as are or have been employed in their Service, to the Number of 24; endowing it with Twenty Pounds a Year, and a Dwelling Houſe for the Schoolmaſter. They alſo erected an Alms Houſe about the ſame Time, for fourteen Seamen, diſabled in their Service by Age or Accidents; to each of which they allot particular Penſions, according to their Circumſtances, as they do likewiſe to many others, who are not lodged in their Alms-houſe: they that have leaſt having the Allowance of two Shillings and Six-pence a Week, with half a Chaldron of Coals for the Winter, and a ſuperadded Bounty at Chriſtmas; when the Gentlemen of the Committee come down hither to diſtribute a Hundred Pounds, and ſometimes much more, to the Widows and Orphans of ſuch Seamen as have ſerved them: Which has been their Practice for many Years paſt.

In the Year 1665, Mr. John Weſt gave a Rent-Charge of twelve Pounds a Year, to be diſtributed among twelve poor Men, and as many poor Women of this Hamlet, at the yearly Feaſt of our Bleſſed Saviour's Nativity.

Some Time before this, Captain John Crouthers gave a Houſe, now divided into three Tenements, for the Uſe of the Poor of this Hamlet for ever; with a weekly Allowance of Bread.

In the Year 1669, Captain William Curtis bequeathed a Rent-Charge of ſixty Pounds a Year, for the Releaſe of poor Priſoners, the Relief of aged People, the placing out of poor Children to Trades; and a weekly Diſtribution of Bread, for the Benefit of the Poor in the Hamlets of Poplar, Limehouſe, Ratcliff, and Mile-end, for ever.

Here is an Alms-houſe for eight poor Widows, which was formerly called Colonel Blunt's Alms-houſe, but ever ſince it has been rebuilt by Captain Harman, it has been uſually called by his Name.

In the Year 1676, our aforeſaid Benefactor Mr. Tomlins gave 25 l. to remain as a Fund, for buying of Coals for the Poor of this Hamlet in the Summer; that they might have them at the prime Coſt in the Winter.

The elder Sir Henry Johnſon, beſides his Contribution towards the building of our Chapel, was pleaſed to beautify it with Painting ſoon after that it was finiſhed. And at his Death bequeathed an Alms-houſe for ſix poor Shipwrights of this Hamlet, with a weekly Allowance of Bread to the Poor.

Mrs. Eſther Hawes, beſides Communion Plate, which ſhe gave for the Uſe of our Chapel, erected alſo here a very convenient Alms-houſe, in the Year 1686, for ſix poor Widows; appointing one Pound ten Shillings a Year to be paid to each of them.

Theſe, Sir, are the Names of all our Benefactors, that I can find either in the Table that is hanged up in our Chapel, or by Enquiry among our Inhabitants. But for the Encouragement of more ſecret Charity, permit me to add; that I received the laſt Year one hundred Pounds from a bountiful Benefactor, whoſe Name I am not like to know, 'till the publick Reward of private Alms be given by the Judge of all; I was ordered to diſtribute it among the poor Widows and Orphans of ſuch Seamen as had ſuſtained Loſs in the Service of the old Eaſt India Company, which I did accordingly diſtribute.

And as to this private Charity, which ſome unknown Perſons belonging to the ſaid Company have given, it may truly be ſaid, that I and a Friend of mine have diſtributed within the Compaſs of a few Years, at the leaſt eight hundred Pounds to the Widows and Orphans of Seamen that uſed thoſe Voyages.

At Limehouſe there is a pretty Work-houſe ſet up lately by Charity for Children, to keep them to honeſt Labour.]

Chapel of Poplar.

J. S.

This Chapel of Poplar within the Pariſh of Stepney contains three Iles.

On the Eaſt Window over the Communion Table are the Arms of Sir John Gaier, Kt. ſometime Maior of the City of London, and Alderman Abdy: Who ſeemed to have been at the Charge of that Window, and (it is likely) Benefactors towards the building of the Chapel.

There is likewiſe a painted Coat of Arms in the Glaſs of the Eaſt Window of the North Ile, inſcribed, William Dethike, dyed Aug. 22, 1655.

And in another Window in this Ile, the Dethiks Coat, with the following Inſcription:

---

* 'Tis related to the Praiſe of Sir Thomas More, that when Lord Chancellor, he put on a Surplice, and aſſiſted the Prieſt in ſaying Maſs in Chelſea Church. J. S.

Inſignia Gilberti Dethike, Armigeri, (filii Gulielmi Dethike Equitis aurati) a cujus Beneficentia fundamentum accepit hoc Sacellum, Anno 1654.

On a Window in the South Ile is the Coat Armour of Maurice Thompſon, Eſq; 1657, a worthy Benefactor: Of whom it is remembered, that when this Chapel was firſt opened, and dedicated to the Service of God, himſelf ſet the Pſalm before the Sermon. There is alſo in this Window another Coat of Arms, whereof the Name is gone, viz. Argent, a Bend Azure, between three Oak Leaves proper.

In the North Ile theſe Perſons lie buried under flat Stones with Inſcriptions:

The ſaid William Chriſtmas, 1702. Aged 77.

Tho' Bodies ſleep in Duſt, yet Souls not few,
Gliſter in Glory: So muſt Bodies too;
Which ſown in Weakneſs, ſhall be rais'd in Pow'r:
We therefore wait for that triumphant Hour.

In the Church-yard ſeveral fair Tombs: One for Capt. Curtis, with this Inſcription:

William Curtis of this Pariſh, Gent. warns you to Repentance.

Whiles you can, before this Bed on you have Pow'r,
Make your Calling and Election ſure.
Fix your Mind on the Day of Doom,
Be always waiting 'till your Change do come.
That ſo through Chriſt you rais'd may be,
To heavenly Joys, and bleſt Eternitie.

Deceaſed this Life the 27th of Septemb. 1669.

Thomas Son of Thomas Wharton and Mary his Wife, 1703.

Alſo Agnes Wharton, Relict of William Wharton of Waitby in the County of Weſtmoreland, 1704. Aged 76.

John Akers late of Limehouſe, deceaſed.

Approaching now to th' Age of Fifty ſeven,
In Spirit tranſlated was from Earth to Heaven:
To th' Spirits of juſt Men join'd, which perfect are,
And while enjoying Bliſs and Glory there,
Behold! his mortal Fleſh interred reſteth here;
Sleeping in Jeſus, hoping to ariſe,
Immortal Life t'aſſume among the Wiſe,
To ſhine, tho' now to Death become a Sacrifice.

Reader:

Do juſt Mens Spirits, which here imperfect are,
Perfect commence at Death? Believe them ne'er,
Who ſay, their Souls do die, or elſe lie ſleeping here.
The former being Scripture in my Senſe,*
Diſproves the latter by juſt Conſequence.

From hence we paſs to

St. LEONARD's

St. LEONARD'S BROMLEY.

Earl John Bohun ſaid to be buried here. Wer. Mon. p. 541. J. S.

HERE in this Church, while it was Part of the Monaſtery of St. Leonard, was buried a right noble Perſonage, (if we may believe one of our Antiquaries) namely, Earl John de Bohun, Son of Humfrey, Earl of Hereford and Eſſex, Lord of Brecknock, and Conſtable of England. And there is at this Day a large Stone lying in the Body of the Church, having formerly much Braſs, now torn off; containing the Effigies of a Man and a Woman; and much ornamental Work over their Heads. They ſeem to be ſome Nobleman and his Wife, interred in this Religious Houſe: Perhaps the ſaid Earl and his Lady.

Notit. Monaſt. p. 141.

But how to reconcile the ſaid Antiquary with an elder than he, viz. John Leland, and the Monaſticon Anglicanum, I cannot yet tell. For Wever writes, that this Monaſtery was repleniſhed with White Monks, and founded by K. Henry II, in the 23d of his Reign. Leland and the Monaſticon report it a Religious Houſe for Nuns. And here again, theſe two laſt differ in the Founder. Leland, as we are told by a late Author, makes the Founder to be that William, Biſhop of London, that lived in the Conqueror's Time: But the Tenour of a Confirmation of this Priory by K. Stephen (extant in the Monaſticon) ſeems to make it to be founded and endowed by one Chriſtiana de Sumeri, and her Son.

Bromley S. Leonard by Stratford at Bow. Reg. Lon.

In the Chapel of the Bleſſed Virgin Mary, within the Clauſtrum [Cloiſters] of this Nunnery, was interred Elizabeth, Siſter to Queen Philippa, and one of the Daughters of William Earl of Henault. Her Will bears Date Anno 1375: Wherein ſhe gave a Ring to Sir Tho. de Wodeſtok.

Nuns of Stratford. E. A.

Rich. Baynard of Meſſing, Eſq; gave by Will, An. 1432, to the Abbeſs and Convent of Berking, five Marks, to pray for the Souls of Katharine and Iſabel his Daughters. And to the Nuns of Stratford 40 s. to pray for his Soul, and the Souls of Johan and Johan his Wives. And five Marks to pray for his Soul, and Iſabel Doreward's Soul.

William Gobyonne, buried in the Church of Brambeley in Stratford at Bow, 1435.

Againſt the South Wall, next the Eaſt Part of the Church, is a very fair Monument of Mr. Jacob, ſometime Proprietor of this Manour, and his Wife.

They are repreſented both kneeling. Over his Head is writ, Abraham Jacob, Armiger. Over hers, Maria Conjux. Under him, Obiit 6°. Maii, A. D. 1629. Ætat. ſuæ 56. The Inſcription as follows:

Hic Tumulus,
Parentes optimi, cum prole numeroſâ, non veſtræ virtutis, ſed Doloris mei Monumentum eſto.

Quàm uterq; erga Deum pius,
Quàm Regi ſuo obſequens & commodus,
Quàm amicis fidus,
Quàm Patriæ utilis,
Quàm Pauperibus benignus,
Aliorum eſto effari, meum imitari,
Pii Lectoris ſupplere
Quod filialis Modeſtia retinuit.
Valete Poſteri.
Sic in Chriſto & vivite & morimini.
JOHANN. JACOB, F. Parentibus mœrens merentibus P.

There is the Repreſentation of a Vine, on the Leaves whereof are inſcribed the Names of his Children; whereof ſome were married and ſome unmarried at the Time of the Erection of this Monument. The Names of thoſe that were married, and their reſpective Huſbands, are expreſſed, with their Coats of Arms, born Baron and Femme; viz.

1. Henry Rolt married Ellen Jacob.
2. George Bury married Mary.
3. John Jacob married Elizabeth Halliday.
4. Thomas Wilmer married Elizabeth Jacob.
5. Robert Seylliard married Barbara Jacob.

The Children of Henry Rolt, and Ellen, are expreſſed to be, Mary, Ellen, Thomas, Elizabeth.

George Bury, by his Wife Mary, had Jacob, George, John.

John Jacob, by his Wife Elizabeth, had Suſana, and Jacob.

Thomas Wilmer, by his Wife Elizabeth, had Thomas, Jacob, Mary.

The Names of the unmarried Children inſcribed on the Vine Leaves are theſe: Francis the firſt Son; Richard the third Son; Henry the fourth Son; Abraham the fifth Son; Robert the ſixth Son; Darcy the ſeventh Son; and Frances the fifth Daughter.

Next Jacob's Monument, on the Weſt againſt the Wall, is the Monument of Roberts, another Proprietor of the Manour; and theſe Inſcriptions:

In this Vault lyeth the Body of Dame Margaret Roberts, Daughter of Mr. William Amy, Merchant in Exon; and late Wife to Sir John Roberts of Bromley, Bart. By whom he had four Sons and five Daughters; all which dyed in their Infancy. She departed this Life Sept. 21, An. Dom. 1690. In Memory of whom, her Huſband cauſed this Monument to be erected.

Here only is reſerv'd her pious Duſt,
Until the Reſurrection of the Juſt.

In the ſame Vault alſo lyeth Sir John Roberts, Bart. Patron of this Church: Who dyed the 14th of Decemb. 1692. To whoſe Memory his Relict, Dame Deborah Roberts, being his ſecond Wife, cauſed this Inſcription:

Tho' Death the Body in the Grave doth bind,
The nobler Soul is free and unconfin'd:
And both ſhall reign with Chriſt,
When by his Power rejoyn'd.

In this Monument of Roberts are repreſented two Women ſitting in a mourning Poſture, with Palms in their Hands. The Coat is Baron and Femme. Baron, quarterly, 1. Or, a Lion rampant, Gules. 2. A Bow extended in Feſſe, with an Arrow upon it in Pale. The Third as the Second, the Fourth as the Firſt.

Next downwards, againſt the ſame South Wall, is the fair Monument of the Ferrers. Here you ſee a Man and Woman half Way, well cut in Stone: Both laying one Hand upon the ſame Death's Head, and in the other holding a Book. The Epitaph this:

R. Here lyeth the Body of William Ferrers, the only Son and Heir of William Ferrers, Eſquire, late Citizen and Merchant of London. Who took to Wife Jane, one of the Daughters of Sir Peter Van-lore of London, Knight; by whom he had one Child. His Wife and Child both dyed before him; and he departed this Life a Month before his Father. He was a Gentleman of a religious Soul towards God, and a ſweet Behaviour towards Men. And his Death was by his Kindred, and generally by all, much lamented. He dyed the 25th of Auguſt, 1625, and left his Uncle Thomas Ferrers his Executor; who to the Memory of him hath erected this ſmall Monument.

In this moſt pure and bleſſed Shade,
(Such by the ſacred Aſhes made,
That here inhabit muſt) does lye
The Man, whoſe Vertues cannot dye.
His Alms, his Prayers, his Piety,
Have ſent his Soul above the Sky.

Nature full well had taught his Wife,
To ſum her Hours in pious Life:
To God, to Friend, to Poor, to all,
She was as good as we dare call
Frail Fleſh: Good Paſſenger give praiſe
To them who liv'd ſuch happy Days.]

His Coat was, Argent, a Bend Gules, charged with three Horſeſhoes Or, between two Bendlets Azure.

The Epitaph for the Child of the ſaid Ferrers was,

As Nurſes ſtrive their Babes in Bed to hie,
When they too liberally the Wantons play;
So, to prevent his future grievous Crimes,
Nature, his Nurſe, got him to Bed betimes.

In the ſame Church was this written in a Place where Bread was ſet to be diſpoſed to the Poor.

A. M. This Bread is given to the Poor, for the Honour of God, and to the Memory of William Ferrers the younger, by Thomas Ferrers, his Executor.

In the Chancel ſtill:
Upon the Ground, on a Braſs Plate:

Of your Charity pray for the Soul of Roger Horton, Citizen and Goldſmith of London, and Margaret his Wife. Which Roger deceaſed the 15th Day of January, A. Dom. M CCCCC LVI. On whoſe Soul Jeſu have Mercy.

The Effigies in Braſs on this Stone, is a naked Man, only wrapt in a Sheet, holding his Hands together in a praying Poſture.

The Coat of Arms on the Stone is the Goldſmiths Arms impaled with that of the Fiſhmongers.

Near adjoyning, on the Ground, a Man in Braſs between his two Wives.

The Coat of Arms on this Monument is, A Cheveron charged with three Martlets, between as many Bugles braced.

Rob. Ainſworth. This elegant and paſſionate Epitaph in Latin, framed by a Lover, incited a Gentleman, named Joſh. Squier, to put it in this Engliſh Dreſs.

Know, Stranger, underneath this pious Stone,
ALICIA COBURNE's into Aſhes gone.
Who half an Orphan at her Birth became,
And in ten Months ſhe loſt the filial Name.
Yet thriving in a better Stepdame's Care,
(Who leſs the Nature than the Name did bear :)
Ere fifteen flow'ry Springs her Age had paſt,
She was with all the Virgin-Glories grac'd.
Within, her Mind with Heavenly Gifts adorn'd,
Her Life to all the Rules of Vertue form'd.
Without, unblemiſh'd Rays of Beauty ſhone,
So powerful, that where ſhe came ſhe won.
And where ſhe won, ſo gentle and ſo mild,
She triumph'd, and her Captives lov'd to yield.
Her eaſy Soul, which Men Good Nature call,
To all was grateful, and belov'd of all.
The Joy and Darling of the Family,
The promis'd Glory, and their Hope was ſhe.
Such was her Vertue, and her beauteous Form,
(And who would wonder theſe prevail'd to charm?)
When ſhe her faithful .... did gain.
Who coming ſaw, and having ſeen was ſlain.
His Liberty was ſlain, and with it dy'd }
All Hopes of Joy but in this beauteous Bride; }
Aſſociate of his Life, and of his Bed. }
Now all Things happily did ſeem to move, }
And equal were their mutual Flames of Love: }
The Flames which inward burn'd, and fiercely ſtrove. }
A Covenant eternal was begun;
The Nuptial Day did leſs'ning backward run:
On which their whole Delight and Hope were plac'd,
Both eager of the Joys which ſeem'd to haſte.
*When the fair longing Maid a black Diſeaſe,
Leſs kindly than th'expected Arms, did ſeize.
With hateful Stains her beauteous Face o'erſpread;
What lovely found her living, left her dead.
She dy'd; and all with ſympathizing Grief, }
Deplor'd her Fate, and wiſh'd, too late, Relief: }
And oh! in theſe her mourning Friend was chief. }
And here, upon the promis'd nuptial Day,
Her lifeleſs, yet ſtill lovely, Body lay:
Preferring thus, before the kindeſt Breaſt,
Good Abraham's Boſom and eternal Reſt.
Where now entranc'd in endleſs Joy ſhe lies,
'Till all the Juſt from Sleeps of Death ariſe.
Then only ſhall more beauteous Bodies ſhine,
More perfect Vertue thou ſhalt ſee than thine:
And Love more pure, and violent, and free,
Than thine to me, or mine has been to thee.
'Till then this Monument ſhall here remain,
Imperfect Shadow of the Giver's Pain.
Thy Memory, bleſt Virgin, here ſhall live;
And here his Love, who does but half ſurvive.

* The Small Pox.

There is one Monument more in this Church; and that is of Mrs. Coburne, late Brewer in Bow, the Mother in Law of the beforementioned Alice. Who lately died, and, being the Daughter of a Clergyman, and ſometime Miniſter of Bow, was a moſt noble Benefactor, leaving the Main of her Eſtate, which was large, to charitable religious Uſes. Whoſe Gifts by her laſt Will, were to be ſet down particularly in the Inſcription on her Monument, inſtead of a flattering Epitaph. Which Inſcription is in theſe Words, as Mr. Hardiſty, her worthy Executor, cauſed it to be tranſmitted to me.

IN Memory of PRISCA COBURNE, Widow: Who lieth buried in the Ile near this Pillar, and dyed the 13th of November MDCCI.

And by her Will dated the 6th of May, 1701, gave the Charities following:

To the poor Inhabitants of this Hamlet, who have no Penſions, to be paid as the Will mentions ——— ——— ——— ——— ꝑ Ann. 20 l.

To the Miniſter of Bow for the Time being ——— ——— ——— ——— ꝑ Ann. 20 l.

To the Clark of this Chapel for the Time being ——— ——— ——— ——— ꝑ Ann. 4 l.

To a creditable Man and his Wife, to inſtruct the Children of the poor Inhabitants of this Hamblet, not exceeding Fifty in Number at one Time, in the Principles of the Church of England ——— ——— ——— ꝑ Ann. 50 l.

All which Charities are charged on all her Meſſuages and Lands within this Hamlet: (Except the Meſſuage, Coach-houſe, and Stable, given to Mr. Hardiſty, her Executor) And alſo on all her Meſſuages and Lands in Stratford Langthorne; and her Farm in Bocking in Eſſex, in the Poſſeſſion of Joſeph Eades: The Surplus of the Rents and Profits whereof (if any be) are to be applyed for the placing out of the ſaid Children to honeſt Trades or Employments.

The Manour of Bocking Hall, and all her Eſtates in Bocking aforeſaid; (except the ſaid Farm in the Poſſeſſion of Joſeph Eades) which were at her Death in the ſeveral Poſſeſſions of John Maryon, Tho. Ruggles, ... Smyth, Tho. Clayton, Samuel Carter, Henry Whitehead, and Joſeph Harridance, at ſeveral yearly Rents, amounting to 341 l. ꝑ Ann. are for the Relief of poor Widows and Children of Clergymen of the Church of England; and for placing out ſuch Children to honeſt Trades and Employments.

One Meſſuage, and all her Lands in Layer Marley [Marney] and Wigborough in Eſſex, in the ſeveral Poſſeſſions of Mary Odye, Widow, and Benjamin Handler, at ſeveral yearly Rents, amounting to about 105 l. and her Wood Land, called Longwood; for the Relief of ſuch poor Perſons of St. Bartholomew's Hoſpital, London, who ſhall be judged incurable.

And her Manour of Covil Hall, with the Manour Houſe and Lands in White Roothing in Eſſex, in the Poſſeſſion of Richard Bankes, at the yearly Rent of 110 l. for the Relief of poor Seamens Widows, inhabiting within the Pariſh of Stepney.

And directed two Thirds of the Surplus of her Perſonal Eſtate, after Payment of Debts and Legacies, to be diſpoſed of by her ſaid Executor in ſuch Charities as he ſhall think fit. Mrs. Coburne's Charities to Bow, &c.

So that this Town of Bow hath received conſiderable Benefit of late, by the good Providence of God, as alſo have the other neighbouring Pariſhes, from this charitably diſpoſed Gentlewoman, Priſca Coburne, Widow, a Brewer, and Inhabitant of the ſame Town. She was the Daughter of one Foſter, ſometime Miniſter of Bow: Who by her laſt Will and Teſtament, dated May the 6th 1701, 13 W. 3. gave theſe Legacies following, (as they were extracted out of her ſaid Will,) viz.

She willed thirty Miniſters of the Church of England of good Reputation to be invited to her Burial; and to each of them a mourning Hatband, Scarf, and Gloves, and a good Ring of 20 s. Value.

Sixty poor Women of the Hamlet of Bow, and twenty poor Women of the Pariſh of St. Leonard Bromley, to attend her Funeral in Mourning Gowns; and ten Shillings apiece in Money: And her Executor to pay for the Uſe of their Gowns, during their Attendance.

All her Tenants to be invited to her Funeral: And to each of them Gloves, and a Gold Ring of 20 s. value.

Such ſingle Women as were Victuallers, and the Wives of ſuch Victuallers who were Cuſtomers to her at her Death in her Brewhouſe Trade, to be invited to her Funeral: And to each a Ring of 10*s.* Value.

Her Executor, as ſoon after her Deceaſe as conveniently, to cauſe the upper Part next the Roof of the Chapel of Bow, to be plaiſtered, ſeeled, or wainſcotted, in a decent Manner: And a Monument to be erected over or near her Grave: And a Marble Stone erected near the ſame; and engraven thereon in legible Characters, an Account of the ſeveral Charities herein aftermentioned; and of the Eſtates by her ſubjected to the Payment thereof.

And beſides many Legacies to private Perſons, ſhe gave to the Poor of the Hamlet of Bow 20*l.* to be diſtributed on the Day of her Interrment, or as ſoon as the Executor ſhall think fit.

To Thomas White, the preſent Miniſter of Bow, and to ſuch Miniſters as ſhall ſucceed him, and preach at the Chapel of Bow for the Time being, and be elected thereunto by the Majority of the Inhabitants of the ſaid Hamlet, who pay to Church and Poor, and to their Succeſſors for ever, one Annuity or Yearly Rent of 20*l.* to be iſſuing out of all her Meſſuages, Lands, Tenements, &c. within the ſaid Hamlet, and not otherwiſe diſpoſed of in her Will, and to Stratford Langton, and her Farm in Bocking in Eſſex, &c. To be paid unto ſuch Miniſter half yearly, for the Preaching of four Sermons in every Year in the ſaid Chapel of Bow, on the Days following: On Friday next before Eaſter, commonly called Good Friday: Aſcenſion Day, commonly called Holy Thurſday: The 24th Day of Auguſt, commonly called St. Bartholomew Day, being her Birth Day: And the 30th of January, yearly for ever.

To the Poor alſo of the Hamlet of Bow, another Annuity or yearly Rent of 20*l.* to be iſſuing out of the ſaid Meſſuages, Lands, Tenements, &c. and to be paid to the Chapel Warden and Overſeer of the Poor of the ſaid Hamlet, to be by them diſtributed yearly among the Poor of the Hamlet, and have great Charges of Children to maintain, and have no Penſion from the Hamlet, on the ſeveral Days beforementioned, by 5*l.* on each Day.

To the preſent Clark of the Chapel of Bow, and his Succeſſors, Clarks of the ſaid Chapel, for ever, one Annuity of 4*l.* to be iſſuing out of her Meſſuages and Lands laſt mentioned: And to pay him or them on the four Days beforementioned, at 20*s.* each Payment, free of all Taxes and Deductions. So as ſuch Clark or Clarks do take Care to clean the Monument or Stones that ſhall be placed over or near her Corpſe; and preſerve her Bones from being taken out of the Ground where ſhe ſhould be interred.

To Robert Hardeſty, of the Middle Temple, London, Gent. [her ſole Executor] and his Aſſigns, during the Time of his natural Life, ſhe gave all her ſaid Meſſuages, Lands, Tenements, &c. within the Hamlet of Bow, and now in the Poſſeſſion of Joſeph Eades; upon ſpecial Truſt and Confidence, that he and they do, from and after her Deceaſe, take care they be kept in good and tenantable Repairs; and that the clear Rents and Profits of the ſaid Premiſes be in the firſt Place applied to the Payment and Diſcharge of the ſaid ſeveral Annuities charged thereupon. And that the Overplus of the ſaid Rents and Profits be applied for the Maintenance and Support of ſome fitting and creditable Man and his Wife: Who will take care to teach and inſtruct the Children, Male and Female, of ſuch poor Inhabitants of the ſaid Hamlet of Bow, who ſhall not be of ſufficient Ability to give them Learning and Education at their own Coſt and Charges, in the Rudiments and Principles of the Church of England: And ſhall teach the Male Children to read, write, and caſt Accompt, and the Female Children to read, write, and work at their Needle, or otherwiſe, as they find them qualified. And ſhall take Care to have all the ſaid Children duly brought to Church to hear Divine Service; and to have them duly catechized, &c. The Executor to ſee good Orders and Rules made and ſet up for the Government of ſuch Children: The Number of them not to exceed 50 at any one Time.

And for the Encouragement of ſuch Maſter and his Wife, ſhe appointed they ſhould be allowed out of the Rents and Profits, the yearly Sum of 50*l.* And that the Surplus of ſuch Rents, if any were, ſhould be applied for the placing out of ſuch Children to ſome honeſt Trades and Employments, by the Conſent of the Executor, Miniſter, Chapelwarden, and Inhabitants of the ſaid Hamlet.

And to render this Charity the more ſerviceable for the Ends aforeſaid, ſhe left it to the Diſcretion of her Executor to add this her Charity to the Revenue of the Free School already erected at Bow by Sir John Jolls, Kt. and Alderman of London; or to keep and uſe it ſeparate and apart from that Charity, as in his Diſcretion might moſt tend to the Benefit of the poor Children of the ſaid Hamlet, and no other.

The Reverſion of her ſaid Meſſuages, Lands, &c. expectant upon the Death of the ſaid Rob. Hardeſty, ſhe gave unto the Miniſters of Stebunhith, alias Stepney, Bromley, St. Mary Matfelon, alias Whitechapel, and of the Chapels of Bow and Poplar; and to the Churchwardens, and Overſeers of the ſaid Hamlet of Bow, for the Time being, and their Succeſſors for ever; upon the like Truſt, and to the ſame Intents and Purpoſes, as ſhe gave them to the ſaid Robert Hardeſty and his Aſſigns, during the Term of his natural Life.

She gave unto the ſaid Robert Hardeſty and his Aſſigns, her Manour of Bocking, alias Bocking-hall, her capital Meſſuage called Bocking Hall, with the Rights, Members, and Appurtenances thereunto belonging: Her Meſſuage, Lands, and Tenements, now in the Poſſeſſion of Tho. Ruggle: Her Meſſuage, Lands, and Tenements in the preſent Poſſeſſion of Francis Smith: And all other her Meſſuages and Lands in Bocking, now in Mortgage to her from Sir William Barker, Bart. for a Term of 500 Years, (except the Farm now in the Poſſeſſion of Joſeph Eades) The Inheritance of which ſaid Mortgaged Premiſſes was ſince decreed to her by the High Court of Chancery: To hold to the ſaid Rob. Hardeſty, and his Aſſigns, for and during ſo many Years of the ſaid Term as he ſhall happen to live. Upon ſpecial Truſt and Confidence, that he ſhall apply the clear Rents and Profits thereof for the Relief of poor Widows and Children of the Clergy of the Church of England: And for placing out ſuch Children to ſome honeſt Trades and Employments. So as no one Clergyman's Widow be allowed more than 5*l.* in any one Year; or more than 10*l.* be allowed for the placing out of any Child to ſuch Trade or Employment. And all the ſaid Term of Years in the ſaid Mortgaged Premiſſes, from and immediately after the Death of Rob. Hardeſty, ſhe gave and deviſed unto the Governours of the Charity for the Relief of poor Widows and Children of Clergymen, and their Succeſſors for ever, upon the like Truſts, and to the ſame Intents and Purpoſes.

She gave alſo to Rob. Hardeſty, her Meſſuage and Farm, Wood Lands, and other Lands and Hereditaments, in the ſeveral Pariſhes of Layer Marly [Marny] and Wigborough in Eſſex, with the Premiſſes (except the Wood Lands then in her own Poſſeſſion) in the ſeveral Poſſeſſions of .... Oddy, Widow, and Benjamin Handler: Upon ſpecial Truſt and Confidence, that the ſaid Rob. Hardeſty, do from and after her Deceaſe, employ the clear Rents and Profits for the Relief and Maintenance of ſuch poor Perſons who ſhall be brought to the Hoſpital of St. Bartholomew, London, for Cure of the reſpective Maladies and Infirmities they labour under, and ſhall be there found and adjudged incurable, and in human Probability, deſtitute of all Means to gain a Livelihood by their own Labour: For whoſe Relief (as ſhe was credibly informed) no Charity had been hitherto given. And the Reverſion of her ſaid Meſſuage, Lands, &c. laſt mentioned, from and immediately after the Death of the ſaid Rob. Hardeſty, ſhe gave unto the Governours of St. Bartholomew's Hoſpital, and their Succeſſors for ever, upon the like Truſt, and to the ſame Uſes.

She gave her Mancour of Covil Hall, with the Rights and Members, and her Meſſuage, Lands, Tenements, &c lying in the Pariſh of White Roding, alias White Roothing in Eſſex, all the Rents and Profits thereof for the Relief and Support of poor Seamens Widows, inhabiting within the Pariſh of Stepney; as ſhall be recommended from Time to Time to the Miniſters of the ſaid Pariſh of Stepney, or of the reſpective Chapels within the ſame; or to the Churchwardens or Chapelwardens, to be fit Objects of Charity; to be given them in ſuch Proportion as the ſaid Rob. Hardeſty ſhall think fit, not exceeding 50*s.* to any one Widow in any one Year. The Reverſion of the ſaid Meſſuage, &c. after Rob. Hardeſty's Death, to the Miniſters of Stepney, Bromley, St. Mary Matfelon, and of the Chapels of Bow and Poplar, and to the Churchwardens, Chapelwardens, and Overſeers of the Poor of the ſame.

That as ſoon as the Value of her whole perſonal Eſtate could be adjuſted, and the ſame could be got in, and a true State could be taken thereof, two Parts of the Surplus thereof to be laid out and diſpoſed by her Executor in the beſt Charities he could be informed of; and the remaining Third Part of the Surplus ſhe gave to her ſaid Executor for his own Uſe.

This charitable Gentlewoman lies buried in Bow Church, with a fair Monument, in Memory of her and her liberal Benefactions.

New Alms-Houſe at Bow.

There is a fair Alms-houſe now lately built near Bow by the Company of Drapers of London, upon a Gift of an Eſtate of about 180*l.* ℔ Ann. bequeathed to them in Truſt for that Purpoſe, by Mr. Edmundſon, a Sail Maker, ſometime ſince deceaſed. It is ſituate in a Field on the Right Hand of the Road coming from London, on a Piece of Ground there, about three Quarters of an Acre more or leſs, which coſt the Company 195 l. It fronts Sir John Jolls his Alms-houſe, belonging to the ſame Company, and is to conſiſt of twelve Rooms. To which belongeth a Chapel and Gardens. There is a very good Water that ſerves the old Alms-houſe, which will ſupply the New.

Bow goes to Weſtminſter in Proceſſion.

There was an ancient Cuſtom, for the Inhabitants of this Town of Stratford at Bow, to go in Proceſſion to the Church of St. Peter, Weſtminſter, all through the City of London, at Whitſuntide; in Token of ſome Dependence of this Town upon that Church. This they got themſelves releaſed of, in the Days of Henry the Eighth, by a Licenſe or Toleration obtained from Thomas, Biſhop of Weſtminſter, That they ſhould not be obliged to come in ſolemn Proceſſion to the Cathedral Church of Weſtminſter, in the Feaſt of Pentecoſt, being accuſtomed ſo to do of old. The like Proceſſions the Pariſhes of Stepney and Whitechapel performed: And the like Letters of Licenſe were granted by the ſame Biſhop, to the Rectors and Pariſhioners of thoſe Pariſhes.

A Mile from Stratford Bow, in the Road into Eſſex, is Stratford Langton, or Langthorn, lying in the Pariſh of Weſt Ham, a Place much frequented for Country Houſes of wealthy Citizens, and the Habitations of ſuch other of them who cannot enjoy their Health in London. The Pariſh is called Weſt Ham, in Diſtinction from another Ham on the Eaſt. In the Church are theſe Monuments of Note.

MONUMENTS.

In the Chancel upon the Pavement.

Henry Fallowfield, Merchant of London, deceaſed the 4th of May, 1566. Aged 54. Having a ſtedfaſt Hope of a joyful Reſurrection in the laſt Day.

On the Side of the Communion Table is buried Henry Amcott and Katherine his Wife. He dyed 1583.

Under the Communion Table is the Monument of Mr. John Shipman: Who dyed An. 1583.

On the North Side of the Communion Table, againſt the Wall, is a very fair Monument (with two Marble Effigies) of Sir Thomas Foot, Kt. and Bart. late Alderman; and Lord Maior of London, in the Year 1650. Dyed Octob. 12, 1688, in the 96th Year of his Age. Together with the Body of Elizabeth his Wife: Who dyed Octob. 6, 1667, in the 74th Year of her Age. They had four Daughters. The Firſt married to Sir John Cuttler of London, Kt. and Bart. The Second to Arthur Onſlow of Clandon in the County of Surrey, Bart. The Third to Sir John Lewis of Ledſtone in the County of York, Kt. and Bart. The Fourth to Sir Francis Rolle of Tuderley in Hampſhire, Kt.

Againſt the Wall on the South Side of the Chancel is a Monument for John eldeſt Son of Robert Faldo, Eſquire. Who dyed May 22, An. 1613. Francis fifth Son of Robert Faldo: Dyed An. 1632.

John Fawcet, Gentleman, married to Jane the ſecond Siſter of the ſaid Francis: Dyed An. 1625.

William Fawcet, the only Son of John, and Anne his eldeſt Daughter, 1636.

In a Side Chancel is a fair Monument, with the Effigies of William Fawcet of Upton. His Mother was a Daughter of ...... Arnclif of York. He endowed with an honeſt Salary a Chapel of Haughton Gil. And built there a Free School. And gave 20*s*. for a yearly Sermon on the 5th of November. He dyed May 18, 1631. Aged 60.

William Toppesfield, a Juſtice of Peace, who married his Widow, ſet up this Monument in the Year 1636.

On the Pavement, under a fair Marble Stone, is buried James Wittewrongle, the Son of James Wittewrongle, a Fleming: A ſingular Friend to the Miniſters of the City, a Mecœnas of ſtudious Youth, a Favourer of Piety and Learning. Dyed the 5th of June, Anno 1622. Aged 64.

Sir Robert Smith, Kt. and Bart. dyed the 13th of June 1669, being 75 Years of Age. And Judith his Wife departed in the Year 1653. Aged 48.

Mrs. Jane Pyot, Daughter of Sir Rob. Smith, Bart. Wife of Mr. John Pyot, dyed 1684. Aged 28.

In one of the Side Chancels lies Thomas Salter, Citizen of London. And departed June the 12th, 1640.

On the Wall is engraven,

Thomas Rookes, Eſquire, Captain of the Trained Bands of this Hundred: Deſcended of the antient Family of the Rookes of this Pariſh. He gave a yearly Contribution of 5 l. to this Pariſh for ever. He had two Wives and ſeven Children. And dyed Oct. 5. 1630.

Thomas Staples of Weſt Ham, Tanner, deceaſed the 22d of July 1592. He gave 20*s*. a Year for ever to the Poor of the Pariſh. His Effigies in Braſs ſtill remains, with his four Wives, Ann. Margaret, Deniſe, and Alice.

Tho. Wilmer, ſecond Son of George Wilmer of Weſt Ham, Eſquire.

At the lower End of the Church Nicolas Avenant lyeth, with a Table Monument ſet over him; Citizen and Merchant Tayler of London. Who gave 5 l. 4 d. for ever, to be diſtributed in Bread upon every Sunday after Morning Prayer. He dyed in July 1599. His Wives were Katharine and Margaret.

There is alſo an antique Table Monument, that joyneth to the Veſtry, and ſtandeth juſt behind Sir Tho. Foot's Monument. There is no Inſcription, but no Queſtion was ſet up for one of the Lord Abbots of Stratford. There be theſe Coats of Arms upon the Monument: An Angel with a Croſs on his Head, holding an Eſcutcheon on his Breaſt with both his Hands, with a Cheveron charged with three Tuns, as it ſeems, between as many Garbs. The Colours not viſible.

Another Bearing: Three Coats palewiſe: The firſt is, A Pal, charged with Croſſes, and a Croſier. The ſecond, Three Eagles Heads erazed: And the third, the former Coat mentioned, that was held by the Angel.

At the Head of the Monument is a Man, as it ſeemeth, cloathed in a Surplice, ſtanding in a Glory. His Hand advanced a little toward his Breaſt. On the left Hand is ſomething like a Chalice, or rather a Bottle, ſtanding upon his Hand.

On the North Side of this Monument is the Coat of Arms of London, that is, The Red Croſs and the Dagger. And in another Place the Arms of the Goldſmiths. As being probably a Member of that Guild, or Fraternity: For thoſe Companies were founded commonly in Religion. In another Place ſtands the Croſs, with the Crown of Thorns hanging upon the upper Part of it. And in a 4th Place on this North Side are the three Coats impaled, as before is mentioned. The firſt is, Gules, a Pal, charged with Croſſes Patee Sable. Over the Pal, another open Croſs, the loweſt Point thereof Flowry. The three Eagles here are in full Proportion, not their Heads erazed as above.

On the oppoſite Side of the Chancel, againſt a Pillar, is a fair Monument, erected by the Reverend Mr. Buckridge, to the Memory of all his Children, deceaſed: With the Figures of his Son in a Gown, and his Daughter, both kneeling: And of another Daughter advanced on the Top of the Monument, alſo kneeling: Beſides the Heads, in Marble, of four more dying young: Having this Inſcription, viz.

Near this Place lie interred the Bodies of Amburſt eldeſt Son of Nicolas and Eleonora Buckeridge, A. M. and Fellow of St. John's College, Oxon. who dyed March 22, 1709, in the 29th Year of his Age, and of Elizabeth their eldeſt Daughter, who dyed September 27th, 1698, in the 16th Year of her Age; and of Eleonora their ſecond Daughter, who dyed Apr. 4, 1710, in the 26th Year of her Age; and of Annabella their third Daughter, who dyed about 11 Months old; and of Anne their fourth Daughter, who dyed in the 6th Year of her Age; and of Nicolas their ſecond Son, who dyed about 2 Months old; and of William their third Son, who dyed about 11 Months old.

Of theſe, Amburſt and Eleonora lived to be remarkable for their great Dutifulneſs to their Parents, for their moſt affectionate Kindneſs to and Fondneſs for one another, and for their being inoffenſive and obliging to every Body. Theſe both died of the Small Pox in 13 Days Time, one after the other. And whether the Grief of Eleonora for her Brother's Death, or the Small Pox, contributed moſt to her Death, is uncertain. They were, indeed, lovely and pleaſant in their Lives, and but a very little divided in their Deaths.

And to their Dear Memory is this Monument erected.

St. MARY LOW LEYTON.

NORTH from Stratford Langton, about a Mile and an Half, lyeth the Pariſh of Low Leighton or Leyton. The Manour or Lordſhip whereof formerly belonged to the Abbot of the ſaid Stratford : As another great Meſſuage in the Pariſh, now called The Foreſt Houſe, once pertained to another great Abbot on the other Side, namely, the Abbot of Waltham. This Pariſh is waſhed along the Weſt Side of it by the ſweet River of Lee or Ley, (falling into the Thames) which giveth the Village its Name. It lyes all upon a gentle Riſing, aſcending for two Miles or better, from the ſaid River Eaſtward to the pleaſant Foreſt of Waltham. On which Side lyeth one Ward of the Pariſh, called Leyton Stone, pleaſantly and healthfully ſeated. Low Leyton planted on the Side of the Hill, as it is lower, ſo it ſtandeth more warm, and is guarded from the cold North by the Hills of its Neighbour Town of Walthamſtow. Both Parts of this Pariſh are furniſhed with divers fair and, ſome of them, magnificent Houſes, inhabited by divers wealthy Citizens, and other Gentlemen: But eſpecially the ancient Manour Houſe, and Seat of Ruckholts, now poſſeſs'd by Sir Harry Hicks, Bart. and the Foreſt Houſe, loſtily ſeated, fronting the Foreſt, whoſe preſent Owner and Inhabitant is Sir Gilbert Heathcote, Kt. Alderman of London, and L. Maior Anno 1711.

To which I add, the magnificent and beautiful Seat and Habitation of Sir Fiſher Tench, Bart. of more modern Erection, adorned with large and moſt delightful Gardens, Plantations, Walks, Groves, Mounts, Summer-Houſes, and pleaſant Canals, ſtored with Fiſh and Fowl, and curious Viſtoes for Proſpect. As alſo the fair and pleaſantly ſeated Houſe of David Ganſel, Eſq; Lord of the Manour of Low Leyton, having a fine Proſpect over the Marſh and River towards Hackney.

Year Book, 35 H. 6.

In this Pariſh Church, dedicated to St. Mary, there was, in the Popiſh Times, a Taper of Wax, containing three Pounds, and the Wick to contain half an Ounce, that was burnt before the Image of our Bleſſed Lady, on her five Holy Days. And a Glaſs Lamp, and a Gallon of Oyl, to burn in the ſaid Lamp, within the ſaid Church, before the Crucifix or Rood there. As alſo, one Pound of Frankincenſe every Year, ad Laudem Dei, & omnium Sanctorum ibidem in eadem Eccleſiæ in diebus Feſtivalibus per totum annum thurificand. as the Record mentions it: And that the Abbot of Stratford, Parſon of the Church Beatæ Mariæ de Leyton in 35 Year of Henry 6. did ſue an Aſſize, and ſet forth, ut ſupra.

Lady Brian, Governeſs to K. Henry 8 his Children.

In this Pariſh lived ſometime the Lady Margaret Brian, and ſeems here alſo to be buried: Eminent for having been chief Governeſs to the Princeſſes Mary and Elizabeth, and Edward Prince of Wales, Children of King Henry the Eighth, in their Minorities. Whoſe Will bore Date the 20th of Aug. 1551, and was proved Jun. 21, 1552, which ran in this Form: ‘ I Dame Margaret Brianne, Widow, in the Pariſh of Leyton, in the County of Eſſex, &c. make conſtitute and ordain this my laſt Will and Teſtament, in Manner, &c. And after divers Bequeſts to her Servants, Elizab. Hall, Will. Watſon, Tho. Lamplaye, Jo Watſon, Tho. Smyth, ... Evans, Avys Dyal, Mary Feſtalf, Eliz. Gray, and others, &c. ‘ And I do moſt humbly beſeech the King's Majeſty to be good and gracious to my Servant Elizab. Dudley, &c. And that it may likewiſe pleaſe his moſt excellent Majeſty, towards the Payment of my Debts, and Reward of my Servants, to give unto me, or unto my Executrice, [who was the abovesaid Eliz. Dudley] the Sum of 35 l. due unto me at Michaelmas next enſuing, for the Half Years of mine Annuity, graunted unto me by the Virtue of his gracious Letters Patents, for my poor Service, done as well unto his Majeſty in his tender Age, as alſo unto his dearly beloved Siſters, the Lady Mary's Grace, and the Lady Elizabeth's Grace. And in Conſideration of my ſaid Service, it may finally pleaſe his Majeſty, to graunt unto me, or my Executrice, a ſufficient Diſcharge, or Quietus eſt, for all ſuch Things I had in my Charge or Cuſtody, of his Majeſty's, during the Time of my daily Attendance upon his Highneſs: Having deliver'd the ſame, and every Part thereof, to the Hands of Sir Geo. Cotton, and Sir Jaſper Horſye, Knts. as appears by the ſeveral Bills under their Hands and Seals, ready to be ſhewed.

Regiſt. Bp of Lond. J. Worthingt.

In the Pariſh Church of Low Leyton are theſe

MONUMENTS.

In the upper Chancel, an ancient large Monument againſt the North Wall, with two Arches of the Doric Order of Architecture. It hath no Inſcription, but Coats of Arms under each Arch, impaled Baron and Femme. Sable, a Bend Argent, charged with three Mullets Gules, between ſix Croſſes Croſlets of the Second. The other Coat impaled is defaced. The Creſt is a Griffin's Head erazed Argent.

Under the other Arch, another Coat impaled: The Coat of the Femme is plain, which is, Gules, a Cheveron Ermine, between three Pelicans Or. Which is the Coat of Stone of Holme in Norfolk. The Creſt the ſame as the other. This, I ſuppoſe, was his ſecond Wife.

This is ſaid to be the Monument of Sir William Rither, or Rider, Lord Maior of London, Anno 1600, and dyed An. 1611. And if ſo, then the Coat of the Baron impaled, which is now not diſcoverable, was, Azure, three Creſcents Or. The Griffin's Head erazed is the Creſt of Rither. This Sir William Rider (who was Lord of the Manour of Leyton Grange) was the third Son of Edward Rither of Leyton in Eſſex, and married Elizabeth Daughter of Richard Stone of Holme in Norfolk. By whom he had two Daughters, Mary and Suſan, Coheirs. The latter married to Sir Thomas Cæſar, Kt. and Mary (the elder) married to Sir Thomas Lake, Kt. ſometime one of the Principal Secretaries of State. To whom, by that Marriage, the Poſſeſſion of the Manour of Low Leyton, or Leyton Grange, ſeems to have come.

But before this Family became Poſſeſſors here, Sir Rafe Fitz Warren bought this Manour and Advouſon of the Church in the Year 1545, 37 H. 8. He was Sheriff of London 1528, and Maior 1536. His Coat of Arms, as it is in Stow, was, a Cheveron engrailed, charged with three Griffins Heads erazed, between as many Maſcles. And therefore, perhaps, the Coat on the abovesaid old Monument in the upper Chancel or Chapel, now ſcarce viſible, were the Griffins Heads, (the Creſt being a Griffin's Head) the Warrens Arms. And he the firſt Erector of that Monument, with the Vault underneath: Built, undoubtedly, in the Popiſh Times, there being two Words on that Monument, viz MERCY in one Place of it, and JESU in another, with Glories about each Word. Which ſtood there of later Times, tho' now conveyed away. And that Part of the Church was, very probably, a Chapel, or or Chantery, (having a Place for a Bell upon the Roof, in my Remembrance) for the ſame Sir Rafe. He was Merchant of the Staple, and Merchant Adventurer, and twice L. Maior; and was buried (whether here or elſewhere) in great Splendor, July 16, 1553, with a Standard, and five Penons of Arms, a Coat Armour, a Target, a Helmet, &c. 12 Dozen of Eſcutcheons: Three Heralds of Arms attending, the L. Maior, and Sword-bearer, and the four Eſquires, Mourners, and many Aldermen. And 50 Gowns given unto 50 poor Men, of Ruts Colour, of Cloth of a Noble a Yard. And a great Dinner, where the L. Maior and divers Aldermen dined.

Repertor. Eccleſiaſt.

Sir Thomas White and Joanna his Wife, preſented to the Vicarage An. 1564. Quære, if Sir Thomas had not this Church and Lordſhip in Right of his Wife, and ſhe Sir Rafe Fitz Warren's Daughter.

In the old Chancel, on a Braſs Plate againſt the South Wall, is this Inſcription for the Lady Kingſton:

If you wil the Truythe have,
Here lyeth in this Grave,
Directly under this Stone,
Good Lady Mary Kyngeſtone:
Who departed this Lyff, the Truythe to ſay,
In the Moneth of Auguſt, the twenty fift Day:
And as I do well remember,
Was buried honourably the fourth Day of September.
The Yere of our Lord, rekynyd truely,
MV^c fourty and eight varily.
Whoſe yerly obyte and Anniverſary,
Is determynyd to be kept ſurely,
At the Coſt of her Son Sir Henry Jerningham truely:
Who was at this makyng,
Of the Queens Guard cheff Capteyn.

Upon a Braſs Plate on the Floor hard by:

Here lyes interred the Body of Andrew Redich, who deceaſed the 14th of March, 1603.

And againſt the Wall, a ſmall Monument, with theſe Words:

Near to this Monument lyeth the Body of Andrew Redich, the ſecond Son of Raphe Redich of Mottran in Long Deudal in the County of Cheſter, Gentleman. Who had to Wife Margaret Fletcher, Daughter to Raphe Fletcher of Preſcot, within the County of Lancaſter, Gent. Which Andrew deceaſed the xiiii of March, 1603, being of the Age of 45 Years. The Coat here is a Field Argent, a Lyon rampant Gules.

Juſt by, is a plain Stone, and engraven thereon Henry Parvysh, ... of Auguſt 1593. He was an eminent Merchant of London, Owner of the Manour of Ruckholts in the ſaid Pariſh: Whoſe Widow matched to Michael Hicks, Eſq; afterwards, Kt. The Poſterity of whom remain there to this Day.

Upon another Stone is a Braſs Plate faſtened, with this Inſcription:

Here under this Stone lyeth buried the Body of Henry Archer, late of Layghton, Eſquire. Who deceaſed the 4th Day of October, in the Year of our Lord God 1585, being of the Age of 59.

This Gentleman gave to this Pariſh, wherein he lived, twenty Shillings a Year to be diſpoſed to ſuch poor People as ſhould be at Church on Whitſunday.

Henr. Archer, a Writer.

I meet with one Henry Archer, (whether this or ſome other of this Name, I know not) who was one of the Guards to the Earl of Leiceſter, when Lord Lieutenant in the Low Countries: He wrote of the Exploits of the Engliſh in thoſe Countries, againſt the Spaniard, Anno 1585. Which J. Stow made Uſe of in his Annals. In one Page whereof, he thus acknowledgeth: "Thus far I have received Advertiſement from "my good Friend and dear Kinſman Henry Archer, one of his Excellency's Guard." And in ſeveral other Places his Name is ſet in the Margin of that Hiſtory.

Annal. Qto. Pa. 1239.

Next by the Side of this, a fair Stone, with a Coat of Arms bearing Baron and Femme. The Baron, two Cheverons. The Femme, within a Border with Roundlets, the Field Checky. The Colours appear not. Inſcribed thus:

Here lyeth the Body of Lawrence Moyer, Eſquire. Who dyed the 27th of Auguſt, in the Year of our Lord MDCLXXXV. Aged 77.
Alſo Frances his late Wife, Daughter of Nicolas Alvey, Citizen and Grocer of London. She dyed Jan. 26, 1586. Aged 53.

On the North Side of this Stone, another Stone with a Braſs Plate, containing the Figures of a Man with many Sons behind him; and of a Woman with many Daughters behind her, and underneath, this written:

Piæ Memoriæ,

Elizæ. Wood dilectiſſimæ Conjugis Tobiæ Wood, Armigeri. Quæ duodena prole ſuſcepta, ſeptima ſuperſtite, decimaq; tertia in utero matris intumulata, quotquot illam nôſſe contigit triſte ſui deſiderium reliquit;

Poſui.

Then ſhe is brought in ſpeaking to her Huſband in theſe Engliſh Verſes:

Wail not, my Wood, thy Tree's untimely Fall:
They were but Leaves that Autumn's Blaſt could ſpoil:
The Bark bound up, and ſome fair Fruit withal,
Tranſplanted only ſhe exchang'd her Soyl.
She is not dead, ſhe did but fall to riſe,
And leave the Woods to live in Paradiſe.

Inſuper & Caro mea requieſcit in pace, Pſal. 16.

Lower in the Chancel Ile is a plain ſmall Stone with a Plate of Braſs, repreſenting a female Child, with Hair diſhevelled, ſtanding, and holding her Hands in a praying Poſture; and theſe Verſes underneath:

Ursula ſum Luce ſum Gasparis unica gnata.
Ursula, virgineis me pia junge choris.

An. Dom. MCCCCLXXXXIII°, xiii die Junii.

Somewhat higher in the ſame Ile, is a large black Marble Stone, containing this Inſcription on a Braſs Plate:

Here lyeth buried the Body of Sir Edward Holmeden, Kt. Sometime Citizen and Alderman of London. Who took to Wiſe Dame Elizabeth, and had by her five Sons, viz. Thomas, Thomas, Edward, George, and John: And four Daughters, Mary, Suſan, Elizabeth, and Elizabeth. Which Sir Edward dyed the 4th of July, 1616. Ætat. ſuæ 72.

This Holmeden was Sheriff of London in the Year 1598.

On a Braſs Plate over the Epigraph, is the Coat of Arms. Baron and Femme, A Feſſe Ermin, between two Chevronels of the ſame.

A Lion paſſant. The Coat of the Taylors. An Annulet, for Diſtinction. The Creſt, A Tyger's Head erazed.

Charles Mareſcoe, Merchant, lies under a ſmall Stone, buried in this Chancel An. 1672, with ſeveral of his Children, as namely, Charles, James, Mary, and Elizabeth.
His better and more laſting Monument is a very ſtately Houſe near Capworth Street, in the Pariſh, lately built by Mr. David Ganſel, who married Anne, one of his Daughters and Heirs, deceaſed.

In the new Chancel are two very fair Monuments erected againſt the South and North Walls.

That againſt the South Wall, is made with two Arches; where are the Effigies of Sir Michael Hicks, Kt. and his Lady, both lying at Length: He in the Habit of a Knight; ſhe with a mourning Veil, leaning their Heads on their Hands. Over the Man is this Epitaph:

In obitum Clariſſ. viri D. Michaelis Hickes,
Equitis aurati, &c.

Quæ volui in vita vidi, dulciſſima nuper
Pignora, Conſortem charam, ſortemq; beatæ
Prolis; Erant nati gemini, nata una parenti.
Optabam Chriſtum: hinc morti ſuccumbo, Lubenſq;
Conſortem, Sortem, Natos, natamq; relinquo.

Over her, theſe Verſes:

Me tua mors viduam fecit: tu jam viduatus
Connubium Chriſti, non viduandus habes.
At junctam hoc tumulo me ſponſam rurſus habebis.
Sic tua ſemper ero, quæ tua nuper eram.

This fair Monument originally ſtood againſt the Eaſt Wall in the old Chancel. Which Wall being to be taken down for the building of a new Chancel, (that Part of the Church being found neceſſary to be enlarged) the ſaid Monument was carefully taken down, and the new Building being finiſhed, it was ſet up again in the Place where it now ſtands.

Oppoſite againſt this Monument on the North Side, Sir William Hicks, Kt. and Bart. in his Life Time erected that magnificent Monument that appears there for Sir William Hicks, Bart. his Father, for himſelf and his Lady, in three ſtately Marble Statues; he and his Lady ſtanding, and in the Middle between them his Father, with a Truncheon in his Hand, as Lieutenant of Waltham Foreſt, and one of the Deputy Lieutenants of the County, lying on one Side. The Monument hath this Inſcription:

S.

Underneath Sir William Hickes the Elder, is this Inſcription:

Sir WILLIAM HICKES, Bart. Lieutenant of the Foreſt of WALTHAM, one of the Deputy Lieutenants of this County of Eſſex, and an ancient Juſtice of Peace for the ſaid County; and who, for his Loyalty to King CHARLES I. in the great Rebellion, underwent much Trouble and Danger, married MARGARET eldeſt Daughter of WILLIAM L. PAGET of BEAUDESERT. By whom he had Iſſue (beſides others that dyed young) Sir WILLIAM HICKES, Kt. and Bart. Sir MICHAEL HICKES, Kt. and Dame LÆTITIA matched to ARTHUR Earl of DONEGAL in Ireland. The ſaid WILLIAM dying full of Days and Honour, was buried with a Decency due to his Quality, and lyeth in the old Chancel: Having lived 28 Years after the Deceaſe of his Lady: Who dying at Weſtminſter, was interred in the Abby Church there.

In the North Ile, againſt the Wall, a handſome Monument of white Marble:

M. S.

Not far from this Place, in Hope of a bleſſed Reſurrection lyeth interred the Body of Anne the ſole ſurviving Daughter and Heir of William Fiſher, Eſq; late of London Alderman; and the late dear Wife of Nathaniel Tench of London, Eſq; With whom ſhe lived in holy Wedlock moſt piouſly and chaſtly 29 Years and 9 Months: And had Iſſue by him eleven Children, viz. 8 Sons and 3 Daughters. Three only of which ſurvived her, viz. One Son, Fiſher, and two Daughters, Anne and Elizabeth. She departed this Life the 25th of April, 1696, and in the fifty firſt Year of her Age.

To whoſe dear Memory, her ſorrowful Huſband erected this Monument.

And upon the ſame Monument, Alderman Tench being deceaſed, was inſcribed theſe Words:

And in the ſame Grave, by his particular Direction, lyeth interred the Body of the ſaid Nathaniel Tench. That, as in Life, ſo in Death, they might be united in the two States of Life and Death. He departed this Life the 2d Day of April 1710, and in the 79th Year of his Age.

In the Church Yard, Weſt of the Church, in a new Vault, is interred the Body of Dame Eliz. Hickes, late Wife of Sir Harry Hickes of Ruckholts, Bart. the Daughter of Sir John Holmes, a Flag Officer in the Fleet in King Charles the Second's Reign. On a Tomb raiſed over her is this Inſcription:

Hic inferius jacent Reliquiæ Dnæ. ELIZABETHÆ HICKES, Conjugis HARREII HICKES, Baronetti. Quæ obiit Januarii 14°. Anno Dom. 1705. Ætat. ſuæ 29°. Fœmina venuſtate & moribus, & (quod magis eſt) Virtute & Pietate ornatiſſima: Fidelitate & Amore Marito conjunctiſſima. Cui Filium unum, & duas Filias peperit. Cognatis ſuis blanda, Pauperibus benefica, Ægrotis medica, Amicis fida, Comis omnibus. Morbum diuturnum, Dolores graviſſimos patienter tulit, Soli nixa Deo. Qui eam, quoniam dignus illâ non erat Mundus, in cœlum recepit.

Si Charitas non moritur, æternùm vivet.

WALTHAMSTOW.

Walthamſtow. Its Situation. A Little Mile North Eaſt of Low Leyton is the Pariſh of Walthamſtow ſituate; waſhed likewiſe and bounded on the Weſt with the River Ley, from whence the Town gently riſeth unto the Foreſt.

The Church. The Church is fair and large, mounted upon a Hill; conſiſting of three Iles: That on the North Side built by a great Benefactor to that Pariſh, Sir George Monoux, Alderman, and Maior of the City of London, in the Reign of K. Henry the Eighth. Whoſe Coat of Arms ſtill remains in one of the Windows of that Ile. He built alſo the fair Steeple.

Seats. In this Pariſh are divers ancient Seats: As Higham Hall, the Seat of the Rowes, an ancient mily: A fair and graceful Houſe in Hoo Street, inhabited by Joh. Conyers, Eſq; (Patron of the Vicarage) and his Anceſtors.

In the Church are theſe MONUMENTS.

In the Middle Ile there ſtill remain the Monumental Stones of two ancient Vicars thereof.

On a Braſs Plate is the Effigies of a Prieſt in his miniſtring Garments, with a ſhaven Crown, his Hands clapt together, and this Inſcription at his Feet:

Hic jacet Dns. Wilhelm. Hyll, nuper Vicarius iſtius Eccleſiæ. Qui obiit vii° die menſ. Julii, An° Dni. Mill°. CCCC° LXXXVII. Cujus animæ propitietur Deus, Amen.

Walthamſtow. Regiſt. Lond. Lib. Lytchfield. William Hyll, Vicar of Walcomeſtow in Eſſex, by his Will, dated May 17, 1487, gives to the Church of Walcumſtow an Acre of Meadow of the Lowhal Hold: Upon Condition it be not ſold, but yearly the Profit thereof come to the Church. Item, he gives to his Couſin James Bryce a Grove at Leyton Brigg, with the Croft adjoining. With divers other Parcels of Land in Walcumſtow, and an Houſe, to his Relations.

At the Head of this, another Braſs Plate, the Figure of the Prieſt gone. The Inſcription as follows:

Hic jacet Dns. Henricus Crane, quondam Baccalaureus utriuſq; Juris, & Vicarius iſtius Eccleſiæ. Qui obiit xxviii die Octobr. An. Dni M° CCCC° XXXVI. Cujus animæ propitietur Deus.

To which I join the Monument of another ancient Vicar of this Church, tho' erected in another Place: Being on a Braſs Plate, an Effigies of a Preacher in the Pulpit, againſt a Pillar in the South Ile: With this Inſcription:

GEORGIUS JOHNSON, Verbi & Sacramentorum Miniſter. exceſſit Sept. die. 5. Salutis anno 1576. Ætat 36. Sedit hic Vicarius annis 10.

The Office ſet by Paſtor true,
(By Chriſt) his Flock to guide,
Is unto them his Faith to preach,
And from it never ſlide.
The Duty to the Flock aſſign'd,
God's Word is to obey;
And on the ſame to ſtay themſelves,
With Faith and Hope alway.
For here on Earth, as Pilgrims ſtrange,
We daily ſeek for Reſt:
Yet finding none, becauſe we bee
With ſinful Fleſh oppreſt.
No State on Earth, no Pomp may laſt,
No Fleſh can long endure;
But being Earth, to Earth ſhall turn:
Of this we be moſt ſure.
Then ſith our Days be full of Ill,
While we do paſs the ſame:
Let us redeem them doing good,
Not ſeeking Praiſe, ne Fame.
But Glory, Praiſe, and Honour due,
Yield we to God of right:
Whoſe Promiſe is, all Darkneſs paſt,
To give us his true Light.

Out of his Mouth goes a Label, with theſe Words:

Poſt Tenebras ſpero Lucem.

Before the Communion Table, within the Rails, upon a fair Marble Stone, covering the Body of Pierſe, ſometime Bp of Bath and Wells, and who lived and dyed in this Pariſh, is this Inſcription:

Hic jacet R. Prælatus, GUILIELMUS PIERSE. Qui a ſede Petriburgenſi ad Bathonienſem & Wellenſem tranſlatus fuit, Anno Car. I. 8*vo. A qua Temporum iniquitate perturbatus fuit, uſq; ad Reditum* Caroli II. Reſtitutus, Templum Cathedrale Wellenſe reparavit, Epiſcopale Palatium exædificavit, cœlis maturus, terris valedixit, An. Ætat. 94. Salutis 1670.

Next to the Biſhop's Stone was another, inſcribed on a Braſs Plate thus:

Margery, late Wife of William Nicolls, and Daughter of Marmaduke Fairbary of Darlington in the Biſhoprick of Durham. Which Margaret dyed the v. Day of April M CCCC LXI.
O! Bleſſed Trinity, have Mercy on her Soul, Amen.

This Stone is now removed to the South Chancel.

Againſt the East Wall South of the Altar are two Effigies, half Way in Stone, of a Knight and a Lady; and an Account of the Lady underneath engraven in theſe Words:

By Vertue of his Death, that was the Death of Death; and in Vigour of his Reſurrection, and that the Reſurrection and the Life, even her victorious Jesus; here reſts depoſited to the aſſured Hope of Immortality and Glory, all that was mortal of that Religious and Chriſtian Matron, Dame Mary Merry, laſt and for ever the moſt deſired Conſort of Sir Thomas Merry of Walthamſtow in the County of Eſſex, Kt. A Lady, whom, if either intenſive Piety to her God, or extenſive Charity to her Neighbour: If Faithfulneſs to her Celeſtial, or Fidelity to her Terreſtrial Spouſe: If the Deſires of her Friends, the Prayers of her Children, or the Tears of the Poor, could have embailed from the common Frailty, ſhe had not, Reader, in theſe periſhable Poſtures, ſtood the ſad Remembrancer of their Loſs, and thy Mortality.

Seeing ſhe is gone, go ſpeed thyſelf, frail Duſt, of a Monument of like permanent Vertues. They, they are the liklieſt Morals to tranſmit thy Memory to Poſterity, that have perpetuated hers to Eternity.

By a ſhort Inſcription following, (viz. Thomas Merry Eques auratus Conſors, &c.) it appears ſhe dyed Anno 1632, and he, in his Life Time, erected it in a dear Remembrance of her.

Under his Effigies the Inſcription is wanting. There be two Heads of Men ſet under him, and two of Women, dreſſed in their Hair, under her: their Children, no doubt.

Under her, likewiſe, beſides the Epitaph above, are added theſe Verſes ſet in Gold; whereof the Tradition is, that Sir William D'avenant was the Compoſer.

Poſteritati æmulæ Sacrum.

Tho 'tis but vain to raiſe dead Stones to Her,
Whoſe Vertues their own live Inſcription were:
Yet, not to envy future Times their Part,
Of what a Wife's Loſs hath gain'd on my Heart,
I have this hardy Pile inſpir'd to mutter,
Plaints that would break a Widow'd Heart to utter.
The Top of conjugal Obedience,
The Pattern of unconquer'd Patience,
The Cloſet of religious Prayer retir'd,
The Altar which devout Zele daily fir'd.
The Life of diſcrete Hoſpitality,
The Soul of Home-affecting Houſewifry,
The rare Example of maternal Care,
Dead in this one Urn, and con . . . . . . are.
Preſs gently, Earth, and keep each Grain in Truſt,
'Till Heaven re . . . . it of this rich Duſt.

On the North Side of the Communion Table is an ancient fair Table Monument of Sir GEORGE MONOX, Kt. and his Lady; the Braſs Plates pulled off. A Label with theſe Words on a Braſs Plate, coming out of his Mouth, O Lord, ſhew thy Mercy upon us. Another Label with theſe Words out of hers, O Lord, give to us thy Salvation. This Gentleman, (who lived at Moons) was the Noble Benefactor before ſpoken of, and was the Founder of the Hoſpital and School ſituated in the Churchyard: And alſo endowed them well; but much of the Endowment withdrawn. For the Recovery of which, Endeavours have been made more than once, at Commiſſions for charitable Uſes: But as yet to none Effect.

Lower down on that Side of the Chancel, is a very fair Monument arched over: Where is the Effigies of a Lady upon her Knees: And this Inſcription:

Sir EDWARD STANLEY erected this Monument for a Teſtimony of his Love which he bear to his Wife, Lady LUCIE, and his four Daughters deceaſed.

Two other Effigies of Women praying, and this written between them:

The Souls of the Saints live.

On the other Side of the Monument:

THOMAS STANLEY, Kt. ſecond Son of Edward Earl of Darby, L. Stanley and Strange, deceaſed, from the Family of the Stanleys; married Margaret Vernon, one of the Daughters and Coheirs of Sir George Vernon of Nether Haddon in the County of Derby, Kt. By whom he had Iſſue two Sons, Henry and Edward: Henry dyed an Infant. Edward ſurvived, (to whom theſe Lordſhips deſcended) and married Lady Lucie Percy, ſecond Daughter to Thomas Earl of Northumberland: And by her he had Iſſue ſeven Daughters, and one Son. She and her four Daughters, Arabella, Mary, Alice and Priſcilla, are interred under a Monument in the Church of Walthamſtow in the County of Eſſex. Thomas, her Son, dyed an Infant, and is buried in the County of Lancaſter. The other three, Petronella, Frances, and Venetia, are living.

Another Stone, and two Braſs Plates of a Man and Woman, with another Braſs Plate underneath both, and theſe Latin Verſes inſcribed:

Filia Porteri, Thalamis Sociata, ſed Halo,
Granta me genuit, nunc tegor hoc tumulo.
Quatuor en! natos, natas totidémq; relinquo.
Nunc quoq; cum Chriſto, qui vocat, ecce, migro.
Terra fui, Cinis & Pulvis: tamen iſta reſumo,
Cum ſanctis vivens judice læta Deo.
Vos orate, pii Lectores, quilibet ergo;
Dicat quiſq; pius, Propitiato Deus.
1588.

In the North Chancel, a Stone with a Braſs Plate, and this inſcribed on it:

Here lyes the Corps of Thomas Brown,
Eſquire, engrav'd in Ground;
Whoſe cunning Skill and Conſcience eke,
The Chequer Court doth ſound.
A Man who living fed the Poor,
And feaſted Friend and Foe:
Did Good to many, Hurt to none,
And feared God alſo.
Yet dreadful Death bereft his Life,
His Body turn'd to Duſt:
His Soul with God, I hope, doth reſt,
And reign among the Juſt.
24. of Decemb. 1582.

Againſt the North Wall in this Chancel, on a Braſs Plate, is this Memorial of Will. Rowe, of the ancient Family of the Rowes of this Pariſh:

Gulielmus Rowe de Higham Hill in Comitat. Eſſex, Generoſus, Thomæ Rowe Miles natu tertius, Oxonii in Collegio Merton. optimarum artium ſtudiis præclare inſtitutus, cum ſumma laude non ſolum domi Mag. in Artibus adeptus eſt Dignitatem; ſed etiam foris in Germania & Gallia, ob ſummam eruditionem & pietatem, viris eruditis, præcipuè autem Immanueli Tremellio, & Theodoro Bezæ, *longè chariſſimus fuit. On the Weſt, for Capt. William Moulton. Who departed Sept. 9, 1695, Aged 63.

Adieu, great Soul, whoſe living Glories ſtand,
And proudly their own Monument command:
Who never ſtruggled to reſign his Breath,
Tho' he, like Fate, could once diſtribute Death.
The Fierceneſs of his untam'd youthful Age,
Vertue and manly Reaſon did aſſwage.
Dangers to him ſuch pleaſing Forms did bear,
His Looks in Fight ſo unconcerned were,
That he poſſeſt a Peace, tho' deep engag'd in War:
And when his frozen Limbs had loſt their Fire,
Spurr'd with a noble and a brave Deſire,
Like Cæſar, with his Eyes could Victory inſpire.

Another for Sarah Reeve, Daughter of John Reeve, Grocer of London: Departed 18. Sept. 1704.

In Hopes of a glorious Reſurrection. Another for Dinah Beal, Widow. Who departed 10. Sept. 1703. Unto whoſe Memory, her affectionate Brother, Mr. Anth. Compton, cauſed this Tomb to be erected, in Hope as above.

There be divers curiouſly engraven Marble Figures on each Side of the Monument, beſides that of his Son Bernard underneath, viz. Two Women ſitting on either Side, in very melancholic, lamenting Poſtures: One leaning her Head upon her Hand, the other Hand ſtretched downward; the other Woman cloſing her Hands together, and wringing them: Both with Veils over their Heads. And there be likewiſe, by Way of Ornament, Boys in mourning Poſtures; and one of them blowing up a Bubble.

Over the Monument is the Coat of Arms: Gules, a Cheveron Ermin, charged with a bloody Hand, between 3 Doves, Argent.

In this Chancel, a fair flat Marble Stone with this Inſcription:

Here lyes the Body of Edward Farrar, Eſq; ſometime an Inhabitant of this Pariſh. Late of Canons in this County. He dyed Jan. 2, 170$\frac{8}{9}$. Aged 39.

Company; pleaſantly and healthfully ſituated. It was formerly in the Crown. Where Q. Elizabeth ſometimes came; and K. James I retired here, when he pleaſed, for his Hunting Recreation. The preſent Honourable Poſſeſſor thought fit upon ſome Decays, to pull down the old Houſe, and hath erected, and near finiſhed, a moſt noble Structure in the Place; being 260 Foot in Length, and 74 in Depth: Where, among other Rooms of State, is a Chapel and a Library, for Religion and Learning.

In this Houſe the great Earl of Leiceſter in Q. Elizabeth's Reign reſided. And from hence went General of the Queen's Forces to Tilbury Camp, when the Spaniards in the Year 1588, came with their Fleet to invade the Realm. Upon his Death (which was that Year) it reverted to the Crown. Before this, it belonged to Richard L. Rich, Lord Chancellor to K. Henry the Eighth. And before him this Houſe and Manour came to that King from Giles Heron, a great Man in that Reign. Who (for ſome Crime, as is likely) made a Gift thereof to the King: Yet, notwithſtanding, was executed then, or afterwards. For ſo I read in an old Writing, that gave Account of all the Manours and Revenues that came to King Henry the Eighth, from the 3d Year of his Reign, and ſo onward. Among the reſt, there is an Houſe and Eſtate thus termed: "A great Meſ-
" ſuage, called Naked Hall Hawe, [i e. Court]
" and Lands in Wanſted and Ilford in Eſſex, given
" by Giles Heron, Eſq; in the 23d Year of his
" Reign, [Ann. 1531.]"

Ann Dom. 1540, Giles Heron was attainted of Treaſon, (no ſpecial Matter being mentioned) and executed at Tiburn. So our Hiſtorians.

In little Ilford Church, which is the next Pariſh, bordering upon Wanſted, there is, or lately was, an old Monumental Inſcription for Tho. Heron, Son and Heir of John Heron, Kt. Treaſurer of the Chamber. Who dyed at Alderſbroke, Ann. 1517: Which is an ancient Seat hard by Wanſted: Now poſſeſs'd by Sir John Lethieulier, Kt.

Hiſt. Reformat. Pt. I. p. 161. Hollinſh.

If this Wanſted Place be the ſame with that Naked Hall Hawe, it might antiently well be ſo called, lying ſo naked and open by reaſon of its Advancement upon Hills, and ſo without the Covering and Shelter of Trees: But had it not loſt that Name long ago, now it muſt; the vaſt and beautiful Plantation of Trees about it, having imparted Cover to it, as well as Ornament.

Still above an hundred Years before, I meet with a Citizen, and ſometime Sheriff of London, owner of this Manour of Wanſted, Anno 1442, Robert Taterſal, Citizen and Clothworker of London, one of the Sheriffs that Year, gave by his laſt Will, dated 1449, his Manour of Wanſted in Eſſex, to his Wife Anne, for her Life: And after, to his Son Joh. Taterſal: And bequeathed twenty Shillings to ſome of the young Men and Workers in that Trade, to feaſt together, and to pray for his Soul. He was buried in St. Swithen's Church. Vid. the Surv of London, Walbrook Ward.

St. AUGUSTINE's alias St. JOHN's at HACKNEY.

J. S.

NOW bending Weſtward on the other Side the River Ley is ſituate the pleaſant and healthful Town of Hackney; where divers Nobles in former Times had their Country Seats, as, an Earl of Northumberland, a Counteſs of Warwick, Lord Brook, &c. This Church of Hackney hath been of late ſtiled by the Name of St. John's at Hackney, as tho' it belonged to the Knights Templars of St. John at Jeruſalem, as certainly they had a Mill, and ſome Tenures in the Pariſh. But in an ancient Record of the Tower it is found to have been written, Eccleſia parochialis S. Auguſtini de Hackney. And in the Cotton Library there is a Volume about the Knights Templars; wherein mention is made of St. Auguſtine's Hackney, and of the Lands and Rents they had there, namely, about 12 Acres, and 7 l. quit Rents, and a Mill, commonly called Temple Mill.

There are beſides, theſe Antiquities concerning this Pariſh of Hackney, found in Records: And ſome of them kindly communicated to me by Mr. Tardley, ſometime Inhabitant; and with the Favour of Francis Tyſſon, Eſq; late Lord of the Manour, deceaſed, whoſe Clerk he was.

Antiquities of Hackney. Andrew Yardley.

There is in the Tower-Records a Patent, being a Licenſe to erect a Guild in the Church of Hackney, to the Holy Trinity, and the glorious Virgin Mary; granted to Henry Sharp, Perſone Eccleſie Parochialis S. AUGUSTINI de Hackney.

A Chauntry founded in St. Auguſtine's Hackney. Pat. 18. E. 4. pt. 2. m. 21.

The Biſhops of London had Demeſnes in Hackney, in the Time of Edward the Firſt: In the nineteenth of whoſe Reign, which was Anno 1290, free Warren was granted to Richard de Graveſend Biſhop of London, in terris ſuis dominicis de Stepenhethe, [alias Stebunhithe] & Hackeneye.

Demeſnes of the Biſhops of London in Hackney. Record Turr.

There was one John Duckett held Lands in Hackney, of the Biſhop of London, who had granted them to St. Mary's Spittle without Biſhopſgate;

Lands in Hackney given to St. Mary's Hoſpital. Record. Turr.

Biſhopſgate; as was found by an Inquiſition in 12 E. 1. Concerning a Licenſe Hoſpitali Ste. Marie extra Biſhopſgate, for Lands in Hackney granted to John Ducket. The Inqueſt found, that he held thoſe Lands of the Biſhop of London: And the Biſhop of the King.

Hackney Recto-ry and Vica-rage. Rot. Taxat.

Hackney Church had, five hundred Years ago, a diſtinct Rectory and Vicarage: As appears by a Record in the Tower, 20 E. 1. of the Value of that Eccleſiaſtical Preferment. Ecclia. de Hackeney val. 50 Marc. Vicaragia 12 Marcas. Which was occaſioned by an Order from Pope Nicolas, that all the Benefices in England ſhould be taxed, to know their Values.

The Præcentor of St. Paul's hath the Church of Hackney. Pat. Rol. 26. E. 3. pt. 1. m. 18.

Add alſo, a Patent 26 Ed. 3. about 1352, to the Biſhop of London, that inſtead of the Church of Stortford in Hertfordſhire, (which belonged to the Precentor of St. Paul's) for the Church of Hackney, to be appropriated to the ſame Precentor of St. Paul's, for the Maintenance of his Quality. The Patent ran to this Tenor:

“ Upon the Supplication of Radulph Biſhop of London, for the better Suſtentation of the Eſtate of the Precentor of St. Paul's, to which the Church of Storteford, of the Taxations of twenty Marks, was only annexed; which, by reaſon of the Smalneſs of it, was not ſufficient to ſuſtain a Man of ſo great Eſtate: We do will and grant to the ſaid Biſhop, that he, for the Augmentation of the ſaid Precentorſhip, and that he that is now Precentor, and his Succeſſors, may more decently live, and in a more competent Manner ſuſtain themſelves, may annex, appropriate, and unite the Church of Hakeney, which is of the ſame Biſhop's Advouſon, taxed at 50 Marks to the ſaid Precentorſhip, in the Room of the ſaid Church of Storteford. So that the Precentor of the ſame Dignity, and his Anceſtors, may have the ſaid Church of Hakeney annexed and appropriated, in the Room of the ſaid Church of Storteford, to him and his Succeſſors.

One Wodehouſe preſented to Hackney. Record. Turr.

The King once preſented a Clerk to the Living of Hackney, in the Vacation of the Biſhoprick. So it is found in the Patent Rolls of 10 E. 2. (i. e. about the Year 1316.) Robertus de Wodehouſe Clericus habet Literas Regis de Preſentatione ad Eccleſiam de Hakeney, Lond. Dioc. vacantem ad Regis donationem ſpectant. rone. Epatus. London. vacantis & in manu Regis exiſtent. Et diriguntur Litere Regis Electo Lond. Confirmato. In cujus, &c. Teſte Rege apud Clarryndon x die April.

Patent for the Chauntry.

I will here alſo ſubjoin K. Edward the Fourth's Letters Patents, for allowing the Chauntry abovementioned in this Church; that as well ſomething may be ſeen of the Devotion of the Inhabitants of Hackney in thoſe Times; as alſo what Tutelary Saint this Church then owned.

Omnibus ad quos, &c. That is in Engliſh, “ To all to whom theſe Preſents ſhall come, greeting. Know ye, that, of our eſpecial Grace, we have granted and given Licenſe for us and our Heirs, as much as lies in us, To our beloved Maſter Henry Sharp, Parſon of the Parochial Church Sti. AUGUSTINI de Hakeney, to our beloved Simon Elryngton, Gentilman; and John Elryngton of Hakeney, Gentilman; Pariſhioners of the Parochial Church aforeſaid; that he, or any of them, or their Executors, longeſt living, to the Praiſe, Grace, and Honour of the Holy Trinity, and the glorious Virgin Mary, may, either he or they, in the ſame Church, begin, found, erect, unite, create, and eſtabliſh one perpetual Fraternity or Guild, conſiſting of two Guardians, and Brethren, and Siſters, of the ſame Pariſh, and of others, who, of their Devotion, will be of the ſame Fraternity or Guild. And that the Guardians, and Brethren, and Siſters, may augment the ſame Fraternity or Guild, as often and when it ſhall ſeem hereafter to them neceſſary. And on the Feaſt of Trinity, they might chooſe to themſelves two Guardians.

Good Water in Hackney.

Hackney hath ſeveral Wells of wholeſome and excellent Water; as Pig-well; another Well in Church-field; another, which gives the Name to Well-ſtreet; another on the Downes: And alſo Shacklewell ſeems to take its Denomination from ſome Well thereabouts. There is alſo another Chalybeat Well, paſſing a little Way out of Church-ſtreet, towards Dorleſton: But now diſuſed. For the greater Convenience of this Pariſh, Pipes have been lately laid from the River up to Clopton, and ſo to other Parts and Places of the ſaid Town, at the Charge of Mr. Tyſſen, late Lord of the Manour.

Shacklewell.

In Shacklewell is an ancient Manour Houſe, formerly belonging to the Family of the Rows, eminent Citizens, ever ſince Q. Elizabeth's Time: Late poſſeſt by Francis Tyſſen, Eſq; Father and Son both deceaſed. In the Hall and Parlour Windows are ſeveral painted Coats of Arms, that ſeem to have ſtood there from ancient Times; as, beſides the Rows, the Mortymers, &c.

Manour of Wyke in Hackney.

The Manour of Wyke in Hackeney and Stepney was granted anciently, 1. Hen. 4. to Matild, Wife of Alane Buxhul, and John Aubrey; and after married to John Montague, Earl of Sarum. She was Daughter and Heir of Adam Francis, a mighty wealthy Citizen, and Alderman of London.

Shore Place.

There is a Manour in this Pariſh, called The King's Hold; where, near Well-ſtreet, is an ancient Houſe, called Shore Place; becauſe, they ſay, Jane Shore had an Habitation here. And in this Houſe, to preſerve this Tradition, now, or late, was her Picture. I have been told, it was formerly the Manour Houſe, and the Lord's Court kept here. It now belongs to St. Thomas's Hoſpital in Southwark. But more probably its right Name is Shoreditch Place; and ſo Stow calls it, tho' he cannot tell why it is ſo named. 'Tis likely enough it was the Manſion of Sir Joh. Shoreditch, a Gentleman that lived 3 or 400 Years ago, read of in our Chronicles: And whoſe Corpſe lay in Hackney Church, and had anciently a Monumental Stone and Inſcription, tho' now gone.

Survey, p. 474.

The Elector Palatine's Arms in the Black and White Houſe.

There is a fair Houſe near the Church, called The Black and White Houſe, formerly belonging to Sir Tho. Viner, ſometime Alderman and Maior of London, now a School for young Gentlewomen. In a large Dining-Room above Stairs, is a very fair Bow Window, with ſeveral Coats of Arms curiouſly Painted. Whereof one is the Arms of K. James I. underneath is his Motto, Beati pacifici. Next, the ſame Arms with a Label, for Charles Prince of Wales: Underneath are theſe two Letters, C. P. Then are the Arms of the Prince Palatine of the Rhine, (whoſe Titles were, Elector, Cup-bearer, and High Steward of the Empire) empaled with the Arms of Elizabeth, eldeſt Daughter of the ſaid K. James, with the Creſt and Supporters of the ſaid Elector, who married the ſaid Princeſs Elizabeth, Feb. 14, 1612. The Anceſtors of our preſent King, K. George I. All which Arms makes it probable, that that Prince ſometime dwelt here, or, at leaſt, that it was his Houſe of Country Retirement.

Steph. Cobb buried in the Chapel here. J. Worthingt.

One Stephen Cobbe, Eſq; formerly lived in this Pariſh: And by his Will, bearing Date Dec. 4, 1565, willed to be buried in the Chapel of the ſaid Pariſh Church: "Where my Wife lyeth "buried; and my Arms there to be ſet up for "a Memorial. At which Burial I will, ordain, "and appoint, that there be 24 poor Men, and "that every one of them, during the Funeral "Service, bear and hold a black Staff in his "Hand, ſtanding about the Corpſe to every "of which Poor Men I give, will, and bequeath, "a Gown of black Frieze at 18*d.* the Yard, "and 12*d.* in Money. Item, I give and be"queath to all ſuch poor People, Man, Woman, "or Child, as ſhall inhabit in the ſaid Pariſh of "Hackney, and to every of them, 4*d.* Item, I "give and bequeath to the worſhipful and ableſt "to live in the ſaid Pariſh, for Token of good "Will, for a Dinner among them, to be had on "the Day of my Burial, 10*l.* And to the "Preacher that ſhall fortune to preach at the "ſaid Time of my Burial, 6*s.* 8*d.* Item, I give "and bequeath 10*l.* of lawful Money of Eng"land, to be paid by my Executors at their "Diſcretion, toward and for the Maintenance "of two Singing-Men, or Conducts, for the due "Miniſtration of God's Service, celebrated and "done within the Pariſh Church of Hackney "aforeſaid." And he appointed his well beloved Son Rob. Cobbe, and his faithful Friend Henry Smith, Citizen and Girdler of London, to be his Executors, &c.

His Legacies.

Reg. Lond. E. A. Lex.

Joh. Roberd of Hackney, Yeoman, by his Will, dated 28 Oct. 1484 gives to the Vicar of Hackney, and his Succeſſors for ever, an half Acre of Land, in a Field called Dammold's Field: To the Intent, that they every Sunday pray for the Souls of him the ſaid John, Alice and Iſabel his Wives; Nicolas Roberd, his Father, and Agnes and Cecille his Wives; Joh. Roberd, and Elyn his Wife; in the Pulpit in the Church.

Alexander Broke of Hackney, buried in the Churchyard there, by Will, 16 Aug. 1484, gave to Agnes his Wife 20*l.* and his whole Houſe: And one Cottage, called Buſterd's Houſe, with a Garden, in Fee Simple. And alſo bequeaths to his Son William Broke, Baſtard, xx Marks, and two Cottages in Well-ſtreet, in Fee ſimple.]

In this Church of Hackney are theſe enſuing Monuments of later Times.

Firſt, in a Chapel South of the Communion Table, the Monument of Sir Henry Row and his Lady, repreſented in Effigie kneeling: Before him a Head-piece and Gauntlet, before her a Bible.

Here, under Fine of Adam's firſt Defection,
Reſts in the Hope of happy Reſurrection,
Sir Henry Row, Son of Sir Thomas Row,
And of Dame Mary, his dear Tokefellow:
Knight and right worthy (as his Father late)
Lord Maior of London, with his vertuous Mate,
Dame Suſan, his twice fifteen Years and ſeven:
Their Iſſue five, ſurviuing of eleven.
Four named here, in theſe four Names forepaſt;
The Fifth is found, if Eccho ſound the laſt.
Sad Orphans all, but moſt their Heir (moſt Debtor)
Who built them this, but in his Heart a better.

Piè obiit Anno Salutis 1612, die Novembr. 12.
Ætatis 68.

His Coat, Gules, a Quaterfoil Or, impaled with hers, a Feſſe Sable. Underneath, kneeling, ſix Figures, viz. 3 Sons and 3 Daughters.

This Monument is oppoſite unto the other, ſupported by two Boys in white Marble, one with a Spade, ſetting one Foot on it, and the other holding a Torch downwards, reſting on a Death's Head, and hath this Inſcription on the Wall North.

Memoriæ Sacrum.

What needs an Epitaph to ſound our Praiſe,
Our Wealth, our Greatneſs, Birth, or Length of Days;
When briefly on this Marble we may read
The Glory of the Living and the Dead?
A modeſt, chaſte, religious, loving Wife,
Lyes here at reſt, patient in Death and Life:
Even all the Graces which 'mongſt many were Divided, ſweetly flow'd and met in her.
And tho' Death did his worſt, thinking in Rage
To leave no Pattern for ſucceeding Age;
Yet lives her Vertue, and this Memorie
Tells what ſhe was, and what her Sex ſhould be.

Erected by John Bennet, in Memory of Elizabeth his beloved Wife: Who departed this Life the 18th of Novemb. 1625. The Coat of Arms, Gules, three Demi-Lions Argent.

In the ſame Chapel, againſt the Eaſt Wall, is another very handſome large Table-Monument of black poliſh'd Marble; and on it theſe Words:

In Memoriam HENRICI ROWE de Shacklewell in Com. Middleſex. Armig. Qui duxit in uxorem WARWICK STAVERTON, unam è filiis Deodati Staverton de Everſly in Comitat. Southampton, Armig. Obiit 15 die Auguſti, An. Dom. 1670, & Ætat. ſuæ 36. Poſuit hoc illi mæſtiſſima Conjux.]

In the Chancel, over the Veſtry Door, a Monument againſt the Wall, with the Effigies of a Man and Woman, and this Inſcription:

R.

Hereunder lyeth the Body of Henry Thoreſby of Thoreſby in the County of York, Eſquire, late Counſellor in the Law, Bencher, and Reader of Lincoln's-Inn, Juſtice of Peace, and of the Quorum; one of the Maſters of the moſt honourable Court of Chancery, and one of the ſixteen Governours of King James's Hoſpital, elected at the firſt Foundation thereof by John Sutton, Eſquire, the only Founder. Which Henry Thoreſby paſſed his Pilgrimage in this Life in all Godlineſs and Chriſtian Piety, and ſo conſtantly did continue unto his laſt Breath, which he yielded up to the Almighty in this Town of Hackney, on the eleventh Day of May, 1615.

Under the Woman thus:

Hereunder lyeth the Body of Jane late Wife of the ſaid Henry Thoreſby, Eſquire, Daughter to John Palmer of Clarkenwell in the County of Middleſex, Eſquire, and Paulina his Wife, Daughter of *Anthony Sandes of Throwly in the County of Kent, Eſquire: Which Jane lived with the ſaid Henry in Wedlock 30 Years and more, and had Iſſue by him two Daughters, viz. Jane, who died in her Infancy about ſix Years of Age, and Eleonor Lady Hardres, the now Wife of Sir Thomas Hardres of Great Hardres in the County of Kent, Knight: By whom ſhe had Iſſue four Sons and one Daughter. Which ſaid Jane overlived her ſaid Huſband Henry Thoreſby, and died in all Chriſtian Piety on the 18th Day of Auguſt, 1616.

* Or Sondes.

An Epitaph upon the Death of the vertuous and worthy Gentleman, Edward Saunders, Eſq; Obiit ultimo die Novembris, Anno 1599.

His Name, his Place, the Gentry of his Birth,
And Credit held unto his dying Days;
Were Things that gave him Favour here on Earth,
But gave him not the greateſt of his Praiſe.

His greateſt Glory was his godly Life,
The Bounty of his Houſe, and open Door;
His Country's Love, his Kindneſs to his Wife,
Faith to his Friend, and Pity to the Poor.

His Vertue, Valour, and all good Deſires,
His Zeal and Life agreeing to the ſame;
And laſt, the Death that ſuch a Life requires,
Theſe be the true Records of laſting Fame.

Theſe write him Bleſſed in the Heavens above,
And leave him in the World Good Will and Love.

J. S. On the North Side of the Chancel, firſt an ancient Table Monument, with a fair Grey Marble Stone without Inſcription. There were Coats of Arms on the Sides, but torn off. This Monument is concealed by the Schoolmaſter's Pew.

Next, a Memory of the Right Honourable the Lady Lucy Latymer.

Such as ſhe is, ſuch, ſurely, ſhall ye be,
Such as ſhe was, ſuch if ye be, be glad;
Fair in her Youth, though fat in Age ſhe grew,
Vertuous in both, whoſe Gloſs did never fade:
Though long alone ſhe lead a Widow's Life,
Yet never Lady liv'd a truer Wife.

From Wales ſhe ſprang, a Branch of Worſter's Race,
Graft in a Stock of Brownes, her Mother's Side;
In Court ſhe held a Maid of Honour's Place,
Whilſt Youth in her, and ſhe in Court did bide:
To John Lord Latymer then ſhe became a Wife,
Four Daughters had they breathing yet in Life.

Earl of Northumberland* took the firſt to Wife,
The next, the Heir of Baron Burleigh choſe;
Cornwallis hap the Third for Term of Life,
And Sir John Danvers pluck'd the youngeſt Roſe:
Their Fathers Heirs, them Mothers all ſhe ſaw:
Pray for, or praiſe her; make your Liſt the Law.

* Named Henry.

Sir Tho. Cecill.

Made by Sir William Cornwallis, Knight, this Lady's Son in Law.

J. S. This is a very magnificent advanced Monument: Whereon lies a Lady with a Coronet, in a Scarlet Robe, praying, her Hands broke off. And againſt the Eaſt Wall are theſe Words inſcribed:

The Rt. Honourable Baron JOHN NEVYL, Kt. Lord LATYMER, departed this Life at his Manour of Snape in the County of York, the 22d of April 1577, in the Year of his Age 61, and lyeth buried with his Anceſtors at his Church in his Town of Well.

Under her Head, near the Bottom, is this Inſcription:

Here lyeth the Rt. Honourable Lady LUCY, Daughter to the Right Noble HENRY Earl of Worceſter, Wife to the late Right Honourable JOHN NEVYLE, Kt. Lord LATYMER. By whom ſhe had Iſſue four Daughters, Katharine, Dorothy, Lucy, Elizabeth. She departed this Life the 23d of Febr. 1582, in the Year of her Age 59.

As ſhe had four Daughters, ſo they are placed kneeling under her, two on one Side of the Monument, and two on the other; their Names, and with whom they matched, mentioned, and ſet over their Heads; and their Childrens Names under them. The two former on the South Side, are obſcured by a Pew, that they cannot be read. Thoſe on the North Side are as follow:

DOROTHY her ſecond Daughter, married with Sir Tho. Cecyll, Kt. and had Iſſue as hereunder appeareth, viz. William Cecyl, Richard, Edward, Chriſtopher, and Thomas: Katherine Cecyl, Lucy, Mildred, Mary, Suſan, Elizabeth, Dorothy, and Frances.

Next on the ſaid North Side, kneeleth the youngeſt Daughter, and over her thus written:

ELIZABETH her youngeſt Daughter, married with Sir John Danvers, Kt. and had Iſſue as hereunder appeareth: Charles and Henry Danvers: Anne, Lucy, Eleanor, and Mary: With another Name obſcure.

Near this, againſt the North Wall, Altarwiſe, is an old Monument without any Inſcription at all: Only on the Sides appear the Arms of the Hernes, anciently Lords of Shacklewell.

But to return back unto the uppermoſt Part of the Chancel.

On the North Side, againſt the Veſtry Wall, is another ancient Monument, Altarwiſe, whereon is engraven, Anno Dni. 1519.

Chriſtophoro . Urſwyk . Rectore.

M J A.

The Coat of Arms is, The Field ..... a Bend Sable, charged with three Lozenges; on each of which are as many Croſſes Gules.

At the Foot of this Monument is the Effigies of the Man at Length, in Braſs, with his Habiliments, and this Subſcription under him:

Chriſtoforus Urſwicus Regis Henrici VII, Eleemoſynarius: Vir ſua ætate clarus; ſummatibus atque Infimatibus juxta charus: ad exteros Reges undecies pro Patria Legatus: Decanatum Ebor. Archidiaconatum Richmondiæ, Decanatum Windoſore *habitos vivens reliquit. Obiit anno Chriſti incarnati MDXXI. die xxiiii Marcii, Anno ætatis ſuæ LXXIIII.

Above this old Monument is the Effigies of another Churchman, a Biſhop, in his Ruff and Lawn Sleeves, and a Book in his Hand, in a preaching Poſture.

Conditus exiguâ jacet hic DOULBENUS in urna,
Qui nuper Præſul Bangorienſis erat.
Hic tria Luſtra prius Chriſti invigilabat Ovili,
Et Domino errantes voce reduxit Oves.
Ergo quies ubi ſudor erat, meſſemq; ubi ſevit,
Expectat, munuſq; hic, ubi pavit Oves.

Not far hence, ſomewhat on the North Side of the Communion Table, was buried alſo another Vicar of this Pariſh; under a flat Stone, having a Braſs Plate faſtned on it, with the Reſemblance of a Man in a Gown, and this Inſcription:

ROBERTUS STOKES, vir Doctrina & morum Probitate inſignis, Cantabrigiæ olim Sacræ Theologiæ Bacchalaureus fuit; necnon hujus Villæ HACKNEÆ per duos & viginti annos Vicarius. Qui Anno Dom. 1570, Octavo Calendas Aprilis Naturæ conceſſit: à Summis juxta atque ab infimis magnopere deſyderatus.

There is yet in this Chancel the Monument of another Vicar of this Pariſh: Where, upon a Pillar on the North Side is a Braſs Plate, with the Effigies of a Miniſter in a Pulpit, with this Inſcription:

Here lyeth the Body of Mr. HUGH JOHNSON, who was Vicar of this Church forty Years; and departed this Life the 16th of Jan. 1618. Aged 72. And was a good Benefactor to the Poor of this Pariſh, and to the Poor of the Town of Macclesfield in Cheſhire, where he was born.

I have retrieved one Vicar more, incumbent here in former Times; but whether buried in this Chancel, I cannot tell: Namely Thomas Hert: Who had his Monument in this Church, and his Effigies thereon: And theſe Monkiſh Verſes:

Wev. Mon. p. 537.

Subjacet hic ſtrictus hoc marmore nunc homo pictus
THOMAS HERT dictus hic Vicarius benedictus.
O Cambrig. per te fuit ille Magiſter in Arte.
C. quater & Mille, Sex X. quarto ruit ille,
Et Julii plena Septena luce ſerena.

So that you may compute his Death to fall on the 7th of July, An. Dom. 1464.

Advanced on the South Wall againſt the Communion Table, is the Monument of the Woods; the Man and Woman ſtanding before one Deſk, facing one another, with their Hands in a praying Poſture: Sons and Daughters behind them, with a Mitre at the Side of the third Son, who was a Biſhop, viz. of Litchfield. The Inſcription is as followeth:

In the Vault near to this Place ly the Bodies of Thomas Wood, Eſquire and Suſan his Wife:

He was buried the 18. May, 1649, } Aged { 84.
She was buried the 17. Octob. 1650, } Aged { 80.

They had Iſſue 4 Sons and 4 Daughters; Sir Henry, Kt. and Bart. John Citizen of London, Thomas, D. D. and Chaplain in Ordinary to K. Charles I. and K. Charles II. and William, one of the Clerks of his Majeſty's Spicery.
Joan, Dorothy, Mary, and Elizabeth.

All go unto one Place: All are of the Duſt, and all turn to Duſt again, Eccl. 3. 20.

Juſt without the Rail on the South Side of the Communion Table, a flat Stone thus engraven:

Here lyeth interred the Body of George Clark, Eſq; Deceaſed 14 Aug. An. Dom. 1668.

If any deſire to be me nigh,
Pray let my Bones in quiet ly,
'Till Chriſt come in the cloudy Sky,
Who will us all both judge and try.

This Gentleman left twenty Shillings yearly, for an Anniverſary Sermon to be preached on the 17th Day of November; and other Monies to be diſtributed charitably in the Pariſh on that Day.

In the Body of the Chancel, under a fair black Marble, is this Inſcription:

Hic jacet Joannes Ivat de London, Mercator, filius natu ſecundus Gulielmi Ivat, hujus Parochiæ Generoſ. Qui dum rem mercatoriam per varios annos proſperè egiſſet, tandem hanc vitam pro beatiori ſine prole mutavit, 23 die Februarii, 1693. P. M. tam dilecti viri Maria conjux ſuperſtes hoc Marmor mœrens ploranſq; poſuit, Ætatis ſuæ 44.

The Coat of Arms here engraven is Baron and Femme. Baron, A Croſs charged with five Flowers de Lis. Femme, A Feſſe with three Trefoils, between as many Bulls Heads guardant, erazed.

Upon the Ground, on the North Side of the former, under a fair Marble Stone with an Inſcription, is buried the Body of Thomas Blackall, Eſquire, late of this Pariſh. Who departed this Life Novemb. 7, 1688, in the 68th Year of his Age. And Thomas Blackall, his eldeſt Son; who departed Jan. 22, 1693, in the 45th Year of his Age. The Coat of Arms engraven upon this Stone is, A Greyhound running, upon a Chief endented three Roundlets.

Againſt the Eaſt Wall, on the upper End of the North Ile, is a Monument for Richard Hallily, Gent. who married Margaret Lathom: Dyed 1605.

Now to paſs over to the South Ile.

Firſt, againſt the Eaſt Wall, a good Monument; where appear two Statues, the one of a Man in a Gown kneeling, the other of his Wife kneeling alſo, facing each other: And this Epitaph:

Near this Place interred ly the Bodies of Henry Baniſter, Eſq; of late Citizen, Goldſmith, and ſometime Sheriff of London, and Juſtice of the Peace in the County of Middleſex. He was born in Preſton in Anderneſs in Lancaſhire; and deceaſed in this Pariſh on the 25th of July, An. Dom. 1628. Aged 90. He was,

The Hand of Amity to all deſerving,
The Heart of Integrity in all his Dealing,
And the Soul of Sincerity in religious Living.

And of Anne his Wife: Who, after his Deceaſe, married to Sir William Bulſtrode of the County of Rutland, Kt. She left this Life on the 4th of Jan. Anno Dom. 1633. Aged 55. She was,

The Mirrour of Diſcretion, in chuſing and uſing her Friends,
The Platform of Providence for her Kindred,
And the Patern of Piety both in Publick and Private.

Reader, note this, and labour to lay down,
Such Earneſt for an everlaſting Crown.

A Tablet hung up very near this Monument, thus inſcribed:

An Epitaph,

Made by Sir William Bulſtrode, Kt. upon the Death of his moſt dear Wife Anne Lady Bulſtrode; and conſecrated to the Memory of her excellent Vertues, and his faithful Affection.

Sad Fate! Here lies interred Woman's Glory:
Whoſe rich and rare Endowments were a Story,
Fit for the ſhrill and golden Trump of Fame
To make eternal: That her vertuous Name
Might be a ſober Pattern, Rule, and Guide,
To all her frailer Sex: In whom, beſide
Her modeſt Beauty, grave, and pious Wit,
Wiſdom, and Judgment, ſo enthron'd did ſit,
And ſo unnatur'd in her female Paſſion,
As all the Actions of her Life, Diſcretion
Did always meaſure: And to crown her Praiſe,
Religion was the Pilot of her Ways.
Nor did ſhe her great Zeal as fruitleſs ſmother,
But by her Practice ſtill incited other.
Her Nature ſweet, fix'd with a Mind ſo even,
As here on Earth her Soul enjoy'd a Heaven.
Which to Perfection her ſtrong Faith hath carried,
And to the Lamb for ever bleſſed married.
So that her Death's but Jacob's Dream expreſt,
A Ladder to convey her Soul to reſt.
Reſt then, dear Soul, ne'er to return to me,
While I here mourn, and long to come to thee.
She dyed Jan. 4, 1633.

On one Side of this Monument, againſt the ſame Eaſt Wall, is a Braſs Plate, repreſenting a Man kneeling before a Deſk, and four Women kneeling before Deſks behind each other, and Children behind them. And upon the ſame Plate theſe Epitaphial Verſes:

Hereunder lyeth ARTHUR DERICOTE,
Who buried was of late:
Of London ſometime Citizen,
And of Eſquires State.
Of Drapers whilome Company,
But late of Hackney Town,
A Pariſhioner he was full good;
All Vice he laid a down.
Wives four by Marriage he had,
That lawful was and right,
Mary, Anne, and Margaret,
And Jone the fourth ſhe hight.
By whom two Children here he had,
And ended then his Life,
The twelfth Day of November Month,
One Child alive and Wife.
A thouſand and five hundred
And ſixty Years and two,
Since Chriſt his Incarnation,
He gan to live anew.
God grant to Chriſtians all,
Of Life ſuch Race to run,
That at the length they may receive
Of Chriſt a joyful Doom.

The Coat of Arms of this Dericote ſet here, is, A Dragon paſſant; on a Chief three Eſcalop Shells.

I find this Gentleman's Funeral ſolemnized after this Manner, on the 18th of Nov. 1562. He gave 24 poor Men 24 Gowns of Rats Colour at 7*s.* the Yard. He had a Penon of Arms, and Coat Armour. Mr. Richmond was the Herald attending. Many black Gowns more were given; and 32 Dozen of Eſcutcheons were uſed. Twenty Clarks of London ſinging before the Corps: With the Maſters of the Hoſpital walking with their green Staves. Mr. Avenon and Mr. Minors chief Mourners. The Funeral Sermon preached by Mr. Pheſſyon. And after, all returned to his Place to Dinner.

On the other Side of Baniſter's Monument, are the Reſemblances of a Boy and two Girls kneeling upon Cuſhions, named, Henry, Mary, Anne; holding each by their Hands over their Heads. And theſe Verſes:

By Truth, the Word of God, theſe guided were,
By Death, the Way together they did go:
The happy Life where living now they are
In Joy celeſtial, void of earthly Woe.
Theſe Daniells far ſurpaſt the Graces three,
Which did in Life and Death ſo well agree.

Between them kneeling is this Word,

The Way.

The Boy points upward to a bright Cloud, wherein is writ,

To Life.

Above their Heads theſe Words,

Menſe Oct. 1592, diem obierunt.

But who theſe were, it is not mention'd, their Surnames being omitted: But probably the Children of Henry Baniſter.

In this Ile, on the South Wall, is Sir Thomas Row's Monument. The Man and his Wife kneeling before a Deſk, with their Hands together in the Poſture of Praying. The Coat of Arms is, Sable, a Cheveron charged with three Bezants, between as many Cinquefoils.

Anno Dom. 1570, Septemb. 2.

Sir Thomas Rowe lies buried here,
Of London Knight and Alderman;
Who late was Maior, and Rule did bear,
To right the Cauſe of every Man.
A Merchant Venturer was he,
Of Merchant Taylors Company:
A Citizen by Birth alſo,
And eke his Wife Dame Mary Rowe.
In Wedlock one and thirty Year,
They did continue Man and Wife:
Eleven Children ſhe did bear,
But five of them have left this Life,
And ſix alive do yet remain,
Four of them Sons, and Daughters twain.
His Soul, we hope, with God is bleſt,
And doth remain in Abraham's Breaſt.

Next to this, againſt the Wall in the Chancel, is a little neat Monument of white Marble, thus inſcribed:

Near this Place lyeth interred the Body of John Stock, late of London, Gent. born at Royle in Comitat. Lancaſt. May 18, 1631. Deſcended from a very ancient and good Family. Ob. 17 Jan. 1703. Ætat. 73.

Lower in this South Ile, againſt the Wall, is this Inſcription in guilded Letters, for the Father of the wealthy and wiſe, notable and proſperous Eaſt India Merchant, Sir Joſiah Child, Bart.

Richard Child, Merchant of London, died May the 7th, 1638. And Elizabeth his Wife, late Wife of Thomas Sone, Citizen and Grocer of London, departed Jan. 1, 1670. Left behind her two Sons, and one Daughter, by her firſt Huſband, viz. John, Joſia, and Anna.

Lower towards the Belfrey is a very comely Table Monument of black Marble poliſhed, inſcribed with Letters deeply engraven:

Here lyeth the Body of Mrs. FREDESWEDE KEKEWICH, Wife of Mr. Samuel KEKEWICH, Merchant. Who dyed in Puerto Sta. Maria, [in Spain] the 29th of Aug. 1693.

And there alſo is buried her Huſband, being a Gentleman of a good Family in Cornwall; who dyed about the Year 1701.

Under the Belfrey, another fair Table Monument of black Marble, with this Inſcription:

Here ly the Bodies of Capt. Robert Dean: Who dyed the 13th of Febr. 1699, the 46th Year of his Age. And Mary, and Robert, and Katharine his Children, who all dyed before him.

This was lately erected at the Charge of his Wife, now or late living at Portſmouth.

At the lower End of the North Ile of the Church, joyning to the Wall, is a Table Monument of black Marble poliſhed, for JOHN DOD, Citizen and Mercer of London; Son of Peter Dod of Tuſſingham in Cheſhire, Gent. by Jane his Wife. Who married MARY Daughter of Richard THOROWGOOD, Eſquire, Alderman of London, and Elizabeth his Wife. By whom he left Iſſue five Sons, and one Daughter, viz. Benjamin, Richard, John, Piers, Edward, Mary. He departed this Life June the 4th, 1688. Ætat. 44.

On the Stone is this Coat: On a Feſſe three Creſcents, between two Bars wavy.

Againſt this Wall, at the Weſt End of the Church, is ſet up a handſome Monument of white Marble, of Tho. Cartwright's making, with this Inſcription:

Prope jacent Cineres BENJ. DOD, Generoſi & Civis Londinenſis: Ob patrium ferè in ſuos, & verè fraternum animum, ab iis præcipuè multum Lugendi: Ob genii autem Probitatem & Mores ſuaviſſimos, ab omnibus deſideratiſſimi. Qui vitæ benè tranſactæ Documentis mortis incertæ Monitionem adjecit, præcipiti ex Equo Caſu immaturè, improviſò decumbens, Anno Ætat. 32. Domini 1706.

Memorati etiam jacet chara, unica & dilectiſſima Soror MARIA CRADDOCK, ejuſdem Tumuli Conſors, tridui ſolummodò ſuperſtes: Hujus vitæ exuvias deponens in ſpem melioris.

Obiit { Jun. 10.
Ætat. 19.

The two laſt Monuments ſet up in this North Ile, ſomewat higher againſt the North Wall, are,

One for Richard de Beavoir of Balmes in the County of Middleſex, Eſq; of the Iſland of Guernſey. Who departed this Life the 17th of June, An. D. 1708, in the 67th Year of his Age. His Arms, Argent, a Cheveron Gules, between three Quatrefoils of the ſame.

The other higher Eaſtward, In Memory of Mr. James Cæſar Paget of London, French Merchant. Who dyed the 11th of Dec. 1714. In the 80th Year of his Age.

In the Body of the Church, upon a flat white Stone, this Inſcription:

Here lyeth the Body of Robert Matſon, Citizen and Salter of London. Departed the 18th of Novemb. 1695. Aged 44.

The Body of Edward Matſon, Citizen and Grocer of London. Departed the 30th of Sept. 1688. Son of John Matſon of Dover, and Mary his Wife.

Mr. John Johnſon, departed the 4th of Novemb. 1686.

On a fair Marble:

The Body of Sarah the loving and beloved Wife of John Pierſe. She departed the 26th of Aug. 1702. And John Pierſe, their Son, the 23d of Jan. 1694. Aged 4 Years.

The Coat, A Bend wavy, between two Unicorns Heads erazed.

In the Body of the North Ile, a fair Stone covering the Body of Mr. Thomas Cook, Merchant: Who departed the 20th of Decemb. 1694, in the 60th Year of his Age.

And lower, under another Marble Stone, Alex. Johnſtown, Eſq; Buried 1709. Aged 60.

A Hatchment upon a Pillar in the Chancel Northward, thus Inſcribed:

In the Vault near this Place lyeth the Body of Dame Katharine Reynolds, Widow to Sir Samuel Reynolds of Caſtle Camps in Cambridgeſhire: Who was buried the 3d of March, 1658, in the Year of her Age 52. Alſo the Bodies of Phebe Berry her Mother, and Elizabeth South her Siſter.

In this Church was buried Frances the Wife of John Mauchel or Machel of Hackney, Eſq; Daughter to Will. Coton of Panfield in Eſſex, Eſq; Dyed at her Houſe in Homerton, May 11, 1574, in Childbed: Deliver'd of two Children, John Son and Heir, and Frances. Buried May 21. But her Monument (if ſhe had any) is gone.

The Monuments of many more of ancienter Times are periſhed and gone; and ſo had their Names and Memories too, had they not been preſerved by an induſtrious Antiquarian in the former Age. Some of the moſt remarkable I ſhall ſpecify. J. Wever.

Henry Lord Percy, Earl of Northumberland, of the moſt Honourable Order of the Garter. Who dyed 1537, 29 H. 8. the laſt Day of July.

Sergeant Alexander a Lawyer, who, in his Inſcription, was charactered to be,

——————— Sacer Eccleſiéq; Deiq;
Cultor, & in populo Pacificator erat.

He dyed 1438.

The Date of his Death being ſet out by this Diſtick:

Seno ter deno bis centeno quater anno,
Milleno Domini qui pius aſſit ei.

Alice Ryder, ſhe dyed 1517.

Her Pourtaicture was in Braſs, with a Milk Pail upon her Head. She ſeems to have been a Milkwoman, and to have obtained great Wealth by ſelling it into the City. She was ſaid to have been a good Benefactreſs to the Church. This was her Epitaph:

For the Sowl of Allis Ryder of your Cherite,
Say a Pater noſter, and an Ave.

Hic jacet in foſſa Robertus Stork, Elizabet uxor
ſuo honore vivebant Pauperes debiles &
alebant Robert. obiit primo die menſis Octobris,
A°. Dni. M° CCCC° XVI. Elizabet. obiit
. . . . die menſis, A°. Dni. M° CCCC°.
Quorum aiab. propitietur Deus.

Jone Onely, the onely moſt faithful Wiff of John
Onely of Warwickſhire, Eſquire: To whoſe
Sowl the onely Trinity be merciful, Amen.
She dyed 1525.

MSS. Hutton, in Off. Armor. By another induſtrious Collector of Monuments, ſhe is written, Jane, Daughter of Henry Smith of Sherſard in the County of Warwyke.

William Heneage, the Son of Robert Heneage, one of the King's Auditors. Dyed Aug. the 5th, 1535.

John Elryngton, Filycer [or Filazer] of London, and Keeper of the Records of the Common Pleas. Departed 1504. He was Founder of a Guild in this Church.

Robert Walſingham, third Clerk of the Spicery to K. Henry the Eighth, [and Margaret his Wife.] Dyed 1522. [1524.]

By the Review of theſe Perſons here interred, one might conclude, that many of the Nobility and Court in former Times, choſe to have their Country Seats at Hackney.

To all the reſt, I add theſe few very ancient.

Here lyes Jone Curteys, the Daughter of . . . . . . Shordych, Anno 1399. This Gentleman might give Denomination to that old Houſe near Wellſtreet in this Pariſh, called Shoreditch Place.

Roger Ford, 1453.
John Butterfield, 1454.
Tho. Symond, May 11, 1542.
John Catcher, May 9, 1487.
Henry Therket, 1503.
John Jenyngs, 1423.
William Lowthe, of London, Goldſmith, 1528.

John Hern, Eſq; hath a Monument without an Inſcription or Date: And was the Founder of this Church, as I take it, by the Repreſentations of Herons graven in Stone upon every Pillar of the Church.

Monuments in the Churchyard.

On the North Side of the Church are theſe Table-Monuments adjoining to the Church.

Near the little Chancel Door is a Table Monument for Bailiff, thus inſcribed:

Succeſſioni.

You that remain, diſturb not the Reſt of the Body of THOMASINE, when ſhe lived, the Wife of John Bailiff, Eſq; . . . .
here under this Stone preſerve the Duſt, by the Power of the Almighty, unto the appointed Day for the Reſurrection of the Juſt.
She died the 2d Day of Febr. in the Year of Chriſt her Redeemer 1641.

Erat.	Eris.
Cogita.	Para.

Another well wrought Table Monument of Marble, more Weſt, on the ſame Side, is ſet up for Thomas Trench, a very honeſt, diſcrete, charitable, pious, as well as wealthy Merchant of London, while he lived; buried here according to his laſt Deſire, with this Inſcription only:

Here lyeth the Body of Tho. Trench, Eſq; who dyed the 10th of December 1699. Aged 51.
Near this Place ly Rebecca and Thomas his Children, that dyed very young.

On this Side alſo Eaſt, is a Monument for George and James Sons of Andrew Hutchinſon, and Luce his Wife. The former dyed An. 1688. The latter 1689.

A raiſed Monument alſo on this Side adjoining to the Church, for William Gray, Citizen and Merchant Tayler of London. Who dyed Aug. 5, 1563. And his Son Joſiah Gray, 1669, aged 26.

On the South Side of the Church, in the Churchyard, is a Monument for John Burſtall, late of London, Merchant: Who dyed 28 May, 1681. Aged 40.

Another more Weſt, for John Kent, Chirurgeon. Who dyed 1660.

At the Weſt End of the Churchyard, a fair Table Monument ſomewhat ancient, without any Inſcription, or Coat of Arms.

There be many other raiſed Tombs lately made in the ſame Churchyard. One of the laſt on the North Side is, for Sarah Hill, Widow of the Reverend John Hill of Worceſterſhire, who dyed 18 Dec. 1715, the 87th Year of her Age.

Reader, if thou wouldſt know her Character, examine all the Duties of Nature and Religion: Which, as conſcious of the End of her Being, ſhe fulfilled. And then go, and do thou likewiſe.

To all the reſt, I add this Inſcription upon a Head-Stone in the Eaſt Part of the Churchyard:

PENINNAH JUCKES.

A Maid near Eighteen, we have laid in this Green,
To reſt herſelf here a ſhort Space:
And after that Time, this Roſe in her Prime,
Shall riſe up again by God's Grace.

Anno 1716.

I will here inſert, in Memory of this pious Biſhop, his Letter, wrote ſcarce a Fortnight before his Death, to the Inhabitants of Hackney, concerning his charitable Gift, as it is extant in their Pariſh Books: Communicated to me by the preſent Vicar, the Rev. Mr. Peter Newcome.

Bp. Doulben's Letter concerning his Gift. Mr. Pet. Newcome.

To the Inhabitants of the Pariſh of Hackney, but eſpecially to the pooreſt Sort of People, that maintain their Livelihood by Carriage of Burthens to the City of London: All Bleſſing from the Fountain above and below, be multiplied upon you.

I DAVID, by the permiſſion of God, Biſhop of BANGOR, ſometime your unworthy Paſtor, in Teſtimony of my unfeigned Chriſtian Love to you, as to the Place where I was ſo much beholden unto you all, do earneſtly entreat you to accept and take in good Part, this Mite of 30*l.* according to my poor Eſtate: Which I have ſent unto you by my worthy Friend Mr. Richard Davies; to be employed for continuing and everlaſting repairing (I hope) to Poſterity, of the Cauſeway, or Footway leading from Clapton and Hackney Church unto Shoreditch. Which poor Mite of 30*l.* I do deſire may be employed or laid out on ſome proportionable Parcel of Ground, Tenement, or yearly Rent-charge, or otherwiſe, by my loving Acquaintance, Mr. Richard Davies, Mr. George Robins, and Mr. Roger Jones, as ſoon as poſſible may be: But with the Approbations of my Right Worthy Friends, Sir William Bulſtrode, Mr. John Baily, Mr. John Milward, and Mr. William Cheney, or by any four of theſe Men.

And likewiſe my Deſire and Requeſt is, that the ſaid yearly Rent, iſſuing out of the ſaid Lands, Tenement, or Rent-charge, may be, by Order of the Veſtry, yearly paid unto the Churchwardens, for the Time being, of the ſaid Pariſh: And the Churchwardens to be accountable thereof.

And laſtly, my earneſt Deſire is, that according to my ſaid Truſt, the ſaid Rent, with its Profits, or Increaſe, at every 3 or 4 Years, being accompted for by itſelf, and particularly reſerved for that Uſe, may be employed every 3d or 4th Year at the fartheſt, for the ſufficient Repair of the ſaid Way. Conceiving, for divers Reaſons, that it will not be requiſite to repair it oftener. Wherein I do earneſtly deſire the Vicar for the Time being, in the Bowels of Charity, to have a ſpecial Care to accompliſh this my Requeſt.

Provided always, that if there be a Surpluſage remaining of the ſaid Rent, after the Repair or Mending of the ſaid Way at the Term aforeſaid, that then the ſaid Money and Surpluſage ſhall be diſtributed by the Diſcretion of the Vicar, Churchwardens, and four of the ancienteſt ſubſtantial Pariſhioners, among them of the pooreſt Families, that have the greateſt Charge of Children: Alſo, likewiſe provided, that if it may appear that the ſaid 30*l.*

In the Chancel:

Againſt the South Wall, a very handſome large and ſomewhat ancient Monument, with Pillars of different Marble, preſents a Knight kneeling, and a Lady facing him, kneeling alſo; and behind her a Daughter: A Head-piece behind him. The Epitaph this:

Under him:

Vivo miles ..... Chriſto ductore triumpho,
Stix, caro, mors, mundus cuncta ſubacta mihi.
Exivi terris feſſus, velut hiſtrio ſcenâ:
Acta eſt ætatis fabula longa meæ.
Finis adeſt, clare ſpectantes plaudite, vixi,
Et cum deſiſto vivere, vivo magis.

Under her:

Vivo, ſed abſque meo, mors eſt mihi vita, marito:
Cumque viro veris ſum viduata bonis.
Charus eras ſummis imiſque benignus, at uni,
O! mihi quam charus quámque benignus eras?
Rara fuit Pietas; Genus & tibi nobile: Vixi:
Tu cum deſiſtis vivere, vivo minus.

Lower on the Baſe, are theſe Verſes:

Vivo prius durus mutúſque, ſed undique mutor,
Ore loquax, mollis pectore fio Lapis.
Me tua mollivit (mi Dudlei) vivida Virtus;
Quæ tam ſancta fuit vita perennis erit.
Et quæ freta viro optato ſimul optima vixti,
Tu (neque deſiſtis vivere) vivis adhuc.

Over his Head is writ,

AN

APPENDIX of Additions, &c.

SUNDRY Matters of Note coming to Hand, ſince the finiſhing of this Work, being of Uſe, and tending to the farther Improvement of it; it was neceſſary to add an Appendix, for the repoſiting and preſerving of them; and likewiſe for the ſupplying any Omiſſions, or rectifying any Errors. Which is done with References to the proper Places, whereunto they do belong.

BOOK I, Chap. 4. p. 22. b. At the End of this Chaper of Gates and Poſterns, it may be added, That divers other ſmall Poſterns were made, for the Convenience of ſome adjoining Inhabitants, through the City Walls, in the Reign of Q. Elizabeth: Which were complain'd of, and Endeavours made, for the more Safety of the City, to have them ſtopped up. Concerning which, the Chief Magiſtrate of the City, Sir John Spencer Maior, in the Year 1595, wrote thus to the L. High Treaſurer, and others of the Privy Council:

‘....... There is one Thing, which I thought it my Duty to refer to your Honours Conſideration: Which is, that there are ſome five or ſix ſmall Poſtern Doors made through the City Walls, for the Eaſe of ſome Tenements: Which I have made ſome Motion to have ſtopped up, as things dangerous. But by reaſon that they which hold the ſame take themſelves intereſſed therein, it hath much Oppoſition. In which Reſpect I could wiſh, that ſome Letters were directed from your Honours, [i. e. of the Queen's Privy-Council] for ſome Reformation in that Behalf, if it ſhall ſo ſeem good to your Wiſdoms.

Ibid. p. 27. b. after lin. 25, add: As the Supply of the City by Thames Water, at the Bridge, is undertaken by a Company; ſo, of late the like Supply is made at a farther Diſtance Weſtward, in York Buildings, to be raiſed here, managed by a like joint Society, conſiſting of a Governour and Members. And for the effecting this to good Purpoſe, there is a Subſcription made to a Fund of 200,000*l.* for purchaſing forfeited and other Eſtates in Great Britain, for granting Annuities for Life, and for aſſuring Lives. The Court and Meetings of this Company, are kept in Mercers Hall.

Ibid. p. 29, l. 31. Inſtead of In Dorcetſhire, read In Oxfordſhire. P. 77, b. l. penult. r. Additions. P. 88, b. l. ab im. 6. r. MDCCCCXCIV, one C being wanting there.

Ibid. Chap. 22. p. 125. a. Where Mention is made of a remarkable Lecture, called the Mathematical Lecture, ſet up by Hood, for the Inſtructing of the Citizens in Arms, I add his Petition made to the Lords and others of the Privy Council, to recommend to the Maior and Aldermen the ſpeedy Execution of the ſame, and Eſtabliſhing of his Salary. Which Petition the ſaid Lords referred to the L. Treaſurer, a great Forwarder and Friend to all Devices, worthy, honourable, and uſeful to the City and Kingdom. Which encouraged the ſaid Mathematic Reader to make the following Addreſs to that great Stateſman.

Hood's Petition concerning his Mathematical Lecture.

‘Εὖ πράττειν. May it pleaſe you, Right Honourable, to underſtand, that forſomuch as the Maintenance of the Mathematical Lecture, and other Neceſſaries belonging thereunto, dependeth eſpecially upon the Execution of certain Articles confirmed by the Right Honourable the Lords of her Majeſty's Privy Council, concerning the Capitains of the Trained Bands in the City of London, and the erecting of a Mathematical Lecture therein; I did therefore, in humble Manner, requeſt their favourable Letters to the L. Maior and his Brethren for the ſpeedy Execution of the ſaid Articles. To my Petition I received this Anſwer: That it pleaſed the Right Honourable Lords, in my Behalf, to direct their Letters to my Lord Maior and his Brethren, requeſting them to move thoſe which had been Contributaries to my Lectures, to continue their Benevolence towards the ſame, as they had begonne. The which Anſwer, Rt. Honourable, as it ſeemed greatly to favour my Preferment, ſo I am bound to be thankful for the ſame. But conſidering, that my Wages dependeth not upon the Contribution of any certain Number of Men, but upon the Promiſe of the L. Maior and the City, I feared that their Honours Letters ſo directed, would be an Hindrance to my Purpoſe: I was bold, therefore, to renew my Petition unto their Lordſhips: Whereunto an Anſwer was returned in theſe Words, That their Honours were ready to grant the ſame, ſo far forth as your Honour would conſent thereunto.

‘Wherefore my Requeſt unto you, Rt Honourable, is this; that conſidering my Petition containeth nothing prejudicial to the Honour and Profit of the Commonwealth; or that hath not by your Lordſhips Hand been adjudged convenient, and earneſtlie requeſted by the whole City, it wolde pleaſe your Lordſhip to further the ſame. And I doubt not, but as I ſhall think myſelf bound unto your Honour, and the reſt, for your great and ſingular Favour, ſo you ſhall have juſt Occaſion to ſay, (in reſpect of that Good, which, by mine Endeavour ſhall ariſe to the Commonwealth)

‘ that your Benefit was beſtowed upon a painful,
‘ thankful, and well deſerving Man.

Your Honour's moſt humble,

Thomas Hood.

Ibid. p. 128. b. The Rules and Orders for the Lectures and Readers thereof in Greſham College; made at, or about the Time of the firſt Settlement of thoſe learned Exerciſes, were but contractedly and briefly ſet down by me; taken from an authentic Paper, found among many other original MSS. ſometime belonging to a great Stateſman in Q. Elizabeth's Time. Which, ſo wiſely and with Deliberation drawn up, I here preſent at full Length, tranſcribed thence exactly and Verbatim by me; as eſteeming ſuch a Memorial worthy the preſerving.

FORASMUCH as in the laſt Will of Sir Thomas Greſham, Knight, divers Things are omitted, touching the Terms, Daies, and Manner of reading of the ſeven Lectures, ordeyned by him to be publiquely read, within the late Houſe of the ſaied Founder, ſcituate in Biſhopſgate-ſtreet in the Cytie of London; and other Circumſtances, for the Converſing of the Profeſſours within the ſayed Houſe, as Collegiat Perſons: It is thought good, by the L. Maior, Aldermen, and Commons of the ſayed Cytie, and by the Maſter, Wardens, and Companie of MERCERS, to whome the Election of the ſayed Profeſſours, and the good Government of their ſayed College is wholly committed by the laſt Will of the ſayed Founder, to deviſe and ſet downe certein Ordinances for the good Government of the ſayed College in Manner following:

The Method appointed for the Lectures in Greſham College.

Prioritie among the Profeſſours.

I. TOutching the abiding and cohabiting of the Profeſſours within the ſayed College, albeit the Number being but ſmall, and themſelves ſuppoſed to be of that Government and good Diſcretion, as that it ſhall not be greatly needful, that any Governour, or Superviſour, be ſet over them, for the good Government of the ſayed College: Yet foraſmuch as in every Society it is very meet, for the avoiding of Confuſion and Emulation, which may otherwiſe happen, eaven amongſt Men of beſt Qualitie, that certein Orders ſhould be obſerved in their open Meetings and converſing together: It is now ordered, that the three firſt and principal Profeſſours, viz. Of Divinitie, Law, and Phyſick, ſhall ſuceſſively have a Prioritie in the ſayed College: Which ſhall conſiſt in Precedencie of Place, and in Authoritie, for the due keeping and obſerving of ſuch Laws and Orders, as ar, or ſhall be hereafter ſet down, for their Manner of Reading, Lodging, Commoning, and other Circumſtances, to be obſerved by the ſaid Profeſſours: Who ſhall bear the Name of Governour or Preſident of Greſham College; and ſhall ſucceed in Order, as followeth, viz. For the firſt Year, the Divinitie Reader; for the ſecond Year the Law Reader; and for the third Year, the Phyſick Reader, ſhall have the Name and Place of Governour or Preſident of the ſayed College. And for other Precedencie after the Preſident, the Divinitie Reader is to have the firſt Place. In Law and Phyſick, the ancienter Doctor in the Univerſitie ſhall have the ſecond Place. In the third Place, the Doctor of Muſick, if any ſuch be. The other Profeſſours, being not Doctors, are to take their Places according to their Election or Seniority within the ſaid College. In which Order, the ſaid Lecturers ſhall ſhow themſelves in the Place of their publique Reading in one certein Seat, or Pue; which ſhall be erected and buylt for them, the firſt Day of the Divinitie Lecture in every Terme.

The three principal Readers to be Preſidents in Succeſſion.

The Divinitie Lecturer to be next the Preſident.

The other Readers, after the Divinitie Profeſſour, to have their Place according to their Senioritie within the College.

II. Whear the Manſion Houſe of the ſaid Founder is by him given, as well for the Dwelling Place of the ſayed Lecturers to be thear reſiant, as for the publique Reading of their ſayed Lectures; it is farther ordered, that the ſayed Lecturers ſhall reſide and lodge in their ſeveral Lodgings appointed for them within the ſayed Houſe; eſpecially during the Termes, which ſhall be appointed for their publick Reading. In which Times, if any of the ſayed Readers ſhall have any urgent or neceſſarie Cauſe to abſent themſelves, or intermitt their Reading, as Sickneſs, Death of Friends, Ymployment in ſome publique Service, or ſuch-like; they are to ſubſtitute ſome other meet and ſufficient Perſon, to read their Lecture, and to performe that Duety, which to them appertaineth. Which Subſtitutes for four of the Lecturers (to wit, of Divinitie, Aſtronomie, Geometrie, and Muſick) are to be allowed by the L. Maior and Court of Aldermen. The other three, for the Law, Phyſick, and Rhetorick Lecture, by the Maſter and Wardens of the Company of Mercers. Provided, that the ſaid Lecturers, nor any of them, ſhall not entertain, nor lodge within their Chambers, any Stranger, ſave ſuch onlie as ar attendant about themſelves for their daily Service, above the Space of three Nights together in the whole Year.

The Readers to lodge and common within the Houſe, as Collegiat Perſons.

Deputie Readers to be allowed by the L. Maior, Aldermen, and Wardens of the Mercers.

III. Foraſmuch as the ſayed Readers, by the laſt Will and Ordination of the ſayed Founder, ar to be ſingle and unmarried Men, and ſo to live and converſe together, as Collegiat Perſons within the ſayed Houſe; whearby they ſhall want convenient Means for providing of their Diet and other Neceſſaries: It is farther ordered, for their better Societie among themſelves, and the Eaſe of Charges, that the ſaid Lecturers, within ſix Moneths after Warning, given by the L. Maior and Court of Aldermen, and the Maſter and Wardens of the Company of Mercers, ſhall erect one common Table, or Ordinary Diet, to be mainteyned by a common Charge or Contribution among themſelves, by equal Portions, during the Time of their publique Reading: Referring the Meaſure and Proportion thereof to their own Diſcretions: Except by Reaſon of ſome Infirmitie. In which Caſe, they are not compelled to paie their Rates, or Ordinarie Contributions towards their Table, or common Diet; but may provide and have their Diet in their own Chambers, or ells whear, as they ſhall thinck good, upon Warning given to the Preſident of their Non-commoning, for the Week, haulf Week, &c. upon like Warning to return, and enter to their former Commons.

A common Table, or Ordinary Diet, to be kept by the Profeſſours within the College.

No Stranger to be enterteyned at their Common Diet, above three Meals within one Moneth.

Provided, that the ſayed Readers ſhall not intertein any Friend or Stranger at their common Table, not being of their own Companie, above three Meals within one Moneth. For which Time it may be lawful for any of them to bring his Friend to their common Table, upon his proper Charge, or other Condition, as among themſelves it ſhall be agreed.

Five Terms of their publick Reading in the Year.

IIII. Their publique Readings are to be perfourmed at five Termes throughout every Year. Whereof the firſt is to begin the Moondaie before Trinitie Term of the Common Lawe; and to contynue for one whole Moneth, viz. the Space of thirtie Daies next enſuing. After which Term, a greater Vacancie and Intermiſſion is granted to them for their private Studie, or other Buſineſs, and for the avoyding of Concurſe of People in the Heat of Soomer. The ſecond Term is to begin the firſt Moondaie of September, and to contynue for a fortnight next following. The third Term of their publique Reading is to begin the Moondaie before Michaelmas Term of the Common Lawe, and to end with the ſame Term. Their fourth Term beginneth the Moondaie next after the Epiphanie or Twelfth Day; and is to contynue for two Moneths, viz the Space of ſixtie Daies. The Fifth is to begin the Moondaie Sevennight after Eaſter Day, and to end with Eaſter Term of the Common Lawe.

The Divinity Lecture to be read thrice every Week; twice in Latin, and once in Engliſh, betwixt the Hours of 8 and 9 in the Forenoon.

V. And foraſmuch as the publique Reading of the ſayed Lectures is to be performed in that Manner, as may moſt tende to the Glorie of God, and the common Benefit of the People of this Citie (which wee doubt not to be the principal Ends of the Founder in the ordeyning of the ſayed Lectures) And for that the greateſt Part of the Inhabitants within this City underſtand not the Latin Tongue; whearby the ſayed Lectures in ſhort Time may becoom ſolitarie, if they ſhall be read in the Latin Tongue onlie; and yet withal, it is very likelie, that divers Strangers of foreign Countries, who reſort thither, and underſtand not the Engliſh, will greatlie affect to hear the reading of the ſaid Lectures; whearby the Memorie of the ſayed Founder, and of the ſayed Woork, for increaſe of Learning, may be divulged, to the good Example of foreign Nations, and the Honour and Credit of this honourable Citie: It is thought meet, that the ſayed Lectures be applyed to the beſt Benefit and Contentation of the Auditors of both Sorts. For which Cauſe it is ordeyned, that the Divinitie Lecture (whearof ought to be moſt ſpecial Care that the ſame bee doon as may beſt tende to the Profit and Edifying of Chriſtian People within this Cytie, and of ſuch other as ſhall reſort to the ſayed Lecture) ſhall be publiquely read in the Place appointed of the ſayed College, thrice every Week, one whole Houre. Whearof the two former Lectures to be in the Latin, and the third in the Engliſh Tongues. Which third Lecture, to avoyd Confuſion and Interruption in the Courſe of Reading, may be the Effect of the two former Lectures, which were read next before in the Latin Tongue.

The Divinitie Lecture in the Latin Tongue, is to be read every Mondaie and Wenſdaie, betwixt the Houres of Eight and Nine in the Forenoon.

The Engliſh Lectures to be read every Friday, at the ſame Hour.

The Divinity Profeſſour to read the Controverſies with the common Adverſaries, and not to meddle with domeſtick Differences, touching Rites and Ceremonies of the Church.

VI. And foraſmuch as great and ſpecial Care ought to be had touching the Matter and Points of Doctrine, that ar to bee handled in the ſayed Lecture (which is not to be enlarged or intermingled with Exhortation, being improper for a publique Lecture) And for that great Need is at this preſent Tyme, that the common People be well grounded in the chief Points of Chriſtian Religion: And that the common Adverſarie of the Popiſh Church, and other Authors of new Sects and ſtrange Opinions (who endeavour to pervert the Myndes of many ignorant People) may be refuted and mett withal: It is thought meet, that the Divinitie Reader employe his Time in the ſound handling of ſuch Controverſies as concern the chief Points of our Chriſtian Faith; ſpecially thoſe with the common Adverſarie of the Church of Rome: Whearin he ſhall endeavour to confirme the Truth of Doctrine now eſtabliſhed in the Church of England, and to confute the adverſe Part; and with great Conſcience and Circumſpection to boulte out the true State of each Controverſie; ſpeciallie drawn from the Council of Trent, and the late Writers of refined Poperie, and to overthrow their falſe Opinions; firſt, by Scripture; then, by Conſent of Antiquitie; and laſtly, by Schoolmen, and chief Writers of their own Side: Not intermeddling with domeſtique Queſtions, or inteſtine Differences, that are controverted, touching the Rites and Manner of Government of the Church.

The Lawe Reader to read thrice a Week, whearof the two former Lectures to be in Latin, the third in Engliſh.

VII. The Lawe Lecture is to be read thrice every Week in the Term Tyme, for one whole Hower: Whearof the two former Lectures ar to be read in the Latin Tongue; the third Lecture in the Engliſh Tongue; as a brief Collection, or Recapitulation of the two former Lectures, that were read next before, in the Latine Tongue. The Days appointed for the Lawe Lecture ar Tueſdaie, Thurſdaie, and Saturdaie, betwixt the Howers of Eight and Nine in the Forenoon.

The Law Reader to read ſuch Titles, and obſerve ſuch Method, as is fitteſt for the Auditory of this Cytie.

VIII. Touching the Courſe to be obſerved by the Lawe Reader, it is thought meet in reſpect of the ordeyning this Lecture, and for the Qualitie of the Hearers, who, for the moſt Part, ar like to be Merchants, and other Citizens; that the ſayed Lawe Lecture be not read after the Manner of the Univerſitie, upon any Text of the Civill Courſe; but that the Reader cull out ſuch Titles and Heads of Lawe, as beſt may ſerve to the good Liking and Capacitie of the ſayed Auditorie; and ar more uſual in common Practice. Which may be handled after the Method of Waſenbekius, and certein other, by Definition, Deviſion, Cauſes material, formal, efficient, final, Effects, Contraries, &c. For that this Method, being firſt layed out, and judicially handled, will be moſt perſpicuous, and will leave nothing that is material in the whole Lawe, touching that Matter, obſcure or untouched.

The Heads and Titles of ſuch Matters as ſeem fitteſt for this Place and Auditorie ar theiſe, which follow, viz.

The Phyſick Lecture to be read thrice the Week.

IX. The Phyſick Lecture is to be read thrice every Week in the Term Time, viz. upon Tueſdaies, Thurſdaies, and Saturdaies, betwixt the Howers of Ten and Eleven. And foraſmuch as the greateſt Part of the Auditorie is like to bee of ſuch Citizens and others, as have ſmall Knowledge, or none at all, in the Latine Tongue: And for that every Man, for his Health's Sake, will deſire to have ſome Knowledge in the Art of Phyſick; it is thought good that the two firſt Lectures be read in the Latine Tongue, and the other Lecture in the Engliſh Tongue, as a brief Collection, or Recapitulation, of the two former Lectures in the Latine Tongue.

The two former Lectures in the Latine Tongue, and the third in Engliſh.

Toutching the Matter of the ſaid Lecture, albeit the ſame is to be referred to the Diſcretion of the Reader, yet it is wiſhed, that he follow herein Fernelius's Method, by reading firſt Phyſiologie, then Pathologie, and laſt, Therapentice: Whearby the Body of the ſayed Art may be better imprinted, by good Method, in the Studious Auditors, rather than be disjointed, and delivered out of Order, by Expoſition, by ſome Part of Galen or Hypocrates.

Matter and Order of the Phyſick Reader.

The Aſtronomie and Geometrie Readers, to read thrice the Week a-piece.

X. The Aſtronomie and Geometric Lectures are to be read in like Manner, viz. either of the ſayed Lectures thrice every Week.

Matter and Order for the Geometrician.

Touching the Manner of the ſayed Lectures; the Geometrician is to read as followeth, viz. Every Trinitie Term Arithmetique: In Michaelmas and Hilarie Termes Theorical Geometrie; and everie Eaſter Term Practical Geometrie.

The Matter and Order to be obſerved by the Aſtronomie Reader.

XI. The Aſtronomie Reader is to read firſt the Principles of the Sphere, and Theoriques of the Planets, &c. Which being read and opened, he ſhall apply them to Uſe, by reading Geographie, and the Art of Navigation, in ſome one Term of every Year. The Daies appointed for the Aſtronomie Lecture ar Mondaie, Wedneſdaie, and Fridaie, betwixt the Howers of Two and Three in the Afternoon. For Geometrie, Tueſdaie, Thurſdaie, and Saturdaie, at the ſame Hower in the Afternoon. The firſt Reading of the ſayed Lectures is to be in Latine; the next in Engliſh; and ſo following in the ſame Order.

The Rhetorique Reader to read thrice in the Week in the Latin Tongue, with a Recapitulation of one Quarter in Engliſh.

XII. The Rhetorique Lecture is to be read thrice every Week in the Term Tyme, viz. upon Moondaies, Wedneſdaies, and Fridaies, by the Space of one whole Hower, in the Latine Tongue; with a brief Collection, or Recapitulation, for one Quarter of an Hower, in the Engliſh Tongue, betwixt the Howers of Ten and Eleven in the Forenoon.

The Muſick Lecture to be haulf Theorique, and haulf Practique.

XIII. The Muſick Lecture is to be read thrice every Week in Manner following, viz. The Theorique Part for one haulf Hower, in the Engliſh Tongue: And the Practique Part, by Conſort of Voices, or of Inſtruments, for the other haulf Hower. The Daies appointed for this Lecture ar Tueſdaies, Thurſdaies, and Saturdaies, in the Afternoon, betwixt the Howers of Three and Fower.

To read in their Hoods, after the Manner of the Univerſitie.

XIV. Farther, for more Order and Comelineſs ſake, it is thought meet, that the ſayed Lecturers ſhall read their Lectures in ſuch Habit, as the Manner is of publique Readers in the Univerſities, viz. In ſuch Hoods and Habits as fit their Degree.

The Keeper of the Houſe to be appointed by the L. Maior and Court of Aldermen, &c. with Conſent of the Readers.

XV. Laſtlie, for the good ordering and ſafe keeping of the ſayed Howſe in decent Order, it is thought convenient, that ſome meet Perſon bee thearto appointed, who is to keep the Place of Reading, Cloiſters, Garden, and other open and common Places of the ſayed Howſe, and to ſee the Gates ſhut and opened in convenient Times. And to that Purpoſe, is to have his Lodging within the ſayed Howſe, by the Aſſignment of the ſayed Lecturers. The Keeper is to be choſen and appointed by the L. Maior, and Court of Aldermen, with the Conſent of the ſayed Lecturers, or the greater Part of them.

Repreſentatives for the City of WESTMINSTER.

THE firſt Return Weſtminſter ever made of Repreſentatives to Parliament, was after the Diſſolution of Abbeys. For it is plain, that An°. 33 of Henry the Eighth, there was no Return or Summons of Members from it, or Peterborough, or ſeveral Abbey Towns. So we may date their ſending Repreſentatives to be undoubtedly in Henry the Eighth's laſt Parliament, begun An. Reg. 33. aforeſaid, or rather in the next convened Parliament, which was in Edward the Sixth's Reign. So there we begin our Account.

Ibid. p. 39, l. 23, ab im. The Petition of Page to the L. Treaſurer, there mentioned, for Liberty to build upon Wappin Wall, will give a conſiderable Light into the State of Wappin Marſh in thoſe Times. And therefore I have entered it here from the Original, being endorſed the 13th of Jan. 1583.

'In his moſt humble Maner ſheweth and beſeecheth your Honour, your poor Suppliant Wil-

'liam Page, That where the Marſh or Meadow Ground, called Wappinge Marſhes, were heretofore wonne to the Commoditie of the Countrie, and were defended from the Thames with a Wall, which Wall continuallie was very chargeable, in maynteyning and defending the ſame: And the ſame Marſhe, or the moſt part thereof, belonging now to her Majeſty in Extent, 'till a great Sum of Money ſhall be payd: And her Majeſty hath rented out the ſame: So as if it ſhould be drowned, her Majeſties Rent were gone. And of late Years the Force of the Water was ſuch, as it brake the Wall in ſondrie Places, and overflowed the whole Marſhes, and drowned much Cattel: And the Breaches being ſtopped, the Water broke in again. For Redreſs whereof, about twelve Years paſt a View was made by the Commiſſioners for Sewers: Who thought it very neceſſary that the Wall ſhould be builded upon by any who would. Whereupon your Suppliant, as others did in like Maner, took a Leaſe of one hundred and ten Foot of the ſame Wall, and laid his Foundation of his Building before her Majeſty's Proclamation againſt new Buildings; and beſtowed a great Sum of Money in making the Wall very ſtrong, and in Building: To the ſtronge Defence of the ſaid Merſhes, and Commoditie and Eaſe of the Repairers and Maynteyners of the ſaid Wall.

'In tender Conſideration whereof, and the rather, for that it is a Benefit to her Majeſty in Contynuance of her Rent, and for that alſo your Suppliant's Buildings are not hurtful to any, and were begun before the ſaid Proclamation: MAY it pleaſe your Honour to be a Meane in your poor Suppliant's Behalf, that he may finiſh his ſaid Buildings, not exceeding the ſaid Length of one hundred and ten Foot: And he, as moſt bounden, ſhall daiely pray to God for your Honour.

BOOK V. Ch 8 *p.*161. When the Report from Court was, that the Queen intended to take Crooke, the Recorder, into her Majeſty's Service, and to advance him: And the L. Keeper had informed one of the Aldermen therewith: And had likewiſe told him, that the Queen deſired the L. Maior (not with any Intention to make Infringement upon the Citie's Liberties) to ſend her the Names of ſuch fit Perſons as they intended to put up for Election, to ſuccede in the ſaid Recorder's Place; this created a Jealouſy among the Citizens: And the Maior (who was Sir John Spencer) that Year, viz. 1595, communicated the ſame at large by his Letter to the L. High Treaſurer: Which falling into my Hands, I thought it worthy the entering, to ſhew how jealous the Citizens were of their Privileges, and careful for maintaining thereof. Wherein, inſtead of naming ſeveral by them to be elected, the Maior giveth the Name of one only, whom they approved of, and deſired for their Recorder; and why.

The L. Maior's Letter to the L. Treaſurer, about a new Recorder.

Right Honourable and my very good Lord, Albeit I preſume, &c. I have thought good alſo to let your Lordſhip know, that upon Saturday Morning laſt, I was informed by Sir John Harte, that he underſtood from the Right Honourable my L. Keeper, that her moſt excellent Majeſty had taken our Recorder* from us into her Highneſs's Service; and that her Majeſty's Pleaſure was, that we ſhould deliver to my L. Keeper the Names of ſuch as we would put in Election anew: To the End, that her Majeſty might pleaſe to conſider of their Aptneſs for the Place. But notwithſtanding that, her Highneſs would pleaſe to leave us to our own free Election therein. Howbeit I have ſpared hitherto to make any Proceeding accordingly, partly, in Reſpect that I underſtand not by the Recorder himſelf of his Remove; and chiefly, for that the laſt Term there was the like Rumour, and yet ſodenly it dyed again. In which Reſpect, I thought it Diſcretion to have ſome ſufficient Warrant, or Note, eyther from my L. Keeper himſelf, or ſome other of your Honours, or from the Recorder, before I procede to any new Election. Leaſt otherwiſe I ſhould do the Gentleman wrong, who holdeth the Place, and ſeem myſelf more haſty than there may be Cauſe.

But, my good Lord, while I have Pauſe herein, until I had more certain Advertiſement, the grave Commoners of the City of London, hearing a common Bruite, that a new Recorder was ſpeedily to be choſen, at a Common Council held at Guild Hall on Tueſday laſt for other Cauſes, one of them in the Behalf made very earneſt Suite; becauſe in all our Counſels and Conſultations, (which are almoſt daily for one Cauſe or other) the Recorder hath of auncient Tyme bene preſent, as a principal Man, both for Advice in Law, and other Direction. And now of late, thoſe which we have had, have been for the moſt part abſent: That therefore myſelf, and the Aldermen would take care, that hereafter we chooſe no Sergeant, nor other Stranger, but only ſome one that is reſident and dwelling among us, and acquainted with our Cuſtomes; and to make Choice of ourſelves, as we have bene wont, without ſending any Names, as hath bene motioned. And thereof very urgent Suite was made in Common Council on the Behalf of the Commoners. Whereof I thought it my Duty to advertiſe your Lordſhip; moſt humblie deſiring you to be a Means, that wee may herein have our own free Election, according to our auncient Cuſtome. For that, albeit we have lately had moſt worthy Men, yet we have found their long and much Abſence a great Maihem unto us.

And for mine own Opinion, my good Lord, as alſo of many others, we have one born and dwelling among us, whom we have great Experience of, and think very able to do us Service in this Behalf, his Name is Mr. James Altham, Son of Mr. Altham, late of Eſſex, Eſq; He is a Bencher of Graies Inn, and one of our ordinary ſworn Counſellours of the City, well acquainted with our Cuſtomes, and very well thought of for his Honeſtie and Skill in Law, both throughout the whole City and elſewhere; and being in Election laſt Time, did very narrowly miſs it. In which Reſpects, and for the good Hope we have of him, myſelf and many others do, onely for the Good of the City, earneſtly wiſh him the Place, if her Majeſty ſhall pleaſe to remove the other: Nothing doubting, but that her moſt excellent Majeſty, and your good Lordſhip, and my other Lords, will take very good Liking of him. And therefore, as a Welwiller to the City, and one that deſireth that the continual Buſineſs thereof may be attended as it ought, I am, as far as I may, a moſt earneſt and humble Petitioner to your good Lordſhip, to further us and him therein by your honourable Letters, or ſuch other Means as to your Honour ſhall ſeem good.

I am alſo to advertiſe your Lordſhip, that having appointed to hold a Quarter Seſſions in the Borough of Southwark, according to the Charter of London, this preſent Day,* it ſo happened, by Reaſon of Mr. Recorder's Abſence, and other Letts, which the reſt of the Knights of the City, which ſhould aſſociate me, had, as themſelves ſay; that there was not one Juſtice to attend that Service, but myſelf; albeit there was eight Days Warning given with their own Conſents, and that they were often put in mind of it. Whereupon, finding that neither by Charter, nor otherwiſe, I might hold the Seſſions alone, I was inforced to forbear, and to put the ſame off to ſome other Tyme, even when I was ready to go. Whereof I thought good to let your Lordſhip underſtand, both to the End your Honour may perceive how neceſſary our Recorder's daily Preſence is, as alſo, leſt your Honour, and others, might conceive any Negligence in me, from attending the Service which appertaineth to my Place: Whereof I would be ſorry to omit the leaſt Part.

* Sir John Crooke.

* July 23.

Book V. [p. 153.] l. 8. The ſix Bends in the Coat of Sir Rob. Beachcroft is amiſs, and muſt be dexter, not ſiniſter.

No Arreſt but by City Officers.

Ibid. p. 155. b. l. 39. To the Counters, among other Officers of the Sheriffs, belonged Officers for Arreſts, &c. being Sergeants and their Yeomen. And among the Privileges of the City, this was one, that none are to arreſt in the City beſide the Officers of the City. Concerning which, there once happened a Conteſt between the City and the L. High Admiral. They had often contended about their Privileges. But the Citizens would not ſuffer him to exerciſe an Arreſt in London, which he had attempted to do by his Officer: Saying, he would not loſe any Part of that which his Predeceſſors had enjoyed.

The Caſe of an Arreſt in the City, by a Sergeant of the Admiralty.

Anno 1587, this Conteſt grew high, and ſeveral Warrants were iſſued out of the Court of Admiralty, and ſerved by one Swifte, Sergeant of the Court of Admiralty, upon Perſons in the City of London. Which were always diſobeyed by the Perſons arreſted; and the L. Maior or Sheriffs ſtood by them therein. Among the reſt, there was a Warrant directed out of the Court of Admiralty, for the arreſting of one James Burton, upon a Debt of 40*l.* at the Suit of a Merchant Stranger; and accordingly he was arreſted by an Officer of the Admiralty in the Month of October 1587. One Hamer, a Silkman, adviſed Burton not to obey; and they miſuſed the Officer, both with Words and Blows; for that they ſaid, my L. Admiral had no Authority with his Warrant to arreſt any Man within the City of London. And afterward the ſaid Officer was miſuſed by one Thomas Ketcher; and he reſcued Burton from the Officer.

Upon theſe contentious Dealings of Hamer and Ketcher, there came out a Warrant of Contempt from the Court of Admiralty, ſent to the Sergeant of the Admiralty, or his Deputy, for the arreſting of them both, bearing Date Oct. 17, the ſame Year. And Hamer was arreſted at his Houſe in Lombard-ſtreet: But he would not of a long Time obey, affirming often, that the L. Admiral had no Authority to arreſt within London. But in the End he was content to go with the Officer unto the Judge of the Admiralty: And coming to the Exchange, he would go no farther; but forcibly went from him to Barnes, L. Maior. And as the Officer followed him, the Apprentices fell upon him, and beat him down. And at the Officer's coming to the L. Maior for his Priſoner, he required Sight of his Warrant, which he read: And the ſaid Officer required his Priſoner; but he could not have him, my L. Maior ſaying, that the Citizens ſhould not be ſo uſed, and willed him to depart, &c.

After this, the Sergeant of the Admiralty arreſted Ketcher in Lothbury with the ſame Warrant, upon the ſaid Contempt, Octob. 23.

And beſides theſe Arreſts, in the Year 1567, when Sir Christopher Draper was Maior, the Sergeant of the Admiralty did arreſt, by Warrant out of the ſaid Court of Admiralty, 38 Cheſts of Sugar appertaining to one Mr. Fenner, at the Suit of one John Baptiſt: And put the ſaid Sugar into a Cellar upon Greenberries Key, and ſet an Anchor with Chalk upon the ſaid Cellar Door. After, one Williams, one of the Sergeants of the City, brake open the ſaid Door, and took out the 38 Cheſts of Sugar, and carried them away. And Complaint being hereof made unto the Lords of the Queen's Privy Council, thereupon Mr. Wilborne, Recorder of the City of London, Mr. Coiſſe, and others of the chief Officers, and the ſaid Williams were ſent for, to come before the Council at Windſor. Dr. Dale, the Judges Deputy of the Admiralty, Roger Parker, Regiſter of the ſame, and the aforeſaid Sergeant, were likewiſe ſent for thither: They all being before the Lords of the Council, and the Matter truly debated, it was ordered by the Council, that the 38 Cheſts ſhould be brought unto the ſaid Cellar, by the aforeſaid Officer of the City, and deliver'd by Inventory into the Poſſeſſion of Swift, the Officer of the Admiralty, and the Keys of the ſaid Cellar Doors withal. Which was ſo done accordingly: And a Letter ſent from the Lords of the Council to the L. Maior, of their great Miſliking thereof. My Relation goes no farther.

And an Arreſt of a Freeman's Goods from the ſaid Court.

The Goldſmiths Vindication of themſelves.

Book V, p. 184, b. l. 12. But in Vindication of the Goldſmiths, againſt an Accuſation of them for Deceits in making their Plate, and wronging the Buyers, the Company juſtified themſelves, Ann. 1577, by an Addreſs to the L. Treaſurer, ſigned by Langley, Maior, and other Wardens of the ſaid Company, to this Purport; 'That whereas one William Sutton, of the ſaid ‘Company, upon ſundry falſe Suggeſtions, as they were credibly informed, had, of late, exhibited his Bills, as well to the Queen's Majeſty, as to his Honour, as to others the Lords of the Privy Council, craving thereby, that it might pleaſe her Highneſs to authoriſe, by a Commiſſion by him deviſed, ſome one (meaning himſelf) to overſee and ſurvey the Doings of their Workmen: Suppoſing to her Highneſs, that they, the Wardens, (to whom that Office by Vertue of the Queen's Majeſty's Letters Patents appertained) did very remiſsly neglect their Duty therein: They therefore, leſt peradventure her Majeſty, and his Honour, and the reſt of the Lords, not knowing how impudent and leud a Perſon he was, neither what Care and Paine they daily did take to execute their ſaid Office of Search, might to their great Griefs and untolerable Burthen, upon his untrue Suggeſtion, without juſt Cauſe authorize ſo evil a Member, or any other, to ſearch among them, to the great Diſturbance of the whole Company, thought it their bounden Duty, firſt, to ſignify to his Lordſhip what he, the ſaid Sutton, was, and in what Diſorder he had lived, and yet did, among them, as by Records hereafter cited might appear: But alſo therewith preſented to their Honours, what Order they took for ſearching throughout the whole Realm.

‘That this Will. Sutton, Anno 1569, for his Diſobedience to his Wardens, was ſent to the Counter. His Caſe was thus: The ſaid Sutton then (as he now did) found many Faults: And when he was called before the Company, could not ſet forth one particular Workman that ſhould commit the ſame; and ſo, for ſlandering the Workmen, he was, by the Alderman of the Company, the Wardens, and the whole Aſſiſtants ſent to Ward. That another Time he made Report to ſundry, that he knew ſeveral great Enormities in the Company, and he would have it redreſt. Whereupon, the Wardens hearing of it, ſent for him again; and with as good Words as they could, deſired him to tell it, and to ſet it forth to them preſently; that they might puniſh the ſame, and be forthwith redreſt, that the Queen's Subjects, by Delay, might receive no Loſs: But when he ſhould have ſet down the ſaid Faults, he could not ſet down one. After this, he then ſecretly, (as now he did) informed the Council, what evil Plate there was in Cheapſide; and prayed a Commiſſion for the Search of the ſame, and had it. And when he had taken the ſame Plate, and upon the ſudden ſealed it up in Bags, being after brought before the Commiſſioners, each Party had his own Plate again, as good Plate, and undefaced.

‘That this Sutton alſo procured one John Burton, Gold Wyer-drawer, to draw him a Wyer of fine Silver, and to brace it over with Gold, to make a deceitful Cheyne thereof: And ſo the ſaid Cheyne had 14 Ounces in Silver in it, and a thinn Plate of Gold on it, weighing 3 Ounces. Whereupon, the ſaid Sutton was called and examined, and could not deny the ſame. At another Time, the ſaid Sutton, for his evil Demeanour, was committed to Priſon, in that he not only ſlandered the Company, but the Wardens, and would not, according to his Othe, ſet forth and declare to the ſaid Wardens, as well the Cauſe as the Parties Names: Whereupon, he, by his Adherents, complained himſelf to the whole Body of the Council; ſuggeſting (as he yet daily doth) what great Enormities were in the ſaid Company, and that he was committed for evil Will and Malice. Whereupon, their Honours directed their Letters to Sir Ambroſe Nicholas, Kt. then L. Maior, and the Maſter of the Rolls: Who deliberately heard both him and us, with all the Proofs and Circumſtances he could bring in, touching his Aſſertions. And in the End, by an Order taken likewiſe, ready to be ſhewed under their Hands, Yt was ordered, that he ſhould eſtſoons go to Priſon again, 'till the Councils Pleaſure, upon their Certificate, were fully known.

‘And after the Lords Pleaſure was known, Order by the Commiſſioners was taken, that he ſhould come openly into Goldſmiths Hall, and there acknowledge his Fault before all the whole Company; and there likewiſe to give them to underſtand, that he was ſorry for his Faults: And ſhould farther promiſe never after to offend ſo again.

‘Now, our very good Lord, whether this Sutton (living idly, and not uſing the Trade of Goldſmiths, but rather ſeeketh to deface the ſame) be ſuch a one, to whom any Credit ſhould be given, or a Man meet to ſerve in a Commonweal, we refer it to your grave Judgement and Underſtanding. Humbly beſeeching your Honour, and the reſt of the Honourable Council, to ſtand our good Lords, and to ayde us in our Service, no otherwiſe than we ſhall deſerve. And we ſhall be bound daily to pray to God for your proſperous Eſtates long to endure.

This was writ upon Parchment, and ſign'd by John Langley, Maior, and at leaſt ten more of that Company, the Wardens and others.

And with this Addreſs they ſent the Ordinances of the Company, fairly written alſo in Parchment, viz.

A Note of ſundry Ordinances, made for the Goldſmiths, ratified and confirmed by the Lords of the Privy Council, and the two Chief Juſtices of England.

FIRST, There is every Year four Wardens choſen, and ſolemnlie Sworne to do their bounden Duties unto the Queen's Majeſty; and juſtly and truly to deal in the Company, and to perform the Laws, Statutes, and Ordinances of the Houſe.

Ordinances of the Goldſmiths.

Item, They or three of them ſit twice every Week, viz Monday and Friday, to hear all Cauſes of Offence in the ſaid Company, and to end the ſame. And if the Cauſes be of Weight, then they to call to them ten, at the leaſt, of the Aſſiſtants. All which Aſſiſtants to have been tofore ſworn Wardens. And theſe together to hear, end, and determine the ſame.

We ſearch every Year twice, thrice, or four Times, as Occaſion ſerveth. And if we find any Things unlawfully made, be it Gold or Silver, we break it, tho' it be worth an 100*l.* or two. We alſo impriſon the Partie, and fyne him. All which, and more, is turned to the Relief of the Poor. Which cometh yearly, with other Things, geven by our auncient Fathers tofore, to the Sum of —— ——

We four Times a Year call the whole Corporation together. And then openly in the Hall we read the Ordinances of the Houſe unto them, and eſpecially for good and true Workmanſhip.

And put them in Remembrance, what Laws be made therefore: How they are bound in 40*l.* apiece to work truly; How they be ſworn ſo to do: And all this we do, to urge them to work truly and honeſtly.

We then earneſtly deſire them, yea, and charge them by th'Othe they have taken to the Queen's Majeſty, that they conſider of this one ſpecial Admonition, that as they ſhall not work untruly, ſo ſhall they not keep cloſe or ſecret any Man of the Company, or any other that ſhall work for them untruly; but ſhall forthwith reveal it to the Wardens.

A Supply of the Incorporations of ſeveral Companies omitted.

Book V, p. 247. For ſeveral of the Companies of London, and their Incorporations, being omitted, or more ſhortly accounted for, in that Part of the Book that treats of them, a Supply was ſent to me by Mr. Mauduit, Windſor Herald. Which was as follows:

SIR,

I Now ſend you the Incorporations of ſeveral incorporated Companies of London, the Time thereof not expreſſed in the SURVEY.

Maſons.

The Company of Maſons were an ancient Fellowſhip, and called upon by the L. Maior; tho' the Time of their Incorporation commenceth but from the 17th Day of December, in the 29th Year of King Charles the Second, by the Name of Maſter, Wardens, Aſſiſtants, and Commonalty of the Art and Myſtery of Maſons of the City of London.

Marblers.

The Marblers were an ancient Fellowſhip, but no incorporated Company of themſelves; tho' now joyned in with the Company of Maſons of London.

Spectacle-Makers.

The Company of Spectacle-makers were incorporated by Charter the 16th Day of May, in the 5th Year of the Reign of King Charles the Firſt, by the Name of the Maſter, Wardens, and Fellowſhip of Spectacle-makers of London.

Frame-work-Knitters.

The Company of Frame-work-knitters were incorporated by Charter, the 19th Day of Auguſt, 1663, in the 15th Year of King Charles the Second, by the Name of the Maſter, Wardens, Aſſiſtants, and Society of the Art and Myſtery of Frame-work-knitters, in the Cities of London and Weſtminſter, the Kingdom of England, and Dominion of Wales.

Lorimers.

The 2d Day of October, in the 4th Year of King Henry the Seventh, William Browne, Kt. being then Maior of London, certain Ordinances made by the Guardians of the Myſtery of the Lorimers of London were confirmed by the Maior and Aldermen of the City at Guildhall. Wherein it is mentioned, that the Fraternity had then been of long Continuance. And the third Day of December, in the tenth Year of Queen Anne the ſaid Company were incorporated by the Name of Maſter, Wardens, Aſſiſtants, and Commonalty of Lorimers of London. In procuring of which Sir James Bateman, Kt. afterwards Lord Maior of London, a loving Member of the ſaid Company, was very aſſiſtant.

Weavers.

The Company of the Weavers were incorporated in the Reign of King Henry the Second, and confirmed the 31ſt Year of his Reign, Anno 1184, by Charter, as the New View of London takes Notice of. But however, the ſaid Company thought it proper to have the Privileges they pretended to, renewed, and confirmed by Charter of Incorporation, the 17th of September 1706, in the 6th Year of the Reign of Queen Anne, by the Name of Bailiffs, Wardens, Aſſiſtants, and Commonalty of the Trade, Art, and Myſtery of Weavers of London.

Glaziers.

The Company of Glaſiers were incorporated by Charter the 6th of November, in the 13th Year of the Reign of King Charles the Firſt, by the Name of Maſter, Wardens, and Commonalty of the Art or Myſtery of Glaſiers, and Painters on Glaſs of the City of London.

Horners.

The Company of Horners were incorporated by Charter the 12th Day of January, in the 13th Year of the Reign of King Charles the Firſt, by the Name of Maſter, Wardens, Aſſiſtants, and Fellowſhip of the Art and Myſtery of Horners of the City of London.

Paviers.

The Paviers are an ancient Fellowſhip; but an incorporated Company they are not to this Day.

Muſicians.

The Muſicians are an incorporated Company, but the Time of their Incorporation was refuſed by the Clerk of their Company to be given: But ſuppoſed, by King James the Firſt, by the Name of Maſter, Wardens, and the reſt of the Commonalty of the ſaid Corporation. Their Arms were granted them by Patent by William Camden, Clarencieux, An. 1614.

Bowyers.

The Company of Bowyers were incorporated the 28th Day of May, in the 18th Year of King James the Firſt, (but were a Fraternity long before) by the Name of Maſter, Wardens, and Society of the Myſtery of Bowyers of the City of London. Renewed and confirmed by Charter, the 17th Day of November, in the 18th Year of King Charles the Second, by the ſame Name, with all their former Privileges.

Fletchers.

The Company of Fletchers were incorporated much more ancient than any Corporation now of London, as by their Tradition: And that they have, to this Day, preſerved in their Hall a Banner, given them by King John: Which, upon ſolemn Occaſions, is carried amongſt the other Trophies of their Company. And they have other Matters relating to their good Government, writ in the Saxon Tongue; which they preſerve with a great deal of Care and Reverence. The Arms of their Company were granted them by William Hawkeſlowe, otherwiſe called Clarenſeux, King of Arms, the 12th Day of October, in the 7th Year of King Edward the Fourth. In which Patent he ſays, he hath deviſed a Coniſaunce of Arms, For the Maiſteeres and Wardeyns, and their Succeſſoures.

Patten-Makers.

The Patten-Makers Company were incorporated by Charter the 2d Day of Auguſt, in the 22d Year of King Charles the Second, by the Name of Maſter, Warden, Aſſiſtants, and Fellowſhip of Patten-Makers of the Cities of London and Weſtminſter, and the Liberties and Suburbs thereof: And alſo the Patten-Makers of all Towns, Villages, Hamlets, and Places whatſoever, within the Compaſs of ten Miles, every Way diſtant from the ſaid Cities.

Watermen.

The Company of Watermen on the River of Thames, London, were made a Company by Act of Parliament, the 2d and 3d of Philip and Mary. Wherein it is expreſſed, that there ſhall be yearly appointed, choſen, and elected, by the Maior and the Court of Aldermen for the City of London, for the Time being, the Number of eight Perſons of the moſt wiſe, diſcreet, and beſt Sort of Watermen, being Houſeholders, and occupying as Watermen upon the ſaid River between Graveſend and Windſor: Which Election ſhall be yearly at the firſt Court of Aldermen, to be holden within the ſaid City, next after the firſt Day of March. And the ſame eight Perſons ſo elected, ſhall be named and called the Overſeers and Rulers of all the Wherrymen and Watermen that from and after the firſt Day of March ſhall uſe, occupy, or exerciſe, any rowing upon the ſaid River of Thames, between Graveſend and Windſot aforeſaid. Which ſaid Overſeers and Rulers ſhall keep and maintain good Order and Obedience amongſt the ſaid Watermen, according to the true Meaning of this preſent Act.

Lightermen. And the 11th and 12th Year of King William the Third, an Act of Parliament paſt for uniting the Lightermen upon the ſaid River to the Watermen, viz. That all and every Perſon and Perſons, who now keep, or ſhall hereafter keep or work, or ſhall be employed in rowing or anyways navigating any Lighter or Lighters, or other great Craft on the River of Thames, (Trinitymen, Fiſhermen, Ballaſtmen, Weſtern Barges, and Mill Boats, Chalk Hoys, Faggot and Wood Lighters, and other Craft carrying the ſame excepted) ſhall be duly and truly regiſtered in a Book or Books for that Purpoſe, to be kept by the Company of Watermen and Lightermen; and ſhall likewiſe be liable to ſuch Orders, Rules, and Conſtitutions, made, or to be made, for the better Rule and Government of the ſaid Society or Company of Watermen and Lightermen; and the Pains and Penalties, to enforce due Obedience thereto.

Carmen. The Carmen are a Fellowſhip formerly incorporated with the Woodmongers, but diſſolved. They are now a Conſtitution made by the Court of Aldermen and Common Council An. 1665. They have three Wardens and forty one Aſſiſtants, and are governed by Acts of Common Council, Orders of the Court of Aldermen, and Orders and Rules of Chriſt's Hoſpital.

In the Paper, intitled, A particular Note of ſuch charitable good Uſes as are performed by divers of the Companies of London, out of ſuch Rents as they purchaſed of King Edward the Sixth, this being omitted, is to be added:

Mercers Rents conceled.

	l.	s.	d.
BOOK V, p. 249. The Mercers Rents firſt compounded for, amount to 196*l.* 15*s.* 3*d.*	424	12	1
The Rents in Adam's and Woodſhaw's [Concealers] Patents, compounded for, amount to 227*l.* 16*s.* 10*d.*
Which being deducted out of 934*l.* 18*s.* 5*d.* there will reſt of the Value uncompounded for, the Sum of ——— ——— ———	510	6	4

But the Company's humble Petition is, to have Aſſurance from her Majeſty of all the whole Value, ſaving the Mercers Rents. For that they are advyſed, ther is ſome Doubte of the Validity of Adams and Woodſhaw's Patent, by Reaſon of the Proviſo, or Condition, which is conteyned in the ſame.

BOOK V, p. 256. b. The State of our Engliſh Manufactures of Wool and Silk, will appear in a Petition put up to the Parliament the laſt Year, viz. 1719, by thoſe that dealt in and wrought them: Wherein the Caſe was ſtated; and was as followeth, viz.

The Caſe of the Woollen and Silk Manufactures in Great Britain, humbly offered to the Conſideration of the Parliament.

Woollen Manufactures.

THE Value of the Lands of Great Britain muſt increaſe or diminiſh, in Proportion to the Demand for the Produce thereof.

Nothing can make that Demand, but a Number of People.

No Nation can continue long populous, without Employment for the People.

The Weaving Trade, and its Dependants, employ more People than all the Manufactures of Great Britain beſides.

The Weavers in and about London and Norwich, and their Dependants only, are calculated at three hundred thouſand, and upwards. The whole Number of the Callico Printers in England, including Women and Children, are not above eight Hundred; and theſe are employed but eight or nine Months in the Year, though there are ſuch vaſt Quantities of Callicoes worn: The reſt conſequently muſt be run.

It is impoſſible any Nation can grow rich, that hath not the Balance of Trade in its Favour.

Nothing can procure and continue that Balance ſo much, as preventing the home Conſumption of foreign Manufactures.

Spain had the Wealth of the Indies: But, for want of Manufactures of her own, was forced to part with it to other Nations, in Exchange for their Manufactures.

The Poor of this Nation muſt be employed, or maintained. If anything can be propoſed, that will employ near the Number that the Weaving Trade employs, this whole Debate will be given up.

The wearing of prohibited Eaſt-India Silks, printed Callicoes and Linnens, is ſo viſible and univerſal, that it needs no Proof. Inſtead of which, were the Uſe of them prevented, Stuffs and Silks of our own Make would be worn.

Many Thouſands of our Manufacturers are now out of Work: And one Half of thoſe at preſent employed, kept at Work only upon the Hopes of ſome Relief, this Seſſion of Parliament: Of which, if they ſhould be diſappointed, the Condition of the Poor will be very calamitous.

He that is the Cauſe of employing a poor Man to earn a Shilling, doth him a greater Good, than he that gives him a Shilling, when idle.

Mr. Laws is ſetting up a Manufacture at Tankervil, to which he hath got from England Materials of all Sorts, with Workmen, the Numbers of whom he may increaſe as he pleaſes: For if they have not Employment at Home, the working People will wander abroad; the Old and Impotent will be left to the Pariſh.

The French Miſſiſſippi Company ſeems to be the Darling of that State, and have had ſuch Grants as were never before given to any Set of Men: Yet nothing will make them break in upon their own Manufactures, as appears by the late rigorous Prohibition of printed Eaſt-India Silks, Callicoes, and Linnens; notwithſtanding it may be urged, that France might have printed its own Linnens.

As the Riches, the Strength, and Power of Great Britain, are owing to the Manufactures which we, by our Neighbour's Folly, got from them; it is hoped we ſhall not be ſo infatuated as to throw them back again.

The Poor now become proſtrate to a Britiſh Parliament for Work, that they may be rendered more ſerviceable to their Native Country, and not be Vagabonds upon the Face of the Earth.

All which is humbly ſubmitted to this honourable Houſe.

Poſt Boy, Sat. Mar. 5.

Book V. p. 272. a. There was a general Meeting of this Company of the Royal Fiſhery of England at Stationers Hall, March the 3d, 1719: When it was unanimouſly reſolved, That the Affairs of the ſaid Company be carried on in its full Extent. That an Account of 3 l. ℔ Cent. or 36000*l.* be made, for the carrying on of the Fiſhery of the ſaid Company; to be paid into the Bank of England, on or before the 1ſt Day of May next: And a Committee of Nine Perſons, to conſider, in what Manner the Fiſhery may be ſet on Foot next Herring Seaſon.

Lecturers how firſt choſen.

THE Reader is told, p. 127, b. that before the Truſtees for Sir Thomas Greſham's Benefaction proceeded to chooſe the firſt Profeſſors, they ſent Letters to the two Univerſities, deſiring them to recommend to their Choice, fitting Perſons, under the Univerſity Seal, and a Copy of their Letter to the Univerſity of Cambridge is there given. It is not there mentioned, whether either of the Univerſities ſent ſuch Recommendations; but it is probable they never did, or, at leaſt, that the firſt Choice was made without any Regard to ſuch Recommendation; for, it is evident, that at the firſt Election of Profeſſors in $159\frac{6}{7}$, two of them were choſen by Recommendations from the Court, and not from the Univerſities, namely, Dr. Matthew Gwinne, Profeſſor of Phyſick, and Dr. John Bull, Profeſſor of Muſick. The one, Dr. Gwinne, was indeed, at the Time of his Election, Fellow of St. John's College in Oxford; but he had, for ſome Years before, been abſent from his College and Univerſity, * being deſigned for ſome conſiderable Employment by his Friends at Court, where he had great Reputation and Intereſt; for as, in his younger Years, he was much admired for his great Skill and Dexterity in Poetry, for his Penetration in Philoſophical Diſputes, and his Knowledge in all Parts of humane and prophane Learning, and of moſt of the modern Languages, which he obtained by his Travels into various Countries; ſo in his advanced Age, for his happy Succeſs in the Practice of Phyſick, which made him highly valued in this great City, but more by far by the Nobility in the Royal Court. By this Intereſt at Court it was, that he was ſent * into France Phyſician to the Honourable Sir Henry Unton, Kt. Leaguer-Ambaſſadour to the King of France from Queen Elizabeth, and after his Return from thence, he was deſign'd to be Phyſician to the Tower of London; but the firſt Election of the Profeſſors for Greſham College happening at that Time, the Lord Thomas Egerton Baron Elleſmer, (at that Time Lord High Chancellor of England) † recommended him in two Letters to the Mercers Company, to be choſen Phyſick-Profeſſor; and they accordingly choſe him into that Profeſſorſhip: He was alſo, about * the ſame Time, admitted Fellow of the College of Phyſicians. The other, Dr. Bull, Muſick-Profeſſor, ‖ had, for ſome Years, been travelling into Spain, France, and Germany, and on his Return was one of the Gentlemen of the Queen's Chapel, for four or five Years at leaſt, before the Election of the firſt Greſham-Profeſſors: And as he was in the Service of the Court, and in the higheſt Eſteem there, for his vaſt Knowledge in Muſick, it is unqueſtionable he had his Recommendation from the Court, and not from the Univerſities, to which he was an utter Stranger: Nor is it ſufficient, becauſe ſome of the other five Profeſſors were, at the Time of their Elections, Members of ſome of the Colleges, to infer from thence, that they were choſen in virtue of any Recommendation from the Univerſities, becauſe, in the after-Elections, many have been choſen, that were, at the Time of their Elections, Fellows of Colleges, without any Regard had to a previous Recommendation, either from the Univerſity in general, or from their particular Colleges.

The Lectures follow the Manner of the Univerſities.

But whether the Truſtees took the Recommendations of the Univerſities to guide and direct their Choice or no, this ſeems plain, that they took the Methods and Cuſtoms of the Univerſities, as a Plan and Pattern to which the Greſham Lectures were to be modelled; and accordingly we find, that the Greſham-Profeſſors began and ever performed their Lectures, in a Method and Courſe in no material Point differing from that of the Univerſities: And this appears to be altogether agreeable to the Intention and Deſign of Sir Thomas Greſham; who, as he founded Profeſſorſhips in the ſame Arts and Sciences as they are founded in the Univerſities, in Reaſon muſt be ſuppoſed to intend, that thoſe Arts and Sciences ſhould, in like Manner, be cultivated, improv'd, and promoted in London, as they are in the Univerſities; and this Conformity of the Lectures in Greſham-College, to thoſe in the Univerſities, is taken Notice of by thoſe Writers who lived neareſt the firſt Inſtitution: Thus Sir George Buck, in his Treatiſe of the third Univerſity of England, (namely London) when he ſays, that all the Liberal Arts and Sciences are there profeſſed and taught, he adds, * There are many and daily Lectures thereof read, particularly and Academically in Greſham-College; for which Reaſon he afterwards ſtiles Greſham-College  a little Univerſity, Academiæ Epitome. And beſides; that both the Method of the Lectures themſelves, the Times of reading them, and the Intervals between the Times of Reading, were, in a great Meaſure, conformable to the publick Lectures in our Univerſities, and in the ſame Manner perform'd, when the Greſham-

 Idem. 980. l. 33.

ſham-Lectures were firſt inſtituted, is, beyond Contradiction, plain, from the Concluſion of Dr. Gwinne's ſecond Oration, read in Greſham-College, wherein he ſays, that * the Exerciſes or Lectures required of the Profeſſors in Greſham-College are no other than what are required from the Profeſſors in the Schools, and Lecturers in the Colleges, in the Univerſities; and that as  they [the Univerſities] had their Vacation Times, and Receſſes, between the Performance and Return of their Duty, ſo at Greſham-College, † the Lectures were read only at particular and appointed Times; namely, when ſuch-like Exerciſes are uſually performed in other the like Places. And then, that theſe uſual and cuſtomary Times of Reading were the Term Times only, is as plain, from our Author Stow; for it appears from the firſt Edition of this Survey, (written the ſame Year that Dr. Gwinne read the aforeſaid Lecture, not above ſeven Months after the firſt Lectures were read) that the firſt Profeſſors began their Lectures in Trinity Term, 1597; that every Lecturer had his particular Day in the Week, on which he was to read twice, (once in Engliſh, and the other Time in Latin) and that, of the whole Year, the Term Times were the Times for reading theſe Lectures: And the ſame Practice appears to have been followed in 1603, from the ſecond Edition of the Survey, publiſhed by Mr. Stow himſelf, in that Year, improved, augmented, and carefully corrected: And it is as plain, that the ſame Practice ſtill continued from the third Edition, publiſhed by Mr. Anthony Monday in 1618: And laſtly, it is evident, from the fourth Edition of this Survey, ſaid to be compleatly finiſhed, and printed in Folio in 1633, that at that Time the ſame Order and Times of Reading were followed: And in this Edition, p. 65, the particular Days when each Profeſſor is to read is ſet down, namely, the Divinity-Lecturer, on Monday: Civil-Law, Tueſday: Phyſick, Saturday: Muſick, Saturday: Aſtronomy, Wedneſday: Geometry, Thurſday: And Rhetorick, Friday: And this Method and Times of Reading have ever ſince been followed and obſerved. There is, indeed, no Inſtrument in Writing now left, whereby it appears, that this Courſe and Order of Reading was ſettled by the Appointment of the Truſtees, at the firſt Election of the Profeſſors: But there is all the Reaſon poſſible to believe, that this the original Eſtabliſhment was began and continued by the Order and Direction of the Truſtees, and voluntarily ſubmitted to by the firſt Profeſſors; for the above-cited Dr. Gwinne tells us directly ſo in his forenamed ninth Lecture. This Lecture is addreſſed to the Mercers Company, by whom he was elected; and is wrote in Praiſe of his Founder and his Patrons, and in ſpeaking of his own, and his Brethren's (the Profeſſors) careful Diſcharge of their Duty required of them by their Founder's Will, and expected from them by the Truſtees, their Electors: He mentions what that Duty is in theſe Words, †‡ We make open Profeſſion, that you have deliberately enjoyned, and we freely conſented, to do what the publick Profeſſors in either Univerſity do, either by Direction of their Statutes, or in Conformity to the known Cuſtoms of the Place. But were this Proof wanting, it is hardly poſſible, in the Reaſon of the Thing, to ſuppoſe it to have been otherwiſe than by mutual Conſent; ſince, had the Profeſſors themſelves taken this, or any other Method of Proceeding, with the Diſlike, or without the Approbation of the Truſtees, and had continued ſo to do for thirty or forty Years together; there muſt, ſure, within that Space of Time, have appeared ſome prohibitory Act, to hinder them from proceeding in this Manner, or ſome Cenſure of them for thus preſuming: At leaſt, were it poſſible to ſuppoſe, that the firſt Profeſſors had broke thro' all the Rules of Modeſty and Decency to their Electors and Truſtees; to be ſure, as there happen'd many new Elections in this Space of forty Years, the Truſtees would never have been ſo wanting to themſelves, as not to aſſert their Right of Direction, and to oblige all Perſons newly elected, to behave themſelves with more Reſpect to their Truſtees than their Predeceſſors had done: But as nothing of this neither appears, it can't but be thought that this Practice of the Profeſſors was, in all Reſpects, agreeable to the Judgement and good Liking of the Truſtees, and had their free Concurrence with it. Beſides, this Courſe and Method, as was ſaid, nearly copying after the Cuſtom and Practice of the Univerſities, can hardly be imagined not to have been agreeable to the Sentiments of the Truſtees, and to have had their entire Approbation, ſince the Truſtees, as is ſeen before, [p. 127. b.] referred themſelves to the Advice and Direction of the Univerſities, as a Rule for themſelves to be guided by. The Univerſity Lectures are read by each Profeſſor twice in the Week, and ſo they are in Greſham College; the former, indeed, are both in the learned Language, but the later, being deſigned as well for the Uſe of Citizens as of profeſſed Schollars, are read both in Engliſh and Latin. The Univerſity Statutes, ſpeaking of their Lectures, uſe the Phraſe Weekly: The Founder's Will, ſpeaking of his, uſes the Phraſe Daily, of the ſame Importance. Thus in the Univerſity Statutes, it is ſaid of the Divinity-Profeſſor, * bis in qualibet ſeptimanâ exponet, he ſhall read twice Weekly; and ſo of the † Phyſick-Profeſſor; the ſame of the ‖ Civil-Law-Profeſſor, of the * Geometry-Profeſſor, of the † Rhetorick Profeſſor, &c. and all of them on their aſſigned and appointed Days are to read Weekly, ‖ niſi in diem Lecturæ ſuæ deſtinatum Feſtum aliquod inciderit, unleſs ſuch their Lecture Day ſhall happen to be a Feſtival Day. And here it may not be improper to remind the Reader, that as the Lectures read at Greſham-College, being Academical Exerciſes, tho' appointed to be performed at London, occaſion'd their being done at the Times and in the Manner they are performed in the Univerſities; ſo the Word and Expreſſion appointing theſe Lectures in Sir Thomas Greſham's Will, ſeems to be taken, by the Perſon who drew up the Form of his Will, from the Univerſity Statutes; for the Words, in qualibet ſeptimanâ, and * in ſingulis ſeptimanis, in Engliſh Weekly, which are the Words of the Univerſity Statutes, concerning the Time of their Profeſſors Duty, did lead the Way to uſe the ſimilar Word Daily in the Will; which Word Daily, when applied to all the Profeſſors together, is the very ſame as Weekly, when apply'd to each Profeſſor in particular; and this is the more fully ſpoken of here, becauſe it will very much help to clear up a Diſpute to be mentioned hereafter, if it be obſerved, that the Univerſity Statutes diſtinguiſh the Year into Civil or Academick; the former of which (the Civil Year) conſiſts of twelve Months; but the later, (the Academick Year) conſiſts only of four Terms, * Annus Academicus quatuor Terminos continet. Wherefore, as the Word Weekly, in the Univerſity Statutes, is never underſtood to mean every Week in the Civil Lectures interrupted by the Fire of London.

In this Manner theſe Lectures began to be read; and thus they continu'd without any Interruption 'till the dreadful Fire of London in 1666; when the Exchange of London being conſum'd, this College was made Uſe of to ſupply the Want of Shops for the Inhabitants of the Exchange, and to be a Place for the Merchants to meet in, 'till ſuch Time as the ſaid Exchange could be re-built, as is before related. [p. 127. a.] After which the Lectures were again renew'd in the Manner they had before been practis'd; and thus continu'd till they had again been like to be interrupted in the Year 1699, thro' the Diſcouragement the Profeſſors met from the Truſtees, who, under Pretence of a great Debt they had run into by re-building the Royal-Exchange, in the ſumptuous Manner it now appears, thought it good to ſtop the Profeſſors Salaries; but they, however, did not think this a ſufficient Reaſon to omit their Duty, but continu'd in the Diſcharge of it notwithſtanding this great Difficulty they had to encounter with; the Particulars of which Matter are as follows:

Profeſſors Salaries ſtopp'd by the Truſtees.

In the Month of Auguſt 1699, a grand Committee for Greſham Affairs was ſummon'd to meet, and the Profeſſors directed to give their Attendance: When the Profeſſors came, the Committee acquainted them, that Sir Thomas Greſham's Gift had greatly run them into Debt; that the Expence of re-building the Exchange, (to do which they were forc'd to take up great Sums of Money upon Intereſt) was ſo great, and the Income of the Exchange ſo ſmall, the Trade thereof being greatly fallen of, that the preſent Profits of the Exchange were leſs than the Intereſt of the Money borrow'd to re-build it, whereby there was no Revenue left to maintain and ſupport the Uſes of Sir Thomas Greſham's Will, wherefore they were not in any Condition to pay the Profeſſors Salaries any longer, nor any more could be at any Expence in repairing the College, tho' they had ever, before that, kept in conſtant Repair both the publick Rooms of the College and the private Apartments of the ſeveral Profeſſors. The Profeſſors uſed all poſſible Endeavours in the moſt reſpectful Manner, to prevail with the Truſtees to recede from theſe Reſolutions, but without Succeſs, till the following Year they were forc'd to apply to Council, to adviſe them what proper Courſe to take to obtain Redreſs: The Council they apply'd to, were the then Attorney-General, Sir Thomas Trevor, (now Lord Trevor) and Mr. Henry Pooley, to whom they gave a ſhort State of their Caſe in Subſtance, as follows:

They adviſe with Council.

Sir Thomas Greſham, by Will made 1575, left one Moiety of the Exchange, &c. to the City of London, to the Intent that they perform certain Payments mention'd in his Will, and the other Moiety thereof to the Company of Mercers, on the ſame Confidence and Truſt. One of theſe Payments directed by the Will was, that the City ſhould find four Lecturers in Divinity, Geometry, Aſtronomy, and Muſick, for ever, and pay them, yearly, Fifty Pounds apiece: And that the Mercers likewiſe find three Lecturers for ever in Civil-Law, Phyſick, and Rhetorick, and pay them alſo Fifty Pounds apiece. As to his Manſion-Houſe, with the Gardens, Stables, and Appurtenances, &c. the Will directs the ſame to be and remain to the ſaid City and Company, upon Truſt and Confidence that they permit and ſuffer the ſeven Readers aforeſaid, there to inhabit, and have the Uſe thereof, to ſtudy and read the ſaid Lectures Daily: And the next Year an Act of Parliament paſs'd for the better performing this Will. The City and Company have accordingly enjoy'd this Gift, and have nominated the Readers, paid the Salaries, and kept the College in Repair ever ſince, till of late, which they now refuſe to do, alledging, that they were at a vaſt Charge in re-building the Exchange, and had borrow'd vaſt Sums to do it; and that the Intereſt thereof being firſt paid, the clear Profits of the Exchange, &c. will not pay the Salaries and other Payments appointed. The Truſtees farther pretend, that the Ground Sir Thomas built the Exchange on, was not his own Ground. On ſtating their Caſe after this Manner, the Profeſſors made theſe Queries, and receiv'd the following Advice.

'The firſt Queſtion is (ſuppoſing they, the Truſtees, have borrow'd Money to build) whither they, enjoying the Rents and Profits as they do, under the Will ſo confirm'd by Act of Parliament; and the Act for re-building the City not appointing in what Manner the Exchange ſhould be re-built, are not bound in all Events to pay the ſeven Salaries, and the other Charities yearly, and whither they can be now admitted to controvert the Title to the Ground upon which the Exchange was built.

I conceive the City ſhall not now be admitted to controvert Sir Thomas Greſham's Right to the Ground on which the Exchange is built; and I conceive no extravagant or extraordinary Expences which the City may have been at in building the Exchange more ſumptuouſly than needful, only for their own Grandeur and Magnificence, ſhall be allow'd to them to ſink the Rents, in Diſappointment of the Lecturers and other Charities: The neceſſary Charges of re-building in ſuch a Manner as to make it anſwer a Rent ſufficient to anſwer the Charities, muſt be allow'd; and if after ſuch an Allowance, the reſt of the Profits will not be ſufficient to anſwer the Charities: I conceive the City ought to account for all the Rents and Profits from the Death of Sir Thomas Greſham, that ſo the Surplus of Profits may be apply'd to make up the Deficiency that is now.

'The ſecond Queſtion is, whither the ſeveral Readers ſhall bring in a Bill in Chancery for Performance of the Will in their own Names, and for their own Salaries only, or whither, in the Name of the Attorney-General, at their Relation, for the Payment of their Salaries and the other Charities in the Will?

I conceive it is moſt proper to bring the Bill in the Attorney-General's Name, at the Relation of the Lecturers, &c.

Henry Pooley, May 17, 1700.

Prefer a Bill in Chancery againſt their Truſtees.

Subſtance of this Bill.

Upon this Advice, the Profeſſors, who ſtill ſought to the Truſtees to give them Redreſs without running to Extremities, but could not prevail, filed a Bill in Chancery againſt the Truſtees in Michaelmaſs Term, 1700. This Information was in Subſtance as follows: 'That Sir Thomas Greſham did, in the Reign of the late Queen Elizabeth, at his own Charge, build and erect, in the City of London, a Building, which was by the ſaid Queen call'd the Royal Exchange, that by his laſt Will, made 1575, he left one Moiety of the ſaid Exchange, &c. to the City of London, and the other Moiety thereof to the Company of Mercers. Upon this ſpecial and expreſs Truſt and Confidence, and to the Intent that they ſhould perform the Payments and other Intents in that his laſt Will appointed to be done and perform'd. Then the Bill recites the ſeveral Payments of Salaries and other Charities mention'd in the Will, and proceeds: 'That the Overplus of the Rents and Profits of the Premiſes, above all the Payments thereout appointed, to iſſue by the ſaid Will, would ſoon abundantly recompence ſuch Charge and Trouble as the Truſtees ſhould be at. And as to his Manſion-Houſe, now commonly call'd Greſham College, he gave that and all the Appurtenances thereto belonging, to the ſaid City and Company, to have and hold upon this expreſs Truſt and Confidence, that they ſhould permit the ſaid ſeven Lecturers to have the Occupation of all his ſaid Manſion-Houſe, &c. for them and every of them there to inhabit, ſtudy, and read, &c. That the ſaid Truſtees did pay the ſaid Salaries and other Charities until the 25th Day of March, 1699; but ſince that Time, have ſtopp'd any farther Payment; whereby the Salaries of the Profeſſors are in Arrear from the ſaid 25th of March 1699, to the preſent October 1700; altho' Application has been ſeveral Times made of late to the Truſtees for the Payment of the ſaid Salaries; and when the Performance of the Founder's Will has been earneſtly preſs'd upon them, the Anſwer was, There was no Money to make good the ſaid Salaries, &c. on which Pretence the Truſtees do abſolutely refuſe to perform the Will of the ſaid Teſtator, by paying the ſaid Salaries, but do convert the Rents and Profits of the Premiſſes deviſed to them, to their own reſpective Uſes; and their Pretence for this want of Money, is, that, the ROYAL EXCHANGE, and other Appurtenances deviſed to them in the ſaid Will, were burnt in the Fire of LONDON; that they re built the ſame at a vaſt Expence, borrowing Money for that Purpoſe; that the whole Incomes and Profits ariſing from the EXCHANGE, thus re built, does not anſwer the Money that was borrow'd to re build the ſame; altho', were this true, the ſame ought not to prejudice the Payment of the ſaid Salaries, &c. for that there was no neceſſity for them to expend ſuch vaſt Sums in outward Magnificence; and beſides, they had for above an hundred Years enjoy'd all the Rents and Profits of the Premiſſes, being a very great Revenue much above the ſaid Payments charg'd on the ſame: Beſides, had not the Truſtees thought it for their Advantage, and ſo had refuſ'd to rebuild the ſame, ſubject to the Truſts and Payments in the Teſtator's Will, ſome other Ways and Means would have been found out and provided for the re-building, without defeating the ſeveral Payments appointed; and of this the Truſtees are ſo ſenſible, that they have, ever ſince the Fire of London, continu'd to pay the ſame, and but lately, as is afore ſet forth, ſtopp'd Payment, and for ſome farther Colour to make this Stop, do pretend, that, by a late Act of Parliament, for the Relief of Orphans, &c. the Revenues of the City are appropriated to anſwer for ever a Fund of 8000 l. a Year to pay theſe Orphans Debts, &c. which is only a Pretence to defeat the Founder's Will. Since this Act cannot affect the Salaries due to the Profeſſors, &c. for that not the whole Benefaction of Sir Thomas Greſham, but only the Surplus of it, after paying the Uſes of the Will, can be call'd or taken to be Part of the Revenue of the City. And ſo bent are the Truſtees to defeat the Will of the Teſtator, that tho' by his ſaid Will his Manſion-Houſe is expreſly appointed for the Inhabitation of the ſaid ſeven Readers, yet, to force the Readers from thence, they have lett the ſaid Houſe run to Ruin, and refuſe to repair and keep in repair the ſame. All which Refuſal of paying the Salaries, &c. and of repairing the Manſion Houſe is againſt all Equity and good Conſcience, and directly againſt the Will and Meaning of the Teſtator aforeſaid, and a Breach of the Truſt repoſed by the ſaid Will in them. To the End, therefore, that the ſaid Truſtees may anſwer the Premiſſes, and be decreed to make good the Salaries, &c. and to pay the Arrear, and to put the ſaid Manſion-Houſe, and keep the ſame in Repair. The Lord Chancellor is pray'd to grant his Writ of Subpœna to the Truſtees, commanding them perſonally to appear, &c.

Payment of the Salaries order'd in Part

Bill for re-building Greſham College, brought into Parliament.

Carry'd in the Commons, rejected in the Lords Houſe.

The Conſequence of filing this Bill was, that not long after the Truſtees met and directed the Profeſſors to attend, and, at their Meeting, order'd the Payment of one Year's Salary; telling them, that they would, in convenient Time, diſcharge the remaining Part of the Arrear, whereupon all Proceedings in Chancery were ſuſpended: The Truſtees ſaid, likewiſe, that they had a Propoſal to make for the mutual Advantage both of the Truſtees and Profeſſors, to which they deſir'd the Concurrence of the Profeſſors: Which Propoſal was to bring in a Bill in Parliament for the re-building Greſham College into a Square, (to be let out for Rent, for the Uſe and Advantage of the Truſtees) and providing Houſes more commodious for the Profeſſors than the Lodgings they now enjoy, and to this Propoſal all the Profeſſors, ſave one, gave their Conſent; and accordingly the Bill was brought into the Houſe of Commons in 1701, and carry'd there; but at the ſecond Reading in the Houſe of Lords, it was rejected upon the Petition of Dr. Robert Hooke, Geometry Profeſſor, who had before deny'd his Conſent to it. The Contents of this intended Act of Parliament, (of which Mention is only made p. 129) were as follows: In the Preamble it ſets forth, 'That the Royal Exchange was given to the Truſtees in Truſt, to pay out ſix hundred and three Pounds ſix Shillings and eight Pence per Ann. That this Exchange was burnt down in the great Fire of London, and ſo no Revenue left to pay the annual Charge: That the Truſtees re-built the Exchange at the Expence of eighty thouſand Pounds, or thereabouts, and the Truſtees loſe thereby, more than two thouſand Pounds yearly, the Trade of the Exchange decreaſing, and many of the Shops ſtanding empty, altho' conſiderable Abatements have been made to encourage Tenants: That Greſham College is grown old and ruinous, and the Repairs thereof have been very Expenſive; but the ſaid College ſtanding upon a conſiderable Quantity of Ground, and great Part of it lying Waſte, good Improvement may be made by re-building it: That the Truſtees and Profeſſors are agreed upon a Scheme of Building ſeven convenient Houſes for the Lecturers, and a publick Hall, and likewiſe Alms-Houſes in a more airy and convenient Place for the Alms-Folks. Wherefore they pray, that it may be enacted, that it may be lawful to pull down the old College, &c. and to convert the Materials to their own Uſe; and alſo to let and diſpoſe all, or any Part of the Ground belonging to the ſaid College, except ſuch Part as the Lecturer's Houſes and Hall are agreed to be built upon: Provided, however, that the Lecturers Houſes and Hall be built in the Manner [*] ſpecify'd; and that all thoſe New Buildings be lyable, together with the Royal Exchange, &c. in the firſt Place, and before all other Charges, to the

And that the Truſtees ſhall ſupport, maintain, and repair, at their own Coſts and Charges, the ſaid Hall and Lecturers Houſes, &c. as often as Occaſion ſhall be; and that the Truſtees ſhall, on any Vacancy of a Lecturer for the future, come to a Choice within two Months.

Bill for rebuilding the College again brought into Parliament.

Thrown out again.

The Bill being thus loſt in the Houſe of Lords, upon the Petition of Dr. Hooke, the Geometry-Profeſſor, the Truſtees were much offended, and therefore went no farther in clearing the Arrears due to the Profeſſors, than the abovementioned Payment of the Year's Salary, and laid aſide this Project of Rebuilding, 'till the Death of Dr. Hooke, which happened within a Year or two after; ſoon after which, the Truſtees again reſumed their Deſign of bringing in their Bill into Parliament, as hoping now for better Succeſs, when the main Oppoſer of it was dead; and then again they deſired the Profeſſors Conſent and Concurrence, which they readily had; and accordingly, in the Year 170¾, they brought into the Houſe of Lords the ſame Bill as before, where it paſſed, but with the following Clauſe added, ‘ Provided always, that no Perſon ſhall hereafter be capable of being choſen a Lecturer upon any Vacancy, except he be a Graduate in one of the Univerſities of this Kingdom.” There was likewiſe added a Penalty to the Bill, namely, ‘ That the Truſtees ſhould be obliged and required to build theſe Houſes, Hall, and Alms-houſes, for the Lecturers and Alms-folks, within five Years from the paſſing of this Act, upon the Penalty of two thouſand Pounds, to be forfeited to her Majeſty, her Heirs, or Succeſſors, &c.” But when this Bill came down to the Houſe of Commons, Exception was taken to this Clauſe, and the Bill being on that Account rejected, hath never ſince been attempted again in Parliament.

Complaint againſt the Profeſſors.

In Page 129. b. Some Account is given of a Petition preferred againſt the Profeſſors, both in the Court of Aldermen, and at the joint Committee for Greſham Affairs: But the Original of this Complaint, the Particulars of the Profeſſors Defence of themſelves, as well as ſome other material Points relating thereto, being there omitted, it is thought proper to give here a more diſtinct and full Account of them.

In the Year 1706, ſome Perſons in Office, in the Pariſhes of St. Helen's and Broadſtreet, did, contrary to all Cuſtom and Uſage, aſſeſs and tax the ſeveral Apartments of the Profeſſors as diſtinct Houſes; whereas the whole ſeven Lodgings (all which, as was well known, were only the ſingle Manſion-houſe of Sir Thomas Greſham) had been before taxed but as one Houſe: They likewiſe endeavour'd to bring the Profeſſors into the Poor's Rates, and other parochial Taxations, to ſubject their Salaries to the King's Taxes, and to lay other ſuch-like Hardſhips upon them, nothing of which had ever before been ſo much as demanded of them. The Profeſſors abſolutely refuſed to comply with any of theſe Demands, and by proper Appeals, and other Methods, got themſelves diſcharged from theſe Impoſitions. The Pariſh-Officers finding themſelves diſappointed, and not able to leſſen their own Charges, by laying part of them on the Profeſſors, grew angry, and ſought to give all the Moleſtation and Trouble they could to them; for which Purpoſe, they employed Perſons of mean and ſorry Condition perpetually to attend the Lectures, not to reap any Advantage thence, or even to ſatisfy any Curioſity, but to obtain Matter for Calumny or Complaint, and to give Notice if any blameable Omiſſion ſhould happen: And theſe Perſons Behaviour was ſuitable to the Deſign they were ſent to purſue, being always tumultuous and rude, and ſometimes abuſive to ſome of the Profeſſors, during the Time of their performing their Duty. The Profeſſors might have taken juſt Exception to ſuch an Audience, and have refuſed to read to Perſons ſo unqualified as they were: However, they never omitted their Lectures on this Account; but continued in the conſtant Diſcharge of their Duty, to the Diſappointment of their Adverſaries, who wanted nothing more than a juſt Occaſion of Complaint; but as they could find no Neglect in the Profeſſors of their real Duty, they had Recourſe to an imaginary one, demanding of the Profeſſors to read Lectures on Holidays, nay, of the Divinity Profeſſor to read on Sundays: This they afterwards carried ſo far, as to inſiſt on Lectures every Day in the whole Year. The Profeſſors refuſing Compliance with theſe Demands, their Adverſaries had Recourſe to Clamour and Noiſe; they printed Repreſentations and Advertiſements, that ſuch Lectures were to be read on ſuch Days, namely, on Holidays, when they knew no Lectures would be read, and paſted theſe up and down in the moſt publick Places, and by other Means diſperſed them, and thus drew many Strangers thither; who being diſappointed, and not knowing the Uſage and Cuſtom of the Place, were drawn in to join with them in their unreaſonable Clamours: And among theſe were ſeveral Perſons of good Faſhion and Education; ſuch, whoſe Attendance might have been a Credit and Reputation to the Profeſſors, had they not fallen into the Prejudices before-named, and with great Zeal joined in the groundleſs Demand of Lectures every Day in the Year, inſtead of the known Duty of reading them only in the Term Times. The Profeſſors refuſing to depart from what had been ever the Cuſtom of the College, were menaced with Complaints to be made to the Committee for Greſham Affairs; and if Redreſs was not to be had there, of farther appealing to the Lord Maior and Court of Aldermen. And to make theſe Complaints more effectual, and purſue them with greater Vigour, the Complainants ſelected a Number from among themſelves, to meet and conſider how to carry on theſe Deſigns in the moſt proper Manner: At theſe Meetings they diligently went thro' the Founder's Will, to ſee if any thing was there directed that they could charge the Profeſſors with the Omiſſion of; and there finding the Expreſſion of ſtudying and reading daily, they fixed upon this laſt Word, and obſtinately contended, that nothing elſe was or could be meant by it, than every Day in the Year; tho', as has been before obſerved, to any one who is acquainted with our Univerſity Statutes, or Cuſtoms, it will appear to have a quite different Meaning. They likewiſe found Fault with the cuſtomary Hour of reading, (two of the Clock) as unſeaſonable for them to attend, it falling within the Time of their Dinner. This was the Original and Progreſs of their Complaints, which they carried on farther, by uſing great Induſtry to get Hands to an Inſtrument, ſetting forth theſe Grievances, in order to be preſented to proper Authority to obtain Redreſs; and accordingly, Petitions were delivered in to this Effect, both to the Court of Aldermen, and Grand Committee for Greſham Affairs, as has been * beforeſaid. A ſhort Account of the Anſwer which the Profeſſors gave is there mentioned, and it is ſaid in general, that they prov'd from ſufficient Authority, that from the firſt Inſtitution to the preſent Time of Diſpute, theſe Lectures were read only in Term Times: Which Authorities not being there inſerted, do therefore follow here. The firſt Author mentioned for the Proof hereof, was Dr. Gwinne, in his Orationes Duæ before-quoted: He was, as was obſerved, choſen Profeſſor of Phyſick at the firſt Election of Profeſſors, in the Year 159$\frac{6}{7}$, and, as all other Profeſſors then were, was directed to begin his Lectures in Trinity Term, 1597: The ninth Lecture that he read is printed in the forenamed little Book, p. 44, and bears this Title, Prælectio nona, cum reſumerentur lectiones poſt Natalitia. The ninth Lecture, read when the Time of Reading came on again after Chriſtmas. The Profeſſors obſerved from this Citation, that Dr. Gwinne beginning his Lectures in Trinity Term, 159$\frac{6}{7}$, and his ninth Lecture coming after Chriſtmas, in January, that is, in Hilary Term 159$\frac{7}{8}$, he could only have read in the Term Times: For juſt as in the preſent Year 1706, ſo in that Year 1597, there would fall three Saturdays (which are the Phyſick Lecture Days) in Trinity Term, and five Saturdays in Michaelmas Term; ſo that he read eight Lectures only in 1597, there being juſt eight Saturdays within thoſe two Terms, and no more, and conſequently his ninth Lecture muſt fall on the firſt reading Time after Chriſtmaſs, that is, on the firſt Saturday in Hilary Term in 159$\frac{7}{8}$, exactly as he ſays it did, in the Inſcription of his Lecture juſt now quoted. To this evident Proof the Profeſſors added the Citations from the other Parts of Dr. Gwinne's Book mentioned before.

* Vol. 1ſt. p. 129, 130.

The next Author the Profeſſors cited was Mr. Stow, whoſe Survey was written in the Year 1598, the very Year after the firſt Inſtitution of theſe Lectures; and he ſays, p. 57, l. 32, of his firſt Edition, as he does alſo in the ſecond Edition, corrected and amended by himſelf, and publiſhed in the Year 1603, p. 76, l. 5. Theſe Lectures are read Daily, Sundays excepted, in the Term Time, by every one on his Day, &c. And from hence they inferred, that the Words to read Daily, in the Founders Will, might be either underſtood in the Senſe of the Univerſities beforementioned, or elſe in this of Mr. Stow, that each Lecturer ſhould read on his particular Day aſſigned him in the Week, that ſo the Auditors, who had a mind to attend any particular Science, might know on what Day to come, and not be diſappointed.

The next Author was Sir George Buck, in his Treatiſe concerning the three Univerſities of England, annexed to Stow's Chronicle, and dedicated to the Lord Chief Juſtice Cook; printed in the Year 1612, within fifteen Years of the founding the Lectures: And he ſays, Page 980, b. l. 35, and theſe Lectures (viz. in Greſham College) muſt be read only in the Term Times.

The next Author mentioned, was the Editor of the Third Edition of Stow, Anthony Monday, before cited, which he publiſhed in 1618, one and twenty Years after the founding the Lectures; and he ſays, Page 123, Line 26, That theſe Lectures are read Daily in the Term Times. The Profeſſors obſerved, that this Author had been * ſix and twenty Years one of the City Servants in ſundry Employments, † had Encouragement from the whole Court of Aldermen, and Orders for the Peruſal of whatever Helps he wanted; and that this Work was by them approved when finiſhed, which coſt him twelve Years Time in compiling; that therefore, he neither wanted Means of Knowledge, nor refuſed Induſtry for the obtaining it.

* Dedication to the Biſhop of London, l. 18.
† Dedication to the Lord Maior and Aldermen, p. 2. l. 22.

The next Author was Dr. Holdſworth, who was choſen Divinity Profeſſor in Greſham College in 1630, Thirty Three Years after the firſt Inſtitution. And his Divinity Lectures were publiſh'd in 1661, by Biſhop Pearſon. Dr. Holdſworth tells his Auditors, ⁂ It was Three whole Months ſince his laſt Reading. Again,  That theſe Lectures have been omitted for theſe Three Months. Again, he concludes his Lecture with telling them, * He ſhould not read till that Day Three Weeks, becauſe the following Monday was a State Holiday, and the Monday after that, a Church Holiday. At the End of another Lecture, he ſays, he is ſorry he is forc'd to break off abruptly in his Diſcourſe, †‡† which muſt be the Work of the next Term. And again, he refers his Audience for the Remainder of the Argument, to the †† next Term: And more to the ſame Purpoſe. And this Author continu'd Divinity Profeſſor for Nine or Ten Years, with the greateſt Applauſe. The next Author was Howell's Londinopolis, who publiſh'd his Work in 1657, Sixty Years after the firſt Inſtitution. And he ſays, Page 21. Line 29. Theſe Lectures are to be read every Day in the Week, in Term-Time. The Profeſſors were ready with Proof, that likewiſe † ever ſince the Reſtoration, the Lectures were only read in the Term-Time; and, among other Inſtances of this Practice, they had the Example of the moſt celebrated Dr. Iſaac Barrow, who was choſen Geometry Profeſſor in Greſham College in the Year 1662, being at the ſame Time Fellow of Trinity College in Cambridge. All the while he continu'd Geometry Profeſſor in Greſham College, he was Fellow of Trinity, and, as he read his Lectures in Term-Times in Greſham College, ſo, in the Vacation Times, he went down to Cambridge, and attended his Duty and Fellowſhip there: But this, and the reſt of their Proofs hereof, were not produc'd before the Committee, becauſe the Petitioners were willing to allow, that Termly-Readings only had been the Cuſtom and Practice in Greſham College ever ſince the Reſtoration.

When the Profeſſors had given in this Proof, they obſerv'd, that the Argument by them offer'd, was of the ſtrongeſt Nature, becauſe it prov'd, that reading the Lectures (in Term Times only) was the Original Practice, enjoyn'd by the firſt Truſtees, taken up by the firſt Profeſſors, and follow'd by their Succeſſors in all Times; that therefore this Practice could be no Corruption crept in by Degrees, either thro' the Sloth of the Profeſſors, or the Connivance of the Truſtees, but was founded in, and continu'd by the full and free Approbation and Conſent of both: They argu'd farther, that the firſt Truſtees and Profeſſors could not poſſibly be ignorant of that Expreſſion in the Founder's Will, that ſays, the Profeſſors are to inhabit, ſtudy, and read Daily, becauſe that Part of the Will is at all Elections read to the Perſon elected in the Preſence of the Electors; and if ſo, it was not conceivable that the firſt Truſtees could underſtand the Word Daily, in in the Senſe of the Petitioners, to mean every Day in the Year, ſince were they ſo deſirous of diſcharging their Conſciences faithfully, as their * Letter before-mention'd ſhews them to be, it is hardly poſſible they could ſit down quiet and unconcern'd when they ſaw the firſt Profeſſors begin and continue to read only in Term-Time, in direct and open Violation of the Founders Will, much leſs could they ever have been brought to give their Direction, or even conſent that they ſhould do ſo; nor can it be believ'd, that, had the firſt Profeſſors thus underſtood the Word Daily to mean, they could ever have began and continu'd a Practice directly contrary to their Duty, unleſs they be ſuppos'd to have been Men of the moſt profligate and ſhameleſs Character poſſible, the very Reverſe of which they had, as is before ſeen of Dr. Gwinne, and might as eaſily be prov'd of all the other Six. In the Concluſion, the Profeſſors brought in the Books they cited, in order to ſubmit their Citations to Examination, and then call'd on the Petitioners to ſhew ſo much as one Proof or Evidence to the contrary.

* Vol. 1ſt. p. 127, b.

The Petitioners, who had in their Plea and in their  printed Papers aſſerted, that at the Original Inſtitution, the Profeſſors read every Day in the Year, and amongſt theſe Profeſſors, which they aſſerted did thus read, had nam'd Dr. Gwinne and Dr. Holdſworth, &c. and had, with all Aſſurance, ſaid, that their printed Works intimated as much (the direct contrary to which is true) and had farther laid down, that the ⁂ Interruption of theſe every Day Readings was owing to the Civil War Time, to the great Sickneſs, or to the Fire of London, thought fit no longer to inſiſt on theſe Pretences, but fell to vilify and depreciate the Characters of the Authors quoted. Mr. Stow, they ſaid, †† might eaſily be convicted of Falſhood, and miſtake even in what he writes concerning this Matter: His Authority was never admitted in ‖ any Cauſe or Court: He and the others were antiquated Authors. As for Dr. Holdſworth, † he ſpoke in his own Cauſe, and might be convicted of Partiality, &c. and this laid the Profeſſors under a Neceſſity of doing a needleſs Work, of juſtifying the Reputation of Mr. Stow, which, 'till that Time, had never been queſtion'd; and the rather becauſe one or two of the Committee ſpoke with Contempt of him, as an old, neglected, uſeleſs Author. The Profeſſors referr'd themſelves to Dr. Nicholſon, then Dean, and ſince Biſhop of Carliſle, who gives the following Character of Mr. Stow and his Book, in his Hiſtorical Library, then printed in Octavo, but ſince, in 1714, in Folio. He ſays, p. 18, John Stow wrote and publiſh'd A Survey of London—— ‘The whole is collected out of our beſt Hiſtorians and moſt authentick Records, and diſcovers a great deal of Induſtry and Accuracy in the worthy and honeſt Author. And again, he ſays, p. 72, Induſtrious John Stow deſerves to be remembred with Honour: He was a Member of the Merchant-Taylors Company in London, and a ſpecial Benefactor to that City, in inquiring after and preſerving its Antiquities and Records. He travell'd thro' a good Part of England in Search after the Manuſcript Hiſtorians, in the Libraries of our Cathedral Churches, and was very exact and critical in his Collections, and ſpent above forty Years in theſe Studies. He always proteſted (and we may take his honeſt Word for it) that he never was ſway'd by Favour or Fear in any of his Writings; but that he had impartially, to the beſt of his Knowledge, delivered the Truth. This good Opinion the greateſt of our Hiſtorians ſeem to have of him, ſince even Sir Francis Bacon, and Mr. Camden, (not to mention others of a leſſer Repute) have boldly taken ſeveral Things upon his ſingle Credit.

As to the next Author, Sir George Buck, quoted by them, he was not only a Man of Credit, but of Quality, being both one of the Gentlemen of the King's Privy Chamber, and alſo Maſter of the Revels: This his Work he delivered to the Lord Chief Juſtice Coke, and dedicated it to him, leaving the Manuſcript to be diſpoſed of at his Lordſhip's Pleaſure. The Lord Chief Juſtice was ſo well ſatisfy'd of his Integrity and Ability, that he himſelf directed the Printing it, giving his Allowance for its Publication, and under his Hand giving his ſpecial Commendation and Approbation of it, as of a Work worthy the publick Light.

What Character Mr. Monday's Work, which was the next Author quoted, deſerves, is mentioned before. The Profeſſors on this Head took Notice, how ſtrange a Thing it was to make the Antiquity of theſe Authors an Exception to their Teſtimony, becauſe their being old Authors gave their Evidence the greateſt Strength, ſince they wrote of Things within their own Knowledge, and of Times in or very near to which themſelves liv'd.

The next Author who was quoted by the Profeſſors was Dr. Holdſworth, a Man of the ſtricteſt Virtue and moſt unſully'd Reputation, though at Random his Character was excepted againſt, as is ſaid before, by the Petitioners. He was, as * the eminent Biſhop Pearſon tells us, the moſt celebrated Preacher of his Time, being Miniſter of St. Peter's Poor in Broadſtreet, to which living he was preferred in 1623 or 1624. He was a moſt faithful Paſtor of his Pariſh, and a moſt conſcientious Man; inſomuch, that when the great Sickneſs happened in 1625, he refuſed to go into the Country, as moſt others did; but lived in his Pariſh, and conſtantly viſited the Sick, deſpiſing the Contagion, and preferring the Diſcharge of his Duty before the Safety of his Perſon. In the Year 1630, he was ⁂ without making any Intereſt, or uſing any Solicitation, (ſo great was his Reputation) choſen Divinity-Profeſſor in Greſham College, of which he was a great Ornament 9 or 10 Years. He was a Perſon that ſo ſtrictly adhered to his Duty, and ſo fearſul of acting in the leaſt againſt his Conſcience, that in the Beginning of the Rebellion he was ſequeſtered, plundered, and impriſoned four Years in the Tower, after which Time he was releaſed; in every Part of his Life being of an unblameable Carriage, and a moſt holy Converſation. In ſhort, he was, †‡ as Biſhop Brownrig aſſures us, a moſt excellent Preacher, a moſt faithful Interpreter terpreter of Scripture, a Contemner of Riches, a moſt charitable Man, of ſtrict Morals, and one of a moſt holy Life. † This was the Character of thoſe Men, whom the Petitioners repreſented as Men of no Weight, of no Principles, nay, of Falſhood and Partiality.

From thus ſupporting the Characters of the Authors cited by them, the Profeſſors proceeded to juſtify themſelves, as to the other Parts of the Charge againſt them. As to the not Reading on Holidays, they inſiſted on their ſuperior Obligation to attend their Duty at Church, as alſo on the perpetual Practice of the Univerſities, and of all their Predeceſſors, who never read Lectures on Holidays; an early Proof of which is found in Dr. Holdſworth, who ſays, as is beforemention'd, ‖ He ſhould not read till that Day three Weeks, becauſe, the following Monday was a State-Holiday, and the Monday after that, a Church-Holiday. And in this Matter the Truſtees were ſo far ſatisfy'd, that in their Order preſently to be mention'd, they did not comply with the Petitioners in this Point, in directing Lectures to be read on Holidays. As to the not Reading in broken Weeks, the Profeſſors juſtify'd that from the Practice likewiſe of their Predeceſſors; and alſo produc'd Letters from both the Univerſities, proving, that there the Divinity-Profeſſor always open'd the Term. As to the laſt Part of the Complaint, the Unreaſonableneſs of the Hours, the Profeſſors were indifferent whether they remain'd the ſame or were alter'd.

After both the Petitioners and Profeſſors were withdrawn, the Truſtees, after a long Debate, made an Order, dated October 4, 1706, the Preamble of which declares, that Application had been made by ſeveral Citizens and others, in Relation to the Lectures at Greſham College, ſetting forth, that the ſaid Lecturers did not duly perform their Readings in Term-Time; for that if any Term did not begin on a Monday, that was taken for a broken Week, and no Lecture read that Week; and, in like Manner, if any Term did not end on a Saturday, that was taken for a broken Week, and no Lecture perform'd; whereby the Inhabitants of this City, and others, were much hinder'd of the Benefit which they might reap by the ſaid Lectures. Wherefore they do order and direct, That for the future, thoſe Lectures ſhall be perform'd by the ſeveral Profeſſors on ſuch Days of the Week as they now read in their ſeveral Sciences, at four Terms in every Tear, as followeth, viz. The firſt Term to begin the Monday before Michaelmaſs Term, of the Common Law, and to end with that Term. The ſecond Term to begin the Monday before Hilary Term, and to end with that Term. The third Term to begin the Monday Sevennight after Eaſter-Day, and to end with Eaſter Term. The fourth Term to begin the Monday before Trinity Term, and to continue for one whole Month, viz. eight and twenty Days: And farther, It is order'd by this Committee, that the ſaid Lecturers do begin to read their ſeveral Lectures at nine of the Clock in the Forenoon, and three in the Afternoon, preciſely. This Order likewiſe ſets forth, that it was made after conſulting the Founder's Will, and Articles that were made ſoon after the Truſt came to the City and Company: By which Articles are meant thoſe Orders which are ſummarily deliver'd in Vol. 1. p. 128. and at large in this ſecond Appendix, p. 2. The Profeſſors comply'd with this Order, with reſpect to the broken Weeks and Hours of Reading; but, finding the Order direct them to read out of the Term, contrary to all Cuſtom and Uſage, and this alſo by virtue of ſuch Articles or Orders as were never look'd upon to have any legal Authority or Force, they went to Council, and were adviſ'd not to charge themſelves with any new Duties, nor ſubmit to the Authority of ſuch Articles as they had good Reaſon to believe were never duly ſign'd or legally ratify'd; wherefore, the greater Part of the Profeſſors drew up a Paper, and waited on Sir Thomas Rawlinſon, the Chair-man of the Committee, with it, which was as follows: Reaſons why the Profeſſors have not in all Points comply'd with the Order of the Honourable Committee, dated October 4, 1706. ‘ Firſt, We are, at our being choſen into our reſpective Places, directed to perform our Duty, according to the Cuſtom and Practice of the Place. Secondly, We are able to give unqueſtionable Proof, that the Cuſtom has been without any Interruption, to read only in Term-Time; and ſince it has been ſo, we are adviſ'd to be very careful how we charge our ſelves or our Succeſſors with unneceſſary Burthens. Thirdly, We are inform'd that the Ground upon which this Order to read out of Term is founded, is taken from ſome Articles which were never legally ratify'd, or admitted as legally ratify'd, either by the then Truſtees or Profeſſors: We therefore think that our Compliance with this Order might be look'd upon as allowing the Authority of thoſe Articles, and ſo ſubject us to the reſt of thoſe Articles, which, when under Conſideration, appear'd unreaſonable both to yours and our Predeceſſors.' The Profeſſors had made Application to obtain an Order to examine theſe Articles in the Original, in the Committee's Books, but could not obtain Leave ſufficiently to inſpect them; however, when they came to the Lord-Mayor with the afore-mention'd Reaſons, why they could not comply wholly with the late Order of the Truſtees; they offer'd, likewiſe, to give in to the Committee their Exceptions, to the Legality and Validity of theſe Articles or Orders, in ſubſtance as follows:

Firſt, they had this to offer, namely, that none of their Predeceſſors ever acknowledg'd the Validity of theſe Articles, or own'd the Obligation of them, becauſe they, from the beginning, acted quite otherwiſe than theſe Articles direct. The Articles direct, that the Profeſſors ſhall read three Times in each Week, and that on three diſtinct Days in the Week; but it has been prov'd, that from the very beginning, the Profeſſors never have read otherwiſe than twice in the Week, and that both Times on the ſame Day. Again, the Articles direct, that the Profeſſors ſhould live and diet at a common Table, to be kept at a common Charge; but the Profeſſors never had any ſuch common Table, as Dr. Gwinne ſays in his foremention'd Book, where ſpeaking of the Profeſſors living together, he ſays, * they live not together, ſo as to have Commons at one Table. And as their Manner of living together was altogether different from what theſe Articles direct, ſo alſo was their Method of reading their Lectures; for none of all the Profeſſors Lectures that have ever yet appear'd in print, have follow'd the Method directed by theſe Articles. The Articles ſay, that the Phyſick Profeſſor † ſhall follow the Method of Fernelius, by reading Phyſiology, then Pathology, and laſt, Therapeuticy; but Dr. Gwinne, the firſt Phyſick Lecturer, read upon †† the Aphoriſms of Hippocrates; and Dr. Winſton, who was choſen in 1616, eight Years after Dr. Gwinne, read [] Anatomical Lectures only. The ſame Difference may be ſeen between what theſe Articles direct the Divinity Profeſſor, and what Method Dr. Holdſworth follow'd in his Divinity Lectures, before quoted; and ſo between what the Articles direct the Geometry Profeſſor, and what Method Dr. Barrow and Dr. Hooke follow'd in their Lectures, now printed: From all which, it is plain that the Profeſſors, altogether, neglected the Direction of theſe Articles or Orders, as well in the Method of their Reading, as in the Manner of their Living; and therefore could never believe them to have any obligatory Force, or be of any Authority whatſoever.

Secondly, The Profeſſors had this farther Conſideration to offer, That theſe Articles were ſo far from being legally ratify'd, that they were never duly conſider'd, being not ſo much as even conſiſtent with themſelves: For Inſtance, when they ſpeak of the Times of all the Profeſſors Readings in general, they make [‖] five Terms of Reading; but when they ſpeak of the particular Profeſſor's Times of Reading, they make but [*] four Terms of Reading: But farther, they enjoyn what it is impoſſible the Profeſſors ſhould comply with, becauſe the amount of their Incomes, could never defray the Expence that their Profeſſorſhips muſt put them to, if the Directions of theſe Orders be comply'd with; ſince fifty Pounds a-piece is the whole of their Salaries, out of which it is impoſſible to ſupport themſelves, their private Servants, and likewiſe publick ones for the Hall, the Kitchen, and Cellar; and farther, for an hoſpitable Entertainment for Strangers; all which Expences theſe Articles direct: And, beſides the Muſick Profeſſor's Proportion to this Charge; he muſt, according to theſe Orders, be ſingly at the Expence of ſeventy five publick [†] Conſorts every Year, of Vocal or Inſtrumental Muſick, which, if properly perform'd would ſo far exceed the Salary of one Profeſſor, that it would hardly be ſupported by the Income of all the ſeven. Again, a farther Proof that theſe Articles are not authoritative, might be taken from hence, that whereas the Profeſſors, at every one of their Elections, have the Founder's Will, ſo much of it as concerns them, read over to them; to which they give their ſolemn Promiſe to conform themſelves; ſo were they oblig'd to any Complyance with the Directions of theſe Articles, that Part of them, that concerns the common Duties of all the Profeſſors, as well as what belongs to the particular Duty of each Profeſſor, would, at leaſt, be read to them, if not a Copy thereof be directed to be given them at their Elections; but inſtead thereof, the Profeſſors, tho' they have ſometimes apply'd to the Truſtees for Liberty to inſpect them carefully, have never been able to obtain Leave for a diligent Examination of them; theſe Articles then, to be ſure, would never be kept from their Knowledge, if their Complyance with them was at all expected as Part of their Duty: But laſtly, The Profeſſors were ready to appeal to the Truſtees, whether they had not, (at a former Meeting, ſome few Years before, at which were preſent many of the Truſtees and the Profeſſors now, in 1706, living) themſelves diſown'd the Authority of theſe Articles. The Truſtees, not many Years before, held a grand Committee within Greſham-College, in the Muſick Profeſſor's Lodgings, about the Affair of Rebuilding the College; at which Meeting, upon ſome Diſcourſe then ariſing, Part of theſe Articles were directed to be read; whereupon the Profeſſors, then preſent, aſk'd of the Truſtees, Whether theſe Articles had ever been ſign'd by all the firſt Profeſſors, or whether they were legally ratify'd by the firſt Truſtees? To which the Truſtees anſwer'd, Not that they knew of; but ſaid, that they were produc'd only as Papers that were very ancient. And this was the Subſtance of what the Profeſſors had to except againſt theſe pretended Orders.

That the Reſult of all thoſe Complaints and Hearings ended in the fair Juſtification of the Profeſſors, the Reader has been acquainted [*] before, and may perceive it by what is here alledg'd: There remains nothing to be added, but that the Truſtees, not long after, made an Order that the Profeſſors Salaries ſhould be conſtantly paid them one Year under another, without troubling the Committee from time to time for particular Orders, (as had been the Method during all the Time of the Uncertainty of Payments:) And farther, that the Truſtees from that Time, 1706, to this Year, 1719, remain'd ſatiſfy'd with the Reaſons the Profeſſors gave for not complying wholly with their Order; for, during this 13 Years Time, they never demanded a more exact Compliance with it: And, laſtly, that the Truſtees, upon the Profeſſors Petitioning that the Year's Arrear ſtill remaining might be diſcharg'd, did, after ſome Debate, come to a Reſolution, that, tho' the Exchange brought them in Debt, yet, that ſhould not tend to the Prejudice of the Profeſſors, but the Inconvenience thereof lye on the City and Company; wherefore, they then, in 1719, order'd the immediate Payment of the ſaid Arrear, and that the future Payments ſhould be paid regularly, as they became due.
